STARTING TALKS ON LAOTIAN CRISIS

Shastri Likely To Succeed Nehru On Tues.

Morarji Desai Says He Has Not Withdrawn

NEW DELHI (AP) — The battle to succeed the late Prime Minister Nehru appeared today to be swinging heavily in favor of Lal Bahadur Shastri, minister without portfolio. But Shastri's leading challenger refused to give up.

Former finance minister Morarji Desai, the No. 2 candidate, said a report that he had withdrawn was a "false propaganda from the other side."

It appeared, however, that ranking members of the ruling Congress Party were lining up behind Shastri and that he would be elected by acclamation at a party meeting Tuesday.

Party leaders asked Party President Kumaraswami Kamaraj to poll leading members and advise which candidate should be elected. He was reported finding a Shastri boom.

Makaraj said which candidate he would support is far from settled. He said he would meet 300 Congress officials, including Desai and Shastri, today to get a new idea of how things shaped up by tonight.

But he said that no note or inscription was found at the scene.

The bomb parts — two sticks of dynamite, a watch, a battery and a detonating mechanism—were to be sent to Montreal for further examination.

QPP Capt. Raymond Dumais, trained at Montreal in bomb disposal techniques, disconnected the watch and the dynamite after anonymous telephone calleds in French brought to them scene officers from the RCMP and city police as well as from his own force.

The monument, located within sight of the Quebec Parliament Buildings, consist of a 15-foot granite block topped by the statue of a soldier holding a rifle and a flag.

Sgt. Dumas said he heard the ticking of the watch as he approached the bomb, which was wrapped in brown paper and placed upright on the steps of the monument.

Two monuments in Quebec City were damaged last year and terrorists were suspected of being involved in at least one of the incidents.

A monument to Queen Victoria in the downtown area was blown down by an explosion and another to General James Wolfe, victor of the 1759 Battle of Quebec, was apparently pulled down with a rope.

Goldwater and Rockefeller Wait For Crucial California Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater and Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller directed final appeals to voters today in an explosive windup to California's presidential preference primary.

Bitter charges of smear" and irresponsibility" between the rival camps sharpened the vital race for the state's 86 Republican national convention delegates in Tuesday's balloting.

The polls have lifted Rockefeller to a come-from-behind underdog rating he had before his surprise victory in Oregon. But the pulse-takers cautioned their figures with enough undecided voters to swing the election either way. Rockefeller and Goldwater are the only Republicans on the California primary ballot, with write-ins not allowed.

Senator Thomas H. Kuchel and former senator William F. Knowland, state managers for Rockefeller and Goldwater, broke the Sunday calm in a televised discussion (NBC-West) of the issues.

Knowland charged smear" against Rockefeller's assertions that the Arizona senator speaks only for the extremist" element in the Republican party. Kuchel said Goldwater simply has altered his position several times on important issues and said the views do not represent responsible Republicans.

A Goldwater victory would edge him close to the 655 votes required for the presidential nomination at the national convention in San Francisco next month.

Rockefeller says that if California goes his way, he'll have at least 400 delegates behind him on the first ballot and it would be a brand new ball game.

Probing Origin Of Time Bomb

QUEBEC (CP) — Three police forces today investigated the origins of a time bomb which was deactivated shortly before it was set to go off at a Boer War monument on the 62nd anniversary of the ending of the war.

The bomb was discovered Sunday—May 31—and it was on May 31, 1902, that the war between British forces and Dutch-speaking Boers in which more than 20,000 people died was brought to an end by the treaty of Vereeniging.

A spokesman for the provincial police said the nature of the monument made it seem possible that the bomb was planted by "a terrorist of some kind."

But he said that no note or inscription was found at the scene.

The bomb parts — two sticks of dynamite, a watch, a battery and a detonating mechanism—were to be sent to Montreal for further examination.

QPP Capt. Raymond Dumais, trained at Montreal in bomb disposal techniques, disconnected the watch and the dynamite after anonymous telephone calleds in French brought to them scene officers from the RCMP and city police as well as from his own force.

Fateful Week Coming

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The current session of Parliament today enters what may be its most fateful week.

With talk of a new general election in parliamentary corridors and manoeuvers of the Liberal party building their annual council meeting of about 250 delegates, Prime Minister Pearson is expected to announce the legislative program for the next few weeks and indicate when the crucial flag debate will open.

Parliamentary business scheduled today is debate on a government revision of the National Housing Act bolstered the federal government's support of urban renewal and subsidized low rental housing projects.

Mr. Pearson is to address the Liberal federation council meeting Tuesday night. It may prove the most significant speech of the week in view of the political context in which the speech will be delivered.

PRESSURE MOUNTS

Pressure is mounting on the government to submit the flag issue to parliament for plebiscite. But Mr. Pearson has said the decision to adopt or reject his proposed maple leaf flag—together with the Union Jack as Commonwealth and allegiance to the Queen—must be made by the elected MPs.

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker has been building an argument that the flag debate is Mr. Pearson's own, and that the government has been withholding information the Commons should have in dealing with the issue.

The government, on the other hand, insists that all of its side of the argument will be laid out plainly for Parliament to deal with when the flag debate opens formally. This may be later this week.

Liberal backbenchers as well as the Conservative backbenchers and leaders say they are ready for a decision. Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet colleagues, however, are reported to be in the position that an election on such deeply-emotional issues as the flag and biculturalism could be seriously damage national unity.

Mr. Pearson's promised speech of parliamentary business for the next few weeks may indicate the amount of time the administration has for a parliamentary recess this summer. When he made a similar plan three weeks ago, the program was judged so heavy that only law - makers should expect little more than a long Labor Day weekend early in September.

Mother of 3 Slain, Husband Is Charged

TORONTO (CP)—A 34-year-old mother of three was stabbed to death Sunday night, leading what police have described as the most violent crime wave in Toronto they could remember.

Lena Brown was stabbed five times with a kitchen knife in front of her youngest son, Kenneth, 2, Saturday night. Her husband Frank, 43, a barber, has been charged with non-capital murder.

The woman's death brought to five the six-day total of violent deaths in Toronto. Also, police were trying for one of last week's slayings committed suicide last Tuesday.

Police said they found Mrs. Brown bleeding on the floor at the foot of the stairs of the home the Browns shared with another couple. She was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital. Her two aunts called police.

CP from Reuters-AP

ABERDEEN—The number of confirmed typhoid victims in the Scottish city of Aberdeen rose by 19 today to a total of 179.

But the number of suspected cases fell from 49 Sunday to 36.

Aberdeen, hit by the biggest typhoid epidemic in Britain for 27 years, now has 205 victims and possible victims in hospital.

Typhoid is an infectious disease, marked by high fever, eruption of red blotches on the chest and abdomen, nausea and severe intestinal irritation.

The outbreak was caused by a can of corned beef, believed to have originally come from South America.

Today's figures implied that while a number of suspects had been confirmed, new cases had not been coming into hospital, said the city's medical officer of health, Dr. Ian Bremner.

Asked about the possibility of a third wave of cases, Mac-Queen said it looked as if by Friday he would be able to say that the biggest danger was over, provided there was no fresh outbreak.

Meanwhile, two Royal Navy men, taken to a Glasgow hospital Sunday as suspected typhoid victims, were reported today to be only suffering from a stomach ailment.

Aberdeen was still a "ghost" city, with 30,000 students being kept away from the closed schools and dances sporting and social events cancelled.

Scotland's most popular holiday resort faced its quietest summer ever with thousands of people cancelling holidays.

The Aberdeen outbreak started through the sale of decayed meat from a city supermarket. The meat slicer used on the bad beef also was used to cut other meats. This spread the disease.

Held Captive for 21 Days Near Peterborough Says Man

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Police said today a 57-year-old Nobleton, Ont., man has told them two gunmen held him captive for 21 days in a shack north of here.

They said Lloyd Hannah, a boat salesman, was found staggering along a country road 20 miles north of here Thursday. He was shaky, unshaven and complained of hunger.

Police said his wife had reported him missing Friday after seeking his car which he said was stolen by the two men before they released him blindfolded onto the road.

Mr. Hannah told police he stopped his car at a red light in Nobleton, 24 miles north of Toronto, on May 8 and two armed men jumped into it and forced him to drive them to Peterborough.

He said the men kept him in a shack for three weeks, then blindfolded him and drove him in the country road and dumped him on it, driving off in his car. They took $340 Mr. Hannah said he was carrying with him.

Mr. Hannah said he would be able to recognize the men if he saw them again, but did not know where the shack was. "All I know is that it's in the north part of Peterborough," he said.

Mrs. Hannah said her husband had lost 20 pounds and was "feeling very bad. It's terrible, just terrible."

She said he had told her he tried to escape once, but one of the men hit him with a gun. Her husband had told her the men not bound, but the men had watched him every minute.

Mr. Hannah returned home Thursday night.

Govt. 'Took Honest Way' In Proposing Flag Policy

--Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the government "took the honest way" in proposing its policy for a new maple leaf flag and a Union Jack flag in a single resolution before Parliament.

He also told the opening session of the Liberal National Council meeting that MPs will make the flag decision because that is what they were elected to do.

In both references to the flag issue, Mr. Pearson appeared to be striking at opposition charges that the flag resolution be split in two so as to deal with the two banners separately, and that the flag issue be made the subject of a national referendum.

He recalled that the party's election platform called for submission to Parliament of a design for a distinctive Canadian flag within two years of taking office. At the same time, the Union Jack would be designated as the symbol of Canada's commonwealth connection.

The government had put this in a resolution before the House as we were pledged to do."

"We took the honest way."

Mr. Pearson urged that the 200-odd delegates take no action that would give the impression the flag now is a partisan issue.

"It should be above that .... and I hope it will be discussed on the broadest parliamentary basis possible."

Each party would yoke in accordance with his convictions and "I hope it will be decided on a parliamentary basis."

The responsibility was the MPs' and "it don't matter how you could find a better cross section than that—to have the decision made by the men and women who were elected to make decisions."

Mr. Pearson said no matter how basic and important the questions put forward by the government, they were twisted almost daily by the Opposition and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. He had hoped, despite a minority Parliament, for a maximum of co-operation.

"But the Opposition and their leader we must be defeated at the earliest moment. But I assure you that it is not going to prevent us going ahead and doing the job as we see it must be done."

He said the Opposition's attitude is that if arrangements are made with Ottawa and the other provinces "that is capitulation." And if a federal government were unable to accept certain provincial requests, "then we are arrogant centralizers."

Negroes Bring Terror

NEW YORK (AP)—Bands of teen - aged Negro marauders, raiding subway trains and a ferry boat, brought terror to normally quiet sections of Brooklyn and lower Manhattan during the weekend.

Early Sunday, 20 youths stormed aboard a subway train en route from Coney Island in Brooklyn, terrorized and robbed passengers.

The youths, many of them reeking with alcohol, left the train at Kings Highway, a business area in Brooklyn, after smashing windows and light bulbs.

They ran to the street, smashing the window of a beauty parlor and stole about $90 from the cash register.

Elsewhere in the district, which is predominantly white, reacted with anger and a street clash was narrowly averted.

ARREST 12

Officers in 11 cars sped to the area and twelve of the youths were arrested.

Less than two hours earlier, two youths had assaulted and the motorman aboard a subway train near Prospect Park in Brooklyn. They threatened him with a meat cleaver.

Police said the four boarded another train and threatened passengers with the cleaver. One passenger, pulled the emergency cord as the train rolled into a station, ran from the car and called police. Police got there in time to grab the four.

Sunday night, five Negro teenagers attacked a white youth on a train in lower Manhattan, beating him and knifing him in the shoulder. All five were arrested.

GO WILD ON FERRY

Saturday night, about 25 youths went wild on a ferry en route from Staten Island to Manhattan. Shouting, dancing and terrorizing passengers, they swept food and drinks off the refreshment counter, stole about $90 from the cash register.

All 50 high five squad cars waited for the boat at the tip of lower Manhattan, the operator of the refreshment counter was too frightened to identify the marauders and they were not arrested.

Friday night, a white school teacher, Miss Charlotte Lipsik, 38, was raped and killed by an unidentified person in the Crow Heights section of Brooklyn.

Police Hunt Slayer Of Young Girl

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP)—There was talk of a hanging here during the week-end as police checked every house in a search for a killer.

The police were searching for the slayer of 12-year-old Judy Howey, bound, gagged, sexually attacked and beaten to death by a blow on her head.

Sgt. Kevin Johnson of the RCMP, heading the investigation into the Friday slaying, said police had received a number of calls.

The hanging talk was part of the fear that has gripped the residents of this lumbering and sawmill area 40 miles north of Vancouver, where there was also talk of sex deviates.

Pat Brennan, chairman of the council, summed up the fear.

"If they caught the guy, there could be a shooting. We should hang him in the square."

WAS MODEL STUDENT

Judy was described as a model student, a lover of the outdoors and a member of the girl guides who attended Sunday school regularly.

"There are 4,000 people in this part of the valley and 25 per cent of them are children," said her father, Clarence, chief electrician at a lumber mill.

"It is hard to understand why one was singled out."

Judy was struck down on a side path that subdivision resi-

Three-Party Govt. Seen Breaking Up

British, United States Are Chief Negotiators

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Consultations proposed by Britain and the United States were expected to start here today on the Laotian crisis, diplomatic sources said.

The talks on the ambassadorial level will be held against a background of civil war in this Southeast Asian kingdom and the apparent breakup of the three - party coalition government.

The sources said the talks were likely to last about 10 days with envoys of Canada, the United States, Britain, Thailand and South Viet Nam taking part.

Russia and Britain were co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva conference which provided for the neutrality of Laos.

The envoys were expected to investigate charges by the neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma that pro - Communist Pathet Lao forces, which have advanced into previously held neutralist territory, have violated the Geneva treaty with the aid of North Viet Nam.

France, Russia and Communist China have called for the Geneva conference to be reconvened.

Britain, the United States and Souvanna have asked the Pathet Lao forces to return to the positions they held before their advance May 16 and oppose holding a new Geneva conference until these conditions have been met.

Sunday, the Pathet Lao radio, quoted by Peking's New China news agency, said the proposals to hold the ambassadorial meeting was a plot aimed at legalizing the reshuffle of the Laotian government and to enable Souvanna to ask for military assistance from the U.S. and other foreign powers.

Today, the Pathet Lao announced it no longer recognizes Souvanna as premier.

The Pathet Lao said it was withdrawing all its government personnel from Vientiane, the Laotian administrative capital.

(Observers in Tokyo, the Associated Press reported, believe the Pathet Lao, which controls about two-thirds of Laos, may establish a rival Laotian government of Communists and dissident neutralists.)

Violent Outbreaks In British Guiana

GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan planned to meet with two opposition leaders today following renewed outbreaks of racial violence in British Guiana.

Forbes Burnham, leader of the People's National Congress, and Peter d'Aguiar, United Force leader, planned to see Jagan at the legislative assembly.

Burnham told reporters: As far as I am concerned I am not discussing my matter except the ending of violence and disclosure of illegal arms caches."

An official of the PNC made representations to the British garrison headquarters in Georgetown Sunday about alleged caches of arms smuggled into the country from Cuba.

The PNC has long claimed that a significant quantity of arms have arrived in the country aboard Cuban rice-carrying ships and were hidden by Communists. British Guiana lies just off the Caribbean at the top of South America.

In separate weekend racial clashes a man was hacked to death with cutlasses and another man and his daughter were slashed.

Police said occupants of passing cars also were injured when angry mobs stopped them in areas, which is predominantly East Indian with the recent influx of evacuees from the riot-torn Wismar Area.

The race of the victims was not immediately known. The incidents followed a long series of clashes between Negroes and people of East Indian origin.

Burnham told reporters he had received an invitation from Premier Eric Williams of Trinidad to visit there.

Burnham also said he would welcome Williams coming here to use his good offices in solving the British colony's political crisis.

Closed-Door Meeting Being Held in Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Top U.S. strategists opened secret talks on Communist - plagued Southeast Asia today as the shaky coalition government of Laos appeared to be failing apart.

The virtual pullout of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao movement from a patched-up coalition with Laotian neutralists and rightists deepened the crisis atmosphere surrounding the talks.

Just about every key U.S. official concerned with South-east Asia was present for the two-day conference behind closed doors at Pacific command headquarters.

The final decision maker in Washington for the talks is President Lyndon B. Johnson but much of the trouble in Laos and South Viet Nam.

Any decision involving military moves would mark a significant turn in U.S. policy which so far has avoided such action against North Viet Nam.

It was understood that U.S. officials have been carefully considering a variety of possible pressures, ranging from demonstrations of strength outside Communist - ruled North Viet Nam to more direct military moves such as a guerrilla counter-offensive.

The conference was expected to explore a new direction of diplomatic and military questions, including a possible big-power talk on neutralization in Southeast Asia.

Official American quarters for the talks consider the problems of Laos and South Viet Nam in tandem—rather than separately—largely because of the same Communist threat facing all of Southeast Asia.

North Viet Nam is supplying men, arms and equipment to insurgents in both Laos and South Viet Nam. Looming behind North Viet Nam is Communist China.

Any decision to act against North Viet Nam would have to take into account possible reactions by Red China.

Albert College Holds Annual Baccalaureate Service At Bridge Street Church

Parents and friends of the members of the graduating class at Albert College joined with the congregation at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening for the annual Baccalaureate service.

Rev. Harry M. Davis, ministers of the church conducted the service and on behalf of the officials extended a warm welcome to all in attendance. Mr. Newton Thompson read the Scripture lesson.

The procession entered the church to the organ music of the processional hymn played by D. Alec Gordon, with the clergymen leading, the members of the faculty, the Board of Governors, the graduates in gowns and mortarboards of blue and gray and the students of the school following.

The choir music with soloist Hazelnan Reid, added to the service of praise. Mr. Robert Reid was choir director. At the front of the church five baskets of flowers were arranged which gave grace and beauty to the altar.

SPECIAL OCCASION

Rev. J. Alastair Haig, principal of Albert College thanked the ministers and members of Bridge Street United Church for so graciously opening the gates of the sanctuary for this annual service. It was a special occasion, marking as it did the last time they would worship together as a family. Bridge Street had become the church home for many from Albert, both students and faculty members, and Sunday morning worship had been a blessing to them. Mr. Haig introduced the speaker for the occasion, Rev. George M. Morrison, B.D., B. Comm., secretary of the Board of Evangelism of the United Church of Canada, Toronto.

Mr. Morrison prefaced his discourse with a wish to the graduates for the best of God's blessing as they went out to face a world of change that was coming rapidly upon them.

Basing his sermon on the advice to steer by the stars and not by the light of every passing ship, Mr. Morrison compared life to a trip by sea.

WORLD OF CHANGE

"There never was a day in life when navigation has been more difficult," said the speaker, "and there never have been so many passing ships. Many of the graduates will embark on careers that did not exist a few years ago. It is a world of unbelievable change.

"The affluent Western world knows more and more about the needs of the lands beyond its borders but it is spending more and more upon itself. The early church sailed on seas that were dangerous and rough.

"We have a star beyond our vision to steer by. It is the fear of the Lord, the holy awe, the mystery and wonder that young people need to know. They need to know God the creator, God who put us here, and this we understand only by faith.

"We need a star within, to open our hearts in faith. These two stars will mean the ongoing power of life's navigation. We need people who will hold to their wars, upheld by God. My hope is that you may serve His upholding sustaining power with these two stars to guide the way to the Lord."

Fathers Take Children From Beatle Show

In the midst of the shouting, fainting and screaming, two fathers of teen-age children made almost as much noise as the pop singers.

The Beatles—John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr—were halfway through Twist and Shout when Benjamin Smith stood up in the audience and began shouting.

They're like animals and savages," shouted Smith, referring to the audience, and nobody's trying to control them. It's atrocious and unbelievable."

Smith called his wife and two daughters, Marian, 13, and Linda, 10, from their seats.

We're leaving," he yelled.

They left with him.

He was followed by Philip Spanjer, his wife and three-year-old daughter.

I didn't come to hear kids screaming," said Spanjer. This is a waste of money and a disgusting exhibition."

The Beatles leave Thursday for performances in Scandinavia and the Far East.

Pope Defends Work of Pope Pius in War

By EUGENE LEVIN

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI Saturday defended the work of Pope Pius XII during the Second World War and said he deplored "the horrible ordeals" of Jews in recent years.

Pope Paul spoke out anew for his wartime predecessor at two separate audiences. Pope Pius has been the subject of controversy as a result of Rolf Hochhuth's play, The Deputy, which suggested that Pope Pius did not speak out strongly enough against Nazi persecution of the Jews.

At one audience, for members of the Italian Association of War Prisoners, the Pontiff mentioned Pope Pius specifically and outlined what he called his "tireless work full of solicitude and worries" during the war.

"Only an eye veiled by incomprehension and malice can ignore that work," he said.

MADE PROTESTS

He added that Pope Pius made "firm protests against the continuous illegalities committed by invading armies"—presumably referring to the armies that occupied Italy, both German and Allied.

Man Held for Deportation 87 Days Under Cash Bail

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Nurse, a calypso singer and limbo dancer from Trinidad, has been released from Don Jail here after being held for deportation 87 days under $2,000 cash bail.

Nurse entered Canada casually at Windsor in 1956. Since then he had been sustaining bright clubs here, has married a Canadian girl and has a five-year-old daughter.

He was arrested March 4 and ordered deported the same day by a board of inquiry here. An appeal was turned down at Ottawa March 20. He continued to be held while legal efforts were made to free him.

The Telegram says a welfare officer testifying after it began asking questions about him following the recent deportation of Harry Hooper, a Buffalo, N.Y., man who had been held in Don Jail 90 days for refusing to answer immigration officials' questions.

The Telegram says the immigration department had refused to accept property bail instead of cash bail until Friday, but on that day it reduced the amount of cash bail from $2,000 to $500 and let Nurse go free on his own recognizance until the bail should be deposited finally.

REPORTS TWO OTHERS

The newspaper also says two other men—not named — who were held on immigration warrants were freed "at the same time and in the same haste."

Lawyer Hugh Robertson, who was unsuccessful last Tuesday in an attempt to free Nurse by habeas corpus, said today he will appeal the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

He also said Immigration Minister Trembiay will be asked to exercise clemency.

Nurse entered Canada from Detroit in July, 1956. He was turned back on a first attempt

Farm Income In '63 Down 5.4 PC Over '62

OTTAWA (CP) — Net income received by Canadian farmers from farming operations in 1963 declined 5.4 per cent to an estimated $1,410,200,000 from $1,490,700,000 in 1962, the bureau of statistics said today.

W. Zachariah Instantly Killed East of City

A 17-year-old Belleville youth was instantly killed early Sunday morning when he allegedly jumped from an automobile travelling at about 50 miles an hour.

Police say the dead youth was a passenger in a home being driven by his 22-year-old brother-in-law, Robert L. McFaul of 20A Pat Dundas St., Belleville.

They said the two had left a hotel in Shannonville around 4 a.m. and were proceeding west on Highway 2 towards Belleville. The Zachariah youth was said to have jumped from the McFaul vehicle near Elmwood Drive at the Quinte View Estates.

A Central Taxi driver, Craig McClelland, came upon the scene and with Mr. McFaul took the youth to Belleville General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival by Coroner Dr. Ted Orr. An inquest has been ordered to determine the cause of death, which is believed to have been a broken neck.

The accident which occurred at 12.05 a.m. Sunday is being investigated by Constable B. Ross of the Belleville OPP detachment.

The late Mr. Zachariah was born on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve and moved to Belleville about eight years ago, where he received most of his education.

He was employed by the Belleville Brick Company here and was a member of the Reserve's All Saints' Church.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Ruth Zachariah; his grandfather, Clifton Zachariah and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral service will be held Wednesday afternoon from All Saints' Church, Tyendinaga Reserve. Funeral arrangements under the direction of the White - Morris Funeral Home, Deseronto.

Lou Smrke Sues City For $2,140

Municipal troubles of what seemed long ago and far away echoed in Belleville this morning.

Listed on the Hastings county court general sessions docket presented Judge W. S. Lane was an action against the city by Lou Smrke, member of the 1959 McFarlands world hockey championship team.

Circumstances surrounding municipal support of the McFarlands triggered a judicial inquiry into city affairs the same year the Macs returned triumphant from the world contest at Prague. It eventually resulted in a special five-year tax levy to retire deficits accumulated by municipal projects and aid to the team.

Mr. Smrke is suing the corporation for $2,140 — claimed as the balance outstanding on a contract he signed to play for Macs in the 1958-59 season.

The bulk of the claim — $1,416 — is alleged as the amount owing on a period of employment guaranteed for Mr. Smrke after the season ended. The contract, says Mr. Smrke's claim, provided he would be found employment at $75 a week. The period named is March 27 to August 6, 1959.

The balance of the suit is for $726 owing on his hockey-season salary.

The claim charges that money was collected on the special tax levy to retire all debts incurred by the corporation and that Mr. Smrke is the only former McFarland player not to have received any settlement.

The case has been set for June 25.

At the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association field day for youngsters under 16, pony back riding appealed to some.

Will Form No Alliance With Any Group

QUEBEC (CP)—Pierre Bourgault, newly-elected president of the Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale (assembly for national independence), says the Quebec nationalist group should aim to be organized for electoral action in 10 counties of the province by the end of October.

Mr. Bourgault said after his election Sunday that the party will form a common front with other like-minded groups if necessary "but no alliance."

During the sometimes stormy two-day convention of the RIN he had urged the party to work with any group interested in making Quebec independent. But the delegates rejected a resolution to this effect.

The election of Mr. Bourgault, a reporter for the French-language newspaper La Presse to the top post was made unanimous after he beat incumbent Guy Poulot of Quebec City by 125 votes to 85.

Mr. Poulliot was chosen vice-president.

WILL ASK CORE

Mr. Bourgault said he will seek advice on non - violent political action from the Congress on Racial Equality, a United States group advocating full civil rights for all Negroes living in that country.

Most of the delegates appeared to range in age from 18 to 35. They greeted Mr. Bourgault's election with wild cheering.

The new chief told a press conference after the convention that the party has made no decision on what action to take when Queen Elizabeth visits Quebec City. The visit is scheduled for the fall and has been the source of considerable comment among some elements of Quebec opinion.

Said Mr. Bourgault:

"I like to fight, I want to fight. I know that alone I can't do anything but with the Rassemblement behind me I will have the best advisers that can be found."

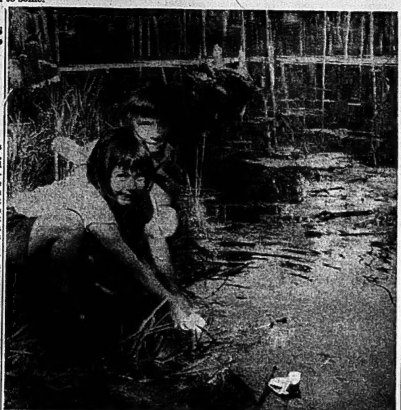
Virgin Mary Paid Homage By Children

TRENTON — At St. Peter's Church in Trenton last night, children from St. Peter's and St. Mary's schools held a procession through the aisles of the church, honoring the Virgin Mary. As May is the month set aside to pay special homage to the Queen of Heaven, last night's children's procession brought to a close the month's special events.

Each school class was led by a white-clad, veiled girl and a boy, chosen by their classmates. Roses were deposited at the base of the statue of the Virgin, and at the end of the procession, Mary was crowned with a crown of rosebuds by Danielle McNamara. Debbie Wilson carried the rosebud crown on a white satin cushion in the parade.

The recitation of the Rosary and the Litany followed the crowning. Special prayers were said for the repose of the soul of Rev. W. H. Carty, a former pastor at St. Peter's who lost his life in a boating accident three years ago, June 6, at Buck Lake.

Speaking to the assembled parents and worshippers, Rev. J. G. Clancy said that Roman Catholics reverence the Virgin Mary because she was the human being who had been closest to God . . . she brought God to man.



Three Cars Involved In Accident Saturday

TRENTON — An accident involving three cars resulted in damages estimated at more than $1,100 in Trenton Saturday afternoon.

Police say a car driven by Kenneth Wayne Rollier, of No. 6 Repair Depot, was in collision with a taxi cab being operated by Ronald Griffiths of 80 John St. The accident occurred on Dundas St. West, in front of the Centre Theatre.

The Rollier vehicle then proceeded around the corner onto Quinte Street where it struck two hydro poles and came into collision with a vehicle being driven by Garry Fowler of R.R. 1, Carrying Place; finally coming to rest against a train-track block at the side of the street.

There were no personal injuries. The accident is under investigation by the Trenton police department.

Trent Traffic Is Halted At Glen Miller

At navigation opening on the river May 15, the locks at Campbellford and at Peterborough were both closed to traffic for repairs.

This week, in spite of a large number of boats on the river between locks, travelling was curtailed at the lock at dam No. 3 at Glen Miller because of a faulty valve.

Four boats passed through Lock No. 1 but only two of them made it to Campbellford before the valve trouble developed.

The two boats that did not make it are waiting at Lock No. 3 while the valve undergoes repairs . . . workmen hope, today.

Mayor Gets Every Vote, Represents 25 Residents

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Philip Smith who represents the 25 residents of Three Valley Gap, B.C., may be able to tell his colleagues something about winning elections when he arrives at the 27th annual conference of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Regina this week.

He polled 100 per cent of the votes cast in the civic election last week in the community 12 miles west of Revelstoke.

He said:

"I simply explained in a pre-election speech if I failed to win the election the three other candidates will simply be asked to come to the office and pick up their unemployment insurance books.

Mayor Smith, motel manager and promoter in the one-man-owned centre added: "I suppose you could say the fact that I own all the pay cheques for the town's residents had some influence on the vote."

He and companions Russ Reid and Jack Lower were interviewed on the way to the convention in a 1912 Overland touring car.

To qualify for the annual conference and get a little publicity, the mountain tourist stop needed a mayor as official representative for the community.

ALL GIVE VOTE

"An election was arranged . . . and in the best interests of democracy every live being was given a vote.

"We have 14 burros at Three Valley Gap. One man, a friend of mine, was allowed to cast seven ballots on their behalf.

"As long as I'm mayor, and that'll be as long as I want to be, I'm going to work for the taxpayers.

"We haven't paid taxes there for 52 years that I know of and I'm going to try and keep it that way."

Mayor Smith said he is also devising an economic radial railway system for public transportation.

"We've constructed a narrow gauge railway around the perimeter of the settlement which consists of a motel, museum and service station," he said, "which will provide for all our transportation needs for the future."

POWERED BY BURROS

Burros draw the cars which carry 36 passengers each.

"They tried a radial railway system in Toronto, he said. "but they couldn't make it work. They didn't have cheap source of power like we have."

The delegation expects to arrive in Regina today and will take part in a downtown parade Wednesday.

Mayor Smith said he hasn't yet formulated any resolutions to press at the convention on behalf of his constituents.

"It's my first venture in public life," he said, "and I want to watch and learn before I make any serious declarations."

HAS LONG PETITION

TORONTO (CP) — Sherwood Sugden, co-ordinating director of an Emergency Committee to save the Red Ensign, said Sunday his group has compiled a petition 115 feet long, containing names of Canadians from coast to coast who want to keep the Ensign as Canada's national flag. He said that R. Hardy Small, Toronto businessman and former member of Parliament for Toronto Danforth, has been named treasurer of the committee.

Mr. H. K. Let's Stick to the Middle Road

Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, has recommended that the CBC should aim at operating without advertising revenue.

CBC President Alphonse Ouimet takes directly opposite view.

Both qualify their stands.

Dr. Stewart says it would not be possible for the CBC to operate on a non-commercial basis immediately. Mr. Ouimet's view that completely non-commercial operation is "neither practical nor desirable" applies in "present circumstances."

Dr. Stewart leaves no doubt that he considers non-commercial operation the ideal. Mr. Ouimet does not make it so plain what his conception of ideal circumstances are, but one gets the distinct impression he would consider the cessation of commercial operation undesirable even if it became practical.

What Dr. Stewart is proposing would almost probably amount to the kiss of death for the CBC as we know it today. The CBC has a gross commercial revenue of over $30,000,000 a year. While a considerable proportion of this revenue may be spent in obtaining it, it is self-evident that present contributions from the public purse would have to be increased sharply if the CBC was without any commercial revenue—or, in the alternative, the CBC would have to curtail sharply its present services.

Neither alternative would prove popular with the public, which fills the dual role of consumer and taxpayer.

Dr. Stewart argues the CBC would have greater freedom in its role of serving the national interest if it were not obliged to seek programs which would sell commercially. We doubt this freedom is desirable. Programs which sell commercially are those programs that the bulk of the listening and viewing audience wants to hear or see—in other words popular programs. Now we would be the first to decry a suggestion that the popular taste should be the sole criterion in the selection of programs. The CBC deserves our applause for the presentation of worthwhile programs which fall to attract large audiences. Still, the public taste deserves some recognition, the majority ought to be given a fair share of the type of programs it wants. The need to sell commercially acts as a valuable check on the CBC under present circumstances might become a universal disregard for the popular in the interests of what some officials regarded as informative, elevating or artistic.

The present middle-of-the-road policy, with public taste and national interest both exerting their influence on programming, appears to us to result in an admirable mixture, sparing us the excesses of both the wholly commercialized product and the danger of the intelligentsia taking over completely.

No Way to Promote Unity

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, says he does not like the flag design proposed by the Pearson Government.

In this he has considerable company.

Mr. Thompson favors a referendum. In this desire, too, he has company and there are good arguments which can be advocated for such a course.

But certainly not the argument used by Mr. Thompson.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the only way it (the flag question) can be settled with any degree of national unity will be through a national referendum."

One thing which a referendum emphatically would not promote is national unity.

Unless we have been hopelessly misled by everything which has been printed about the flag question, there is a deep cleavage of opinion along regional lines.

We would not expect the Red Ensign to get many votes in Quebec.

We would expect the Red Ensign to get heavy support in Ontario.

If Mr. Thompson can explain how it would promote national unity to have the Red Ensign "rejected by the votes of French-hating Ontario" or, in the alternative, to have the Red Ensign "rejected by the votes of English-hating Quebec," we shall be pleased to listen.

Certain thoughts are prayers. There are moments when, whatever be the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees.—Victor Hugo.

Reasonable Hospital Policy

Toronto Globe and Mail

Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet may have been a beneficiary of the rough ride which the Royal Canadian Legion gave Prime Minister Lester Pearson on Sunday, but so, in a different sense, was the Legion.

Conscious of their lapse of manners toward the Prime Minister, the Legionnaires appear to have accorded Mr. Teillet a courteous hearing on a subject — the use of veterans' hospitals by civilians — which on any other occasion would have put them in a fury. And when they listened to him, they found that he made sense.

Mr. Teillet was able to show that a greater involvement of civilians in veterans' hospitals would serve the cause of veterans as well as civilians. This was not the light in which the Legion, egged on by Opposition politicians, had been viewing the Government's proposal to turn parts or all of some military hospitals over to civilian operation and use. But it is the light of reason.

These hospitals — there are 11 of them in Canada — were built as active-treatment centres to handle the casualties of war. An active treatment centre is the most expensive of all hospitals to build and maintain, since it requires not just beds and nurses but all the costly accoutrements of modern medicine: laboratories and technical staffs.

In the first years after the Second World War all but essential facilities were needed by the men who used the hospitals, but as the years of peace passed they were less and less in demand. Some of them fell empty, and those that remained in use were more and more filled with veterans who had no need of active treatment, but only of convalescent and domiciliary care. The sort of care which could be provided elsewhere at a fraction of the cost of active care.

To permit this state of affairs to continue would have two bad effects. Eventually these military active treatment beds would either be empty or filled by patients who did not need such costly services, while waiting lists formed for civilian active-treatment hospitals. From highly qualified staffs which are essential to the efficient operation of such centres flashes their talents seldom in use, would drift away from the military hospitals, so that even the bona fide veterans who needed their services would no longer find them available. Neither veterans nor civilians would be properly served.

That is what happened between the two world wars. Some veterans' hospitals declined into little more than old men's homes, and it was necessary to completely reorganize and rebuild them to meet the demands of the Second World War.

Mr. Teillet's proposals would prevent this unhappy state of affairs from developing, while preserving the veteran's prior right to treatment. Some military hospitals, or parts of them, would be turned over to civilian operation for use by both veterans and civilians, as their needs dictated. Veterans' groups in each area affected would be consulted before a final decision was made. Veterans would be guaranteed priority for active treatment in any hospital whose control had been transferred, and the medical staff of the Department of Veterans Affairs would retain the responsibility for deciding when a veteran was to be admitted or discharged.

The hospitals would be used by those who needed them and would preserve their high quality the rights of civilians in them would be protected, and the veterans would not have it upon their consciences that military hospital beds stood empty while their fellow Canadians went without hospital care.

Having refrained from booing Mr. Teillet before he opened his mouth, the Legion found that his proposals were acceptable and that applause was the reaction was in order. So might it often be where reasonable men talk and reasonable men listen.

Ridicules Red Critic

New York Times

Britain's representative has a told a subcommittee on colonialism, at the United Nations, that conditions in some British colonies are "even worse" than suggested in a Soviet delegate's criticism of colonial practices.

Speaking of the island of Mauritius, he said:

"The original inhabitants were all liquidated, if I may use the expression, by the time of the arrival of the first explorers. They were birds of the species dodo, which is extinct and thus unable to press its claim to be granted independence on the basis of "one bird, one vote."

Cecil E. King of Britain was ridiculing recent criticisms by Pavel F. Shakhov of the Soviet Union of British rule in Mauritius, the Seychelles Islands and St. Helena. Mr. King said the criticisms had been based on false premises and information.

He said the Soviet delegate "has displayed as much ingenuity as the late Hans Christian Anderson."

Mr. King said he almost always enjoyed the contributions made by the Soviet delegation" in debate on colonial affairs. He said "they seem to lift the discussion out of the factual and practical framework" in which the British approach it and to lead it into a more exciting world in which the facts no longer allowed to exert a restrictive influence on the free flow of ideas."

Mr. King said that in talking about these island colonies, the Soviet delegate was "all at sea" and following a faulty compass.

The four points of this compass, he said, are:

1. All small islands were originally inhabited by a happy and prosperous indigenous people until brutal colonizers arrived to shatter their idyllic existence.

2. "The colonial power then proceeds to rule this hapless people by means of a tyrannical governor with all the powers of a czar — the Soviet representative will be more of an authority on tyrannical governments than myself."

3. All these islands are now sunk in poverty, ignorance and despair while providing supplies to the colonizers at low cost.

4. All these islands are retained only to serve as military bases for subjugation and exploitation.

Mr. King said that the first human inhabitants to take over Mauritius in the 17th century were from the dodos had come from France. About 100 years later, he went on, Europeans brought India began and these immigrants and their descendants now outnumber the descendants of the French.

He asked whether the Soviet thesis was that the islanders be deprived of their political rights in favor of the French, who were there first.

Of the Seychelles, also in the Indian Ocean, Mr. King said:

"My researches are not complete, but I believe the only original inhabitants were giant tortoises. Fortunately, these are not conspicuous in politics and have shown noninterest in political advance. The first human inhabitants were also from France."

Finally, he said, in St. Helena in the South Atlantic, the first explorers had recorded the presence of various birds, "including the wide-awake or hacked-backed tern, but alas, no indigenous inhabitants."

The first human inhabitants of St. Helena, he said, were British.

Avoil Hue and Cry

Peterborough Examiner

We must not have a hue and cry after every doctor who makes a mistake. The important thing is a forthright public enquiry that teaches everybody something of real medical practices. How many of us would be prepared to do our work under the constant threat of public censure and disgrace for any slip? A distinction must be made between honest, or unavoidable errors, and neglect and incompetence.

Prime Minister the Rt. Hon. John Curtin and Mrs. Curtin are the guests of Canada on their way home from London where Mr. Curtin attended the conference of Prime Ministers and Premiers of the Commonwealth of Nations. Canadians have read much in the news for some years of this leader of the Commonwealth of Australia and his sturdy reliance and confidence which with the spirit of the Australians have done so much to bring about the present satisfactory condition of the United Nations in their fight against the outlaw Germans and Japanese.

Australia has been very close to the war and her effort has been one of which that Commonwealth and the whole Empire as well as the other United Nations take great pride. With the improving of affairs as the Nipponese lose step by step the empire in the Pacific which Japan snatched with treachery, Australia continues to play a great part in the plans to take her place in the planning for the future security of the world. The story of the Australian troops fighting in their own land of war as well as in other theatres as in Africa and Europe is proof of the spirit of the people of that young nation which is destined to be one of the greatest of Commonwealths.

The people of Canada through their Government and Premier Mackenzie King are glad to do honor to the representative of the great sister nation of the South Pacific. They also know that the stay of the Prime Minister and his wife in this country will be a happy one.

She Afflicted Comfortable

Vancouver Sun

Lady Nancy Astor was a holy terror in the literal sense of both words. "The world," she said, "is a stinking place." She tore through life like a buzz-saw with her tongue flapping at both ends. And she tried to make the world a better place.

She made bold men quail. Women, too. When Prime Minister Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Pandit, critized British rule in India, Lady Astor retorted: "If it weren't for the British you'd have been burned as a widow long ago," she said sweetly.

It was Lady Astor's genius to shatter hypocrisies with a word.

She spoke from her heart, not her head. Always within her sometimes not wisely. As British's first woman MP she fought interminably for the rights of women and children. It is a question just how much good she did accomplish. She was condescending to the lower orders and offensive to her equals. Some of the hostility she aroused was undoubtedly directed against the causes to which she was devoted.

But one thing can be placed to her credit. As long as she lived nobody could ignore them —on her. When she died at the age of 84 it is doubtful if she had comforted many of the afflicted. But she must have had a lot of fun afflicting the comfortable.

To Your Good Health

Outlook for Leukemia Victims Is Not Gloomy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has chronic lymphatic leukemia. Is there any hope for leukemia victims? — A. A.

I suspect you are jumping to the conclusion that all cases of leukemia are alike. They are not.

There has been a great deal of discussion about acute leukemia which attacks children. It is a tragic disease which formerly meant that these youthful sufferers died within a matter of a few weeks or months.

This, however, is quite different from the chronic types which are usually seen in adults. They are leukemia, but not the swift, devastating type of the others.

In adult cases, enlarged glands in the neck, armpits and groin are usually symptoms concerning which patients seek medical attention. Investigation then usually shows the spleen to be enlarged.

Treatment generally is by X-ray, causing these enlarged nodes to recede while the white blood count to decrease to a more normal level. In some instances certain drugs are used to accomplish the same purpose.

The outlook is not gloomy. Many leukemia do not progress in any circumstances, and there is as yet no positive cure, but with proper treatment people may get along with this condition for years.

Constant observation, and repeated therapy, by X-ray or other means, is essential, but the patients can remain both comfortable and active.

Acute leukemia in children remains a different problem. Drugs frequently can force a remission of the disease. For a time, the child appears to be perfectly healthy. But in nearly all cases the leukemia later resumes its activity, and cannot be halted.

The length of the remission varies. There are a few rare cases in which the remission has continued for five years, and some for longer than that, but the doctors who have been caring for these children dare not say that they have been cured.

In other cases, only relatively brief remissions are possible, for there are different types of the acute disease, some responding better to drug treatment than others.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes the kick-back, the double standard of public morality and private corruption — that is widely publicised on every front, give-and-take, with a veneer of respectability, or of acceptability, at least. If you are big enough, and have the right connections, the rules can be broken with impunity.

Why should not the promise a juvenile delinquent makes to himself is not to go Straight, but to Get Big? His crime was not in being crooked, but in being weak and small. The worship of power is our modern idolatry (with Success) as its crown; and crimes of violence are simply a way of grasping power by those who have no other skills.

Crime Increase Four Times Rate Of Population

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the last two decades, since the end of the Second World War, crime has increased in the United States at four times the rate of the population growth. Most of this increase is urban, violent, and committed by younger persons.

Why should it not continue to get worse? Everything is in its favor. The population is rapidly growing in all parts of the country; the smaller town is dying out, or being absorbed into a metropolitan cluster.

The median age of our population is younger now than ever before in history, between 18 and 25 comprise a larger segment of the total population than any other age-group, and it will become even larger in the next decade.

Violence is a way of life throughout the world, both internationally and domestically. The use of force as the final external stability in the world today than at any time since the beginning of recorded history. Whole continents are involved in riot, rebellion and revolution. The revolutionary century — legitimate or otherwise — is pandemic.

We used to believe naively that crime was mostly a matter of slums and poverty and lack of opportunity. It is these, but also much more than these — otherwise, how account for the fact that crime rises in times of prosperity and opportunity, and declines in times of depression?

To many young people, the world today seems a racket society, at all levels, and the machinations of governments to the venality of police squads, to the corruption of large corporations to the sordid manipulations of powerful labor unions. They read about a war only about the dramatic exceptions; and these exceptions confirm and rationalize their contempt of the whole social order.

The connivance, the pay - off, the kick-back, the double standard of public morality and private corruption — that is widely publicised on every front, give-and-take, with a veneer of respectability, or of acceptability, at least. If you are big enough, and have the right connections, the rules can be broken with impunity.

Why should not the promise a juvenile delinquent makes to himself is not to Go Straight, but to Get Big? His crime was not in being crooked, but in being weak and small. The worship of power is our modern idolatry (with Success) as its crown; and crimes of violence are simply a way of grasping power by those who have no other skills.

White Cane Club Plans Future Events

The business meeting of the White Cane Club of Belleville and district was held last Wednesday evening in the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle St.

Helen Wardhaugh welcomed the members and escorts, numbering 21. Miss Towner collected the flower fund and it was suggested by Artie Scott that forthcoming birthdays be announced in the Bulletin a month previous, which was agreeable to all. The birthdays for June were read and Mr. Scott announced that Franklin Loft, a patient in the Belleville hospital was getting along fine.

Mrs. H. Rollins read the constitution of the club and a discussion among the members followed. It was decided at this time for the secretary to give notices of all meetings as to time and place. Helen Wardhaugh gave an interesting and encouraging report of the convention which she had attended at Sarnia.

Mr. Scott announced those who entertained for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lloyd who played the guitar and both sang several folks songs, which were thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. George Elmore expressed thanks for the entertainment and Mrs. Zimele extended an invitation to the members and escorts to hold their picnic at their home, which will be held this year on July 4. This was accepted by the club.

Plans were completed for the two bus trips, one to Kingston and the other to Peterborough, and secretary Pat Baverstock announced that the next meeting would be held at the Kiwanis Centre on June 9th.

Ted Rowe thanked the Kinettes for the delicious lunch and Helen Wardhaugh thanked the Belleville Lions Club and the Trenton Rotary Club for transportation.

Court Orders Guard Posted On Freighter

BALTIMORE (AP)—A court-ordered guard was posted Sunday on the Jian, an American flag freighter against which claims totalling nearly $30,000 have been filed.

U.S. Deputy Marshal Frank Udoff said preparations were being made to move the vessel to a publicly-owned pier from a Western Maryland Railway pier.

The Jian was docked at the railway pier when the claims were filed in U.S. District Court on behalf of deck and engine officers saying they were owed back wages and on behalf of pension-welfare and vacation funds of unions representing officers and men aboard the ship.

ORDERS GUARD

Judge Roszel C. Thomsen ordered the full-time guard after being advised the Jian, a Liberty ship, had cargo including 90 tons of fireworks.

In Cleveland, a spokesman for the U.S. marshal's office said the A and J Faith, an American-owned freighter, was being detained in that Lake Erie port because of a $2,500 lien pending in federal court here.

The A and J reached Cleveland from Duluth, Minn., Tuesday carrying a cargo of machinery and C.A.R.E. products. It was en route to Montreal and Iran.

Some 45 crew members refused to work shortly after the A and J docked. They charged the dispute concerned alleged non-payment of wages and failure of the company to contribute to the pension fund.

Love Via Correspondence Unsatisfactory and Unreal

DEAR DORIS — I'm 18, and I've been writing to this boy in Quebec for a long time. But the strange thing about him, he won't send me a picture of himself.

I find that we have so much in common. You might think I'm crazy, but I think I love him. Do you think a thing like that could come true? — NOT KNOWING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NOT KNOWING — 'Fraid not, sweetie! We love our dreams, at 18, and your pen pal doesn't want to snap yours off with a snapshot. But life is made of real flesh and blood people, and love takes personal knowing.

DEAR DORIS — My husband, unfortunate as it may be, has been doctoring all winter and has finally lost all his hair, eyebrows and lashes. I doubt if they will grow back and so he feels he should purchase a wig. We don't know anything about them or where we can get one.

We feel it best to get one as soon as possible as he is very self-conscious. — WIFE OF A SALESMAN.

DEAR WIFE — Good for him! This is the very time when modern art can do the job of restoring self-confidence. Today's wigs — even those for men — can fool anybody. I'm sending you the name and address of a wigmaker.

DEAR DORIS — My husband has always been a drinker and stayed out to all hours. He has a good job but hasn't a cent in the bank. He lets the telephone and hydro go until they threaten to turn them off.

The only time he speaks decent is when he wants something. The oldest girls say when they are 18 they are going to leave. He is always picking on them; says they aren't supposed to have their friends in the house.

I feel so depressed and shut in all the time. I don't dare go out unless he knows exactly where I am going. — END OF ROPE.

DEAR END — No columnist can wave the magic wand which would change your self-seeking alcoholic husband into a Prince Charming. But a social worker at close range might help you make a bid for a better deal. And a specialist in alcoholism might even point the way to a cure for him.

Give your local family agency a chance to help you.

Writer Has Refreshing Disregard for Syntax

Some town, but sure nice little town."

Steven Frost has been up the river as far as Alfred Charlie's camp. He said he see fresh caribou tracks but didn't see any when he's coming back."

With delightful simplicity and a refreshing disregard for syntax, Edith Josie, a 43-year-old Loucheaux Indian who serves as correspondent for two newspapers, leads off one of her columns on happenings in this community 80 miles north of the Arctic circle.

Chief Charlie Peter left for Crow Flat and he saw caribou tracks on King Edward Mountain and he killed few, so Andrew Charlie came into town for load of meat. The caribou is sure fat and nice meat out in Flat."

Miss Josie's columns are written in the style of a diary, penned in a clear hand on ruled sheets of notepaper and mailed to the twice-weekly Whitehorse Star and the daily Edmonton Journal whenever a plane is heading that way.

March 13 is mail day. It is big day for people in Old Crow.

Soon they hear plane coming, they rush and put their parky on, and everybody runs to see plane; also to see Mr. Steven Frost, friend of Ben, arriving safe from Dog Races. We were very pleased because Steven Frost win second prize."

She became The Star's correspondent two years ago and recently her column began to appear in The Journal.

Mr. Peter Moses has been doing lots of work when he is alive on this earth. He was happy old man and frigndly with anybody even with the white people. So I know everybody will miss him but hope he will have good rest."

Mrs. Fern Simon, wife of the Anglican minister here, picked Miss Josie for the job.

So popular have her columns been that The Star has published a booklet, Old Crow News, The Best of Edith Josie, and distributed it, giving the royalties to Miss Josie. More than 1,300 copies have been sold.

Most ladies had somebody to look after them. Edith Josie didn't have a husband to look after her, so I gave Edith the job."

'LONESOME TOWN'

Miss Josie, who lives with a blind grandmother and other members of the family in a one-room log house, often mixes her own comments with the news of what's going on in this village on the Porcupine River near the Alaska border.

Must Do More To Strengthen Family Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the governor-general, told a University of Ottawa convocation audience Sunday that the community can and must do much more to strengthen family life.

Mme. Vanier, who was awarded an honorary doctorate of social sciences by the university, said that the necessity for a healthy and dynamic family life is obvious.

In a reference to the Governor - General's conference on family life, which begins here June 7, Mme. Vanier said she did not feel pessimistic about the future of the family.

"There is an elite of thinkers and social workers struggling, with intelligence and devotion, with the problems of our society," she told an audience that included her husband.

"One of the happiest results so far of the Canadian conference on the family has been the discovery of how numerous and how zealous these people are."

Many Ignorant Of True Facts On Poverty

TORONTO (CP)—Most Canadians refuse to believe that one-sixth of the population lives in poverty, says Besale Tourel.

Yet this poverty is destroying people, ignoring social and health problems and building a reckoning in ill health, social breakdown and crime that is frightening to contemplate."

In an address to a meeting of the Ontario Welfare Council just before her retirement May 29 as its executive director, Miss Tourel said some political representatives are among those ignorant of the facts of poverty in Canada.

She recalled that the statement that one in six is a state of poverty was poohpooed as an irresponsible exaggeration recently in the Ontario legislature.

Most elected representatives believe it politically sound to oppose most needed social reforms, she said. Delinquents were still treated as if they could be reformed through punishment, and the current methods of retraining those who have lost jobs through automation caused 50 per cent or more to drop out.

Miss Tourel was chief of staff with the Ottawa Public Welfare Department before taking the post here. She was called to organize emergency relief in the Red River flood in Winnipeg and was on the federal cabinet committee on manpower.

She originally intended to become a doctor but recalls that at her home in Renfrew, Ont., this idea was not encouraged.

When I decided to go to the University of Toronto and take up social service work my father thought it was just as weird an idea, but there wasn't any difficulty."

Letter to the Women's Editor

EDITOR

One of the nicest social events at the Hastings County Home is the birthday party. One day each month, all residents who have a birthday in that month are honored by a special party.

This is sponsored and arranged by the Auxiliary. This Auxiliary is made up of women all over the County, either as individual members or representing a group or organization. Their object is to foster good will and add pleasure and variety to the life of the Home.

It was my pleasure to be a guest at the May party and it was very delightful. The big attractive dining room was the setting. Some 26 residents were entertained.

We were served a delicious lunch of sandwiches, cakes, cheese and pickles and cups of fragrant tea, in dainty fancy cups. A beautiful birthday cake, so cut that each individual piece was topped by a rose in icing, a candle and our name on each piece was given to each.

After lunch the Auxiliary formed a circle and sang happy birthday. Our matron, Mrs. Yorke gave the names and ages of five of the guests all over 90 years.

Their pictures were taken. It was a most heart warming afternoon for us all. We thank the Auxiliary for their kindness.

A birthday guest,

Catholics Refuse to Vote On Birth Control Debate

By ED TREFIAK

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A resolution asking for an amendment to the Criminal Code of Canada to make legal the dispersal of birth control information and devices, was passed Sunday by the national Price of Women after a 45-minute debate.

Eleven of the approximately 250 delegates, including those from Quebec, abstained from the vote. There were no votes against the measure.

Dr. R. H. Wright of the British Columbia Research Council told delegates medical science and modern technology have done a great deal to reduce the death rates in the world and "they could do equal wonders for the birth rates if they were allowed to, and given the same push."

Advance in this field has been held back because of opposition from the Roman Catholic church "and an old fashioned sense of propriety, Dr. Wright said.

He urged the VoW to speak out loudly and often until the federal government gives at least as much attention to the world population explosion as it is giving to choice of a flag.

SUGGESTS CAMPAIGN

Dr. Wright also suggested the VoW press for channelling of one per cent of the money now spent by world governments for defence for the building and maintenance of United Nations universities around the world.

He said one per cent of next year's world defence expenditure would be $1,200,000,000 and with 24 UN universities could be built, equipped and started in five years.

Dr. Wright suggested conversion of the United States naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, into a United Nations university campus.

He said Canada could consider playing a "trump" card to force the issue.

"For a long time both the United States and the Latin American nations have been hoping Canada would join the Organization of American States.

COULD BACK OAS

"I think it would be quite in order for the Voice of Women to take up the idea of our joining, if, and only if the Guantanamo base was turned over to the UN."

The organization urged Canadian United Nations delegates to vote for all measures aimed at securing of human rights for all in South Africa."

Another resolution passed called on VoW members to concern themselves with civil rights of minorities in their own provinces, particularly in education, employment and housing.

Miss Joan M. Davenport, daughter of Mrs. R. F. Davenport and the late Wing Commander Davenport, will graduate with an honor B.A. degree on Friday, June 8th, at the University of Toronto. Miss Davenport, a former student of B.C.I. and V.S., has completed a four-year course in modern languages and literature and plans to attend Ontario College of Education, Toronto, in September.

MAIL CALL

Question: Here's a situation that has often bothered me. When someone's called to the phone, what should others in the room do — continue talking or keep quiet so as not to interfere with the conversation? At tea the other day, the hostess answered the phone and all talk ceased until she returned. I thought it gave the impression we were eavesdropping and that it would have been more polite to keep the conversation going to drown out the phone conversation. Don't you agree?

— Mrs. R. F., Hilton, N. Y.

Answer: When someone's on the phone, others in the room should do their best to ignore the phone conversation. Guests should continue to chat quietly until the hostess returns, but she should try to keep the phone conversation short and return to guests as soon as possible.

Question: Friends of ours have a couple visiting for a month, until their house in another town is ready for occupancy. I plan a large party soon and would like to invite our friends, but I prefer not to ask their house guests. They're older than the rest of the crowd and the man tends to get a bit argumentative as the evening gets older. If I invite our friends, must I also invite their house guests? —

Mrs. S. H. M., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: Since you know your friends have house guests, and you obviously have met them, it would be an obvious slight not to include them in the invitation.

VoW Collects 12,000 Teeth For Analysis

SANFT, Alta. (CP) — The Voice of Women, Canada's nation-wide baby tooth collectors, have turned at least 12,000 teeth over to a Toronto scientist for analysis in the last year, a report showed Saturday.

The scientist, Dr. A. M. Hunt, director of dental research at the University of Toronto, tests the teeth for radioactive Strontium 90 content in a program to determine patterns of absorption of radioactive material in the bones and teeth of children.

A report presented at the annual convention of the VoW showed 6,000 teeth had been collected in Toronto.

Tooth collection was started in Montreal in 1959 and in 1963 was organized on a Canada-wide basis at the suggestion of Dr. Ursula Franklin of Toronto, research director for VoW and senior director for specialized X-ray techniques at the University of Toronto.

The VoW, which has about 5,300 members, pressed for world peace and opposed the spread, testing and use of nuclear weapons.

The 140 delegates at the two-day meeting approved a resolution asking Prime Minister Pearson to withstand any United States pressure for removal of Canadian restriction on nuclear flights over Canada.

Other resolutions urged diplomatic recognition of Communist China, a non-nuclear role for Canada and NATO and active Canadian participation in neutralizing Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Ann Landers

Hubby Should Disband Home Grown Spy Ring at Once

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's job takes him out on the road four days a week. Lately he has started something new. When he returns on Thursday night he lines up our three boys age 12, 10 and 6, and invites them to tell on each other.

ANN LANDERS

The one who has the "most complete" report — this means the child who tells the most on his brothers — is the winner of a nice, new shiny dollar.

I didn't like the idea from the first and I said so. It makes me sick to hear these children tattle on one another. My husband says it is the best way to keep them in line.

Last night I heard the middle boy add all sorts of curly-cues to an incident which he was reporting about his older brother. Later I asked him why he embellished the story beyond the truth. His replied, "Because I wanted to win the dollar."

Please print my letter and your answer. I would like my husband to see it. — THE AGAINSTER.

DEAR AGAINSTER — I hope your husband will disband the home-grown spy ring at once. The little game he is playing will unquestionably develop some very undesirable character traits in his sons. It will also teach them to distrust and despise each other.

If your husband must play games he should encourage each boy to report on himself. Such reporting will foster truth and integrity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Five months ago today I got my engagement ring. I was the happiest girl alive.

The wedding is planned for September, but as the time draws near I become more frightened and less sure of our love. All Mac and I do is fight. We haven't had a pleasant evening together in weeks.

Certain things about Mac that I used to think were cute now annoy me — his laugh for instance. I fixed him a bacon and tomato sandwich last night and he found four things wrong with it: the bread was too hard, there wasn't enough butter, the tomato was soggy and the bacon was too crisp.

Do all engaged couples go through a stage like this? I am 23 and Mac is 26. — STAGE FRIGHT.

DEAR FRIGHT — Engaged people who would argue about a bacon and tomato sandwich are probably dwelling on trifles because they don't want to face up to their real problems.

If you two can't get your relationship on an even keel I urge you to break the engagement. This is not a stage. It's a preview of what your marriage would be like.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — If you tell one more young girl to give up her out-of-wedlock child I'll scream.

How can you be so heartless? Don't you see that often the baby is all the girl will have in her whole life. I know what I'm talking about because it happened to me.

A social worker talked me into giving up my baby 18 years ago and I've cried myself to sleep every night since. Whenever I see a teen-ager on the street I wonder if it could be mine.

My parents are dead now and I have two sisters who don't talk to me. All I know is work, empty house and hours of loneliness. If I had kept my child my life would have been full. You are wrong, wrong, wrong. — JONQUIL.

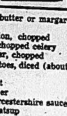
DEAR JONQUIL — The social worker gave you good advice. To bring up a fatherless child is plenty tough, even for women who have strength and emotional stability. A woman who has cried every night for 18 years would probably have raised a child with a million problems.



If you are honest you'll admit you wanted the child not for the child's sake, but for your own.

Baked Beef Hash For Monday Dinner

by Mary Moore

By 10 o'clock last Mon. morning by random chance I knew of three households where there was leftover beef and beef gravy from Sunday dinner.

Obviously it is simple to slice and serve it cold but nearly everybody prefers a hot meal, so I decided to make some beef-yet hash.

There were to be four of us for dinner, but I had only 1¼ hours to get it ready. Everybody but me was leaving for an eight o'clock meeting, so I would have to wash the dishes alone.

To keep dishwashing to a minimum I used my corningware all - purpose casserole which measures 8¾ x 8¾ x 1¾," because some of the ingredients in the Beef Hash dish require advance cooking and subsequent baking. An added advantage is that this dish can be taken directly to the table from the oven.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Cream of Asparagus Soup; Baked Sausages; Applesauce; Creamy Mashed Parsnips; Green Peas; Peach Melba; Coffee.

MONDAY BEEF HASH

(Meat, but could be cooked on day of stove)

2 cups ground roast beef, (fairly well - packed)

1 cup leftover beef gravy (or boiling water flavored with beef bouillon cube — see below)

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 medium onion, chopped

½ cup finely chopped celery

½ green pepper, chopped

3 medium potatoes, diced (about ½" dice)

1 teaspoon salt

shake of pepper

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 tablespoon grated cheese (optional)

(If you have a fireproof dish (see above) which can go into the oven, use it for sauteing vegetables. If not start this in a frying pan.) Grind cooked beef through medium knife of food chopper. In the melted butter or margarine saute gently the onion, celery, green pepper until limp. Add potatoes and all remaining ingredients except cheese. Mix well, smooth to top, cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 60 minutes. Five minutes before it is finished, if desired, remove cover and sprinkle top with ¼ cup grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese, brown top with top burner turned on, but watch it. This only takes about 2 minutes.

Or if you prefer to cook this on top of stove turn heat on very low and cook hash covered, until potatoes are barely tender. If this is cooked on top of the stove a lovely gold crisp crust forms on the bottom, so when it is served, best should invert servings so gold crust is turned up.

Note: If 1 cup boiling water flavored with 1 beef bouillon cube is used it makes the hash a little moister than it would be when thickened gravy is used. Or use a package of Brown Gravy Mix, prepared as directed.

Woman Has Driven Trucks For 25 Years

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) It's all in getting used to the heavier vehicle," says Mrs. Alice Kozskulics of nearby Kings Head who has been driving trucks for 25 years.

Mrs. Kozskulics operates one of two trucks owned by her husband and is ready to tackle any hauling job that comes up.

It doesn't matter to me if it's gravel, logs or pit props—it's all in a day's work.

I enjoy it, and most important, I make a living at it."

A husky woman with a pleasant smile, she first got behind the wheel of a truck just before the start of the Second World War to haul pit props to coal mines in the area.

In those days the roads were rough and there were many times when the steering wheel was jerked out of my hands, or took some manoeuvring to hold the trucks on the road.

Between jobs, Mrs. Kozskulics found time to look after her home and four children. Two young sons are both truck drivers with a construction company.

She has been employed by most of the construction companies in the area and says she gets on well with the male drivers.

They treat me like any other driver. The fact that I am a woman doesn't allow me any privileges. I find the other drivers very co-operative and when I get into difficulty, they pitch in and lend a hand."

Alice is a crackerjack operator," says one male driver. She can handle a truck with the best of us and is always ready and willing to help out if any of us run into trouble."

She says she plans to continue driving as long as there is driving as long as there is work to be done."

But 30 miles to the north in Kivu province, heavily armed rebels and spear-carrying warriors ambushed two companies of Congolese Commandos. An attack on the key provincial city of Bukavu was feared.

The ambush was a demoralizing blow to the Congolese regular army, which has suffered 400 casualties in Kivu fighting.

Reports from Albertville said the rebel seizure there was bloodless but that army killed about 100 persons in reprisals.

Canadian Press Sets up Office In Moscow

MOSCOW (CP) — John Best, 35-year-old Nova Scotian with 12 years newspaper experience, arrived in Moscow Sunday to be the first resident correspondent in the Soviet Union for The Canadian Press. He is the only Canadian staff reporter in Russia.

With him is his Edmonton-born wife, the former Joan Mitchell who taught school in Vancouver from 1950 until their marriage in 1962.

His headquarters will be in Moscow but he expects to travel through the Soviet Union to cover spot news of particular interest to Canadians and to report on life and conditions in the vast country.

His articles will supplement with a Canadian flavor the extensive news coverage already available to CP through its contractual arrangements with The Associated Press and Reuters.

In 1954 Bill Boss, now head of the public relations for University of Ottawa, represented CP in the Soviet Union for several months. A series of articles he wrote after leaving Russia won the Inland Newspaper Award for staff correspondening.

Last year Alan Harvey, CP London bureau chief, visited the Soviet Union. His series won honorable mention from the NNA judges.

FIRST IN OFFICE

Best is the first CP man to set up a Moscow office and take up residence there.

He has just returned to CP staff after a year of study at University of Toronto as one of five Southam newspapers following in journalism selected in 1963.

Best, from Canning, N.S., graduated in journalism from University of Western Ontario in 1950. After 18 months with the Moncton Transcript and a long European trip, he joined The Canadian Press as a reporter.

Besides working in Halifax, Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria, he has covered Parliament and the United Nations and specialises in international affairs. Previously his emphasis has been on Latin America. He spent 3½ months in Cuba just after the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt in 1961 and reported from Cuba several times since.

While on CP's Vancouver staff, he took leave of absence in 1958-59 for a writing trip around the world.

HALTED BY GULLS

ST JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Trans Canada Airlines flight with 108 passengers was forced to a halt just short of the end of a runway at nearby Torbay airport late Sunday when a flock of seagulls flew across its flight path just as the plane was taking off. The pilot's captain said he decided not to lift off as seagulls have been known to down aircraft by fouling their air intakes. Ground crews disbanded the gulls and the plane took off only a few minutes late.

Glamor, Classiness Greets Britons

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Ontario has decked herself out in a glamorous new gown to greet Britons, complete with glass, class and the largest silver nugget in Europe.

Ontario House, renovated and redesigned to be a showcase for the province, will be officially opened June 4 by Premier John Robarts. But it is already attracting attention and doing business.

In fact the principal offices never closed during what Agent-General J. S. P. Armstrong calls "the nine months of chaos" while workmen completed the $400,000 face-lift.

Armstrong had to change his own office twice. The only resident undisturbed during the noisy process was a pigeon nesting on a ledge. Two chicks were hatched just before the scaffolding came down.

Reconstruction stirred old memories for the agent-general. He was the man who in 1944 leased the bottom two floors of the bomb-damaged building just off the Haymarket to re-establish an official Ontario office in Britain.

FIVE MORE FLOORS

At that time the building had no windows and repairs were carried out between air raids. Armstrong slept on the premises and acted as fire watcher. But the building was ready to handle the flood of immigration and trade queries that came after 1945.

Ontario now has acquired the top five floors of the building—once a hotel—and converted the structure into a modern block of offices, reception rooms and exhibition centres.

All the province's five departments in London — immigration trade and commerce, agricultural, public relations and administration — are housed under one roof for the first time.

More than 60 Ontario firms have supplied materials for fixtures and furnishings, including maple and pine panelling, carpets, tables and chairs.

Dominating the large glass-walled entrance lobby is a $25,000 silver nugget. It weighs 1,500 pounds and the main floor had to be reinforced with steel beams to carry it.

PAINTINGS FROM HOME

The Iroquois Room in the basement has an undulating ceiling made of pine slats. Regular exhibits of Ontario products and resources will be mounted in the room, which has a modern kitchen attached.

Decorating the walls are 30 oil paintings presented by the Ontario Institute of Artists, most showing typical Ontario landscapes.

Two unusual features are the air conditioning system, rare in British public buildings, and the Victorian brass doorknobs with the provincial coat of arms that have been installed in the agent-general's private office.

"I scrounged them from the basement of the Parliament buildings in Toronto," said Armstrong with a grin. "They were left over as extras and I've had my eye on them for some time."

Campbellford and District High School held an activities banquet in the cafeteria of the school on Wednesday evening.

Following the dinner, guests and pupils were welcomed by Principal L. S. Caughill, B.A. The head table and activity group representatives and staff: Mr. R. K. Thompson, B.P.H.E. Greetings from the North East Northumberland District High School board were expressed by Mr. G. W. Rutherford.

The prizes and trophies were presented as follows:

The bowling trophies — A league, John Gray; B league, Bob Reid; special trophy, Brian Nelson. Presented by Mr. P. D. Haley, B.A., B.Ed.

FIELD DAY CHAMPIONS

Field day champions were presented by Mr. R. K. Thompson and Miss W. Fennell. Athletic awards were presented by Mr. J. Cheynowyth, B.A.; activities awards by Mr. H. E. Cryderman; academic awards by Mr. L. S. Caughill, B.A., and honor awards by Mr. Russell Rowe, M.P.P.

GUEST SPEAKER

Speaker of the evening was Mr Russell Rowe, M.P.P., a former pupil at Campbellford District High School. He remarked about the extensive growth of the institution both as to size of building and staff and curriculum since he attended and recalled with nostalgic humor some of his experiences while a pupil at the school.

Speaking seriously to the pupils Mr. Rowe stressed as his subject "Opportunities and Responsibilities". He stated, "if there is to be a meaning and purpose in everything we do, we will sooner or later have to come to grips with the question of why we are living and what is best to both earn a living and to enjoy life."

STAY IN SCHOOL

He urged the pupils to stay in school until they had completed their education firmly stressing the importance of such and asked them to think seriously about why they are in school. Getting a job is not necessarily the most important thing in life or one's job does have an important place especially in a world where automation is consistently increasing and jobs may become more difficult to procure.

The speaker continued by saying life will be much more enjoyable if serious thought be given to what an individual can contribute to a situation. The happiest individuals are those who are giving as well as getting.

INDIVIDUALISM

Mr. Rowe also urged the students to think for themselves rather than conform to group thinking. It is important to decide as an individual what is valuable and what is unimportant. In summarizing the speaker reminded the pupil audience, "You are the persons who will be in charge of tomorrow's world. You will have to look at today's values and see if they are good enough for tomorrow's situations." Mr. Rowe closed his address by saying, "Learning is like rowing a boat upstream —not to advance is to drop back."

Mr. Harry Bradley introduced Mr. Rowe and appreciation was expressed by Neil Burgess.

Bradley Recalls D-Day at Omaha Beach

General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, now 71 and chairman of the board of Bulova Watch Company, recalls in this story his experiences as ranking U.S. officer in the field in the Allied D-Day attack on Normandy 20 years ago.

By OMAR N. BRADLEY
General of the Army, USA.
As Told to Hugh Mulligan

WASHINGTON (AP) —Standing on the bridge of the USS Augusta in the pre-dawn darkness of June 6, 1944, with just the ghost of a moon glimmering through the overcast, I listened to the steady drone of our heavy bombers high above the clouds and watched the enemy anti-aircraft stab blindly at them in the blackened night.

Suddenly the Augusta opened fire with her eight-inch turrets and, as the ship shuddered with each salvo, I plugged up my ears with cotton. Less than five miles off our bow, Omaha Beach lay hunched in the morning mist.

After months of planning and rehearsing, after long weary days of fighting through Africa and Sicily and up through the boot of Italy, our time had come. It was H-hour on D-Day off the Normandy coast.

Already our demolition teams had gone in to blast out the underwater obstacles so ingeniously planted by Field Marshal Rommel. Bomber fighter escorts were scaling the shingled cliffs to knock out the coastal guns. Already our nineteen divisions had been dropped into the hedge rows behind the beaches, and our Second Army invasion fleet with the LCTs (landing craft) and trying to "swim" ashore with the aid of the DUKWs, canvas skirts that the resourceful British had invented.

BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Soon the first wave of infantry would be hitting the beach. For me there was no time for invisible Overlord had run beyond the reach of its admirals and generals and was in the hands of the individual unit commanders. The biggest, most ambitious amphibious invasion the military history was irrevocably under way.

(Omaha Beach, on the extreme right flank of the invasion, and Utah Beach, next to it, were the targets of the American assault forces. Farther east the British and Canadian troops attacked three beaches dubbed Gold, Juno and Sword).

That chilly morning off the coast of Normandy left me with many memories that the intervening 20 years have not dimmed.

I remember first scanning the skies and waiting for the Luftwaffe. Why didn't it come? Goering's Stukas and Messerschmitts would never have a more congested or rewarding target. Our assault fleet stretched in unending line across the Channel. Yet through out the daylight hours I saw no hostile planes.

I remember worrying about the weather, and wondering if the decision to go ahead with the invasion after stormy seas had forced a postponement the previous day was the correct one. The waves were much rougher than we would have liked. The first of those floating tanks on which we had pinned so heavily and on high were all. Later we learned that of the 32 tanks launched from the landing craft only five managed to get ashore.

And, as in every field engagement, I remember thinking with a heavy heart of the day's objectives in terms of the lives it would cost. For a combat commander, this is the real agony of war.

TIMING WAS RIGHT

As it turned out, General Eisenhower's decision to go ahead with the invasion was an inspired, courageous decision that undoubtedly changed the course of the war and the course of history. The high winds and heavy overcast that caused our bombers to overshoot their targets had an even more disastrous effect on the enemy.

They kept his navy patrols in port and grounded his reconnaissance flights so that the approach to now had been G. I. Nands proach of our invasion fleet went undetected. The bad weather also acted as a protective screen for our beach landings. Not only couldn't the Germans see us, but they couldn't believe that we would attack in such dirty weather.

If we had called off our invasion that day we would have had to wait two weeks for favorable tide conditions and available morning light. This would have meant refueling the fleet and depending on 140,000 men to keep the biggest secret of the war in Europe. Besides, two weeks later the Channel was blasted by its biggest summer storm in 20 years. We would have had to wait until July and might well have had difficulty in clearing a port (Cherbourg) by Sept. 15, the last date that supplies could be landed over the beach.

By that time, of course, the Germans had developed the V-1 rocket. I sometimes wonder what would have happened had they been able to launch those buzz bombs on our troops concentrations back in England before the invasion.

HITLER FOOLED

The big thing, of course, was that Hitler never really became convinced that this was the main attack until about the time that we finally broke out of the beachhead at St. Lo. He thought that another army was getting ready to come across at Calais, and we had done a lot of pains to get him to think so.

We actually sent radio operators to eastern England to send messages back and forth. You know, people experienced in decoding say, they can tell an operator by his touch, so we used the same operators they had heard in Africa. We built wooden rafts in the shape of boats and dummies flying at high altitudes would think they were photographing an invasion fleet.

We knew from our previous dealings with Rommel in Africa that he always committed his reserve divisions as soon as he got his hands on them. We were afraid that he might wait until he got three or four divisions and make a concentrated attempt to throw us back into the sea, but he never did.

For Ike, the vigil must have been even more agonizing. I kept getting messages from him: "Please send me a situation report." I'd been sending him messages all day, but they weren't getting through. Actually, what had happened was they didn't have the capacity to decode messages fast enough, and the ones I was sending went straight to the bottom of the pile.

PEACEFUL NOW

A few years ago I went back to Omaha Beach.

People were swimming in the surf where Rommel had planted his iron flanges to tear up our tanks, and plowing the fields where he had planted poles to prevent our glider landings.

I even looked for some of those pillboxes that had proved so tough for us on D-Day, but I couldn't find the one I remembered best. I was told that a Frenchman had used it as a foundation for his house.

I spent three days at Omaha then, visiting the cemetery and just walking around. Even then, it all seemed so long ago. It was hard to believe that so many lives, and so much effort, and much bravery on the part of so many had gone into gaining a five-mile sliver of land.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences said Sunday it will reappraise its method of judging winners of Emmy awards. The action came on the heels of recent criticism of the academy's categories, structure and voting procedures for awarding of Emmys. The American Broadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting System boycotted last week's presentation of Emmy awards for television work.

A well - informed source in London said the position on the Vientiane talks as it was known in London Sunday was as follows:

In favor of the British invitation to the Vientiane consultations — Britain, Canada, the United States, Thailand and South Vietnam.

Against — Communist China and Cambodia.

The source said replies had not been received in London from Poland, Communist North Viet Nam and Russia. But they were also believed to be against the Vientiane talks.

The Premier said Indian positions on the consultations were not fully known, the source said.

In the British view, the main aims of the consultations should be:

1. Observance of a cease-fire in central Laos.

2. Calling upon the pro-Communist Pathet Lao to withdraw its forces to their original positions on the Plaine des Jarres in Central Laos prior to their May 16 offensive.

3. Strengthening of the hand of the international control commission for Laos, composed of Canada, India and Poland.

Scouting activities

"FAMILY VARIETY NIGHT"

Highlight of the Boy Scout group committee sponsored a "Family Variety Night" in the I.O.O.F. Hall last Wednesday evening which proved to be most successful.

Entertainment by the Scouts and Cubs under the leadership of Mrs. Gordon Russell, Mrs. Alan Howell and Mr. William Geen was both interesting and amusing.

The bake table provided by friends and parents of the Scouts and Cubs was well patronized and the proceeds from it as well as admission at the door made the project a financial success.

While the crowd assembled Mrs. Merrie Mumby presided at the piano and she also played accompaniment for the various songs and choruses on the program. Mr. James Seekings as master of ceremonies spoke briefly and welcomed all present.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Earl Morton, Mrs. Gordon Baldrick, both of Thomasburg, and Mr. Tummon of Halloway.

5 Candidates Take Positions Left of Centre

TORONTO (CP) — Five of six candidates for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party took up positions to the left of centre when they spoke to a Toronto and district Young Liberals' leadership conference Saturday.

Speakers were Ontario legislature members Joseph Gould, Toronto Bracondale; Robert Nixon, Brant; Edward Sargent, Grey North; Stanley Greene, member of Parliament for Renfrew South and Charles Templeton, former evangelist and Toronto newspaper editor.

Andrew Thompson, member of the legislature for Toronto Dovercourt, was invited but did not attend.

Mr. Sargent said the leadership should be held by a man with knowledge, imagination, initiative, energy and candor.

Mr. Green said more productivity should be put into public sectors of the economy although he was all for local autonomy. The main concern of the Liberals, he said, was to "crush the Conservatives."

Mr. Nixon said a solution to the economic and social dislocation resulting from automation was the most pressing problem before the Liberals.

Mr. Gould said the leader of the party should recognize the vested rights of individuals and be ready to champion those who haven't any rights, vested or otherwise. Removing the cost of education from real estate was the most serious problem before the party, he said.

Mr. Templeton, who resigned as executive news editor of the Toronto Daily Star several weeks ago to enter politics, said:

"Fundamentally I am essentially to the left, but where I land on any specific problem depends on the problem."

The most important problem before the Ontario Liberals was providing all the education a child can assimilate medical care and right to a guaranteed living wage, he said.

OWNERS ARE RESPONSIBLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Centennial Commissioner John Parker said today that the 40 to 50 theatres, auditoriums and cultural centres being built for Canada's 100th birthday will be the sole responsibility of their owners after 1967. "You will be standing on your own feet in the maintenance and use of the new structures," he told a national conference on the planning, building and use of arts centres being erected for the centennial.

Judy Garland Out of Hospital

HONG KONG (AP) — Judy Garland walked out of hospital today but said: "I am still very weak. I am going to take a long rest."

The 41-year-old singer, who fell into a coma last Wednesday, was accompanied by her personal physician, Dr. Lee Siegel of Hollywood, and her travelling companion, actor Mark Herron.

Siegel said Miss Garland was suffering from pleurisy but added: "I think she is well enough to leave the hospital and take a rest in her hotel."

Herron rushed Miss Garland to hospital in a taxi Wednesday as Hong Kong was lashed by typhoon winds.

Her sudden illness following a stormy Australian concert tour was variously described by hospital nurses as a heart attack and poisoning. Herron said it was exhaustion.

Siegel, who arrived from Los Angeles Sunday, said the illness was pleurisy, a chest inflammation usually accompanied by high temperatures and difficulty in breathing.

Volunteer Workers of Y Taken on Tour of Building

Sunday afternoon over one hundred volunteer workers were given a tour of the new Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. building by the directors of the Y. To say that they were impressed with the new facilities would be an understatement, because, compared to the old building, this is a dream castle. Indeed, they learned that this was the theme that the architect had in mind. Youngsters like castles, so the building features towers or battlements, narrow slit windows and the high vaulted ceilings.

The tour started in the adults' lounge and proceeded through the young people's lounge, locker rooms and showers, all colorful and sparkling and into the pool area. A pool, twenty-five by sixty has the south wall all glass, which will look out onto a patio later. The visitors were taken down into the basement where the filters and heating equipment are housed, a maze of pipes and a score of valves with motors whining, cleaning water and supplying heat everything neat and tidy, doing what is required to keep water clean to Y standards and to keep locker rooms dry. Then they went on to the exercise room that will have to do until the new gymnasium can be built and upstairs again to the auditorium. There the President of the Y, Mr. W. Willis, thanked them for their attendance and remarked that the success of the Y was because of their efforts, and the participation of the people of Belleville in Y activities and said that in this new building he knew that there would be a lack of neither in the future.

Rene Levesque Denounces Violence of Terrorists

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec natural resources minister, denounced terrorist violence Sunday, saying Quebec terrorists are aliens" to the province with little confidence in their ideas or the democratic process.

He was speaking on a 30-minute program, carried by a Montreal English - language radio station with Mayor Jean Drapeau and commentator Leslie Roberts.

He read a brief prepared text saying it contained the basis of the message he has been trying to get across in recent public speeches.

Resorting to violence to achieve the separation of Quebec from Canada shows terrorists lack courage and lack sense," Mr. Levesque said.

It takes real courage, he said, to go into the public square and preach what to some people may be a radical political idea. Terrorists showed they have little confidence in their ideas.

ARE SMALL SEGMENT

They are a small segment of Quebec's population, he said, and command no real support.

If what they do was not so dangerous, they would be more to be pitied," he said. What we must do is continue isolating them."

Mr. Levesque said some people are tempted to use terrorism as an excuse to put a brake on Quebec's development and to put an end to Canada."

If Quebec is showing a determination to improve itself, I don't think this should be interpreted as a threat to anyone."

REFERS TO STATEMENT

Mr. Roberts opened the program with a reference to Mr. Levesque's recent statement that Quebec must negotiate a new deal with Ottawa without violence, as much as possible."

Mr. Levesque said this phrase had been taken out of context in reports of his speech, particularly in the English - language press.

He said he had denounced violence as unnecessary in Quebec for four or five minutes before uttering the phrase.

He said all he meant is that there has been violence but that it should be avoided. Newspaper editorials and commentators had accused him of equivocating." Mr. Levesque said, but his student audience had understood he is against violence.

Boy Preacher Claims to Have Seen Vision of Jesus Christ, Stirs up Minor Revival

CAMPBELL'S CREEK, W. Va. (AP)—A boy preacher who claims to have seen a vision of Jesus Christ has stirred up a minor revival among residents of this southern West Virginia area.

Two school teachers and 200 students have been converted by 16-year-old Spencer Campbell.

A Methodist minister who has observed the boy says he is having quite an influence on the local religious community.

The hallways of DuPont High school in the Campbell's Creek area were abuzz with religious discussion as the semester closed this spring because of the little country fellow that God has seen fit to use."

Campbell's influence in the high school has been as striking as his power in the pulpit.

Prayer meetings were held in a nearby Presbyterian church during the lunch hour on school days. Some of the majorettes asked to be let out of the band because they didn't feel right about their uniforms," Campbell said.

And we almost had a prayer meeting in class one day," he said. The teacher left the room and one girl got up and started testifying."

HAD SEVERAL VISIONS

Campbell said in an interview that he has had visions of Christ on several occasions.

He described one:

A strange thing happened to me . . . I had my sermon prepared and my Scripture chosen."

Campbell said he heard a friend in the choir sing a certain passage, and that triggered it.

I grabbed the sides of the pulpit, I grew numb, I couldn't even move. I saw Christ open the back door of the church and walk in.

There was a very bright light coming from His face. I couldn't see His face because of the light, but I could see His robes and His hands, and the blood dripping out of the wounds.

I told the congregation what I was seeing, and some of them saw it too."

COME REGULARLY

The vision he said, occurred in a small church at the community of Quick, near Charleston. Since that night, they have been recurring regularly, Campbell said.

It's usually Jesus I see, but I can never get a look at His face," Campbell said. The light's too bright."

Another vision happened when Campbell's mother was in the congregation, he said.

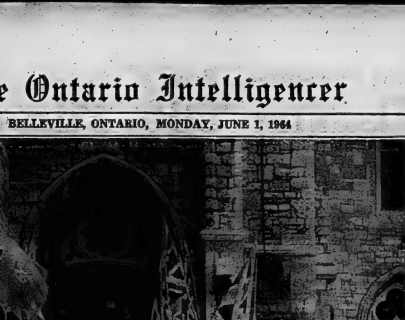
I saw Jesus under the clock at the back of the room," he said. I called to mother and said, 'Mother, I could go to heaven right now if I could walk back there to Jesus, but my legs are numb.'"

Campbell, a stocky blonde, speaks with the slow drawl of his region. He was a top athlete until he took up preaching about a year ago. He is not affiliated with any particular church.

NOT IN ANY HURRY

He is modest, and makes just average marks in school. He says he is in no hurry to take over full-time ministerial duties.

I want to stay in evangelism," he said, I'd rather do that than have a church.



I won't try to be like Billy Graham or Oral Roberts. I'm just a little country fellow that God has seen fit to use in whatever He wants. I'm not in any hurry."

Services like Campbell's happen once in 50 years, said the Rev. James H. Dew, pastor of Malden Methodist Church.

It wasn't planned," Dew said. It just fell out of the sky."

Campbell's work has had a good effect on the area, Dew said.

I received 22 of the converts into my church afterwards," he said, and other churches got new members too."

Govt., 2 American-Based Mags Criticized by Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and two American-based magazines, Time and Reader's Digest, were sharply criticized Saturday by Ontario's printing trades unions.

Delegates at a two-day conference of the Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions voted 50-10 for a resolution condemning the Liberal government for allowing the "dumping" of American magazines, including Time and Reader's Digest, in Canada.

At the same time, they urged full action on the proposals of the O'Leary royal commission designed to protect Canadian periodicals against competition from foreign publications.

About 40 delegates representing 22 locals of eight printing trades in all, attended the two-weekend conference. The federation is made up of about 100 locals representing some 10,000 printers and other graphic arts workers in Ontario.

They passed the resolution after John C. Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister LaMarsh, said the government's legislation to assist Canadian periodicals must be supported to preserve Canada's identity.

GIVES WARNING

Canada could lose its economic and political independence unless its communications media—magazines, the press, radio and TV—were held in Canadian hands, he said.

Mr. Munro said the government was proceeding with a resolution in the Commons spelling out plans to discourage Canadian advertising in foreign publications.

Mr. Munro later agreed to meet a delegation today to discuss the issue of printed materials imported from the U.S., including colored comics, school yearbooks and credit union documents.

He indicated that Finance Minister Gordon and Labor Minister MacEachen would also attend the meeting.

The split over action to protect Canadian magazines reflected trade union concern over safeguarding jobs of workers who print the Canadian editions of "one and Reader's Digest.

Delegate said that by attacking the two magazines the federation was actually giving aid to Maclean-Hunter Publications and its non-union operations.

IS UNION FAULT

John Edgecombe, president of London, Ont., local of the Bookbinders' Brotherhood, said if Canadian periodicals are produced inferior to foreign ones, the fault lies with the union movement for failing to organize them. He said nothing to do with the issue of Canadian periodicals.

However, Mr. Edgecombe said Ontario printing unions should establish a special committee to study ways of creating more jobs in newspaper and commercial printing shops.

The conference also urged the Ontario government to change its Labor Relations Act to establish a 75-day limit on conciliation periods after which a union would be free to call a strike.

BBC Prepares TV Series On First War

LONDON (CP)—Opening episodes of a proposed 26-part television series on the First World War are being heralded as a triumph by critics here.

The production was in collaboration with the Imperial War Museum, the CBC and the Australian Broadcasting Commission. Preparation has been going on for more than two years and the producers viewed 160 miles of film from 8 countries while putting the series together.

One of the associate producers is the CBC's Ed Rollins, 41, of Toronto, who has been working here with British producers Tony Essex and Gordon Watkins since last October. The series is scheduled to begin showings in Canada in the fall.

58 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 58 persons died in Canada during the weekend—30 in traffic accidents, six by drowning and two in miscellaneous accidents.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times showed Quebec led the provinces in deaths with 18, including 14 traffic fatalities, three drownings and a boy killed when a tractor overturned on him.

Ontario was next with 13 deaths—10 on the highways, two drownings and one when a baby smothered in his crib.

Manitoba had seven deaths. All in traffic. British Columbia's five deaths all occurred on the highways and of the five who died in Alberta, one drowned and the rest were killed in auto accidents.

Nova Scotia had four traffic deaths, Saskatchewan three, and Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick reported one road death each.

The survey does not include known suicides, slayings or industrial deaths.

The Ontario dead:

SUNDAY

Walter Shubert, 18, Beaverton, when the car in which he was riding rolled over several times on a nearby country road.

Terry Wells, 15, Hamilton, when the car in which she was a passenger skidded off the road four miles west of St. Catharines.

Buffalo Mother, 4 Children, Die

BUFFALO (AP)—A mother and four children died early today when fire swept their single-storey frame home in Buffalo's Central Park district.

The father was listed in critical condition in hospital.

Dead are Mrs. Barbara White, 28; Mark 4; Kevin, 3; Scott, 2, and a six-month-old child.

Fire Chief Eugene Bowers estimated damage at $6,000.

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately, but the arson squad was called to investigate, Bowers said.

Commission Begins Writing Report on Slaying of Pres., Oswald Was Lone Assassin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Warren commission has begun writing its report on the slaying of President Kennedy, finding the bad mountains of evidence that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

The commission has set June 20 as target date for completing the report, official sources said, but deadlines it will call still more witnesses to round out its intensive six-month investigation.

Still to be heard in person, at a secret time and place, is Mrs. Kennedy, the widowed first lady whose dress was stained with blood when a sniper's bullets killed the president and wounded Texas Gov. John Connally in Dallas Nov. 22.

But the basic work of the seven - member commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren is considered done, and staff groups are drafting separately the various segments of what may be a 500-page summary.

WILL END RUMORS

Barring a sensational reversal of information in the month ahead, officials said, the report will peel away the heavy layers of rumors, speculation and suspicion and present a basic core of evidence that:

1. Oswald, a hater of authority, a self-proclaimed but asserted Marxist, and an unstable ne'er-do-well at age 24, designed and executed the murder without helpers or co-conspirators.

2. The man who shot Oswald to death 48 hours later and thus destroyed all hope of getting a confession had not known Oswald and was not involved in any plot to silence him. Convicted of Oswald's murder, night club owner Jack Ruby awaits execution in Dallas.

3 No connection can be traced between Oswald's dead and any plot developed in Russia, Cuba or Mexico.

The motive seemingly lay in the unsatisfied frustrated and introverted mind of the ex-marine sharpshooter; Oswald's wife said he had become "absent-mal," and the evidence disclosed that his mother had ignored a school physician's recommendation that he be given psychiatric treatment.

ONE BIG PROBLEM

The commission's greatest problem, some sources say, has been to establish a negative truth—not merely to evaluate the wealth of evidence pinning guilt on Oswald, but also to establish that the crime could not or might not have been perpetrated by someone else—or by some secret group using Oswald and helping him."

The Warren report is expected, moreover, to deal with such questions as:

—Whether the secret service-and Dallas police took all prescribed safety measures before and during the presidential visit.

—Whether there was laxity, misbehavior or inefficiency on the part of any federal agents.

—Whether more stringent safeguards should be established for the safety of presidents.

Warren has said that no federal official or agency will be spared if censure is warranted.

18 Countries Give Support to South Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — President Johnson's call for more countries to support the war effort in South Viet Nam has brought favorable responses from more than 18.

The United States provides 97 per cent of the foreign aid received by the government of South Viet Nam.

Officials say responses received so far from other nations range from "encouraging" to "enthusiastic."

Premier Nguyen Khanh has instructed several ministries to assess their needs. An interministerial meeting will be convened to co-ordinate these proposals before negotiations for specific aid projects are launched.

Most of the aid is expected to be economic, technical and medical, not military. It will be aimed at the rural population and tailored to their needs.

The United States maintains about 16,000 military men in South Viet Nam and is pouring $500,000,000 a year into the country in military and economic aid. It has recently promised an additional $125,000,000.

FRANCE IS NEXT

The next biggest contributor, France, has provided an average of $5,000,000 a year over the last 10 years in economic, technical and cultural aid.

Contributions of all the other nations combined totals less than $10,000,000 a year.

Canada is a member of the international control commission for South Viet Nam with India and Poland.

Attentive But Prudent France's Role

PARIS (Reuters) — Gaullist legislator Xavier Deniau said in an interview published here 10 days that France adopted a very prudent and very attentive" towards the French-speaking Canadian provinces of Quebec.

Deniau, head of the National Assembly's study group on Quebec, said he was particularly struck by the rapid evolution of thinking there.

Quebec ponders with passion over its future," he told the Conservative newspaper Le Figaro after he returned from a tour of Canada.

Deniau said France's attitude should be both very prudent and very attentive."

We are not to take sides on such or such of the options envisaged by the French - Canadians bearing in mind that Canada is our ally in NATO and our faithful friend in two wars," he said.

But si s time when they are going through a period of their history which can be decisive for their future, we should tell France, Quebec's parent by blood, language and civilization outside her frontiers.

Our cultural exchanges should be developed and technical co-operation and industrial investments increased, and a greater effort made in the field of information."

Highway Deaths Mount in U. S., 409 Now Total

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic deaths in the United States during the Memorial Day weekend —more than 400—hit a record high for a three-day observance of the holiday. Boating deaths totalled 16 while 40 were drowned.

The death toll on the highways from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday was 409. Related reports were expected to raise the final figure.

The record toll for the first holiday weekend of the spring topped the previous high mark of 371 set during the Memorial Day period in 1958. The National Safety Council had made a pre-holiday estimate that between 410 and 490 persons might be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour period.

The heaviest toll was recorded Sunday as millions of motorists jammed highways headed for home after outings. Reports indicate nearly 150 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the final 24 hours of the holiday.

Pierre Salinger, Democratic Candidate in California, Making Big Run in Primary

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Like all political candidates, the only member of the original New Frontier now running for office must project a particular image and identification with the voters.

That, Pierre Emil George Salinger, running as hard as his sedentary instincts will permit for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator from California, has forsaken his familiar button-down shirt and its link with the effete Eastern United States.

With his seven best-known years spent in Washington, he must continually remind Californians he is as native as redwood and familiar with their problems.

He talks knowingly of water development and, while generally a "free trader," tells California cattlemen the government ought to help them fend off foreign competition.

He has been strapped into a pair of ski guns and Western steeds while manfully supporting traumatic memories of having to mount one of Lyndon Johnson's horses.

Despite his French forbears and gourmet tastes, he yields to no one in his admiration of the domestic wine growers of the Napa Valley and the devotees of the chuck wagon.

And, above all, he must continually remind voters of his link with John F. Kennedy and the great events, the dynamism and intellectual excitement of the New Frontier.

STUDIED IN TORONTO

Salinger, though born in California, attended school in Toronto and, as a child, showed prodigious talent at the piano. He gave a recital at the Canadian National Exhibition at the age of six.

His father, mining engineer Herbert Salinger, was killed in an automobile accident while on a mining expedition in British Columbia in 1940.

"I've got a lot of fond memories of Canada," Salinger once said. "You know two of my three brothers were born in Toronto, George and Richard." The family later returned to the U.S.

In all the diversity of political politics, Salinger, press secretary to two presidents, bon vivant, expert chef, gourmet, musician, discriminating gourmet, sophisticated wit, international traveller and connoisseur of the mighty, rises with a cloud of cigar smoke, a dry martini and amiable confidence and a display of actual physical energy that would put the first five frustrated gym teachers.

SMOOTH CAMPAIGN

Generally, his campaign runs smoothly. He rarely loses his aplomb, seldom ducks an issue and shows great promptness in questions from the floor. Like Kennedy, he answers quickly with fact, wit and little or no pomposity.

Neither his eloquence nor his figure match those of President Kennedy's but Salinger seems to have absorbed other characteristics from the former Massachusetts senator. He has the politician's familiar shout the way he points and pumps his arm, about the rhythm of the short sentences that begin, "I believe" or "I ask your help."

Being only 39, he projects youth, like Kennedy did, if not the vitality, but he has, on the platform, he reminds one of a college orator, who was too small for football, too heavy for track, too short for basketball and, having a general distaste for physical violence, went out for the debating team.

Nonetheless, he seems to appeal to females. He does not bring out the jumpers and screamers the way Kennedy did but the women do seem to go with a warm loving look, perhaps a touch of motherliness.

"We loved Jack Kennedy," a woman told Salinger at a reception in San Jose. "We know he loved you. So we do, too." Said another woman: "I want to shake your hand. This is as close as I'll ever get to Jack Kennedy." Salinger bears this kind of thing with good humor and does not exactly shrink from it.

Efforts Being Made to Curb Palace Budget

LONDON (Reuters)—The latest move in the British Royal Family's efforts to curb the palace budget was made last week when efficiency expert Sir Basil Smallpiece was appointed adviser on the running of the Royal household.

Officially, the 57-year-old former head of the British Overseas Airways Corporation will be part-time liaison chief between heads of departments.

But observers linked his two-year appointment with indications that, unless strict economy is practised at Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth will be forced to overspend the Royal budget of £475,000.

This annual sum was fixed by law at the beginning of her reign in 1952.

But since then general costs, as well as the volume of administrative work, have risen enormously.

STARTS THIS FALL

Sir Basil, an experienced accountant among other things, will apply himself to the Royal money problems in the autumn.

He will be responsible to Lord Cobbold, the lord chamberlain.

Prince Philip, the Queen's husband, caused some controversy last year when he announced that time — motion experts were to be let loose on the palace staff to improve efficiency and cut costs.

The 250 staff and administrative officials who at present run the 600-room Buckingham Palace were reassured that their jobs were safe whatever the recommendations.

The time-and-motion experts recently recommended that the Royal budget could be trimmed by the introduction of modern office equipment into most departments. The re-shuffling of office accommodation and the elimination of much duplication of correspondence were also proposed. A vast amount of official work is done at the palace which is the headquarters of the constitutional monarch as well as the royal residence.

CGE Workers Sign Contract, Get Increase

TORONTO (CP) — A three-year agreement giving 6,000 workers at Canadian General Electric Company Limited in Toronto, Peterborough and Guelph a wage and salary increase in each year was ratified Sunday night.

The settlement followed 59 days of negotiations at the labor department offices here between the U.e.t.w.o.c. Electrical Workers (Ind.) and CGE officials.

The new contract was accepted at a union membership meetings in the three cities.

The agreement provides for the new medical-surgical plan, the full fees to be paid under the Ontario Medical Association schedule. It has a concurrence feature where employees will pay 20 per cent of all other medical expenses.

WILL COVER PENSIONERS

Pensioners will be covered for medical expenses up to a total of $4,000 without any cost to them. The company will pay 90 per cent of the insurance cost, an increase of 20 per cent over the old agreement.

The minimum vacation period for two weeks vacation with pay is reduced to three years instead of five. Three weeks it is down to 12 years from 15.

A 40-hour work week was reached.

C. R. Sullivan, co - ordinator of the union at CGE, said the minimum rate for men will be $2.18½ an hour and for women, $1.98½. Top rate will go to $3.09½ for men and $2.22½ for women. The average wage rate in all plants under the old contract at CGE was $2.36 an hour.

Flaming '500' Pileup Claims 2 Lives

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two outstanding drivers died Saturday in a flaming pileup that marred the 48th Indianapolis 500.

The first closed-circuit telecast of the event showed veteran Eddie Sachs plowing into the side of rookie Dave MacDonald's car, causing an explosion that killed them both.

A. J. Foyt Jr., driving a conventional, front - engine Offenhauser, won $153,650 of the total prize money of $500,625, richest in the history of the race, topping last year's total by $13,200.

The crowd, probably a record last Saturday but not disclosed, was estimated from 260,000 up to an unlikely 350,000.

A large proportion of it saw the great ball of fire that erupted on the second lap near the upper end of the main straightaway. Many felt the heat and inhaled the smoke as five other cars piled into the inferno and were blasted from the race.

It was remarkable that the five other drivers were not seriously hurt. It was almost incredible that the bulk of the field, well around the track in pursuit of Scott Jimmy Clark, was able to get stopped.

PROMISED TO RETIRE

Sachs, 37, who had promised to retire if he won the race, was burned to death before he could be extricated from his car. MacDonald, 26, an expert sports-car racer, died in hospital a short time later.

The most serious casualty among the other drivers involved was Ronnie Duman, 32, with second- and third-degree burns. The luckiest was Bobby Unser, 30, who drove straight through the fire without hitting anything and escaped with minor burns. His brother, Jerry, 32, was killed on the Speedway in a practice run in 1959.

The hard-driving Foyt, three times national champion and the 1961 Memorial Day winner, gunned his supposedly obsolescent Sheraton-Thompson special into first place on the 80th lap, after the more glamorous new equipment had washed out.

Roger Ward, twice winner of the event, made the best showing with one of the new rear-engine Fords, taking the $66,000 second money. He was bitterly disappointed, feeling he would have won if he hadn't had to make five pits stops three more than he planned and three more than Foyt needed.

TIRES SHRED CHUNKS

Clark and teammate Dan Gurney, in the new Lotus-Fords, were the victims of imported tires that began shredding chunks of rubber. The left rear wheel suspension collapsed on Clark's car as a result of the tire vibration, sending him into the infield grass, and Gurney was called in by Lotus builder Colin Chapman of London.

Bobby Marshman, driving a year-old Lotus with a new Ford engine, set a one-lap record of 156.046 — faster than Foyt's qualifying speed of 154.072 with the track all to himself. Then Marshman sheared off an oil leak plug, and had to retire after 35 laps.

Parnelli and Johns and Foyt duelled for a while in earlier Indy roadsters but the fuel tank of Jones' Agajanian-borees special blew up in a pit stop and he was lucky to escape with minor burns. After that it was all Foyt for the last 146 laps.

Only 12 cars were running at the end.

Ward had the only Ford-powered car that finished among seven starters. Factory cars than engine trouble eliminated five of them and veteran Eddie Johns was stranded by a faulty oil pump.

The first four finishers exceeded Jones' year-old average of 143.137 m.p.h. over age of 143.977 m.p.h., topped by Foyt's 147.350.

Orioles Nip Angels

Chisox Sweep Series With Tigers

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports writer

Don Buford, a preseason candidate for American League Rookie-of-The Year honors, has been carrying Pete Ward's bat—and little else—for Chicago White Sox since Ward's recent return to slugging form.

But Buford, whose batting average to date barely exceeds Ward's weight, is beginning to make his base hits count for the league leader.

He had only two hits in Sunday's 3-3, 8-3 doubleheader victory over Detroit, but they were good for five runs batted in. His first-game triple delivered the deciding run and his first major league home run came with two mates on base in the nightcap.

HOLD HALF-GAME LEAD

Chicago's double victory enabled the White Sox to move one-half game up on the second-place Baltimore Orioles in the AL.

The Orioles nipped Los Angeles Angels 2-1 behind southpaw Steve Barber. Cleveland indians defeated Washington Senators twice 9-6 and 8-3, taking advantage of a flubbed third strike in the first game and burying the Senators under a five-run eighth-inning pinch-hit double by Felix Mantilla.

The White Sox hammered Tigers 10-4 Saturday while Baltimore blanked the Angels 6-0, the Yankees clouted the Athletics 9-1, Cleveland clobbered Washington 10-2 and Minnesota topped Boston 7-3.

Read Nips Shannonville

Reed nipped Shannonville by a 5-4 score in Saturday Hastings baseball league game played at Reed Saturday night. The game was halted after six innings because of darkness.

Reed scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the sixth on a hard drive to centre field by Leo Enright, driving in both runs, to overcome a 4-3 Shannonville lead.

The clubs were even in the hit department with six per side.

Senior Baseball

Season Opens Tonight

Belleville Joyces named a two-man coaching staff yesterday and also announced final plans for a parade and opening ceremonies prior to tonight's Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Senior opener here against the Oshawa Merchants.

The players named two from their own ranks, Court Bralley and Gordie St. Louis, as club coaches, and said that the executive named earlier, headed by President Gordie Bell, will handle the management end of the business.

Tonight's game here, at the Fairgrounds, is slated for 8.15 and Mayor Jack Ellis will throw out the opening ball. Later a presentation of the Labatt Trophy will be made to Bill Latchford.

A gala parade will leave the Armories at 6.45 and proceed to the ball park. Taking part will be convertibles, donated by Trudeau Motor, carrying the players, members of the Quinte Highland Pipe Band, Gail Gingrich majorettes and players of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

The minor league players will be admitted to the park free of charge and a special section, back of the Belleville dugout, has been set aside for them. Free soft drinks to the first 250 admissions have been donated by a soft drink company.

A group of players, headed by Moe Hunter, has worked diligently to keep the team supplied with season tickets and ads for a give-away scorecard have been sold and Gerry Joyce has donated uniforms to the team, which will be called "Belleville Joyce Realty."

But as one player put it, "Only support from the fans can keep us alive now and a good crowd for our opening game would sure help."

Other teams in the loop besides Belleville and Oshawa are Brockville Beavers, Ajax-Little Britain and Cannifton.

Giants Nip Mets In 23-Frame Duel

—Took 7 Hours 23 Minutes

By MURRAY CHASE
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco Giants and New York Mets waded through 23 innings Sunday in the longest game in major league history from the standpoint of time.

The visiting Giants won 8-6 in seven hours-23 minutes after they had taken a mere 2:29 to win the opener of the double-header 5-3.

Just 18 days before, in San Francisco, the same teams played 15 innings with the Giants winning 6-5-4. Gaylord Perry was the winner in that one and Galen Cisco the loser. The right-handed hurlers performed in the same roles Sunday.

Perry, who pitched only one inning in the earlier game, went 10 this time. Cisco, who lasted 1 2-3 innings May 16, made it through nine.

New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers previously had played the longest game—seven hours even—June 24, 1962. And only three games went more innings than Sunday's.

Cisco limited the Giants to two hits in eight innings before Jim Davenport tripled with two out in the 23rd.

Pinch - hitter Del Crandall drove Davenport home with a ground-rule double after Cap Peterson was walked purposely. Jesus Alou brought Peterson home with an infield single.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago Cubs nipped Milwaukee Braves 4-3 in 10 innings, Philadelphia Phillies stopped Houston Colts 4-1, Los Angeles Dodgers got by Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 and St. Louis Cardinals edged Cincinnati Reds 2-1 after losing 6-0.

The Cubs had two more from Milwaukee Saturday, 4-2 and 2-0, while the Mets downed the Giants 6-3, the Dodgers whipped Pittsburgh 10-3, St. Louis trimbled the Reds 7-1 and the Phillies corralled the Colts 5-1.

A crowd of 57,037, largest in the majors this season, saw the Mets pull a triple play in the 14th inning. Giants' manager Al Dark ejected in the 15th, and the Mets' Joe Christopher hit a three-run homer in the seventh that sent the game into extra innings.

Orlando Cepeda stole home with the deciding run in the 10th opener. Juan Marichal won his eighth game in nine decisions.

Billy Williams cracked his 12th home run in the 10th inning for the Cubs' triumph. Bill Cowan's run-scoring single tied the game for the Cubs in the ninth. Williams, getting three hits, increased his league-leading average to .414.

Art Mahaffey walked seven Colts, but Richie Allen and Roben Amaro backed him with two-run homers as the Phillies remained in first place.

Bendy Koufax won his fifth game against four defeats, but he needed the aid of Pittsburgh errors and reliever Ron Perranoski. Two of the Dodgers' runs in his four-run third scored with the help of the miscues.

Bob Gibson ignited a two-run Cardinal rally in the eighth inning of the nightcap with a single, then held off a Reds' outburst in the ninth for his fifth triumph against one loss. Dick Groat's sacrifice fly and Ken Boyer's single sent in the St. Louis runs off John Tsitouris who until the eighth had given the Reds only two hits.

Grab Share Of Lead

Trudeau Defeat Jrs. 4-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Trudeau Motors avenged Thursday's defeat and grabbed a half share of first place in the B. & D. Softball League here Saturday night by defeating Ellis Juniors 4-1.

Trudeau nursed a 1-0 lead from the second until the fifth when they added another then and making it 4-0 in the 5th. Juniors were overcome in a shutout with their tally in the 9th.

Bobby Green and Bobby Ethier hooked up in a southpaw pitching match with veteran Green coming out on the long end of this one. He stopped the Ellis crew on six scattered hits, struck out five and walked none. Ethier gave up just five hits and nipped 11 on strikes. Trudeau failed to score with off him for the second complete game in a row.

An infield scratch hit helped Trudeau open the scoring. Zakos got the hit, took second on a wild pitch, third on Plane's ground out and raced home when catcher Moon missed Ethier's high, hard pitch to McGuire with two out.

Plane singled in the fifth, advanced on Plane's sacrifice and scored on Locke's two-out single through the middle.

All the rest of the runs were unearned. Locke's single, an error, Murray's sacrifice and a two-out error plated the winner's final pair.

A missed third strike which put Malloy on first, Boyle's base knock also bobbled for an extra base and Carl Boomhower's fly ball to right got the Juniors' lone run home.

Rick Locke cracked two key singles on the Trudeau behalf, while Bobby Wannamaker doubled, Paul Zakos and Ralph Plane singled.

Ellis hits, all singles, went to Mike Chatland, Wayne Woods, Pete Wyatt, Don Sidney, Bob Moon and Bob Boyle. Ethier twice and Chatland once had deep blasts to left but Faulkner and Locke pulled them down in home-run territory.

Mannamaker and Duggan also made key plays, holding runners at third base while getting their man, back in the early innings, with the score 0-0.

Barriages Defeat Cheesemen

Barriage Landscapers exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning to register an 11-7 victory over Black Diamond Cheese in Commercial Softball League play last evening.

The losers held a 7-4 lead after four frames but were unable to stem the Barriage victory tide in the fifth.

Joe Harvey got the pitching win, taking over from Gerry Genereaux in the fourth frame. Harvey gave up just one hit over the remainder, fanning two and walking one. Genereaux had allowed eight hits, walked four and walked a pair.

Fred Howard stayed the route in defeat, allowing nine hits. He struck out five while passing four.

Deseronto got three runs home with the aid of two wild pitches and an error for the final 5-4 score.

With Chilean jockey Fernando Alvarez in the saddle, Roman Brother made his big move at the field of eight rounded the far turn, flew past Bob Umery aboard Mr. Brick and widened his margin in the stretch. The winner's time was 1:49 3-5.

NO BELMONT DECISION

There was no immediate announcement from Parke as to whether he would enter Roman Brother in the Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct next Saturday, in which Canadian-bred Northern Dancer will seek to complete a sweep of racing's Triple Crown for three-year-olds.

Olden Times, six - year - old son of Relic, won the Metropolitan while Jockey Hank Moreno clinging to a slipping saddle. He stopped the mile in 1:34 2-5 under 119 pounds to beat Paul Mellon's Quadrangle, only three-year-old in the field.

In picking up the purse of $75,010 to run his career bank roll to $487,095, Olden Times paid $21.40, $9.80 and $4.80. Quadrangle returned $6.20 and $5.80 by finishing a head in front of fast-closing Saldam, the favorite. Saldam returned $2.90 to show.

Harness Meets Opener

Cool Weather, Good Racing At Raceway

It wasn't a night for shirtsleeves and straw hats, in fact it was weather more conducive to end runs and forward passes than the thud of hoofs on a race track.

But it did not deter a goodly crowd of the racing faith from putting the stamp of approval on the opening meet of the seasonal program of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club Saturday night.

"The crowd is perhaps better than we anticipated," a spokesman said. "We had rather short notice to get the meet organized and underway due to certain circumstances. However we are satisfied and feel that we are away to a good start."

The track was said to be in fair condition, a lot better than expected due to the brief time allowed for getting it into racing shape.

More work will be done this week such as putting fill where it is needed, and it is expected the track will be in top shape for next Saturday's meet.

The Raceway meet was held under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture. For the first time in Belleville harness racing history a photo finish camera has been installed and operated by department officials.

The officials for the meet were: presiding judge, Oscar Fenwick, Enterprise; associate judges, Leonard Reid and Borden Lee; timers, C. Reid and Earl Bush; patrol judge, Lorne Urch; announcer, Bob Corey of Kingston; starter, R. Wills, Morton, Ont., and race secretary, Jean O'Meara.

Red Gun driven by Al Vance finished a close 2nd while Face Lad and Ace Hy in that order in the third race with Betty Chief bringing up fourth spot.

The highest price of the night we $18.40 paid by Jerry McKinnon to place in the sixth heat. The mutual handle was reported to be $6,000.

Bernard Hunt won a cash prize for driving the fastest heat of the night behind Hal Fense 2.13 2-5.

European Trials Claim Two Lives

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — A Ferrari grand touring prototype car driven by Lodovico Scarfiotti and Nino Vaccarella won the Nuerburgring 1,000-kilometre auto race in record time Sunday.

The Ferrari only one of three factory - entered prototypes to finish, covered 621.37 miles on the winding 14.16-mile Wolfgang burgring course in seven hours, eight minutes, 27 seconds. The average speed was 87.3 miles an hour.

Two drivers were killed in accidents during the trials for the race Friday-and Saturday. They were Brian Hetreed of Britain and Rudolf Moser of Germany.

Win Mixed Couples Title

The annual Mixed Couples' Tournament, with Kingston, Deseronto, Belleville, Trenton, Brighton, Stirling and Tweed participating, was held in Tweed over the weekend.

The winning couple was Chris and Wes Shepherd from Brighton with a combined three game total with handicap (or 283) of 1583. Genny McQue and Charlie Dion from Tweed were second with 1493 (handicap 327). Dorothy Dice and Frank Delnard of Brighton were third with 1433 (handicap 165.)

The winning couple received the Moe Berman trophy and trays from Ed Nicholson of Labatt's Brewery. The second and third couples received gifts from the Bowl-O-Drome in Belleville and the Bowl-O-Drome in Kingston.

In the annual one game showdown amongst the proprietors, Audrey Aziz, representing B. A. Lanctot in Trenton, in the absence of her husband, Lou, trounced her other six competitors (all male), and took home the bacon.

King of the Hill

Ron Elliott is still King and once again made it the hard way by defeating the whole field in the five-game roll-off. Ron had a total of 1414, which is an average of 282 per game. His games were 223-276-289-393 and 231.

Both Elliott and Ron Saylor racked up the coveted 8 consecutive strikes. Elliott being first to make it, got the pot, which was $28.00 and Saylor took the new pot, which was $10.00.

Leo 'St. Louis finished second with 1346 and had a 350 game.

'Dancer' Favored In Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the week that determines whether Northern Dancer joins racing's select group of triple crown winners or is just another three-year-old colt who won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, but failed in the Belmont Stakes.

Sturdy, appealing 1¼-mile Belmont is on tap Saturday at Aqueduct and some 80,000 are expected to be on hand to see for themselves whether the Canadian-bred and owned colt can again beat Hill Rise and become the first triple crown winner since Citation in 1948.

Northern Dancer, who will again be ridden by the controversial Willie Hartack, will be favored over the California colt, Hill Rise, with Willie Shoemaker in the irons once more.

At the moment Hill Rise is the only definite starter against Northern Dancer, with Rosemont Brother, surprise winner of the Jersey Derby last Saturday, and Quadrangle, second in the Metropolitan Mile, regarded as possibles. Knightly Manner, fourth in the Jersey, also may go, but it is considered doubtful.

Trainer Horatio Luro gave Northern Dancer an easy work over the Belmont track Sunday and shrugged off reminders that Tim Tam and Carry Back, in 1958 and 1961, respectively, similarly had the opportunity to win the triple crown, but were injured and failed to win the Belmont.

A public workout between races is planned for Hill Rise at Aqueduct today.

Peru Will Play Soccer

LIMA, Peru (Reuters) — The Peruvian Soccer Federation has agreed that Peru, scene of the stampede tragedy, should go ahead with its pre - Olympic game against Brazil in Rio de Janeiro next Sunday.

The federation made the decision Saturday despite a national sports committee recommendation that Peru withdraw in view of last Sunday's stadium tragedy here in which some 300 persons died.

Five Others Awarded Titles

Name Five Champions At Boxing Trials

By TERR YROBERTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five Canadian champions were selected Saturday at the ~joint Olympic trials and Canadian amateur boxing championships to represent Canada at the Olympic Games at Tokyo in October.

Selections of the Canadian Amateur Boxing Association following title bouts in 10 weight divisions favored lighter men, the welterweight class with 147 pounds the heaviest.

Named to the squad were flyweight Wayne Kozun of Oshawa, bantam William McGrandle of Edmonton, lightweight Buddy Palmer of 100 Miles House, B.C., light-welter Harvey Rellof of Peddlewood, Sask., and welter Fred Desrosiers of Naden, Victoria.

The five others awarded titles were featherweight James Billingsley of Edmonton, light middleweight John Kobiowec of Windsor, Ont., middleweight Siegfried Fisher of Toronto, light-heavy Wayne Hoppe of Toronto and heavyweight Heinz Lempert of Kitchener, who was also named an Olympic reserve.

In the roughest bout of the night, Desrosiers scored a technical knockout over John Lapadat of Toronto, pummeling him to the mat for an eight count early in the first round and sending him to the floor again midway through the second.

Officials had only one look at Henry during the championships as he defeated Harold Hamilton of Prince George, B.C., the only other flyweight entered in the meet.

Using a long reach, Henry took the decision by winning the first and third rounds. Handlen was awarded the second round when he got past the Orillia fighter's guard and scored well on infighting.

McGrandle fought three times in the tournament to gain his crown and an Olympic berth.

Palmer drew blood from Max Gibb of Lethbridge, Alta., in the second round and clinched his unanimous victory in the third when he broke through Gibb's guard, pounding leather to the head.

Reti, a favored army contender, traded blows with younger and less experienced James McGowan of Vancouver, taking a split decision for his title.

In other title fights, Billingsley took a unanimous decision from Kejth Scott of Vancouver, Kubinec outpointed Jeff Alleyne of Montreal, Fisher won a split decision over Frank Bullard Jr. of Toronto, Koppe drew blood in a unanimous decision over Rod Foster of Hamilton and Lempert almost knocked Don Homer of Vancouver senseless.

Girls Break Track Marks

HAMILTON (CP) — Records took a beating Saturday as more than 370 top girl athletes competed in the Southern Ontario Secondary Schools Association invitational track meet at McMaster University.

Bearing the brunt of the assault was the two-year-old intermediate division where seven new marks were set in the eight events. Ten records were set and three more were tied in the meet which attracted athletes from 64 high schools across the province.

Susan Brookes of Oakville Blakelock did most of the damage in the intermediate division, setting records each time she left the starting block.

Her times of 7.1 in the 60-yard dash and 11.1 in the 100-yard event both bettered the records set last year by Judy Dallimore of Ottawa Hillcrest.

Miss Dallimore, running as a senior, tied the 60-yard record with a time of seven seconds.

Two records were established in relays as Miss Dallimore and Miss Brookes each ran the final leg for their respective teams. Ottawa Hillcrest set a senior 440 mark with a time of 52.4 and Oakville Blakelock set the intermediate time in 52.7. An Aldershot foursome, timed in 54.7 tied the junior relay record.

One of the closest contests was between Lesley Shook of Aldershot and Nancy Shuttleworth of London central in the senior high jump. Miss Shook emerged the winner on fewer misses after both jumped five feet to better the former record in the event.

Susan Nigh of Markham won the intermediate high jump with a record - breaking leap of 5 ft. 3 in. Shot putter Judy Dalghren of Ottawa Fisher hurled the eight-pound sphere 41 feet 8¼ inches to add seven feet to her own junior record.

Pan American Games winner Nancy McCredie of Brampton was below par in winning the senior discus and shot put event with throws of 138 feet six inches and 46 feet 4½ inches. She began regular training only two weeks ago following an operation in which she had cartilages removed from her left knee.

SHOT MARK

Joining the double winners was Goderich collegiate's Maureen Bowden with a victory in the intermediate discus and shot toss of 36 feet 4 inches in the shot put was a record.

Cindy Lawrence of Port Arthur, with a leap of 17 feet 1½ inches in the running broad jump and Diane Chew of Niagara Falls with eight feet seven inches in the standing broad jump rounded out intermediate record setters.

Aldershot, with Lesley Shook contributing 13 points, tied with Ottawa Hillcrest for senior honors, each with 20 points. Runner-up was Leamington with 18 followed by Scarborough Winston Churchill with 18 and Oakville Blakelock with 17.

Individual honors went to Miss Shook in the senior division while Susan Brooks claimed the intermediate title and Margaret Chattand of Scarborough Winston Church was junior champion.

Player Takes Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—South African Gary Player birdied the closing hole Sunday for a final-round four-under-par 67 to capture the $12,000 top prize in the $70,000 Speedway Open golf tournament.

Player, wearing an all - white costume instead of his traditional brown, boomed his second shot 20 feet from the pin on the par-5 18th, lagged to within eight inches and dropped the birdie putt to win by one stroke with a total of 278, 11 strokes under par for the tournament.

Next, tied at 276, were Cligg Brown, a Negro rookie on the PGA tour, Don Whitt and Billy Casper, who won the 1962 Speedway Open with a tournament record 264.

Jerry Magee of Toronto finished among the money winners earning $294 for his 282.

Al Balding of Toronto had a 74 on the final round and finished down the list with a two-over-par 286.

The Speedway course, which plays from the fifth through the 12th holes inside the racing oval in the huge speedway grounds, had been cleaned up after Saturday's picknicking by an estimated 360,000 auto racing fans.

Leafs Up Lead To 3 Games

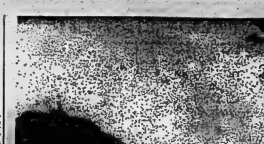
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Federico (Chi Chi) Oliveto's rubber - armed relief pitcher ,boasts a tidy 7-0 won-lost record. It represents the difference between the Maple Leafs' current three-game lead over their nearest opposition and a spot in the International League's second division.

Oliveto, seven days off after working four innings to wrap up a 19 - inning victory at Rochester Friday night, responded by chalking up No. 7 Sunday with a two-inning stint as the Leafs downed the Red Wings again 3-2.

It added half a game to Toronto's lead as Syracuse Chiefs split their second successive doubleheader with Buffalo Bisons, winning 4-2 and losing 4-3. The third - place Jacksonville Suns also split, losing 4-2 at Atlanta after downing the Crackers 2-1 and Columbus Jets edged Richmond Virginians 4-3 in a single game.

On Saturday, the Leafs rebounded from a stunning defeat the Red Wings nipped them 2-1, the Bisons drubbed Syracuse 9-3 and Jacksonville blanked Columbus twice, 9-0 and 2-0, and Atlanta pounded Jacksonville 8-1.



Successive ground - rule doubles by Lee Tate and Oasis Virgil highlighted a winning rally for Toronto in the top of the ninth Sunday.

Original Comedy Show Just Bit of Misguided Fluff

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When More, More, More, More . . ., an original comedy, started on NBC Sunday night, it seemed that we were going to see one of those mad, gay shows reminiscent of the good old-movie days when Robert Montgomery was always a rich playboy or debonair Cary Grant was pursuing Irene Dunne or Katharine Hepburn.

It began with a happy young couple just making out on $6,000 a year. Suddenly they have a $500,000 windfall and the husband sets out to really enjoy spending. So far, so good.

But the spending device got out of hand. The rest of the show was less comedy than a burlesque of a shopping list.

One hero started buying a Rembrandt "with a little Van Gogh on the side to brighten it up," an apartment house and a pair of English limousines for driving Shakespeare. Another was in Christian Dior's collection for his wife.

IT'S FLUFFY

The whole show was a bit of misguided fluff.

Martin Milner, late of Route 66, played the boy with the Midas touch with a sort of bumbling naivete. Patricia Barry did what she could with the thankless wife's role, and Corinne Calvet as the other woman was dressed up to look and act like a hermit's idea of a French femme fatale.

Show of the week of which the hour was a part, soon will run its course. Much as one regrets the departure of any ah-ttology series, this one has had a spotty existence.

Panthers Win Opener

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Panthers scored two runs in the eighth inning to beat Galt Terriers 6-4 in a senior Inter-County Baseball Association game Saturday night.

The game was the home opener for the Panthers and evened their record for the season at one win and one defeat. The loss was the second straight for the Terriers.

Terriers built up an early 3-0 lead, but the Panthers moved ahead with four runs in the seventh, highlighted by Nick Rinche's two-run triple. Roger Deweale hit a 390-foot homer in the eighth to tie the game again. Pitcher Rich Jack and Wayne Litzgus hit the clinchers.

Jack came in with relief of starter Gene Zanatta in the eighth. The loser was Ross Calvet as the other Galt starter Dick Krol in the seventh .

Consul Is Giv. Right to See Jailed Citizens

MOSCOW, (Reuters) — The United States and Russia today signed an agreement which gives American citizens the right for the first time to talk to U.S. citizens arrested or jailed by the Soviet government.

The agreement, a consular convention which will be Washington's first bilateral treaty reached by the two nations since they established relations in 1933, still has to be ratified by the U.S. Senate and the Supreme Soviet.

Informed sources said it was the first time Russia had accepted the right of foreign consuls access without delay" in the event of foreigners being arrested here.

A protocol to the convention says the American consul in Russia must be told within one to three days if an American is arrested or detained.

CAN TALK TO HIM

He will have the right to visit and communicate with the prisoner within two to four days, and the right to access on a continuing basis" as long as the period of detention continues.

The ambassador stressed that we must recognize, however, that we have a long way to go before the remaining barriers to free interchange are brought down."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 3

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): No day to attempt concealment. Numerous secrets will be revealed. By being "open," you will distinguish yourself. Take mind out of cells of opposition. You'll gain prestige!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Earthy charm will prove captivating. Wonderful if on vacation. You can make new friends — numerous ones who need a touch to you. Time to win your way. Avoid complications. Highlight cheer!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Don't press too hard where elders are concerned. Your suspicions are valid, however persons are concerned. Those who are established feel "uneasy." Take one step at a day is over.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Weed for change is evident. But far away places may prove costly, impractical. Utilize sensitivity, imagination. There is recreation close at hand. Cooperate in community project.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Once more question of extravagance will paramount. Your Leo qualities come forth. You want to impress, entertain and — perhaps — "show off." Listen to advice from family member. It makes sense!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): You're apt to be right in judgment, analysis. But many around you may resent your keen sense of the valid. Deal with envy in mature manner. Treat others with understanding . . . but don't walk down!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Concentrate on one thing at a time. You are due for emotional happiness. Accept it! Vine for creative pursuits, and for special activities connected with children. Basic change necessary.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Fine lunar aspect highlights flash of luck. You are at right place at right time. But you must set sights on goal. Then move forward — with confidence. Throw off secret apprehensions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Excellent for moves affecting security. Make deals involving land, real estate, home, family life, insurance, reassurance loved one. Older family responds to praise. Give it!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Avoid unnecessary travel. Make contacts through written word. Gain by reading special features in your paper. Added knowledge due. Now you could find chance for new start!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Cycle remains high. But financial picture undergoes changes. Go-with the tide. Trying to block moves by partner creates friction. You gain most through a smile. Be diplomatic and patient.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Public attention due. Be confident. Cycle rises. Your judgment accurate. Stress personal appearance. See people "in charge." Bypass underlings. You get best results by dealing with executives.

If today is your birthday, . . you are versatile, restless, have a soft spot or romance — and a healthful sense of comedy.

Dutch Girl Breaks Swim Marks

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) Ada Kok, a smiling 19-year-old daughter of an Amsterdam milkman, Saturday took part in setting two world swimming records. one of them previously held by a Canadian.

She set a mark of one minute 5.1 seconds for the 110-yard butterfly—a time that stands also as a record for the 100 metres.

Then she helped the Dutch girls' team set a world record of 4:41.4 for the 440-yard medley relay.

Britain defeated The Netherlands, 127-113, in a two - day meet.

Miss Kok's 110-yard butterfly time knocked 2.2 seconds off the previous record, set by Mary Stewart of Vancouver two years ago.

Shastri Chosen To Lead India On Nehru's Path

Middle-Road Socialist Is Supported by Rival

CP from AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI — India's ruling Congress Party elected mild-mannered Lal Bahadur Shastri by acclamation today to succeed the late Jawaharlal Nehru as prime minister of India. He pledged to work for Nehru's goal of a united, socialist India.

"Socialism is our objective," Shastri said shortly after Congress Party members of Parliament named him their leader, a designation which automatically carried nomination as prime minister.

Big shastri, 59, was not expected to be sworn in until June 9, out of deference to the 12-day period of mourning for Nehru, who died last Wednesday at the age of 74.

Shastri went as he recalled Nehru's death last week.

He welcomed the support of former finance minister Morarji Desai, his opponent who yielded after a determined five-day succession struggle.

"I am sure this will generate a new confidence in the country and will have an impact on the outside' world also," Shastri said.

Shastri said the party's immediate task is to fight India's "biggest enemies — poverty and unemployment."

"The country must remain united and it is important we realize our grave responsibilities toward the betterment of our people," he declared. "The economic issues are most vital for us."

Shastri — the second man to rule modern India — was the man closest to Nehru during the last days and was expected to continue his policies, among them non-alignment.

India is "faced today with a great crisis," Shastri continued, and must "follow in his (Nehru's) footsteps."

HUNT SOURCE OF ABERDEEN TYPHOID EPIDEMIC — Chemists work to analyze hundreds of blood specimens in the laboratory of the Aberdeen, Scotland, City Hospital in an attempt to track down the source of the typhoid epidemic which has struck the city. A new surge of cases has brought to 224 the number of confirmed victims in Scotland. The latest surge also has caused the city's medical officer to say that there are indications of a new wave of cases.

Had No Money for Boat, Shastri Swam to School

CP from AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI—The late prime minister Nehru once jokingly called Lal Bahadur Shastri half civilized.

This was not intended to disparage India's new prime minister, a man with whom Nehru worked closely for years. Shastri, unlike many other men who surrounded the prime minister, did not have the European education and polish Nehru admired so greatly.

Despite their different backgrounds, Shastri is considered the man most likely to continue Nehru's policies.

Non - alignment and peaceful coexistence were expected to remain the cornerstones of foreign policy through India recently seemed to be growing closer to the West and this trend is likely to continue.

Unlike Nehru, who was educated in England and retained a fondness for his schoolboy days at Harrow and Cambridge, Shastri has never been outside India except to Nepal.

He speaks fluent English but has never worn Western dress.

Shastri, 59, was the man closest to the 74-year-old Nehru in his last days and is expected to take up the leadership of India-Pakistan talks both on communal harmony and on understanding over Kashmir.

He was closely associated with the recent decision to release Sheikh Abdullah, former Kashmir premier, and sponsored a moderate regime in Kashmir.

While favoring Sheikh Abdullah's efforts to bring India and Pakistan closer, however, it is not yet certain to what extent he will be able to override opposition within his own party which is likely to grow more vocal with Nehru gone.

Shastri is likely to continue Nehru's policy of willingness to talk with Communist China on their border dispute at the same time as building up the country's armed strength.

A moderate and pragmatic socialist, Shastri is expected to continue Nehru's policy of combined state and private enterprise in pushing forward India's industrial economy.

His rustic background did not prevent Shastri from becoming a man in Indian politics years ago. Still, he has never

Scottish City Braces Itself Fearing New Wave of Typhoid

CP from AP-Reuters

ABERDEEN — The Scottish city of Aberdeen braced today for a possible third wave in its typhoid epidemic.

Already 224 persons have been stricken and one woman has died. A total of 187 suspected cases are in crowded hospitals and new reports of infection are turning up in other parts of the country.

But government sources said there was no proof yet that contaminated corned beef from government stocks or elsewhere had touched off the Aberdeen epidemic.

Dr. Ian MacQueen, health officer for Aberdeen, has said the disease spread to three employees of a butcher shop where a slicing machine was believed to have been used on some contaminated canned beef. All three employees caught the disease.

Two new cases outside the Aberdeen epidemic area were reported today.

MacQueen said "if there is a third wave — and we should know about the middle of the week — then matters will be very serious."

The other case outside Aberdeen was a woman admitted to a hospital in Dundee, Scotland, as a confirmed case.

Dr. Elville Watkins, health officer for Walthamstow, said there was no connection between the boy's illness and "similar events taking place in

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian leaders and MPs fairly fell over themselves claiming Irish antecedents Monday in welcoming President Eamon de Valera of Ireland to a three-day visit here.

The 81-year-old president, who was born in New York, retaliated in high good humor by saying he came here to check on his boyhood vision of Canada—men in woods.

Governor-General Vanier, Mme. Vanier and Prime Minister Pearson greeted Mr. de Valera in the foyer of Government House—where six paintings of British royalty hang—after rain cancelled an outdoors ceremony on the lawns of Government House.

A few minutes later, in the main ballroom of the Government-General's residence, Gen. Vanier, speaking in French and English, welcomed Mr. De Valera "as a kinsman come to stay with the family."

He noted that there are nearly 2,000,000 Canadians of Irish descent—including himself on his mother's side.

Not to be outdone, Mr. Pearson said he can claim Irish descent on both sides of his family.

At the start of the Commons sitting, Mr. de Valera rose in the Speaker's gallery to acknowledge the applause of MPs.

Mr. Pearson said: Mr. de Val-

BBC Faces Challenge
Pirate Radio Stations Raising a Fuss

LONDON (CP)—Three pirate radio stations beaming pop music into southern England are making themselves heard in Westminster too.

The stations pose a fundamental problem for the government: Whether to allow private companies to set up local stations throughout Britain or to let the corporation—publicly-owned BBC do the job.

The problem looms near for two reasons. First, the government's National Broadcasting Development Council meets today to consider a petition asking the government to authorize experiments in local radio by commercial companies.

Second a strong parliamentary lobby is known to be backing the idea of commercial stations and is believed to have persuaded until government moves to silence the pirate stations now in existence.

Meantime, the BBC, which has been experimenting with local radio on a closed-circuit basis since 1962, is pressing for permission to go ahead with its own plans.

The BBC says it can have six local stations operating within five years. At the moment, the only legal radio stations serving Britain are the BBC's three national networks — the Home, the Light and the Third.

The three pirate radio stations were all established this year. Two, Radios Caroline and Atlanta, operate from ships outside the three-mile limit off the southeast coast of England.

The third, Radio Scotch, is run somewhat haphazardly by 28-year - old pop singer, David (Lord) Hatch, from an abandoned military fortress off the Kent coast. In addition, Britons for the last 10 years have been able to tune into Radio Luxembourg, a British-owned commercial station broadcasting to English - speaking people throughout Europe.

One of the factors likely to influence any government decision is the undoubted popularity of the commercial stations. British radio audiences have shown themselves just as willing as North Americans to listen to a steady 24-hour diet of light music and news when they have been given the chance.

The BBC's brief stresses that its local stations would provide community service and educational programs as well as light entertainment. Each station would cost about £30,000 ($90,000) to establish. The running cost for a series of local stations is estimated at about £2,000,000 ($6,000,000) a year.

The commercial interests say they could match the BBC in terms of quality—although they assert the experience with the pirate radios confirms the demand for more radio services.

Observers believe the Conservative government, if reelected in the October general election, will probably license private stations as an experiment. If Labor gets in, the BBC will likely be told to go ahead with its own stations.

In the meantime, the whole question is complicated by the refusal of the record companies, including the Musicians' Union, to allow their records to be played on the air for more than a limited time.

At the moment the BBC can not play more than 26 hours of commercial records a week—out of a total broadcasting time of 280 hours a week—and has been negotiating fruitlessly for two years for an extra 40 or 50 hours.

Thus the private commercial stations, if licensed, may not be able to maintain a nonstop program of canned music.

Fisher Will Try to Show Pearson Film to M.P.'s

OTTAWA (CP)—A plan to bring a televised day in the life of Prime Minister Pearson to Parliament Hill for a "really good audience" was unfolded in the House of Commons Monday night.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) told of his hope to do just that in seeking further information on the television show which the CBC has declined to put on the air.

Mr. Fisher says the CBC seeks to suppress the show and has threatened not to pay its creator, Richard Ballentine, unless he surrenders the print.

Mr. Fisher, raising the matter again in a brief adjournment debate, said he and some other MPs would try to reserve a committee room to view the film, produced at a cost of about $35,000.

Federal Aid Will Be Upped

OTTAWA CP — Legislation beefing up federal aid for various aspects of urban renewal was introduced in the Commons Monday. Today the focus switches to farm improvement aid.

Postmaster - General Nicholson, responsible for housing policy, said the new amendments to the National Housing Act of 1954 will encourage rehabilitation of older Canadian districts before they degenerate into slum areas.

Spokesmen for the New Democratic and Social Credit parties welcomed the housing legislation, while Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said it would do nothing to help low-income families and revenue-starved municipalities.

The Conservatives did not take part in Monday's debate on the resolution preceding first reading of the bill.

Debate opens today on a measure to authorize the Farm Credit Corporation to make 3.5 per cent loans to individual farmers. The Crown corporation would be empowered to boost its borrowing power of capital to $600,000,000 from $400,000,000.

GAP EXISTS

Mr. Nicholson said Monday a gap exists in present housing assistance. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation concentrated on loans for new construction and slum clearance but neglected the restoration of aging dwellings.

Razing old buildings with bulldozers was needed in some blighted city blocks, but it should not be the only approach to urban renewal, he said.

Under the proposed changes, CMHC would pay up to 50 per cent of the operating losses of public housing projects for low-income families and make loans for the purchase of improvement of existing homes in urban renewal districts.

CMHC would help finance a wider range of non-profit rental projects by the provinces, municipalities and local agencies; assistance for student residences at universities would be expanded, and mortgages on land would be made more readily available.

Under another section, the Crown corporation would forgive a percentage of loans on completed before March 31, 1967.

Opposition spokesmen called for more assistance for low-rental housing for elderly people. Existing legislation is out of date, long waiting lists and some waited years to get decent accommodation.

Evenly-Matched Crowds Display Favored Designs

P.M. Says Flag Debate Will Be Delayed Week

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Red Ensign atop the Peace Tower hung limp through a day-long drizzle Monday while controversy over its future spilled from the Commons chamber to the lawns outside.

In the House, Prime Minister Pearson announced that debate on the Liberal government's proposed distinctive maple leaf flag will be delayed until next week at the earliest.

At dusk, some 1,500 persons brandishing the design of their choice carried the controversy outdoors where the broad strip of the asphalt running from the centre entrance to the Parliament Buildings served as demarcation line between evenly-matched forces.

The demonstration began shortly before 5 p.m. with Red Ensign supporters congregating in front of the East Block, and maple leaf supporters directly opposite them in front of the West Block.

While it was a model of orderliness, the demonstration's atmosphere of tension came when the flag-carrying crowds moved briskly toward one another and were stopped by the RCMP while still about 25 feet apart.

SHOUT COMMENTS

"Why don't you go back to Quebec?" shouted a Red Ensign supporter.

"And why don't you go back to Britain?" shot back a maple leaf supporter.

The Red Ensign supporters appeared to have slightly more followers and they clearly had more flags.

"Sure they did," said Bill McLean, president of the Evolutionary Movement of Canada, which sponsored the maple leaf march. "They bought them at 25 cents each. We made ours."

A reporter counted 40 maple leaf flags at one point. Not all of them contrasted with the design the government has presented to Parliament. One had a maple leaf and the word "now." Another had the three maple leaves with the Union Jack and fleur-de-lis. There was a cardboard with the word "Canada" and a maple leaf.

In the last few days a small Ottawa store did a whale of a business selling small Red Ensigns. Some of the more purposeful porters also had placards. "Get

Higher Standards To Be Set

OTTAWA CP — The Liberal party is moving towards setting and raising national standards of a wide range of activities in Canada — including education.

A draft policy statement to be debated today by the national Liberal council said many of the political and economic objectives of Confederation have been realized.

Canada was now a free, separate and distinctive North American nation, but still needed the co-operation of its various regions and peoples to meet the complexity of modern society.

One of the objects now should be to foster the cultural and artistic development of the country, and associated with this was a need for more attention to formal education.

"In this time of increasing mobility, should there be a national educational standard or curriculum?" the report asked.

"What is the desirable minimum school-leaving age? What, if any, are the proper responsibilities of the federal government in higher education? What measures can be taken to check the brain drain to the United States and other countries?"

DOESN'T GIVE ANSWERS

The report, prepared by a committee headed by Gordon Blair of Ottawa, new president of the Ontario Liberal party, did not spell out answers.

But it did in other sections that governments cannot operate in watertight compartments between federal responsibilities and provincial rights, and that co-operative federalism is "the only way to reconcile provincial autonomy with the need for national standards."

Discussion of the report was the main topic before plenary sessions of the council today. It also is to elect new officers for the federal party, and hear Prime Minister Pearson deliver a major speech at an evening banquet.

Nominated for office were John L. Nichol of Vancouver, president; Leopold Langlois of Montreal and John Stanfield of Halifax, vice-presidents; and Gordon Breden, Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Pearson told the opening session of the council meeting Monday his minority govern-

Believe Pickersgill Gave Queen Briefing on New Flag Proposal

LONDON (CP)—British newspapers are linking the visit of Jack Pickersgill, Canadian transport minister, with Canada's proposed new flag.

Pickersgill, who had an audience with the Queen Friday, was scheduled to return to Ottawa today from Paris. He has described his trip as private and declined to say what was discussed with the Queen.

The Daily Telegraph, a London newspaper, headlining its report on the visit, says "Canada flag envoy sees the Queen," says he is "believed to have come to Britain to explain his government's proposal for a new national flag."

"Mr. Pickersgill, a former civil servant, is recognised by his cabinet colleagues as an authority on constitutional affairs . . . he went on to Paris on Sunday. Many Canadians were mystified by the unheralded nature of his visit."

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Troop reinforcements were assembled today by the United Nations command and the Congolese Army for action in Kivu province where advancing rebel tribesmen threatened the city of Bukavu.

UN sources in Leopoldville said 180 Indian troops of the UN Congo force had been placed on the alert for possible airlift 1,000 miles east from Leopoldville to Bukavu.

Government sources said Maj.-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the Congo army commander - in - chief, planned to send an infantry battalion north to Kivu from Stanleyville.

Bukavu's European colony of 500 whites was reported panicky at a report that the United Nations planned to withdraw civilian personnel from the city of 80,000 people.

Aircraft spotted about 200 rebel Balubaka warriors, fierce pygmies— moving north along the road to Bukavu. The five rebel tribesmen armed with bows and arrows, spears, clubs and machetes, plus some modern automatic weapons, routed five Congo Army companies Sunday at the village of Kanayola, 30 miles south of Bukavu.

Gaston Soumailot, an extremist, who has close ties with Communist Chinese diplomats in Africa, directs the rebels from his headquarters in the neighboring kingdom of Burundi.

Coffin's Defence Hamstrung By Atmosphere of Hatred, Tension, Commission Told

Minister Says No Election Wanted on Flag

By GERRY McNEILL

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Sharp predicted Monday night that the controversy surrounding a distinctive Canadian flag will disappear once it is chosen by Parliament.

Appearing on the CBC's national television program Inquiry, Mr. Sharp said he thought Canadians would unite around whatever symbol is selected by Parliament for the Canadian flag.

He said all political parties in the Commons favor a distinctive flag for Canada and an overwhelming proportion of MPs want the same thing.

"This is as good a time as any to get it settled."

Mr. Sharp said he did not think the people of Canada want an election on the flag issue.

IT'S MISUNDERSTANDING

He said criticism of the inclusion of the Union Jack in the government's resolution declaring Canada's national flag was based on a misunderstanding.

The Union Jack portrayed Canada's association in the Commonwealth while the Canadian flag—the maple leaves on a white background with a blue band on each side—would be the national symbol of Canada's maturity.

Mr. Sharp defended the government's timing of the flag issue. He said it is not in the prime ministers mind to clear the decks for any election by proceeding with legislation on the pension plan and the Columbia River before debating the flag resolution.

Mr. Sharp said he felt there is an underlying with among Canadians to have their own national flag. While there may be controversy—which he called purging of one's soul — there would not be dismissed.

If the Opposition stages a filibuster on the flag debate, Mr. Sharp said, he doubted the government would impose closure.

Vacant Home In Tyendinaga Is Destroyed

Ontario Provincial Police are investigating a mysterious fire which broke out in a vacant farm house early this morning near Roslin, on the 7th concession of Tyendinaga township.

Firemen were not called to the scene of the blaze, which was spotted at 3.45 a.m. by two patrolling police officers, because they said, the building was located in a field some distance from the road and could not be reached.

Extent of the loss is not known.

Because of the dense smoke, a smoke ejector and foam were used to extinguish the blaze.

Fire Chief G. G. Vance said considerable smoke damage was caused, however, it was confined to one room of the plant.

Former Reporter Charged With Stealing Pictures

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — The trial of Wayne McLean, 28, a former reporter with the weekly Napanee Beaver, charged with breaking and entering a private home and stealing eight pictures of a woman whose body was believed found in Sharbot Lake, began Monday.

Charles Cooper of Camden East, from whose house the pictures were taken last Nov. 29, said he was away from home when the pictures disappeared.

He said he went to the house Nov. 29 with two reporters from the Kingston While - Standard looking for pictures of his wife, who left him in September. He said they wanted to identify the body of a woman wrapped in a plastic sheet and found in Sharbot Lake.

He said he discovered six pictures and a negative in a photo album and that two framed pictures had been taken from a kitchen wall.

Cooper's neighbor, Glenn Abrams, said McLean and Marie Hamilton, 18, who is also charged with theft of the pictures, asked him if he had a key to the Cooper house.

He said he saw the couple trying to enter the house, but they did not seem to be trying to hide from him or mislead him.

A separate jury has been sworn in for Miss Hamilton's trial. McLean's trial continues.

Charles Wilson Outlines Growth Of His Company

Addressing Monday's luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club, Charles Wilson of Wilson Concrete Products Limited, Company, said an article in The Ontario Intelligencer stated no new industries have come to the city during the past ten years.

This he denied. Mr. Wilson said he knew of seven business here about eight-and-one-half years ago.

At that time the company purchased 12 acres of land located just north of the Northern Electric property and over the years has greatly expended employing at present about 225 employees. He said the company was the fifth largest employer in the city.

Mr. Wilson said that he and His Worship the Mayor, Jack M. Ellis, who is employed by Wilson Concrete, were discussing what type of industry would be most likely to locate here and what type of industry Belleville would like to have locate here.

The speaker went on to outline some of the factors involved which he and Mr. Ellis discussed. They were what size of industry would be most suitable, what type of industry would be employed, skilled or unskilled, what type of business would use local products and services, would it be a growth industry, would the industry be diversified and would the industry be locally-owned and managed, giving it a greater stake in the community.

Comparing the above questions to his own business, Mr. Wilson said that his company employs both skilled and unskilled labor, it is not a large company, the products are used locally and local products in turn are used by companies, the company is growing, it is diversified and it is owned, managed and controlled locally.

Mr. Wilson said his firm's products range from 2S cast concrete blocks to $3,000 bridge girders. He said they are sold in Quebec, Ottawa, Kirkland Lake, mid-western Ontario and our own immediate area.

The speaker was introduced by past-president Harry Burns and thanked on behalf of the club by Court Miller. Mr. Wilson received the official welcome of the club from president Ronald Case.

SEEK CHANGES

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Restaurant Association wants the Ontario government to improve liquor regulations by extending sale hours in dining lounges and permitting restaurants to sell liquor with food on Sunday, Dalton Waller of Toronto, a director of the association said Monday. Mr. Waller, past president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said the tourist body also wants the maximum amount of conformity in liquor regulations across Canada.

Calypso Singer to Continue Battle to Stay in Canada

TORONTO CP Harold Nurse, 31, a calypso singer and limbo dancer from Trinidad who was held for 87 days awaiting deportation, said Monday he will continue his battle to stay in Canada.

He was released from jail Friday, posted a $500 bond with the department of immigration Monday and will remain free pending further appeals of his case.

Nurse was deported from Canada in 1956. But he returned three days later in a friend's car. Since then he has been entertaining at Toronto nightclubs, has married a Canadian girl and has a five-year-old daughter.

T. R. Sterling, Ontario regional administrator for the immigration department, said Nurse was deported in 1956 because he did not meet requirements at that time.

He said Nurse had no visa and that lack of money was not the sole reason.

Nurse said Monday he thought as a British subject he did not need a visa to enter Canada.

HAS 3 CHILDREN

Hugh S. Robertson, who has been acting as solicitor for Nurse, said Monday he would argue to worry in 1959 about his status in the country and went to see a lawyer.

He did not pursue the matter because his wife was pregnant. Nurse was arrested March 4 after officials learned he was in Canada illegally. He was released on $500 bond pending inquiry. The board, after advising him of his right to legal counsel, ordered him deported.

Nurse admitted Monday he had been told of the legal rights but declined the offer of a lawyer because he had nothing to hide.

He was represented by counsel when his appeal was heard by the immigration appeal board in Ottawa March 20. The deportation order was upheld.

Nurse remained in jail while his solicitor sought a review of the case. The order was again upheld when the review was held May 4.

On May 4, he was told that arrangements were being made to send him back to Trinidad May 15. But the arrangements were delayed when application was made to the Supreme Court of Ontario to have the order quashed.

The court upheld the order.

Dr. Anderson Speaker at Quinte Club

Dr. Reg Anderson of Oakville and former president of this city will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held at the Kiwanis Centre on Monday morning. He spoke on the "American Civil War."

Carleton, vice-president of the club presided and the speaker was introduced by Ivan Hall. Mr. Anderson is a past club expressed by Sid Martin. Dr. Anderson in his talk stated that 54,000 Canadians took part in the struggle and that two and one half million soldiers were involved. He also stated that the Civil War was the first total war and that many died from malnutrition and disease and had the war come 15 years later, a great many of the victims would have been saved.

Two Charged With Theft From Machine

Theft from a penny gum machine led police on an off-again-on-again chase across Belleville early today.

The machine was broken open outside Amodio's Fruit Bridge Street grocteria. Shortly after on Victoria Avenue near Front Street two youths fled at the approach of a patrolling police constable. The chase led up Front down the east bank of the Moira River to the steel span through low water under the Upper Bridge and up the west bank. Police lost them temporarily, picked up the trail again on College and East Moira Streets, took up the pursuit back across the river, temporarily lost it again and finally found a 17-year-old youth and a 15-year-old youth in former CNR roundhouse area. Police said he was soaking wet.

A 21-year-old brother of the youth was later found at home. Both have been charged with theft from the machine.

British Labor Leader Talks With Mr. K.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — British Labor Leader Harold Wilson and Premier Nikita Khrushchev held a two-hour meeting at the premier's office, but official sources described the discussions as "full and frank."

Khrushchev and his visitor were believed to have reviewed all major foreign policy issues, with the emphasis on disarmament prospects.

It was understood Wilson would review all major issues of foreign policy, with the emphasis on prospects for disarmament.

Wilson, who arrived here Sunday, later counted a cordial talk with top Russian officials in a detailed exchange of views on disarmament, Asia and the crisis in Southeast Asia.

WOULD BE PM

Soviet officials appear convinced the Labor party will win the general elections to be held in Britain this fall and if Harold wins, Wilson will become prime minister.

Members of Wilson's party said the reception being given them was even warmer than when Wilson visited here last June.

Informed sources said Gromyko stressed the importance of co-operation between Britain and Russia in the Laos situation. Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the 1961 Geneva conference on Laotian neutrality.

The sources said Wilson told Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko that the Labor party favors a Polish proposal for preliminary discussions to halt the current military flareup in Laos. They said Gromyko had told Wilson the Russians would probably accept the Polish proposal.

Builders Offer Services Free For New Office

TRENTON—George Knopf, president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, advised town council in a letter last night, that the Trenton and District Builders' Association had offered to build a permanent Chamber office on Front Street, free of charge. Mr. Knopf valued the planned-for building at $15,000, but didn't say how far the association was prepared to go, whether it would provide the material and build the structure, or expect the Chamber to provide the materials.

The site of the proposed chamber office is on a lot owned lot on Front St., across from the site of the new federal building.

Originally, council offered to "donate" a 30 x 40 foot lot, next to a piece of land on which it intends to install parking metres.

Now, with "set-backs," from the middle line of the road, side yard allowances and so on, the chamber will need a piece of land 73 x 30 ft.

Doing a quick re-take last night, council decided it would like to hang on to the land for various reasons, and would offer the chamber a lease of sorts —perhaps a five-year lease of the land with the option of renewal—or a ten-year lease—or even a 20-year lease—and charge the chamber $1 a year rental.

The Protection to Persons and Property Committee of council will consult with town engineer A. Rayner Bagwell on the best way to make up an agreement with the chamber and several town hall retains its hold over the land.

ATTEND INSTALLATION

Five members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club last week attended the installation of their 33 executive members of the Kingston B. and P. The installation of officers for the Kingston club was performed by Mrs. Maude Bayley a former executive member of the B. & P. at provincial level. Mrs. Bayley was the guest speaker at the Kingston club's 10th birthday celebration which was held in conjunction with the installation of officers.

In the mountainous terrain of Kashmir, it is estimated that 15 minutes in an aircraft is equivalent to travelling a one-day distance in a jeep.

Approve Motion From London On Court Costs

TRENTON—Trenton council went last night to go along with a proposal made by the council of the City of London that the provincial government be asked to assume all costs in connection with the administration of justice. The province would assume all costs for the operating of jails, magistrates' courts, court houses, transportation of prisoners from one jail to another and so on.

However, another proposal to do with special tax rates being charged to owners of "high rise" apartments, went by the board, because nobody could define what was meant by "high rise" apartments. It was thought that the qualification must refer to the height of the apartment houses.

"High rise" in Toronto would probably be much higher than in Trenton, were then the town solicitor's thoughts on the matter.

In all events, no apartments in Trenton are more than three stories, so council thought the time to become concerned about such matters was when the town had something which might conceivably be construed as "high rise."

Work Schedule Of Company To Be Probed

TRENTON — Trenton council last night asked town engineer Eric Aldersey to give another long, hard look at a work schedule of the Rayner Construction Company of Toronto which calls for the leveling up of yet another town street, while work continues on the three main streets and side streets.

Rayner is "all set" to start widening procedures on Division Street, said Mr. Aldersey, (the street is to be widened between King Street and Dundas St. West). Mr. Aldersey said there wasn't much council could do about it, as Rayner planned to get all the streets to the paving stage at the same time. He said that the company, two weeks behind schedule now, nevertheless promised to dispatch work on Division St. in quick order.

"All they happen to go fast in the middle of the overall project) and slow on the ends, we'll have Dundas St. cut off at one end of the town and Dufferin Ave. cut off at the other," observed the mayor.

"If we get any more torn up, people won't be able to get into town at all. The business people are taking an awful beating as it is," was Councillor C. V. Graham's comment.

"Two weeks ago, somebody forgot to press a button and there was a green light on Dufferin Street, beckoning motorists to run right into the construction site, bulldozer and all. Let's not have any more of this directing traffic down streets that aren't open," said the mayor.

TRENTON—Firhurst Manor, a mecca for tourists for more than 40 years, has been sold by the Sutcliffe family to a number of Trenton doctors and will be torn down to provide a site for a medical centre for the town.

The familiar Sign of the Patriot, in west Trenton, has, since 1932, told motorists coming from the west that they were entering Trenton. The late J. A. Sutcliffe and his family moved into the century old house in 1919, but did not start up in tourist business until nine years later. After Mr. Sutcliffe's death, Mrs. Sutcliffe and her daughter, Helen, continued to run the well-established business. Mrs. Sutcliffe and Helen will move to the small stone house on the property.

Council Asked To Renew Membership

TRENTON—Trenton council, meeting last night, heard representations from Donald Elsington, manager of the Lake Ontario Development Association, and George Collins, association president, outlining why they thought the town should renew its membership in the tourist and industrial development body.

Trenton was a charter member of the LODA, formed in 1953 and after a nine-year membership, did not join up this year. Cost to the town for LODA membership is .07 cents per capita—or in actual figures, $367.61.

Mr. Kingdon and Mr. Collins readily admitted that no new industry had come to Trenton through LODA efforts last year, but asked council to consider regional benefits in which the town had participated, such as a greater than usual influx of tourists to the area.

Mayor James MacDonald told the two that council had decided to "go it alone" this year for a number of reasons, one of them being that the local Chamber of Commerce has received a much larger annual grant, and hence might be expected to do more promotion work for the town.

Furthermore, said the mayor, his general feeling was that the Ontario Department of Economics and Development had "let LODA down" by dealing directly with manufacturers wishing to locate in the province.

The mayor said that it seemed to him all industry wanted to locate in the Toronto area, and that very little was being done to persuade them to do otherwise.

Mr. Colling said that there was a new set-up in the Ontario department now and the thinking on decentralization of industry was being revised. Furthermore, said Mr. Colling, Trenton's active participation in LODA had seemed to wane once clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry resigned from membership on the board of directors. He urged a renewal of interest in LODA affairs on the part of the town.

Council promised to give some serious thought to the matter of renewal of membership.

Gravel Pit To Be Filled With Garbage

TRENTON — The gravel pit in Stanley Heights will be filled . . . by dumping garbage into the excavation and then quarrying, and carefully, covering it with earth.

Trenton council last night voted to go ahead with the filling of the pit by the sanitary landfill method . . . in spite of rumored opposition to the plan from residents in the housing development.

"It will "be controlled," argued Councillor Joseph Gould, instigator of the plan. "If residents get up a petition objecting, we could have it stopped."

"It's the cheapest and most economical way of doing it," agreed Mayor MacDonald.

"We may have quite a session with the residents," remarked Councillor C. V. Graham. "I've heard the neighbors intend to come down and crucify us if we start it."

Woman Given Bldg. Permit After 3 Years

TRENTON — "The man in the street" . . . or, in this case, the woman . . . was out sweet-talked by Trenton council last night when the councillors decided to direct the building inspector, William Anderson, to issue a building permit to Mrs. Anna Beattie of 326 Sidney Street.

Mrs. Beattie applied three years ago for a building permit which would permit her to build a house on the lot already occupied by a house owned by her. Since then, she has had plans for the proposed house drawn up and the land surveyed. The issuing of the permit has been held up because the land is zoned industrial rather than residential. The Committee of Adjustment must approve zoning changes in the official plan.

In spite of a warning from clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry that what it was doing wasn't strictly "legal," council, nevertheless, voted to have the permit issued, "without prejudice," so as not to set a precedent.

Increase Sought In Pay Schedule For Carpenters

Home - building contractors and house general contractors clashed last night, over wages and working conditions for carpenters in the Belleville Zone. The clash came at a conference called by the Department of Labor, at the Quinte Hotel. The conference was called after some employers and some employees petitioned the Minister of Labor.

The wage schedule approved under the Act in 1957, after a similar conference, calls for minimum wages of $2 an hour for regular time or $2.25% an hour for night work. Regular overtime rates are $3, an hour and holiday rates are $4, an hour. Normal working week is set at 40 hours, not more than eight hours in a single day, and employers require a permit from an "advisory committee" to work men, beyond one hour of overtime immediately after the regular working day. The "advisory committee," a group of local employers and employees selected by the department to administer the act, has been dormant for several years and the schedule has been ignored.

William Tatham, of the Tatham Co., speaking for the petitioners asked that the schedule be revised to provide minimum wages of $2.50 an hour for straight time, $2.85 an hour for night work, $3.75 an hour for overtime and $5.00 an hour for holiday work. He suggested that no overtime, beyond the regular 40-hour week, be permitted without a permit and that employers be allowed to work men Saturdays at straight time rates, if this is necessary to make up a 40-hour week.

Speaking for the 80 members of Local 27 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Harold Blakely of Trenton said the carpenters distrust the Saturday-work provision, and consider the wage schedule out of date, but are willing to support the proposed change. He said carpenters' wages in the area now are $2.80 an hour, and he said it would be difficult to enforce the 40-hour limit on a working week with men working Saturdays. Mr. Tatham defended the straight-time-on-Saturday provision saying that his firm would be willing to allow men to make up a 40-hour-week by working Saturdays on straight time, but if extra pay were required, men who had not put in 40 hours during the regular week would be out of luck.

Speaking for the Quinte Home Builders' Association, Charles Lamberti blasted the schedule as unfair to home builders. He said the home builders are competing in a different market, against car and appliance dealers for the consumer dollar, and that they will not be able to compete if the schedule is adopted. He said the 200 members of the Association he represented were not asked to boost or object to the petition. He said, later, that wages should be left to supply and demand, and not stifling free enterprise. Mr. Tatham said that Maurice Rollins and Donald Keller of the home builders' group had been invited to a meeting with the general contractors two weeks ago. He said also that some home builders had been building more than homes, and he mentioned apartment houses as an example.

Nominated to serve on the advisory committee, if the revised schedule is adopted, were Hugh Murray, Leroy Woods, Harold Blakely, Donald Keller, Maurice Rollins and Albert Tatham. G. Piercy of the Department of Labor, chairman of the meeting, emphasized that the nominations would be used only if the Minister of Labor decides to approve the proposed schedule. He asked for signatures on two petitions, one asking approval of the schedule and one asking that it be disapproved. About five general contractors and a half dozen home-construction repairers signed in favor of the schedule, and Reginald Terry and Walter Brant, as union officers, signed in favor for the 90 men of the carpenters' union. About 20 home builders and one employee signed against the proposal.

Mr. Terry, speaking for the Union, challenged the right of Albert Horlock to sign a petition. He said Mr. Horlock, as an electrical contractor, employed no carpenters. Speaking to a reporter after the meeting, Mr. Horlock said he signed as representative of another firm, Almo Developments, in which he holds an interest. He said Almo Firm is building a development in the area, and that it employs carpenters on the job.

No results of last night's meeting can be expected for at least a month, Mr. Piercy said. Within two months, however, the Minister will have made his decision and the new schedule will be accepted or rejected.

Signers of the original petition, asking for last night's meeting, were union officials and five general contractors, White Lumber, Lightfoot Construction, H. J. McFarland Construction, Hugh Murray and the Tatham Company.

PORTABLE TELEPHONES

In the distant future, telephone engineers see pocket-sized telephones that can be folded and carried.

Two Special Trains Will Leave City

The day of the special train is on the way back.

At least that seems to be the case as far as Quinte district school children are concerned, who this week are taking special trains for Upper Canada Village and for Niagara Falls.

Wednesday morning, about 500 Grade 8 students from Belleville primary schools will take an eight-coach special train from the C.N. station for a trip to Morrisburg and Upper Canada Village. The train will return to Belleville at 8.00 p.m.

Then on Friday morning a 14-coach special will leave Belleville for Niagara Falls, making stops at Trenton Jct., Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville.

About 900 rural school pupils from Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland counties are making the trip. For many of them it will be their first train ride.

Increase Water Flow From Lake Ontario

MONTREAL (CP)—The water flow from Lake Ontario into the St. Lawrence River was increased slightly Monday to help maintain the water level in Montreal harbor around the 35-foot level, port officials said.

The flow past Cornwall amounted to 191,000 cubic feet a second, an increase of 3,000 cubic feet over the rate during the last few weeks.

The increased flow was reported to be in accordance with the International Joint Commission's plan of control of Lake Ontario water which calls for a rate of some 190,000 cubic feet a second by this date.

Despite a sudden dip in the port level, the flow of 191,000 cubic feet is expected to continue until next month when a further boost to 194,000 cubic feet is scheduled.

The increased flow Monday is calculated to raise the harbor level by about one inch — or at least prevent a further drop.

Reserves built up earlier this year in Cornwall won't be affected until a flow of more than 200,000 cubic feet a second is required.

An Excellent Choice

The choice of Gerald F. Cunningham, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council, as president of the Belleville United Appeal is an excellent one.

Perhaps "choice" is not precisely the correct word. The truth is that, after several discouraging years, nobody wanted this job. Mr. Cunningham was prevailed upon to accept it. The circumstances, far from detracting from the potential value of the move, enhance it. Mr. Cunningham's readiness to accept a tough challenge ought to provide additional incentive to those who are in a position to provide him with the support he is going to need if he is to succeed in putting the Appeal "over the top" in its annual drive for funds.

One would expect organized labor to support him and no community project of the size of the United Appeal can hope to succeed unless it receives the whole-hearted support of this group.

But one would, also, hope that those who are not union members will regard themselves as challenged, too. It would be most unfair to permit the burden of the community services financed by the United Appeal to fall mainly on the shoulders of labor. Payroll deduction plans, because they spread contributions throughout the year, tend to increase the size of gifts. Those who are not covered by such schemes should, if they have any conscience, make certain that their response to the household canvass is not limited to a token contribution. Even a ten-dollar bill is small change when divided amongst a dozen organizations.

We hope Mr. Cunningham has the courage to demand a better performance of those who are not in the labor family, as well as of those who are his colleagues in the movement.

Too Scrupulously Fair

Sometimes anti-discrimination sentiments can be carried too far, defeating their objective.

A case in point, we suggest, is provided by reports on the detention of a Buffalo man, Eric Claude Hooper, in Don Jail for 99 days without trial.

The case was extensively reported in Toronto newspapers, and editorial comment made on it.

It was not, however, until the incident was raised in Parliament that we learned a pertinent fact—Mr. Hooper is a Negro.

Now we are not for one moment suggesting that this justifies the outrageous treatment he received. We do suggest, though, that it provides us with a possible explanation of why public wrath should heighten, rather than lessen, the blot against our reputation for even-handed justice.

Is our record, though, so exceptionally clean that the possibility of it being a factor in this case can be dismissed out-of-hand, without any mention being made of the fact that Mr. Hooper was a Negro?

Now it may be that we missed some earlier passing reference to Mr. Hooper's race in one of the many reports of the case. But we should have thought the point important enough to warrant mention in any editorial on the case. It was not mentioned in an editorial in the Toronto Telegram, a copy of which we have before us, nor can we remember any reference to Mr. Hooper's race in reports and an editorial in the Toronto Star.

The only explanation we can offer is that these newspapers were so anxious to be scrupulously fair to Mr. Hooper that they treated him precisely as they would have treated a white man. .

But Mr. Hooper is not a white man and we do not feel so comfortably certain that racial discrimination does not exist in Canada that we can consider his race irrelevant. Race will only become irrelevant when racial discrimination disappears.

One Has to Suppose

Premier Khrushchev, home in Moscow from Egypt, says "one has to suppose that the persecution of communists is past now" in Cairo.

Premier Nasser could retort "one has to suppose that the subversion of communists is past now."

If Nasser's imaginary retort should prove wrong, then Khrushchev's observation will prove wrong, too.

For, in this case, there is no doubt as to which came first, the chicken or the egg. It was Mr. Khrushchev's endeavor to hatch a clutch of eggs in his barnyard which led General Nasser to peck so vigorously.

Now, as always, Nasser loves gift-bearing visiting communists. But he has no use for the home-grown kind.

Asbestos Gloves Needed to Handle Flaming Flag Letters

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Not in 25 years, not even in the fury of the wartime conscription crisis — has there been an issue generating such a white heat of controversy as the flag.

Ask Commons veterans, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker of the Conservatives, or External Affairs Minister Martin of the Liberals, both quarter century men in Parliament.

And they'll tell you that to open some of the mail that has been burning in, you'd need asbestos gloves.

Or turn back the years and the newspaper files to the letters-to-the-editor columns of wartime.

You'll find — perhaps it was because it was wartime, and people then were more cautious of their public utterances—that the letters lack the fiery indignation, the cold fury of the flag correspondence.

Both the old letters-to-the-editor and the memories of Paul Martin and John Diefenbaker bear out what you yourself remember in 24 years of news coverage on Parliament Hill.

Letters to the editors of the two Ottawa English language papers, The Journal and The Citizen, are particularly enlightening.

HEAD OFFICE

For people from all across the country addressed letters to these papers, obviously with the thought that when they get their letters to the Parliament in Ottawa dailies, they are there for the prime minister, the Opposition and "Official" Party Leaders, and indeed, all of Parliament to read on the day of publication.

Some of them, in fact, most of the letters on such flamingly hot issues as the flag, all the impact of a punch in the face.

"Sirs: Prime Minister Pearson is replacing the Red Ensign with a banner of maple leaves, and substituting the song "O Canada" for "God Save the Queen' as our national anthem.

What are his plans for the Lord's Prayer?"

Then there is Mayor Charlotte Whitton's anguished and angry cry about the prime minister's continuing cave-in to Quebec pressure, now with his "three dying Maple Leaves on a white flag of surrender."

That king of thing, mail packed with raw emotion, generates a lot of heat, and burning as it is under the political kettle of minority Government, a furious Opposition could bring it to an election boil.

But seasoned practitioners in the fine art of election kettle-watching are taking their first simmering along into July and then spilling over in July or August through September campaign and an end-of-October vote.

It wouldn't necessarily be over the flag, but the prime minister could name his own issue — just possibly Opposition Obstruction — and go to the country with the flag.

A SWEEP

A new flag, as an election issue, has been a political conversation piece in Ottawa since the prime minister decided to nail his colors, his Cabinet and his own future to the mast.

Paul Martin is generally credited with being the first to see what he saw as the prospect of a sure election victory wrapped up in a new flag.

He is known to have quoted around Parliament Hill as having said, as long ago as six years — just after the Diefenbaker landslide of 1958 — that if he ever had an election to lead and fight, he'd do it on the flag.

"Nothing else," is the way the Martin quote goes, "just the flag. We'll sweep the country."

Somebody at the time suggested that he couldn't be serious, that the flag as an issue was really too trivial in comparison to other and supposedly more important problems continually confronting the country.

"Not at all," Paul Martin is quoted as having said, and repeated of just kidding around about possible election issues. "I could not be more serious. Any party that has the courage to come up with a new flag that is characteristically Canadian will sweep the country."

Now it is six years later.

And if that kind of thinking about the flag was good then, it is even better now.

For the political dice are loaded in favor of the new flag. And there's not much anybody, including the Opposition, can do about it without risking an accusation of dividing the country. Politically, it is this simple: All of Quebec wants the flag and not all of English Canada wants the Red Ensign — not enough, the politicians have decided now, to make for a good, solid national majority.

Strictly Personal

Who Knows What's Really Practical?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Do we really know what is "practical"? I suggest that much of the time, we do not. We confuse the "obvious" with the "practical," and fail to recognize those non-obvious factors that are so often decisive to all areas of life.

Following a recent column of mine on the advantages of a liberal education in college, as opposed to a narrow technical one, I received a number of letters saying that my proposal was not "practical." If a man has to earn a living, these letters said, he must learn how to earn it in college.

But even taking this limited objective (which is not the true objective of a college education), my correspondents are quite wrong and quite unpractical. There is heavy evidence that a technical training plays only a minor role in a successful career—certainly in the professions.

About a decade ago, Albert Mickerson of Socony Vacuum Oil Co. stated that: "A survey of 76 American corporations reveals that a lack of executive skills accounted for only a shade over 10 percent of the (executive) discharges, while character traits accounted for virtually 90 percent."

A liberal education aims at developing the whole man, not merely some function of him. Specific skills may gain a job for a college graduate, but skills are so quickly outdated these days, and needs are so changing, that only the broad and flexible personality can cope with new demands and conditions.

I would wager that of all the "characteristics" that is not the function of a university; it can be done much more cheaply and quickly in a technical or a university is designed to turn out men and women who know how to reflect and to relate, who understand the past and can in some measure anticipate the future, who view the present as something problematic and not as something given.

So that, even on the most "practical" grounds, the college student who wants to learn to earn a living (in any but the most routine task) is better off developing himself as a person than harnessing himself into a technical course that will constrict his growth.

The rumor in medical circles that penicillin was likely to be available for civilian use in Canada before the end of July was confirmed yesterday by Dr. Donald Fraser, professor of hygiene at the University of Toronto, pediatrician. Fraser was addressing la societe medicale de Montreal in that city. Reserved up now for use among the armed forces, he said penicillin was being produced in sufficient quantity today to allow for limited distribution through selected hospitals.

Having long felt the action of the elements with consequent gradual deterioration in appearance and usefulness, the face of the city clock is in process of renovation at the hands of the skilful painter, Mr. N. Crocker. The four faces of the clock will be completely renovated, the numbers being scraped and repainted and putty added where necessary.

In accordance with a recent decision of the city council to hire three additional firemen to augment the personnel of the city fire department, three new men commenced duties at the firehall as of June 1st. Fire Chief William Lynch in announcing that the new firemen had started work, stressed that they could not be termed as an addition to the fire department but should be considered as replacements for men who have left the department since the war began.

Capt. William Bottum of this city has already set an early season record for lake trout by landing a beauty from Wesleman Lake one day last week. The fish, which put up a great fight, was caught in the middle of the lake on Archer Pitchford. It was 27 inches in length and 15 inches in girth. "Fishing is good so far," quietly commented "Cap" today.

Eggs sold on the market last week at 17 cents per dozen; today they sold at 18 to 20 cents per dozen. Potatoes sold at 75 cents per bushel. Chickens varied in price from 25c to 60 cents each.

Mrs. J. H. Tubbs was on the market today selling shells which she gathered on the Gulf of Mexico.

Capt. Clark Taylor and Capt. G. Coates of this city purchased last week in Racine, Wis., the three masted schooner named the Newlando. This vessel will also be a decided acquisition to the Belleville fleet.

Working Man Is in Trouble

Christian Science Monitor

"I'm glad I'm near the end instead of the beginning," said a senior skilled worker we know of, a man who has been thinking about how difficult it was going to be for his son to get into an increasingly automated industry

They were sad words from a veteran man. He wished he could have said something encouraging.

But, despite the present and planned studies of the impact of automation, the general public seems not to have thought enough about it to feel urgently involved. Perhaps it needs something like the Walk for Freedom conference proposed by Senator Boggs. He would solicit citizen interest at local levels and then get a consensus until "the Nation speaks to Washington."

One trouble is that estimates of jobs erased through technology have varied widely. The pessimists have become the one of vague threat and vaguer promise. White-collar workers thought it was strictly a blue-collar problem until they began saying good-bye to their colleagues. Executives thought it safe as they at least would be immune, until the predictions of management by computer began here and there to come true.

Now a detailed government study of employment trends provides what seems a conservative suggestion of the likely dislocation. Conducted by the Departments of Labor and Commerce, it estimates that 19 industries (such as coal, clothing, and oil refining) will show a decline in employment by 1976. Meanwhile, 16 other industries (such as retailing, banking, and electronics) will have increased employment.

It would be comforting to think that the workers from jobs cleared in one industry would simply move over to an industry where new jobs are opening. Or that young first-job people could simply apply to the latter industries rather than the former. But a comparison of the two groups in the government study suggests that the required skills would not be easily interchangeable. And in many cases even a first job will have a threshhold of skill too high for young people without specific training.

The information and the means for meeting such circumstances should be concerning all of us. Imagine the man — he may be in your family — who has to try a new kind of job because the old one has vanished. It won't seem ought to turn away, settle in, and be glad one already has seniority.

Would Accept Challenge

Detroit Free Press

If the big had Russians are going to bury us, they're going to do it by using capitalism instead of communism. Any rites performed will be on our terms, not theirs.

This is the word that both Premier Khrushchev in Hungary and Ambassador Mikhail Dobrynin in Detroit passed out.

Krushchev, the wittiest statesman around today, sounded for all the world like a solid Western capitalist when he talked to workers in Hungary. "If a housewive has one dress," he said, "she will want two. And if she's fashion-conscious, she will want more. And this is as it should be."

Dobrynin, speaking to the Economic Club of Detroit, said Russia was ready and willing to trade with us. He rattled off a list of goods that Russia has for export, invited Americans to come take a look, talked about taxes, production, consumption and a higher standard of living.

This is hardly the old-fashioned Communist line that was laid down by Marx and Lenin. It is rather, a recognition that the incentive system has merit, and the Russians, despite being Communists, have adapted their philosophy to meet the facts.

Then Mr. Dobrynin threw down the challenge: "We seek peaceful competition. Let the people of the world see our progress and let them decide between us."

Fair enough, and far more intelligent than the advice of some American experts, who would build a wall around the United States.

This kind of challenge is the one we are best prepared for. It is a challenge to compete in terms of production, jobs and a standard of living. It means assessing our foreign policy according to what is in our own long-range interest.

Dobrynin is shrewd enough to know that the "myth" about the "battle for men's minds" is more often a battle for their stomachs. And it is philosophers which has more lasting value is the one that guarantees three squares a day.

Food is far simpler for an unsophisticated African, Asian or Latin American to understand than the complex theories of capitalism or communism.

If Russia wants to do battle on these terms, we should jump at the chance. If we are as good as we think the world we are, we can easily win.

Reason for Hair Growth Not Known by Medical Men

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why will a woman's hair grow fast so long and then no more, unless it is cut? And then it will grow out only as far as before?—R.N.

It's not for lack of trying to find out, but the exact reason for hair growth is not known.

Some things have been discovered about it, and while they may not totally answer your question, they may help.

Hair growth in different parts of the body is not at the same rate. Eyebrows are an example.

The longer the hair the slower the growth. Thus when the hair is cut, it grows comparatively fast, and then slows down when it reaches a certain length.

It doesn't stop — but it is so slow that you can't detect the growth.

Sometimes hair can be quite brittle, and will break off readily. People with that kind of hair, of course, aren't the ones who can have braids reaching down to their waists.

Age and the seasons have their effect, too. Hair grows more slowly as we get older; it grows more rapidly in hot weather.

Dear Dr. Molner: Enclosed are 10 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "Don't Quit Because Of Arthritis." Will milk and cod liver oil help? — O. H. R.

The cod-liver-oil theory of treating arthritis has hardly stood up under study. The notion was presented (and not by scientific people) on the assignment that the oil would somehow find its way into the joints. Milk and cod liver oil have no critical value, but no magic powers to control arthritis.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been bothered with cystitis for three years, and medication is effective only for a while, then has to be changed. What can be done? — J. C.

Cystitis (inflammation of the bladder) is a broad term which includes well over a dozen types. It has a bacterial frequently, of scalding and dozing up again.

The basis of the trouble may be in the bladder or in the kidneys, or even elsewhere, so I trust that you have had a thorough examination of the urinary tract.

This would include X-rays of the kidneys, and cystoscopic examination of the bladder to permit direct examination for polyps or ulcers.

Assuming that this has been done, another step is to have laboratory cultures made of whatever germ is found, so that the most effective medication can be selected.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can anyone who has overproduction of insulin become mentally unbalanced?—Mrs. J. F.

Here's what can happen:

With overproduction of insulin, a person may become very excitable or even unmanageably manic if (because of the action of the insulin) the blood sugar level falls too low.

Giving sugar is the emergency treatment for this.

For facts about the total health of you and each member of your family, Dr. Joseph G. Molner's new book, "Family Well Every Year of Your Life," ($3.95) is available at your book store.

Falconbridge was off ¾ to 72¾ and Inco to 86¼ in lower base metals group. Northgate slipped 45 cents to $5.30 and Wesmar added 45 cents to $3.40 in secondary issues.

Leitch gave up 35 cents to $3.85 and Highland - Bell five cents to $5.50. These two issues which have doubled in price in the last month were victims of selling following an announcement that the companies are equal partners in an agreement of undisclosed nature, with Texas Gulf Sulphur.

On index, base metals were down .09 to 64.10, western oils .23 to 101.91 and the exchange Index was up .02 to 142.35.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks were mixed as the trading pace slackened from previous sessions on the stock market today.

Interest in speculative mining situations diminished although Noranda jumped 15 cents to 75 cents. For the most part volumes in these issues were surprisingly low. Main changes were: MacDonald down eight cents to 40 cents, Genex down four cents to 32 and Kirkland Minerals two cents to 36. New Kelore and Belleterre were ahead two cents each to 26 and 74 cents respectively.

In the main list, banks were fractionally higher. Texaco gained ¼ to 69¼. Dominion Stores climbed ¼ to 20.

Kerr-Addison chalked up a 20 cent gain to $7.95 in a stronger golds list.

In mining issues, Falconbridge backed off ¼ to 72¾. Leitch climbed 15 cents to $4 and Highland - Bell eased 10 cents to $5.40.

Best example of profit taking was in MacDonald, which opened strongly by moving to a high of 63 cents only to turn over 615,700 shares and close at 48 cents, unchanged from Friday.

Other speculative issues saw Fax International gain four cents to 77 cents, New Kelore and Consolidated Regcourt 3½ cents to 24 and 18½, Bunker Hill two cents to 65 cents and Gulf Lead one cent to 28 cents. Belleterre dipped five cents to 72 cents and Rowan one cent to 26 cents.

Industrials gained .06 to 166.69 after earlier recording a new index high of 156.32. General Bakeries received support with a gain of 1¼ to 23. Food of Canada was up $7 to 202 and Canada Iron backed on $1 to a 1964 high of 39. Massey-Ferguson was up ¾ to 28.

Industrial Expansion Needs And Plight of Indians Stand Out Clearly in Debate

Mrs. Whyte Back in Canada To Raise Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte, controversial children's home operator, is back from Nigeria for a two-month fund-raising visit.

The 54-year-old woman, whose Whyteahven mission near Bowmanville, 10 miles east of Oshawa, was closed in 1959 after battles with welfare and health authorities, now heads an orphan and youth training home in northern Nigeria.

Mrs. Whyte hopes Canadians will provide money and equipment — farm machinery, tractors, an ambulance — for her centre in Akyetoro, Kabba province. She's also seeking sponsors for orphans to be brought to Canada for an education.

Kabba Youth Training Centre, according to Mrs. Whyte, teaches modern farming methods to students who later serve terms as instructors. Mrs. Whyte says her centre also supports 45 orphans.

She is accompanied on her tour by daughters Jane, 15, and Ruth, 8, and Simeon Ohuonu, 46, a member of the centre's board of directors. She is carrying exhibits of Nigerian handcrafts made at the centre.

WILL JOIN THEM

Her husband, Bert, is co-head of the centre and their son, Roland has joined them in Nigeria for two years and his wife and three children to operate a furniture factory. They expect to sell Canadian-type furniture in the Nigerian capital of Lagos.

HOUSE HUNTING? Call

J. E. McKINNEY
REAL ESTATE
WO 2-8181

OTTAWA (CP)—The Northwest Territories council, moving at a speed that would astound the House of Commons, Monday completed its version of a throne speech debate in two hours flat and today begins wading into legislation.

It expects to pass about 15 bills in 10 sitting days.

Nine speakers — the entire council membership—took part in the motion of appreciation for the commissioner's address Monday. The debate gives the four elected representatives from the north an opportunity to review all the problems they came to Ottawa to represent. The five appointed members, most of them serving their first term, enter the debate as a method of introduction.

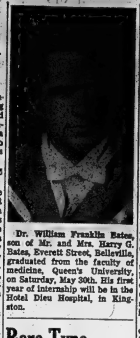
Among the northern problems that stood out clearly during the first day's debate was the plight of the Indian, and the need for industrial growth.

Three members called for the federal government to turn over administration of welfare to the provinces and territorial governments on grounds that the present system has ended to work against the natives.

NEW APPROACH URGED

Robert Porritt, Mackenzie South, said the federal Indian affairs branch should be thrown "into the ashcan." It was a "wrong trail - outer method of administration" that resulted in privation, distress and apathy in some Ontario regions.

Lyle Trimble, Mackenzie Delta, said that federal welfare payments are contributing to the downfall of the Indians, and some aspects of federal administration also made a contribution.



It was foolish to give welfare payments without asking some work in return. There were many cleaning-up projects that could be undertaken in these communities and the natives could be paid an hourly wage so they could work when they wanted, he suggested.

Peter Baker, MacKenzie North, said the living conditions of Indians around Yellowknife is "a disgrace to all civilization." Some of their old log shacks were "a fire hazard" and there was no planning in the communities.

The three speakers were joined by veteran council member John Goodall, Mackenzie River, in seeking greater industrial expansion in the north. Mr. Goodall said there was too much reliance on casual work, and more effort should be put into developing the area's renewable resources.

Mr. Porritt said northerners had heard about all sorts of visions and programs during the last few years, and now it was time for a concerted effort to develop the north.

Dr. William Franklin Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Bates, Everett Street, Belleville, graduated from the faculty of medicine, Queen's University, on Saturday, May 30th. His first year of internship will be in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, in Kingston.

Rare Type Of Blood Given Child

OSHAWA (CP)—A baby girl born Monday at Oshawa General Hospital is to receive transfusions today of a rare type of blood shipped here from Nova Scotia.

The blood will be substituted for the baby's own blood to combat a rare condition, haemolytic disease of the newborn, which doctors said is present in the baby.

The blood required by the baby was donated by Mrs. Edward Lumsden and Helen Hendsbee—two of about eight Canadians capable of donating the blood—who travelled 200 miles from Half-Island Cove, N.S., to donate the blood at Halifax. It arrived here Monday.

The mother, Mrs. Evelyn Curtis, 29, has developed antibodies in her blood which would kill the blood in her new-born infant who has Rh-negative blood.

Doctors said Mrs. Curtis gave birth to her daughter by elective induction, a forcing method, and both she and her daughter were doing well.

Woman Killed At Newtonville

NEWTONVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Evelyn Blance Gilmour, 22, was killed Monday when her panel truck overturned and toppled on her.

Mrs. Gilmour of Newtonville, about 25 miles east of Oshawa, lost control of the panel truck while it was being towed by a car. The truck overturned, tossing her clear, and then rolled onto her.

Next Target of Automation Is Middle-Level Manager, Engineer, Says Sociologist

By DAN POWERS

EDMONTON (CP)—The next target of automation is the middle-level manager and engineer, says a United States sociologist.

Dr. Donald Michael of the Institute for Policy Studies, Washington, D.C., Monday told delegates to a conference on education and automation that U.S. middle-level managers and engineers are being replaced by computers capable of routine decision-making and design.

"Engineers in the past were used to design car motors or a bridge. Now, the specifications of a customer are fed into a computer and the computer designs the product—and designs it to maximum marketability."

The conference has drawn delegates from Canada, United States and Britain, in politics, labor, industry, social psychiatry and education. About 100 delegates are registered for the 12-day meeting, sponsored by the department of industrial and vocational education of the University of Alberta.

Dr. Michael, speaking on the long-range implications of automation or cybernation as it affects work, described cybernation—derived from the Greek word cybernetics, meaning steersmen or helmsman—as the "automation and dictation of material and automatic manipulation of symbols in computers."

He said the low - occupational-skill office worker is a "sure target of cybernation."

"Office-worker hiring in the United States has dropped 30 per cent and this is due to only one thing—the replacement of the office-worker by computers."

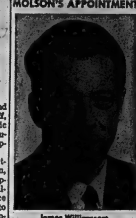
The effects of automation already have been felt by the blue-collar worker, Dr. Michael said. The highly-skilled worker will remain in demand.

WIDE RANGE NEEDED

"Any occupation which does not have in it a substantial creative component or a real person-to-person relationship is potentially replaceable by a machine.

"... There will be an enormous need for the sub-professional jobs: teachers' aides, doctors' aides, recreation teachers and even well-trained baby sitters."

Dr. Michael, who has served as a consultant to UNESCO and the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, said he is deeply pessimistic that the U.S. could solve its automation problems but was optimistic about Canada.



Canadian advantages in being the problems of automation, he said, include a smaller population than the U.S.; an availability to American experience in automation; more time to plan effective and useful programs in cybernetics; and a history of government support for social planning.

The spirit of giving good service still exists in Canada. The needs to be encouraged. The machine just can't give the human touch."

QUILT DISPLAYED

LONDON (CP)—A quilt more than 20 feet square, known as the Baltimore Bride's Quilt, has been displayed at the library of the U.S. embassy in London. The quilt, a fine example of early 19th-century applique by American women, consists of some 25 squares of patch work in bold colors.

Council Wants Distribution Of Birth Control Information

HAMILTON (CP) — The National Council of Women Monday called for an amendment to the Criminal Code which would allow for the distribution of birth control information.

The resolution, passed by delegates on the first day of a four-day annual meeting here, is to be presented to federal authorities.

A Montreal delegate, Mrs. A. W. D. Sevan, cast a vote against the action, explaining later she was concerned it would disturb relationships between French- and English-speaking Canadians. She said she had voted against the move on instructions from her council.

The resolution calls for an amendment to Section 150 of the Criminal Code deleting the words "preventing conception or."

Section 150 reads: "Everyone commits an offence who knowingly, without lawful justification or excuse, offers to sell, advertises, publishes an advertisement of, or has for sale or disposal any means, instructions, medicine or drug or article intended or represented as a method of preventing conception or causing abortion or miscarriage."

SEEKS RESTRICTION

A motion by Mrs. W. P. Augustine of Windsor, president of the Ontario council, to restrict information about birth control to married people, was defeated.

Mrs. Saul Hayes of Montreal, retiring national president, told the delegates at a dinner that a polyglot national organization in a polyglot country has a duty to find a denominator which will enable it to reflect public opinion.

"The council is, by and large, a reflection of the moods, ideas and philosophies that compose this nation," she said.

Mrs. Hayes told the delegates several serious problems, including those of automation, will necessitate a complete change in thinking.

The Council of Women will have to understand anew the new meaning of the newer leisure which is tied to such problems as early retirement delinquency, continuing schooling, adult education, recreational programming, community centres, a different concept of family life and a host of others, including an expanded role for social welfare services.

Council appointment of Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the Governor-General, as honorary life member was announced by Mrs. Hayes.

Mrs. Howard Parliament of Stratford, the former Ilda Ketcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ketcheson, Halloway, received her Bachelor of Arts degree recently at Queen's University, Kingston. Mrs. Parliament who majored in psychology, completed her course at Queen's last summer. Previous to moving to Stratford she taught school in Belleville and area for five years.

French Teacher Raising Money To Aid Lepers

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvonne Champigneul teaches French to McGill University students during the day and raises money for lepers in her spare time.

An organization she founded called Help the Lepers has provided money to buy two travelling clinics in Africa—in the Ivory Coast and in Nyasaland.

The Montreal-based organization has also provided drugs, bandages and other materials used in fighting the disease.

Prof. Champigneul says there are 15,000,000 lepers in the world.

The French-born teacher began her work in 1962 when she read an article about Raoul Follereau of France, known as the "vagabond of charity" because of his annual visit to countries where the fight against leprosy was aided by funds from his organization, known as the Order of Charity.

She was so impressed she decided to become one of Follereau's supporters.

RAISES MONEY

She said she sent a gift to France each year and events ally met Mr. Follereau. Later she began giving lectures on his work and raising money. Last year she raised $7,000 for her Help the Lepers organization.

This year, under the patronage of the Gold Cross, a charitable organization founded by Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal, she hopes to help raise $12,000.

Prof. Champigneul has made her own study of the disease, which she says "older than written history." Egyptian mummies, she said, show unmistakable signs of the disease.

She believes like Follereau that leprosy can be brought under control and possibly eliminated, with the means to detect early cases and sufficient medicine to treat them.

The McGill teacher said thousands of leprosy victims have been cured and are living normal lives.

Miss Braden received her education at B.C.I. Lynn Taylor, daughter of Mrs. J. L. Taylor, 5 Craig Street, and the late J. L. Taylor. Miss Taylor graduated from Quinte Secondary School. Kathryn Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cunningham, 289 Bleecker Avenue, is a graduate of B.C.I.

Bring Children Home to Help Studies

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg woman and her three children have cut short a stay in Kenya because, she says, "the educational standards there are so low, and our teen-agers are at such a crucial stage in their schooling."

Mrs. H. C. Taylor travelled to Nairobi last summer with her husband and children, Sally, now 17, Geoffrey, 15, and Vernon, 11. She planned to stay there two years while her husband helped in government reorganization for the United Nations.

Leaving her husband behind, she returned to Winnipeg after eight months.

"There were no high school courses offering Sally both arts and science, Mrs. Taylor says, nor could she find help for the maths and sciences she studied by correspondence from Manitoba.

Mrs. Taylor says one reason for the low standard of education in the African country is that some white teachers won't work for a government run by Negroes.

"But the standard will rise again quickly in the next few years, for the Africans are eager to learn. They walk miles to school each day, in all weather, and never miss unless deathly ill.

"Jomo Kenyatta (the prime minister) has studied in both British and Russian centres and he wants the best of both systems worked into the new educational setup there."

Mrs. Taylor brought back with her two young monkeys as pets for Sally and Vernon. "Geoffrey wanted a snake or a kite (a bird of prey) but I put my foot down."

French Programs Are Not Lost to All Canadians

DEAR DORIS — Why is it our big networks are now running all-French programs? We can't understand it there anyway. I don't feel we are ready for this — ENGLISH CANADIAN.

DEAR ENGLISH — There are also programs which undertake to teach the French language so that we can get ready. And there are some fine student exchange plans which put young people in the homes of other Canadians speaking the other language — whichever one it is — in the interest of broadening all of us.

DORIS CLARK

The Honorable Maurice Lamontagne Secretary of State of Canada, in addressing a conference of the Canadian Women's Press Club, said:

"As long as we fail to build a strong cultural life and to develop frequent exchanges between our cultures, I am quite sure that we will continue to be unsure about our country and to be worried about its future. But the federal government can only be one force in this movement."

I agree that programs we cannot understand at all are lost to us, but our Frenchspeaking compatriots can and do enjoy them. Have you any better suggestions?

DEAR DORIS — As a graduate of a Canadian university you should know the standing a person needs to enter training for a nurse. I understand the average required in school exams is 85 per cent. On the other hand a person who wishes to train for a nurse's aide need only have her Grade 9 or 10 pass certificate. — A REGISTERED NURSE.

DEAR FRIENDS — I know, I know. But there are other things besides scholastic standing that a good nurse needs. I think "Trying Hard" has these; and it seemed to me that better study habits might bring up the marks at school.

I personally knew a high school student whose warm personality and rare understanding of people made her fine fodder for a nursing career, in spite of poor marks. I worked with her one whole year, one evening a week, and we brought up her marks in sciences and maths until she qualified. She has a high grade of "social intelligence" — and now does a high grade of bedside nursing.

I agree that if a gal just can't make it, even with help, she must put her people-loving talents to work at something less demanding, intellectually, than graduate nursing or social work.

MENU Magic from the Test KITCHEN

June is Dairy Month in Canada . . .

Yet every month is Dairy Month, for milk and the foods made from milk are provided at top flavor and quality all year round. We Canadians count on dairy foods not just for the good nutrition they provide, but also because they taste so good, and play such a part in helping us plan interesting, good-to-eat meals.

Trout Treat

Next time friend husband proudly presents you with a fine pink trout, give it the tender treatment. As you broil it, brush it with melted butter, using the proportions of a tablespoon of chopped fresh mint (or a half teaspoon of the dried variety) to a quarter cup of melted butter . . . brushing it over the brook beauty as it broils. Might try pairing butter with salmon, chive butter with whitefish, and use these quick butters as a base to dip up canned and frozen fish too!

Dreamy Dessert

Here's a dream of a fresh strawberry dessert. You combine a pint of dairy sour cream with a pint of luscious red ripe berries washed, hulled and cut in half. Flavor the cream first with a scant cup of sugar, white or brown, and vanilla or a hint of almond if you like. Gently fold in half a cup of coconut and the same amount of miniature marshmallows (or cut-up big ones . . . they cut easily with wet scissors). Add the strawberries . . . cover and chill the mixture deeply till serving time . . . and you'll find this dessert fine enough for the biggest VIP in the country. Keep the idea in mind for future summer desserts with other fresh fruits too!

Holiday Hints

We'd like to remind you that when fresh milk and cream aren't available at your camp or cottage spot, evaporated milk and milk powder will come to your rescue. Both of these concentrated forms of milk convert easily to liquid forms for cooking, drinking, baking, and using in tea and coffee. In addition, they will be handy for many marvellous dessert toppings, so good with fresh fruits and camp-style desserts!

SHOULD KNOW FACTS

SUNDERLAND, England (CP)—Gemma Jones, 16-year-old model, protested because officials of a Durham County contest to pick the most beautiful dairy maid gave her a quiz about cows. Judges said the girls must have knowledge of dairy farming as well as having beauty because as one put it, "the dairy queen has to carry the industry on her shoulders."

Ann Landers

Up to Husband to Tell Sister-in-Law to Back Off

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I told myself for months I was imagining it, that it was impossible. But now I know the truth. Last night I witnessed an incident which leaves no room for doubt. My older sister, who is divorced, is making a play for my husband.

Wade and I have been married three years. We have one little boy and I'm pregnant again. We've always gotten along well and I have never worried about Wade cheating. But it's easy to see how a man could get involved with Annette. She is beautiful, provocative and so aggressive you wouldn't believe it.

ANN LANDERS

Last night we had some people over. I went to the back porch to get more ice cubs. As I walked toward the kitchen I heard Annette say, "I've felt this way about you from the first." Wade replied, "You're drunk, Annette. Please be quiet or someone will hear you."

I walked around to the front of the house and came in through the front door.

I'm sick at heart. What shall I do? — SHATTERED.

DEAR SHATTERED — Tell your husband you heard the back porch dialogue and let him know you trust him implicitly.

Tell Wade, too, you will say nothing to Annette — that it's up to him. Then stay out of it. Carry on with her as if you heard nothing and know nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl who will be twelve years old in ten months. All my friends have been told the facts of life by their mothers. My mother hasn't said one word to me about anything personal. Isn't this her duty?

I have dropped some hints to her but she acts like she doesn't know what I am talking about. I am very much interested in this subject and there are loads of things I would like to know.

I have also two little brothers and sisters everything they hear. I think maybe this is why mother doesn't tell me anything. She is afraid I will blab it around, but I am not that type.

Please advise me how to get my mother to have a private talk with me. I'm sure you have many friends whose parents are what their mothers have told them. — NEEDING TO KNOW MORE.

DEAR NEEDING — Some mothers find it difficult to talk to their children about personal things. This is because they were brought up by mothers who never talked to them about such things.

It is much better if a mother is able to speak freely to her children, but I hope you won't feel that your mother is not doing her duty if she can't because it's not her fault.

Show your mother this column and tell her you are the girl who wrote. Ask her to get some guidance from the librarian or the family doctor. There are several good books for girls your age and if she gets the books for you she will be doing her duty.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This problem may seem like small potatoes to you but it is causing me a lot of aggravation.

We live in a very nice neighborhood but the homes on our side of the street are close together. The woman who lives next door shakes her dirty mops and throw rugs out her bedroom window. Her window faces my sewing room and I get all her dirt and dust. I thought only ignorant slobs did such things.

Our home is a two-storey dwelling, just as here is, but I always go outside and shake my rugs and mops behind the house. She has seen me do this but refuses to take the hint. What next? — SALLY.

DEAR SALLY — Stop hinting and tell her you'd appreciate it if she'd do a few minutes sweeping before she shakes her rugs and mops — so you can close your windows.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHEN ARE SHORTS THE PROPER ATTIRE?

We're not quite into the summer season, yet the controversy about when and where it's proper to wear shorts is already being warmed up.

Some suggest think its perfectly proper to wear shorts when shopping, and others get livid at the idea. For confession at that other informal get-togethers, shorts are considered by some to be an abomination as unmitard and chill sauce. Others would rather fight than relinquish their shorts that a skirt is much more appropriate for anything requiring an invitation.

And so the controversy goes. However, I'd like to put in a word, if I may. Instead of discussing the pros and cons of the subject, as such, I think it's important for ladies to discuss if you can wear shorts and then fight it out about the whens and wheres.

Before viewing shorts in the over-all picture, perhaps it would be better to peek in the mirror first. Only the near-perfect figure looks well in shorts, and I think that should be the first criterion. If thighs are heavy and the waistline ample; if the knees are flabby and calves are more than rounded; then that should settle the question — for you, at least.

No matter how "in" they may be in your social setup, shorts should definitely be "out" if your figure doesn't shape up. An eased skirt or a pair of culottes that give the feeling of shorts but camouflage underlying figure defects should become wardrobe staples for informal wear.

WHEN AND WHERE

If however, you have the sort of trim, slim figure that shorts are made for, then here's a rule of thumb about when and where they may be worn with ease:

Shorts are permissible on your own patio, in your own back yard, at the beach, riding a bicycle, on some of the golf links (this requires checking in some places), at picnics and at cook-out party. If the hostess says that's what everyone's wearing. For the latter, it's best to check first, so you won't find yourself the only one in shorts and feel miserable. In some suburban and exurban areas, shorts have become almost a uniform for shopping in local supermarket. If this is the custom in your community, then it's permissible for you to adopt it, if you must, and if you have the figure for shorts.

Shopping, though, should not be worn in any restaurant in town (you may be able to get away with them in some beach communities or at a roadside stand). Nor should they be worn to downtown department stores, (they even look out-of-place in suburban marts), teas, cocktail parties or informal afternoon or evening get-togethers.

Shoes, of course, should be worn only on those occasions when shorts are appropriate. I only add this because we went last week at which most of the girls were skirts and a few with enviable figures turned up in shorts. One shorts-clad couple also turned up barefoot, so it looks like there's another fashion controversy in the making. I hope not.

Different Veg. Dishes For A Change

by Mary Moore

How would you like to make popovers with corn in them? That was what I wanted to do but scared myself. Since I was having eight for dinner, I certainly did not want a flop. What I did was a lovely combination of something like Yorkshire pudding to go with beef, something like popovers that rose sky high and included corn. So to my best popover recipe I cautiously added ½ cup drained canned kernel corn. They were just fine. When Pete had carved the beef and all were served my sister Doris passed the piping hot popovers in their pans straight from the oven. Some of my guests spread them with butter, some put them on their plates and poured gravy over.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

CORN POPOVERS:

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ¾ (teaspoon salt, 3 large eggs (or 4 medium), 1 1/3 cups milk, 1 tablespoon soft or nearly melted butter, ½ cup well-drained canned kernel corn.

In large mixing bowl combine all ingredients except corn. Beat with rotary or electric beater 2 minutes. Add corn and beat 1 or 2 minutes. Let this stand for 1 hour, then stir well. Have oven heated to 450 deg. Fahr. Pour batter into well-buttered muffin pans, filling two-thirds to three-quarters full. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes or until risen about 1½" above time of pans and golden brown.

(Note: Since I served these with roast beef (see Monday May 25th) which had been roasting at 300 deg. Fahr. I had to transfer it to the warming oven, to raise the temperature of the oven to 450 deg. Fahr. I did this about 15 minutes before I called the guests to the table. Thus when the meat and vegetables were served, the popovers had "popped" and were ready to serve directly from their oven pans. I had 16 popovers, so I had to use 2 individual custard cups as my muffin pans hold only 12.)

The other vegetable I prepared was a delicious combination of cucumbers and green peppers.

STEAM-FRIED CUCUMBERS AND GREEN PEPPERS:

To serve 8 I needed 2 large cucumbers and 2 green peppers. Wash and pare cucumbers. Cut into quarters lengthwise and trim out seed portion. (Some of these seed portions can go into your salad if you wish.) Wash green peppers and cut each into 8 strips lengthwise, removing seeds and inner ribs. Have ready in large frying pan about 3 tablespoons melted butter. Add and fry 12 to 15 minutes before serving time add the prepared cucumbers and green peppers, turn heat medium-low, cover and steam-fry until they are wilted and tender-crisp but still retain some of their crispness, as the Chinese do. This combination of vegetables was attractive and popular because it was different.

Should Be Encouraged to Pursue Career

She's a mathematical computer programmer at an electronics plant, a housewife and mother of two small daughters at home.

Mrs. Chapman, 31, believes parents should encourage gifted daughters to pursue careers in science and engineering.

"I think the fascination for math and engineering persists after she survives high school, where she is likely to be pointed out as 'that girl mathematically inclined,'" she said.

"And what did Chapman choose to give his lady engineer for Mother's Day? A slide rule! A new math encyclopedia?

"Black lingerie," he says, what else?"

rid of Quebec" said one. "Down with press propaganda," said another.

"Why don't you get rid of your diapers," shouted a Red Ensign man.

LLD BY HOUSEWIFE

The ensign supporters were led by an Ottawa housewife, Mrs. Marjorie LeLacheur. Mrs. H. D. Courtenay of Ottawa also helped in the organizing and she said that the rain held down the number of marchers.

"Our older supporters couldn't come out in the rain."

A light rain fell throughout most of the demonstrations.

"See these medals?" asked Mrs. William Douglas of Ottawa. "This shows my husband fought for democracy in the First World War. We're not going to have a flag forced on us by Mr. Pearson."

The ensign supporters combined their preference with God Save the Queen at first and the new flag people appropriated O Canada. After a while all joined in on O Canada and most of the exchange after that was verbal. Both groups made brief diversions to the nearby National War Memorial in Confederation Square.

When the maple leaf supporters — most of whom were younger than their Red Ensign opponents — began a march to the National War Memorial, a dozen RCMP officers galloped off ahead in an effort to station themselves near the monument. But there were no incidents there.

YOUTH LEADS

Janis Auns, a youth who also took a leading role in the maple leaf demonstration, stood in front of the memorial and asked the gathering: "Is this flag good enough to die for?"

"Yes, yes," they said.

"I want all of you to write one letter to your MP — just one — and tell him, 'This flag is going to make Canada.'"

The group observed a one-minute silence at the memorial before singing O Canada and marching back to the Hill. Then the Red Ensign supporters went to the memorial.

At the memorial, the Red Ensign supporters sang The Maple Leaf Forever, along with God Save the Queen and O God Our Help In Ages Past. They also observed a two-minute silence for "the people who fought under this flag."

In the Commons, Mr. Pearson said he will not bow to demands to have his flag resolution split into two sections. It will retain its present form, calling on the one hand for adoption of new flag as Canada's national symbol and also allowing the Union Jack to continue to be flown as the symbol of Canada's Common-

Book-Loving Residents Inspect New Branch Library

Setting up a new branch library is rather an expensive proposition with the cost of the building only part of the overall expense.

The new East Branch of the Belleville Public Library at the corner of Victoria and Farley Ave., opened yesterday, cost $30,724, exclusive of the lot.

But in addition there is the cost of the 5,000 books which at roughly $4 each, will cost another $20,000.

"We would have liked to put in more books for the opening," sai dLibrary Board chairman Linton D. Read, "but it costs a lot of money."

It was "open house" yesterday for the new East End branch library and throughout the afternoon and evening book loving residents in East Belleville took advantage of the occasion to inspect the new library facilities.

"The new branch library will serve a big need in the East Belleville area, Mr. Read said.

The new branch library will be open Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 2.00 p.m. to 8.30, and on Saturday from 9.30 a.m. to 5.30.

What may delay the start of debate on the flag issue is the needed amendment to the British North America Act which must be sent on to the British Parliament in order that survivors and widows can be brought under the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

MAY HAVE QUESTIONS

Although debate on the flag resolution may not come for another week or so, there is no preventing it from being a daily subject for questions.

The main point of concern in Monday's question period was the disclosure that Mr. Pearson had flown the three red maple leaves with the blue borders over his official summer residence at Harrington Lake, in the Gatineau Hills of Quebec.

It "looked wonderful," he told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who demanded to know "what possible business of a prime minister of Canada" was it to use a flag not designated as the official flag over property paid for by the people of Canada.

He offered, if members of Parliament wished to see the new flag design flying, to have it run up on a flagpole on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it was a perversion of parliamentary rights for Mr. Pearson to fly a flag not yet authorized by Parliament over the summer house at nearby Harrington Lake, a property paid for by the people of Canada.

ASKS ABOUT PLAN

Mr. Diefenbaker started the question period in the Commons by asking whether the government intends to divide the flag resolution so members can vote separately on the new maple leaf design, and on retaining the Union Jack as a symbol of Canadian Commonwealth membership and loyalty to the Crown.

"It will be proceeded with as one resolution," Mr. Pearson said.

"What flag, if any, was flown during the weekend at the prime minister's residence at Harrington Lake?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

"Surely," Mr. Pearson said, "that is a matter for my own decision."

Mr. Pearson said a Canadian had a right to fly any flag he wishes over his private home, and he doubted whether it was a proper subject for parliamentary inquiry.

Later, he said the Red Ensign had flown at 24 Sussex Street, the prime minister's Ottawa residence, while he was there, and at Harrington Lake when he went there for part of the weekend.

Later the Commons had another flag discussion during private member's hour when a motion by J. A. McBain (PC-Elgin) was talked out. Mr. McBain wanted the Red Ensign adopted in accordance with the wishes of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

This did not come to a vote because debate outran the 60-minute time limit.

SEES RESULT

In an adjournment debate Louis-Joseph Pigeon PC—Joliette-L'Assomption - Montcalm said the demonstration on Parliament Hill showed how the government had destroyed national unity.

He accused the government of proposing the adoption of two flags and two national anthems. It would be preferable to take no acting for a few years rather than follow a double-symbol policy. He said he personally favors a new flag with a single maple leaf.

The Union Jack, the Red Ensign and God Save the Queen were symbols of British imperialism and Canada had been dependent for many years.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled out of order on seven separate grounds a question by H. W. Herridge NDP—Kootenay West asking Mr. Pearson whether he would consider a referendum at the next general election to ascertain support for the Red Ensign, for the flag proposed by the government and for the Union Jack as a Commonwealth flag.

Was it correct that Transport Minister Pickersgill had an audience with the Queen, asked Eldon Woolliams PC—Bow River? Would every effort be made to keep the Queen out of what might be a sad situation?

Mr. Pearson said he could issue a speedy yes to the second question and Mr. Pickersgill would be back later in the day.

Mr. Pearson said he doesn't know whether he saw the Queen.

BRINGS UP LETTER

Heath Macquarrie PC—Queens, a former professor, noted Mr. Pearson's experience as a history professor years ago and asked whether delay in introducing the flag resolution could be interpreted as regard for scholarly protest.

This came last week from 12 eminent Canadians, most of them professors, who asked Mr. Pearson to think again about his flag design.

Mr. Pearson said the press and members got copies of the letter before he did, and his wasn't even signed.

Industry Minister Drury told Mr. Diefenbaker that he could reassure him that the defence production department had not yet said $60,000 for the manufacture and procurement of the proposed maple leaf flag before the matter was discussed by Parliament.

Trustees Gain On Teachers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) More than 300 school trustees were told Monday that growing strife and mass teacher resignations, used by teacher federations in contract disputes, may be a thing of the past.

Speaking to the annual convention of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association, Orval Grant of Sault Ste. Marie, president of the Ontario School Trustees Council, cited a contract dispute at Lakefield, Ont., as an example of trustees ending with the strongest hand in a dispute. The board was grey-listed but maintained a staff of teachers.

In grey-listing a board, federations warn their members that a board is involved in a contract dispute with teachers.

Mr. Grant said the trustees' greatest ally in a contract dispute is the law of supply and demand, now working in favor of school boards.

But he warned the trustees that the balance of power would be shifted to the teachers if teachers' federations won their bid to control certification of teachers.

Education Minister William Davis told the trustees his department is establishing an information branch to speed the department's thinking and policies to the local level and to collect the views of trustees for study.

WILL REDUCE NUMBER

He also said the number of rural school boards would be reduced by 75 per cent next year by recent legislation that requires township school boards to be organized on the township and not the school section level.

Rev. A. M. Laverty of Kingston, president of the trustees' association, said one remaining contentious issue between school boards and teachers is the policy of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation of rating school boards according to their teacher - employees' opinions of how well they treat teachers.

"We consider the practice something less than professional in character, something less than sound judgment and certainly destructive of good relations between teachers and trustees," Mr. Laverty said.

The trustees watched 10 Kitchener Grade 1 students, all six and seven years of age, whistle through an arithmetic exercise in a demonstration of the cuisenaire system of teaching mathematics.

The system involves the use of colored sticks of various lengths by which children are taught number values. It was introduced to three Grade 1 classes last year in Kitchener and is to be extended to kindergarten next year.

Also approved was a petition to the education minister asking for a centennial student exchange program.

must still press forward with its program as though it had a majority in the Commons.

He also suggested that the Liberal party hold national conventions every two years, instead of every five years as provided for in the present constitution. The suggestion was quickly adopted.

ACCUSES PARTY

Mr. Pearson accused Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and opposition members of twisting and distorting government policies, regardless of the importance of these policies to national unity.

The opposition's only objective is to defeat the minority Liberal government at the earliest opportunity, Mr. Pearson said.

"But I assure you this is not going to prevent us going ahead and doing the job as we see it must be done."

His words contrasted with those of outgoing president Senator John Connolly, minister without portfolio, who expressed confidence the council would end its session "with a desire and determination on the part of Liberals everywhere to restore a majority Liberal administration to Canada at the earliest appropriate opportunity."

Mr. Pearson may have upset the old hand campaign to have the Commons deal separately with the government's proposal on a maple leaf flag and use of the Union Jack.

He said the "honest way" was for the government to include both in a single resolution making the maple leaf flag Canada's distinctive national flag and the Union Jack the symbol of this countrys Commonwealth connection.

He reiterated his opposition to a national referendum on the flag, saying members of Parliament will make the decision. He could see no better cross section of Canada than the men and women "elected to make a decision."

He charged the opposition with crying "capitulation" whenever the federal government made good arrangements with Quebec and the other provinces, and of calling the Liberals "arrogant centralizers" whenever the government is unable to accept provincial requests.

Both Mr. Pearson and Senator Connolly cautioned delegates against making the flag issue a matter of "partisan politics."

"It should be above that," Mr. Pearson said. He hoped it would be discussed on the broadest parliamentary basis and that each MP would vote according to his convictions.

External Affairs Minister Martin, main speaker for Monday, issued a strong appeal for national unity and party unity and indicated that any leadership hopes he may have had in opposing Mr. Pearson's election as leader in 1958 are dead.

He said his job is to carry forward the foreign policy concepts of Mr. Pearson. For it to be successful required a united country.

Honolulu Talks Map U. S. Policy

HONOLULU (AP) — American policy makers, in the final hours of their secret strategy sessions occupied today with the question what more the United States must do to prop up Southeast Asia against intensified Communist pressure.

Efforts to solve the Southeast Asia crisis began Monday with a more than nine-hour session that convened in a heavily guarded room, moved to a private beach for a working lunch and closed back behind locked doors.

That same schedule was in force today with most of the officials, including State Secretary Dean Rusk, who presided, and Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, who planned to fly home to Washington after planned final adjournment about dusk.

None of the conferees would disclose what directions their meetings were taking. It appeared likely that details of any recommendations will be revealed only after approval by President Johnson.

TOLD TO MAKE REVIEW

The assembled cabinet officers, ambassadors and military leaders have been instructed by the president to review American policy in Southeast Asia and make suggestions for its future course.

There were growing indications that military moves were being charted to show pro-Communist insurgents the United States means business. Limited military pressures have been applied in the past—notably in Thailand in 1962—with temporary success.

Increased U.S. military activity in Southeast Asia could take a number of courses, including jet reconnaissance flights over Communist North Viet Nam or a carrier force cruising just outside North Vietnamese territorial waters—close enough to be seen from shore.

Other alternatives might be guerrilla activity by South Vietnamese forces inside North Viet Nam or even a naval quarantine. The United States already has imposed economic sanctions on North Viet Nam to halt the sale of that country's goods in the U.S.

Yet another possibility was a repeat of the 1962 muscle-flexing when U.S. army, navy and air force units went into Thailand in a clear warning to the Communists.

RAWALPINDI (AP) — Pakistan has confirmed it will attend the British Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London starting July 8, officials said Tuesday.

The Emerald Isle had sent to the world "poets and presidents and statesmen." Ireland and Canada had worked together at the United Nations and likewise stood "loyally and harmoniously for peace, security and freedom.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker noted that a new history of Canada by Gustave Lanctot says that the Irish were the first to find North America — in 874 or 880 years before the arrival of Jacques Cartier.

Scottish-born T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader said Mr. de Valera is one of the great figures of Irish history and added:

ALSO HAD TROUBLE

"We Scots have a deep feeling of kinship with the Irish since we both had some trouble with the English in days gone by.

"However, our approach was different. The Irish chose to fight them; we infiltrated into England and took over all the positions of influence. The end results, however, I think will be that we both did good on this continent."

Robert Thompson Social Credit leader said all Canadians have a keen and warm friendship for Ireland and Mr. de Valera.

Gilles Gregoire deputy Creditiste leader remarked politely that the fight by the Irish for independence is well known in Quebec.

CANBERRA (AP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Hasluck announced Tuesday that Australia will give $2,000 Australian ($4,800) worth of emergency relief supplies for Laotian refugees driven from their homes by the latest Pathet Lao attacks.

State Censorship of Books, Movies in Ireland Drives Many Writers From Country

By CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN (CP)—In the well-stocked Dublin bookstore a James Bond addict scanned the rack of paperback thrillers by Ian Fleming. They all seemed to be there and yet. . . .

"Have you a copy of From Russia with Love?"

"Ah no, didn't you know that was banned!"

The Irish censors, more unobtrusive these days but still capable of causing minor irritations in everyday life, had struck another blow for the innocence of "Holy Ireland."

Few topics have been as long or as hotly debated by the Irish, and particularly the expatriate Irish, as the state censorship of books and movies imposed in 1929. In its early days the book censorship drove shoals of Irish works from bookshops and libraries until the writers themselves fled to more liberal shores, there to mourn the stranging of the Irish intellect and imagination.

Masterpieces like James Joyce's Ulysses were thrown out indiscriminately with junk. Bigotry ran riot. One notable case 20 years ago concerned a Cork tailor and his wife whose earthy reminiscences of rural life had been turned into a book entitled The Tailor and Anaty.

BOOK BURNED

Not only was the book banned but three priests burst into the tailor's cottage one day and, forcing the old man down on his knees, made him burn a copy in his own fireplace. The book now has been reissued with the full story told in a foreword by Frank O'Connor.

Things have been easier, most people agree, since 1956 — the year more liberal, wordly men were appointed to the five-man Censorship of Publications Board.

Recently Judge Conroy, chairman of the board, went on television to be quizzed by three young reporters. That could hardly have happened a few years ago.

Books are banned in the republic if judged indecent or obscene or if they contain anything construed as advocating contraception or abortion which is against both state and Roman Catholic policy.

Banning requires a unanimous vote—if one man dissents, the book is generally released. There is an appeal board, headed by a university professor, with power to reverse bans, but this requires preliminary action by five senators.

On the average, 20 books a month are banned, the bulk of them said to be pornographic paperbacks. Recently two novels of a different class slipped into oblivion—Mary McCarthy's The Group, a runaway bestseller in Britain, and Joseph Heller's Catch 22.

INDIAN CLASSIC BANNED

Plato's Phaedrus was banned in an edition that coupled it with the erotic Indian classic Kama Sutra. In some cases a "suggestive" cover might be enough to condemn a paperback classic, censorship authorities say.

Most Dubliners tolerate the banning of books and mutilation of movies with a mixture of humor and mild contempt. The Irish Times, the vigorously independent newspaper, has said it is time the law was changed, but few people would urge complete abolition of censorship.

Meanwhile the subject provides a rich source of cocktail-party quips. There is much amusement recently that a Dublin evening newspaper managed to run a series on prostitution without once actually mentioning the word.

People tend to search out banned books and movies on trips to London and Belfast, but those who defend censorship accept this as inevitable. They say it is not aimed at the sophisticated minority who are capable of distinguishing between art and trash, but that its object is to protect the under-educated majority of Irish people.

Students can obtain banned books by special licence for "serious" study, but a censorship board official admitted it would be difficult to get a licence for a modern work of fiction.

SAY MASS APPROVES

The censorship is generally defended on two main grounds:

—It keeps a flood of pornography out of the country, a task Britain finds increasingly hard with the loopholes in her law.

—The mass of Irish people want it, as demonstrated by the spare-time vigilantes who send marked books to the censorship board.

This second point, as critics of the system realize, is the crux of Ireland's censorship problem, which is above all a problem of self-censorship. How do you exorcize a nation's inhibitions?

Although Ireland produces an occasional Rabelaisian figure like the late Brendan Behan, she is streaked with a Victorian reticence about sex, the product of many influences including the dominant role of Irish mothers, the monastic traditions of Irish Catholicism and a respect for the things of the mind over bodily needs.

The Roman Catholic clergy has often been blamed for keeping the Irish people in a guilt-ridden state while other Catholic countries in Europe have a gay, mature attitude to sex. Some middle-aged Irish people tell you they remember parish priests preaching courting couples apart or thundering in church about the dangers of being alone with a girl. Things have changed but some still feel the church has a stifling influence.

BLAME 'LAY POPES'

Others say church authorities often get the blame for petty restrictions that are really the work of over - zealous "lay popes" in all walks of life.

The visitor is told how historical forces shaped whatever "repression" is found today.

"Our revolution brought the wrong people to power—lower middle class and anti-intellectual," sighed one Dubliner, comparing the drab post-revolutionary years with the literary golden age that had gone before, the era of Synge, O'Casey, Yeats and Joyce.

When the revolution came, both church and state found common aim in sweeping away all trace of foreign "corruption."

Above all it was the writers who suffered, watching the dawn of Irish independence bring about no liberation of the spirit but only a blind distrust of the old culture. With no major publisher in Ireland and most of their works banned, their contact with the Irish people, source of their inspiration, withered in exile.

BLAMES CHURCH

"It's the slave mind," growled poet Austin Clarke at a literary clambake. Clarke, not yet 60 but prematurely aged by illness, is Dublin's foremost "angry old man." A non-Catholic, he thinks the trouble began when "the church took over the revolution."

Frank O'Connor, the short-story writer whom Yeats called the Chekhov of Ireland, has said there is "basically a Fascist attitude" about those in authority.

In a conversation with a reporter in his book-lined apartment overlooking Dublin's Grand Canal, O'Connor, a craggy giant of 61 with a resonant Cork drawl, expanded:

"It's largely based on fear and a great suspicion of literature. They don't like writers because writers ask questions. Gleefully he recalled that President Kennedy had quoted some Irish writers in his address to the Dail whose names in those surroundings had once been "nothing but dirty words."

"But they had to sit there and take it from him."

Some of O'Connor's works are still banned, though an edition of his short stories is promisently on sale in Dublin. But years of frustration sometimes break loose in his urbane talk like a growl from a sleepy lion.

WRITER ANGRY

"The men who banned my books were a bunch of criminal louts." He says he doesn't know why they were banned.—"They never tell you."

Most writers feel cynically that any attempt to portray human relationships in a realistic way may lead to trouble.

You sense that things seem easier and O'Connor flashed back: "It's worse than the impression you're allowed to get."

Yet O'Connor, who spent 10 years in the United States, has returned to live in Dublin though he says its intellectual climate "lacks edge." Like dozens of expatriates with grievances, he felt painful tugs on the umbilical cord and used to come back from New York once a year. He finally settled down two years ago because "I write about Ireland and my work is relevant here."

"It's a matter of dialogue and voices. I have to hear voices.'

LIKE MINORITY

"It's a majority behaving like a persecuted minority," O'Connor said, adding that the late Pope John was regarded as "too liberal" in some quarters of the Irish heirarchy, especially for his work in bringing the churches closer and advocating tolerance towards Communists.

There was even talk that popes can be deposed."

This is, perhaps, an extreme view. The climate is changing in Ireland and many liberal priests are shaking people out of hidebound ideas. Father John Kelly, a Jesuit, deliberately provoked controversy in Dublin Catholic University College by speaking in favor of the debater: "Irish Catholicism is hostile to genius."

Summing up a visitor's impressions: A certain apathy and lack of protest do exist in Irish public life; church influence is sometimes arbitrary; do-gooders or "holy Joes," as they are derisively called, often occupy influential positions. But the feeling in Ireland is changing so much that public opinion must in time change too.

Meanwhile, the official innocence of Irish life has some attractive aspects. There are no strip joints in Dublin and sex crimes are practically unknown.

And, as Dubliners say with a flash of cynical humor, if you want forbidden joys, "there's a fast train to Belfast."

HITS AUTHORITIES — Irish writer Frank O'Connor says the authorities responsible for censorship in Ireland have "basically a fascist attitude." He says "they don't like writers because writers ask questions." Several of his books are still banned by the Irish government which, ironically, he helped bring about — as a youth he served in the revolution and on the republican side in the civil war.

Scolarships, Prizes, Medals, Awards Presented to Successful Students At Albert College Convocation

Your community can rightfully expect you to graduate with an informed mind, Rev. A.B.R. Moore, B.A., B.D., D.D., LL.D. told the graduating class at Convocation in Albert College Memorial chapel on Monday afternoon. "You can only think with definite knowledge upon which the mental muscles can be used. You should have some specific knowledge on which to measure and grow.

"Your years at Albert College should produce a disciplined life. Those disciplines show life in its true dimensions. A minimum of external supervision is needed in an ordered society, but you should leave with resources of discipline within your own mind and heart. Without it you become vulnerable to pressures outside.

"You should have a sense of responsibility when you leave. This is the key word for the world in which we live, a free responsible world if freedom is to continue."

Dr. Moore congratulated the graduating class and wished them well, noting what a privilege was theirs to go out from that school. He chose as the theme of his address, "Great Expectations."

"Education is a confusing, ambiguous word," stated Dr. Moore. "When you are about ready to be 'sprung' what do you take with you? What does your community expect from you? You are not going out with all knowledge wrapped in your head, or a definite idea of what you are going to be. Maturity will bring with it a balance of vision and at this time you may not be vocationally sure.

"Education must not be used as a resource for your own financial success or social status, but to carry the common load of the community and to develop a sense of responsibility to the point where we are concerned with what we owe to our fellowmen and not to self.

MILLIONS HALF DEAD

"Universities exist so that young men and women will not fall in confusion but in whole numbers. Millions now living are half dead. "But in this sort of college we know there is another dimension. Wholeness is not achieved until it is made whole by lives wed with God's. Those schools where there is an existing quest for knowledge is our defence and you are the defenders."

The speaker was introduced by Vice-Principal H. B.—Simpson, and appreciation was expressed by Mr. Newton Thompson.

An organ and piano prelude was played by Mr. Angus McLeod and Miss Marjorie Woodard. - The academic procession, clergy in academic garb, entered the chapel with the girls dressed in long white gowns with Bertha caps and long white gloves, carrying nosegays in frilled paper; the young men in dress flannels and navy blazers and school ties; the faculty members and clergymen in robes and hoods with the colors of their degrees, and members of the Board of Governors.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Principal and Headmaster Rev. J. A. Haig, B.P.H.E, B.A., B.D., S.T.M. gave a sincere welcome to the 107th Convocation of Albert. Mr. Haig described the conditions in the early life of the school when they were still clearing forests, and floating logs down the Moira River. Belleville was just a crossroads and conditions were primitive.

Dr. T. C. McMullen, a former Dean, who came here 50 years ago to the school, arrived by horse and buggy, and studied by oil lamps. The school had a great old tradition and a grand old purpose.

MAKE PRESENTATIONS

President Sally Armstrong of the Junior graduating class, presented a gift of money to go to the fund for the upper section of a stained glass window in the chapel. President Roderick McCutcheon on behalf of the Senior graduating class, presented a gift of money for the second section of stained glass and dedicated it in honor of Dean of Studies, J. MacKay.

The musical part of the program consisted of a fine presentation by a quartet of male students, and two numbers by the school choir, directed by Miss Hewat.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

Miss Kathie Mainse, editor of the school year book, "Aldelm," gave the Valedictory address, remarking that Convocation Day brought a combination of feelings and sentiments of joy and laughter, sadness and tears. The speaker reminisced about events during the school year when happy memories came flooding back.

"Each student is a unique individual who has left a mark on Albert College," said Miss Mainse. "We have learned compassion, an understanding of our fellowman. We will always remember with deep affection, respect and gratitude our principal, teachers and business office staff. We hope our efforts have been pleasing to our parents, and we hope Albert will continue to serve successive groups of graduates as well as it has served us."

After the presentations of awards the guests were invited to Ackerman Hall where members of the Women's Guild had prepared refreshments. The tables looked attractive centred with spring flowers and lighted candles of green, gold and black, the school colors. The guests were received at the door by Principal Haig and Mrs. Haig, Dr. Moore and Mrs. Davidson, president of the Guild.

Mayor Whitton Threatens to Read Riot Act

OTTAWA CP — Mayor Charlotte Whitton threatened three times Monday night to read the Riot Act to about 1,000 construction workers who staged a demonstration at city hall.

The mayor, dressed in a long, green gown for a formal dinner in honor of President De Valera of Ireland at Government House was booed and hissed by the workers who were seeking a meeting with aldermen on a housing project vetoed last week by board of control.

The workers dispersed after Irving Greenberg, president of Minto Construction, told them he had conferred with an alderman who promised to plead their cases before city council.

The company has said that the jobs of hundreds of the workers will be in jeopardy unless the project gets under way soon.

Board of control rejected a request for a building permit for Minto to put up a 15-acre apartment building in southwest Ottawa after being told that the project would strain the district' sewer capacity and could be "downright dangerous" to public health.

SEWERS SAID OKAY

The construction company says it has a report from a firm of consulting engineers that the sewer capacity is adequate and sought a hearing with council members Monday night.

Mayor Whitton instead scheduled a closed meeting of council at the same time that workers wanted to meet aldermen.

The mayor emerged from her second-floor office at city hall on her way to the closed meeting when the workers on the ground floor caught sight of her. Some of them began to boo.

She came to the head of the stairway and said she would read the Riot Act "if I hear one more hiss."

The booing continued and twice more the mayor repeated her threat. She warned a few they would then be liable to jail terms or fines.

One worker hoisted a maple leaf flag and the mayor told him "this is no place for a demonstration like that."

The mayor had just turned to a policeman on duty and asked him to summon "a platoon of officers" when Mr. Greenberg asked the men to return to their homes.

"Our demonstration has served its purpose," he said.

Stern Warning Given Parolee By Board

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusettes state parole board issued unanimous warning to give paroled convict Joseph Fiaherty a stern warning that drinking and consorting with former convicts could put him back in prison to finish out a 36- to 46-year term.

Flaherty's case came before the board after he was injured in a Quincy, Mass., auto accident as he left a cafe late at night.

Bord Chairman Cornelius J. Twomey said the board decided on the warning after a three-hour session Monday during which Flaherty's Canadian-born wife appealed for another chance.

"We find no flagrant violation of parole whereby in any way the public was endangered. . . ." the board statement said.

Twomey told reporters Flaherty and his wife had gone to the cafe and to romance met another former convict. He said there was some drinking but that police reported no overt excessive. Drinking by parolees is not allowed, Twomey said.

Flaherty had been released April 3 as "completely rehabilitated" after serving 13 years of his long term for robbery, assault and rape.

Eight days after his release he married the former Frances McKearney of Peace River, Alta., who had followed up a letter - writing friendship by moving to Boston to work for his release.

Flaherty had obtained an out-of-prison job as a linotype operator, a trade he learned in prison on the institution newspaper.

Both his legs were broken and he suffered head and other injuries when he was hit by a car as he left the cafe early May 21.

One feature will be a large parade and asked that the Club be represented in Kitchener for the District A convention.

Ont. Police Commission Readies For the Next Round Against Crime

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—Two widely heralded inquiries into crime in Ontario have stirred up plenty of dust but not much visible result.

Now the province's top law enforcement body is planning to start the next round against syndicated or organized crime with less of the trimmings and more of the professional investigator's touch.

Meanwhile, the three-man Ontario Police Commission intends to concentrate on sharpening municipal police forces on the theory this will cut down the breeding potential for big-scale operations.

The commission's own direct approach to major crime will be to turn loose a "criminal intelligence officer"—soon to be appointed—to dig up dope in conjunction with police forces. Only when all this ground work will the commission tip its hand and call on the government for authority to launch formal inquiries.

The two earlier inquiries took different tacks. Two years ago a provincial royal commission held public hearings for months. Last year the police commission travelled widely and took secret testimony in a series of formal sessions.

MAFIA INVOLVED

The two bodies came up with conclusions as divergent as their methods.

The royal commission reported last year there was no evidence of "alarming" organized crime beyond gambling.

The police body found this year there was organization in narcotics, book making and other gambling, counterfeiting, highgrading (theft of precious ores) and stolen goods disposal, plus a lesser degree of management in prostitution, the extortion and protection rackets, bunco - type frauds and even bingo.

They were agreed that the Mafia did not control crime here but the latter group found—as the first did not—that its tentacles reached into Ontario in several fields including the suspicion of at least four murders in the last 35 years.

"We intend to start where the last report left off," says R. Roy Milligan, a Cornwall crown attorney who became chairman of the three-man police commission this year.

The last investigation was conducted under his predecessor, District Judge Bruce Macdonald of Windsor, reported to have quit because the attorney-general's department would not let him subpoena suspected members of crime syndicates with the commission's powers were clarified by legislation.

CASE EASED OUT

New legislation was adopted at a recent session of the legislature, and the ructus over this was such that the first casualty of the commission's report, far from being a lawbreaker, turned out to be no less than Attorney-General Fred Cass.

Mr. Cass fell in so enthusiastically with the commission's request for more power to make witnesses talk that on the same day its report was issued he brought in a bill so drastic that he himself labelled it "dangerous." In the subsequent furore over allegations of "police state" tactics, he was eased out of the cabinet and the bill was toned down.

Under the modified legislation, the commission will have to go to a judge to get a contempt order to loosen a recalcitrant witness's tongue. Under Mr. Cass's bill, it could have applied one eight-day jail term after another until either the commission or the witness tired.

As it happened, the earlier royal commission inquiry didn't do any good for Mr. Cass's predecessor in the attorney-generalship, the next-to-top job in cabinet prestige. Attorney-General Kelso Roberts, who had been under opposition attack for alleged laxity, got a clean bill of health from the royal commission but by the time its report appeared he had been moved over to the more tranquil lands and forests post.

POLICEMEN RESIGN

Lesser figures had varying consequences from the royal commission. Two provincial police officers found to have been dishonest were allowed to resign. Two gambling kingpins, who had already been convicted before the inquiry opened, eventually went to jail after exhausting appeals.

Almost a year after the report came down, three lawyers were reprimanded by the Law Society of Upper Canada for unbecoming relations with criminals disclosed during the probe.

And more than a year after the report the only criminal charge to result from the inquiry is still hanging fire. Sammy Baloom, a St. Catharines bookie and alleged gobetween between gamblers and police several years ago, has been charged with contempt of court, a jury before the royal commission.

While there has been only two months since the appearance of the last report, several of its 16 major recommendations show signs of being side-tracked. Dr. Gordon Chown and A. A. Wishart, members of the legislature for Sault Ste. Marie since only last September, are not rushing into the fatal elan of his predecessor.

REJECT WIRE-TAPPING

On many points he has either turned them down or sidestepped them. A key recommendation, a set-piston for wire - tapping, was flatly rejected.

One of those accepted — not needing legislation—was the appointment of intelligence officers for the commission and the provincial police to keep posted on the activities of known criminals and swap information between themselves and with the RCMP.

A function of the police commissioner's intelligence officer, Chairman Milligan said, will be to "find out if criminal syndicates are coming into our territory." He is expected to be a top-rated crime specialist from the OPP.

"When and if he gets to the stage where witnesses should be subpoenaed," the chairman said, "well go to the attorney-general for permission to hold an inquiry. We'll act as soon as we consider it justified."

Possibly, he said, some of the resulting hearings may be in public. However, he noted that the new legislation makes it mandatory for the commission to hear any witness in secret if the witness wants it that way.

AIDS FOR INFORMANTS

Under Attorney-General Cass, the commission operated since last summer on a continuous inquiry basis with side trips to Washington (for Senate anti-crime hearings and a visit with Mafia turncoat Joseph Valachi), New York City, Buffalo, Detroit, Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa. It even took newspaper advertisements for informants, though it found the response to these "negligible." It wrote to some present and former legislature members but got only one acknowledgement.

Though its March report was described as just a "preliminary" one pending examination of some reluctant witnesses, the commission now considers that its current legislative setup is fair authority to be sought from the attorney-general for hearings within defined scope.

As the intelligence branch lines these up, Chairman Milligan said, the commission figures it has a more immediate duty to help in strengthening municipal police forces in the province.

It plans a survey of them all, followed by the laying down of efficiency "yardsticks" with a certain flexibility on combination then proposes to see that forces not meeting the standards are brought up to scratch.

"We are placing great stress on the need for help and guidance to the municipal forces," the chairman said. "If we're strong, it will make it that much harder for the crime syndicates."

PLANS NEXT ROUND — Chairman R. Percy Milligan and his fellow police commissioners are planning a two-fold approach for the next round in Ontario's fight against organized crime. Their aim is a scheme to bring all municipal police forces up to a set standard of efficiency, and the appointment of a "criminal intelligence officer" to keep an eye on syndicate activities. Mr. Milligan, a Cornwall crown attorney, was appointed commission chairman this year. (CP Photo)

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who travels to Ottawa June 9 and 10 for an official visit, was elected to the chancellorship on the strength of his popularity as the father of his country's economic miracle.

The portly, 67-year-old leader, who succeeded Konrad Adenauer in the chancellorship last Oct. 16, oversaw West Germany's rise from post-war ruins to record prosperity as he served for 14 years as economics minister.

His success in this field has continued during his first few months in the nation's highest office and he leaves for Canada riding higher than ever on a wave of prosperity.

Erhard will visit Ottawa en route to a speaking engagement at Harvard University and a meeting with President Johnson in the United States.

1955 VISITOR

It will be his first visit to Canada since he became chancellor. He was economics minister when he last visited to attend the opening of a Canadian trade fair in Toronto in 1955.

At that time, he visited Toronto, Oakville, Stratford and Ottawa in Ontario and Arvida, Montreal and Quebec City in Quebec, as he toured industrial plants and talked with government authorities.

He has been to the U.S. twice since he became chancellor, first for the funeral of President Kennedy and later to meet with President Johnson in Texas.

He is considered a staunch friend of the U.S., favoring a free - enterprise economy and supporting American policies on world trade, the future of Europe and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Erhard has come a long way since his birth Feb. 4, 1897, into the family of a poor shopkeeper in Fuerth, Bavaria. He was forced to take over the family's store and he recalls that "I learned to sell goods, judge people and deal with price and quality."

But he was wounded while serving as a non-commissioned officer in the First World War and was left with a shortened arm and the beetling eyelid shoes. He was unable to stand behind the store counter for long periods.

STUDIED ECONOMICS

He turned to studying economics, went into market research and in 1929 received his doctorate.

At the end of the Second World War, U.S. occupation authorities, impressed by an economic study Erhard had written, appointed him economics minister for Bavaria.

In 1947 he became a member of the Economic Council for the American and British occupation zones and a year later he headed it.

"From now on," he told a startled country, "the only ration card will be the German mark."

He ended rationing and revalued the mark, sweated out a period of high inflation during which he was decried as a "charlatan and gambler," then saw his promise of "prosperity for all" come true.

In 1949, when the first West German cabinet was formed, he became economics minister. As the economic miracle rolled on, his popularity grew and in 1957 he was made vice-chancellor.

THREAT TO QUIT

He threatened to resign two years later when Adenauer, then 83, refused to step down because he opposed Erhard as chancellor and had called him "politically inept." Adenauer was persuaded to make a conciliatory statement and Erhard stayed on.

His popularity as economics minister continued to grow and despite Adenauer's opposition his Christian Democrat party designated him to become chancellor. He was elected to the post Oct. 16, 1963, by the Bundestag (parliament) with 279 votes for him, 180 against and 24 abstentions.

When he took office, he faced one of the toughest political assignments in the world. There was growing strength in the opposition Social Democrat party, the federal budget was rising and threatening to force a tax increase, economic growth had slowed down.

After his first seven months in office, business was booming, employment offices had more jobs to offer than there were unemployed, West Germany was the world's second biggest trading nation and a tax reduction was pledged for next year.

In April, in the first big election test since he became chancellor, Erhard scored a prestige-booming victory when his Christian Democrat party gained heavily in the election of a new legislature for the state of Baden Wuerttemberg.

Erhard is a plump, white-haired man with a florid complexion and is famous for the big black cigar usually jutting from his mouth.

He is a reserved man of simple tastes who stands for private initiative, free competition and the old-fashioned family values.

He is said to dislike cocktail parties and as economics minister he rarely entertained and lived modestly with his wife, Louise, in an unpretentious house in Bonn.

"We still have some of the same furniture we began our married life with," Mrs. Erhard said at the time of her husband's election as chancellor. "Society — that hardly comes into the question. We can invite 10 to 12 persons at most. We don't have places for more."

The West German government has had no official residence for its chancellor and the Erhards have stayed on in their modest home. However, Erhard now is having a luxurious official residence built on the grounds of his office, the Palais Schaumburg.

The Erhards have one child, Elisabeth, now a Stuttgart housewife with two young daughters.

Elisabeth says Erhard was "a wonderful father." While she was growing up he always found time for her despite the claims of his public life.

PLAYS PIANO

"He was busy during the week, but on weekends we did everything I wished," Elisabeth said. "We played Beethoven together, went swimming. . . ."

Erhard loves the music of classical 19th century composers and he once dreamed of becoming an opera director. He learned the piano and plays well.

His favorite pastime is playing a simple card game with his wife.

"I'm no heavy drinker," Erhard has said, "but I like wine, beer, champagne, and I don't have anything against cognac either."

His wife says his favorite dish is stew, but he has a good appetite for everything. His nickname in Bonn has been "Der Dicke" (the Fat One) for years. When he comes home late at night, he sometimes sneaks into the kitchen to prepare a snack.

Erhard is proud of the weight he takes off during his summer vacations through dieting, exercises and sweating in the hot sun. But he is unpretentious enough to enjoy poking fun at himself about his overweight.

"Move that button over and make the coat tighter," he once told his tailor. "I wouldn't want people to think I've lost my appetite."

ERHARD TO VISIT CANADA — West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, 67, who visits Ottawa June 9-10, is given much of the credit for his country's rise to prosperity during the 14 years he served as economics minister. Erhard, seen here with his daughter, Mrs. Hans Klotz, and two granddaughters, Susanne and Sabine, is making his first trip to Canada since 1955. (CP Photo)

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Dependants partially supported by the taxpayer often pose a problem when the income tax claim is made. It must be remembered that there is no partial claim for children.

It is full exemption or nothing at all. When the custody of children changes during the year, then both persons supporting them for a part of the year may claim them.

This will not apply to adult dependants such as fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, including in-laws. In these cases the maximum exemption is $550. When two children support their mother, then they would only have a claim of $275 each no matter how much they contribute.

When two unmarried children live at home and support their parents, the most advantageous claim is for one to claim both parents this year and the other claim them next year.

By doing it this way, the equivalent to married status ($1,000) could be claimed on one parent and $230 on the other. They are not permitted to each claim an equivalent to married on a parent as only one such exemption is allowed. If both children each claim one parent, one could get an equivalent of $1,000 and the other only $530.

When a dependant does not reside with the taxpayer, the taxpayer's exemption is the lesser of his contributions or $550. If more than one person contributes then the $550 allowed must be prorated according to their contributions.

Contributions do not necessarily have to be in cash. The value of necessities is acceptable.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed, free card stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish to have answered.

QUESTION: My brother and I live at home with my parents. He pays all expenses, and I do the housework. He claims our parents. I have allmony of $100 a month besides some investment income. This year he needs only one parent to make him contravable. Can I claim the other?

ANSWER: Yes, claim $550.

QUESTION: My father and mother live in England. Their only income is their old age pensions. I send them a little money now and then. Have I any claim for them on my tax return?

ANSWER: Yes. Claim the lesser of your contributions or $500 each.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The old-time connotation of yachting as a sport of the wealthy, carried on by large and expensive craft operated by professional crews no longer applies.

Today's average yachtsman is a man of modest means sailing or operating his own small cruising, racing or day-sailing boat and it has been estimated there are thousands of such craft in Canada alone.

A few yachtsmen are born, the majority made, providing they have a yen for the sport. The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club in the belief that much of the future of yachting lies in the youth of the city and district has conducted, with much success, classes of instruction for juniors for the past few years.

Vice-Commodore Ian Morch tells me the club plans for a bigger and better season of junior instruction this year. Popularity of the sport among the younger fellows is evidenced in the fact that 45 attended the course last year.

To clear the informative decks, any boy or girl between 10 and 18 who can swim 200 yards is eligible for the course which will be conducted Monday through Friday, starting July 6th through August.

The club has a fleet of five identical dinghies, provided to ensure adequate instruction and time for competitive sailing. Safety is the keyword at all times. Lifebelts are equipment, while a motor-driven patrol craft accompanies the dinghies at all times in case of upset.

The dinghies are of fibre glass with built-in buoyancy tanks and are practically unsinkable.

One aspect of the course, Vice-Commodore Morch said, are that it is available to all youngsters regardless of parental membership.

"Another aspect, and an important one," he said, "is that any youngsters who have not sufficient funds to finance the course, but shows enthusiasm and potential will be helped financially by the club."

The training provides for advancement from "beginner" through various grades of "crew" and "skipper." Included are nautical terms, parts of boats, general seamanship, principles of sailing and how to sail and race. There are picnic days and a "cruising day" on larger craft.

The training program is under the direct supervision of Vice-Commodore Morch and a committee of directors, also a competent instructional staff. It is designed to provide worthwhile instruction, reasonably orderly conduct "while having fun."

An important feature of the course is the "buddy" system. A boy selects a "buddy" and both are responsible for the whereabouts of the other. This also applies to the young ladies. It is a part of the safety program of the club, and eliminates anyone "turning up missing."

Yacht club directors are taking a special interest in the junior sailing program with, as noted, a committee detailed to keep a watchful eye on all proceedings.

While it may be a far cry from the gunwale of a dinghy well-heeled to the wind to the poopdeck of a fast-travelling convertible, young Belleville is missing a lot of thrills by not taking up this exhilarating exciting sport.

There is something about sailing that should appeal to the youngsters. There's the excitement of learning; the thrill of being a crew member and the supreme moment when a youngster assumes "command" of his own dinghy. And of course the biggest moment of all when he crosses the finish line ahead of his course buddies."

Youngsters may take the course either for two weeks, a month, or for the full two months' season.

Indians May Make Wagner A Chief

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Don't fence me in" never was Leon Wagner's theme song. When the slugging outfielder was traded by Los Angeles Angels to Cleveland Indians he said: "Instead of trading me they should have pulled the fences in and doubled my salary."

The Angels didn't accommodate Wagner. The Indians may have to—in the salary department at least.

Wagner proved his point again Monday night, leading Cleveland to a 3-0 victory over Chicago White Sox, collecting homer No. 11 and a single and scoring two runs against the American League leaders in support of Jack Kralick's four-hit pitching.

Wagner hit only two homers at home last year in the wide-open spaces of Dodger Stadium while hammering 24 on the road. The Angels left the fences where they were and traded him to Cleveland for pitcher Barry Latman and first baseman Joe Adcock.

His latest not streak—11 hits in 18 at-bats with four homers in the last three games, has boosted his batting average to .309 and his runs batted in to a league-leading 40. At this stage of the season, he's almost halfway to his 1962 figure of 36 homers and 90 RBI's.

Dick Stuart, meanwhile, continued his homer hammering, hitting his seventh in nine games, a two-run shot in the eighth inning that gave Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Angels.

In the other AL games scheduled, Wally Bunker posted his sixth victory without a loss as Baltimore Orioles whipped Kansas City Athletics 8-4 and Dick Stigman pitched Minnesota Twins to a 2-1 victory by checking New York Yankees on five hits.

Wagner provided Kralick with the only run he needed by hitting his homer off Juan Pizarro in the fourth. The Indians scored their other runs in the sixth in Larry Brown's two-run single.

Kralick, bringing his record to 5-1, was in serious trouble only in the seventh when the White Sox loaded the bases with two out. But he got Gerry McNertney, batting for Pizarro, to line out and end the threat. Pizarro now is 5-2.

Latman, who hadn't given up an earned run, led 3-2 going into the eighth at Los Angles and retured the first two Red Sox batters. Then Felix Mantilla beat out an infield single and Stuart followed with the game-winning homer.

The Red Sox, however, lost outfielder Carl Yastrzemski, the AL's leading hitter last year, for a day or two at least when he spiked himself in the left ankle in the first inning.

Dick Hall's one-hit relief over the final 3 2-3 innings preserved Bunker's perfect record. Bunker was tagged for a two-run homer by Wayne Causey in the third and chased in the sixth when Ed Charles, hitless in 19 previous trips, slapped a two-run single that cut the Orioles' lead to 6-4.

The Orioles put the game out of reach with a five-run third inning, Norm Siebern and Dick Brown stroking two-run singles. Louis Aparicio homered for Baltimore in the eighth.

The Twins managed only six hits off Yankee starter Ralph Terry, but Don Mincher provided a run with a homer in the second inning and a single by Bernie Allen, a wild pitch, a force out and Zoilo Versalles' single drove in the other run in the fifth.

Rain Halts Monday Ball Games

Rain washed out the Ochawa-Belleville tilt, along with all the other festivities lined up in connection with the game.

Arrangements have been made however for the game to be played next Wednesday night, at the Fairgrounds, at 8:15. Opening ceremonies and the parade will also go on as scheduled except for the two-day delay. The parade will leave the Armouries at 6:45.

A league meeting has been called following tonight's Tweed - Trudeau tilt, slated for CNRA Park at 6:45, and it is expected the Juniors - Tweed game will be re-scheduled then. Tweed is unable to play at home on Saturday nights, as the loop's postponed games are to be played, due to other park commitments.

Wet grounds also postponed most of the district's other scheduled sports events, including two commercial softball tilts, Point Anne vs Black Diamond and Ter-Haar vs City Hotel.

This One May Extend The 'Dancer'

TORONTO (CP)—One month ago the racing future of Grand Garcon, the son of Censor who made a vain bid for glory in the Kentucky Derby trial was during the running of the Queenston Stakes.

At Greenwood Monday the same horse showed that he's healthy once again and has injected new life in the Queen's Plate picture.

With John Fitzsimmons directing, Grand Garcon battled head-and-head with Stalwart, took on Forest Rover then held off hard-charging Lord Saybrook to win by a half length.

The big colt, one of the largest in Canada, travelled the mile distance in 1.39 1-5 just three seconds behind the track record. The fact he was working on a muddy track made his performance that more impressive.

The daily-double of Damen, winner of the first, and Gritter in the second paid $32.20. The quinella of Arabian Market and Turkey Joe paid $21.70.

Talks With Pollock

DickieMooreToMakeComeback?

MONTREAL (CP) — Dickie Moore, who became one of the sharpest shooting wingers in the National Hockey League, met Monday with general manager Sam Pollock of the Canadiens and appears to be banking for a comeback after a season's absence.

Pollock would say only that "we discussed briefly Moore's future career" and that they would get together again on Thursday or Friday.

Moore, 33, played 13 seasons with Canadiens. Knee injuries finally forced him to quit although he showed up at the training camp last fall. Subsequently he underwent an operation when a knee was injured in a power-machine mishap at his home. He went back to ice workouts during the winter with an industrial league.

Moore primarily is a left winger but has played all positions on the forward line. In the 1958-59 season he set an NHL record for a season with 96 points, on 41 goals and 55 assists. He also won the point-scoring title the previous season with 84 points, his 36 goals leading the league for the season. His 55 assists in 1958-59 were tops for that campaign.

In his last four seasons injuries kept him from playing the full 70-game schedule.

Moore announced his retirement last fall but it is known that he was kept on Canadiens' protected list of players and was not placed on the voluntarily-retired list.

STORES FINED

HAMILTON (CP) — Two department stores, Steinberg's Limited and the F. W. Woolworth Company's Woolco Store, were convicted Monday of violating the city's early closing bylaw and assessed maximum fines of $30 ©apiece. The Woolworth Company argued unsuccessfully that the bylaw did not apply to department stores. Steinberg gained its miracle mart was exempt because it operated under the same roof as the company's supermarket, which is exempt.

Average Down To .364

Willie Drops To Fourth

NEW YORK (AP)—The Memorial Day weekend was far from a memorable one for Willie Mays and the San Francisco Giants' star has dropped to fourth place in the National League batting competition.

Mays' decline virtually was overlooked in the excitement of Sunday's marathon doubleheader against New York Mets. He managed only one hit in 10 tries during the 23-inning second game after a 1-for-3 performance in the opener.

As a result, Mays' average dropped to .364, putting him behind Milwaukee Braves' Joe Torre and Pittsburgh Pirates' Roberto Clemente as well as the batting leader, Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs.

Williams gained 16 points to .414 with 12 hits in 24 at bats. Clemente moved up two notches to second at .374 with an 11-for-34 showing that boosted his average 12 points. Torre remained in third place despite a two-point loss to .368.

In the American League, Tony Oliva, Minnesota Twins' rookie outfielder, continued to hold a commanding lead. He increased his average one point to .383 with 11 hits in 28 times at bat.

Chuck Hinton of the Washington Senators advanced from fourth to second on an eight-point gain to .350.

He also had 11 hits in 38 attempts. Jim Fregosi of the Los Angeles Angels climbed from fifth to third at .343. He is followed by Elston Howard of the New York Yankees at .341 and Bill Freehan, Detroit Tigers, .329. The figures include Sunday's games.

'Hill Rise' Pick Of Opposition

Training Tempo Of 'Dancer' Stepped Up

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian-bred Northern Dancer, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, stepped up his training tempo Monday in preparation for the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday.

The Dancy, owned by E.P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist, can become the ninth horse in history to win the coveted triple crown for three-year-olds.

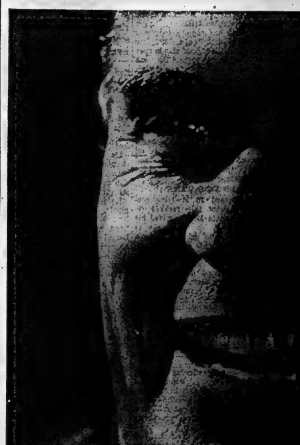
Most racing experts feel his chief opposition in Saturday's 1½-mile race will come from Hill Rise, a bigger colt who was nipped at the wire, by the Dancer in the Derby and finished third in the Preakness.

Both Northern Dancer and Hill Rise were given workouts at 1¼ miles Monday, over different tracks. The Dancer breezed off the distance in 2:04 1-5 at Belmont Park. Hill Rise was taken from the Belmont stables to Aqueduct for his workout, and turned in an identical time.

Horatio Luro, Argentine trainer of Northern Dancer, was well pleased. He said he may not have to blow his horse out later in the week.

"I figured he would go the 1¼ miles in about 1:52 and looked for 1¾ in around 2:06," Luro added. Northern Dancer raced head - and - head with statelsomate Senares for the first six furlongs and then pulled away rapidly.

Three or four other three-year-olds are being mentioned as possible starters, but not as serious rivals. They will be scared mostly in hope of grabbing fourth-place money of $6,250.



The field facing Northern Dancer is likely to be the smallest since Count Fleet won by 25 lengths in 1943. He had only two opponents.

Atotal of 142 horses originally were nominated for the Belmont, and the doors will be closed on any additional hopefuls at midnight tonight. Until that hour, the owner of a three-year-old thoroughbred may pay a supplementary fee of $5,000 which will make his steed eligible for the Belmont. No such entries are expected.

Phils Dangling Bait For Big Deal?

Surplus Strength

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Are Philadelphia Phillies showing off their surplus strength as a come on to other clubs for a big deal prior to the June 15 trading deadline?

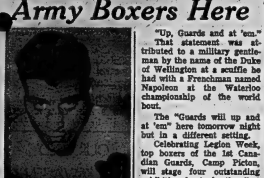
The question is prompted by the benching of shortstop Bobby Wine and second baseman Tony Taylor, generally regarded as one of the best keystone combinations in the National League.

Manager Gene Mauch says Wine and Taylor are tired and have been pressing at the bat. He's been using shortstop Ruben Amaro and second baseman Cookie Rojas for the last week. The fact that Rojas has 13 hits for 21 at-bats for an average of .536 and Amaro also has been clubbing the ball has made the switch easy.

Both Rojas and Amaro also have been fielding superbly as the Phillies manage to hang on to first place, just ahead of San Francisco and Giants. Sunday, Amaro hit a two-run homer in a 4-1 victory over Houston Colts. Rojas had two hits.

Despite the fine play of the two utility infielders, there seems little doubt that Taylor and Wine will be back shortly. The thinking here is that one of the two and possibly a pitcher will be dealt for a strong right-handed hitter.

GUINN'S TRADER



The Phils' general manager, John Quinn, is known for making the big swap when he sees a pennant in the offing. In the late 1950s, when he was GM at Milwaukee, the Braves were a solid club with the exception of second base. Quinn traded with New York Giants for Red Schoendienst. The veteran sparked the Braves to a pair of pennants and a world championship.

The Phillies also are a solid team this year. The pitching is deep, defence excellent, hitting strong. The one thing lacking is another long-ball hitter from the right side. Quinn is shopping. He admits it, but says nothing is hot yet.

Quinn has eyes for Orlando Cepeda of the Giants, Frank Thomas of New York Mets, or Gene Oliver of the Braves. A deal for Cepeda, of course, would be the big one. It would give the Phillies a guy who annually hits over .300 in Connie Mack Stadium and strengthen first base, now played by aging Roy Sievers and rookie John Herrnstein.

Cream Of Guards Fighters

Army Boxers Here Tomorrow

Guardsman Tommy Chesson

L/Cpl. Billy Keetch

"Up, Guards and at 'em."

That statement was attributed to a military gentleman by the name of the Duke of Wellington at a scuffle he had with a Frenchman named Napoleon at the Waterloo championship of the world bout.

The "Guards will up and at 'em" here tomorrow night but in a different setting.

Celebrating Legion Week, top boxers of the 1st Canadian Guards, Camp Picton, will stage four outstanding exhibition bouts in the first revival of the sport in a dozen years.

Boxing-hungry fans of the city and district should not miss this one. It brings together army champions and runners-up in four different classes.

All friendship ceases when Guardsmen boxers step into the ring. Exhibitions mean nothing to them—in a boxing sense. They go in there to win. They do not yell any punches. A Guardsman never does.

Legion Building Fund chairman Ed Smith, Guardsman Tommy Chesson, Bob Totton with help from Fred Fisher have arranged a fine ring program. It will be amateur boxing at its best.

The four bouts will be five two-minute round affairs. A topnotch "third man" will be in the ring.

What looks to be, on paper, the cream of the bouts will be the heavyweight tussle between army champion Corporal Paradine and Guardsman Sweeney.

National and army champion Chesson will tangle with British Army of the Rhine champion Lance Corporal Keetch. This looks like a good one.

Added attractions are demonstrations by Ken Carr-Braint's Canadian weightlifting champions John Lewis and Price Morris and Jim Driscoll's judo experts, Gladys (brown belt) Smith and Gordon (black belt) Oliver and others.

Post - bouts presentations will be made by Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy.

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth. Slipping, dropping or rocking when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a firmer, more comfortable fit and holds out smiling by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Hydroplane Racers Like Cedar Cove

Several hundred district fans attended the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club's first race meet of the season, held at Red Cedar Cove, Massassaga on Sunday.

A club spokesman said that, "we are more than pleased with our new location and are most grateful to the owner of the property, Mr. C. E. Coon. We expect the racing to go over big here," he added.

A number of the club's younger racers were unable to participate in this opening meet, due to high school exams but club president Doug Storey said he expects a full turnout of boats and drivers, including many from Picton, Napanee and Trenton.

The next meet will be held in July, the date to be announced.

In the 20 h.p. class Jim Lovelace won the first heat and David Storey came second. In the second heat, Storey turned the tables to grab first with Lovelace placing second.

The free-for-all saw Lovelace capture first place, followed by Storey and Fralick in that order.

AT THE BELLE — James Garner, Polly Bergen and Doris Day are co-starred in "Move Over Darling", romantic comedy in Delaxe Color and CinemaScope. Now in its 6th and final day, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

The English Derby
'Yer Pays Yer Money And-'

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — It's the day before the Derby, and you go around talking to yourself . . .

Santa Claus or Onciduim? Onciduim or Santa Claus?

You can't win either way. Santa Claus is sure to be a hot favorite for the £74,000 ($219,000) gallop, and you never bet on favorites.

As for Onciduim, he's the second choice and he offends against another article of betting faith—that English horses seldom win the Derby.

Usually you fancy French horses — remember Galcador, Phil Drake and Relko! — but this time the principal Gallic gallooper is Saron Guy de Rothschild's Corah IV, and who wants to pick a colt with an unvirile name like Corah?

There's also Baldric II from France, but the law of averages rules out this polyglot colt. His Virginian owner, Mrs. Hirsell Jackson, already has won four classics, three English and one Irish, in four attempts. Five out of five just seems impossible.

What about Ireland? Well, apart from Santa Claus—which is favorite in Ireland and owned by Englishman John Imray—000) gallop, and you never bet on favorites.

Man Who 'Built Hollywood' Started With $100 Deal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is Hollywood Boulevard — from C. E. Toberman's office window can be seen the Paramount Theatre, the Masonic Temple, Grauman's Chinese Theatre and the Roosevelt Hotel. He can gaze at the structures with satisfaction. He built them.

If his office faced east, he would be able to see other landmarks for which he was responsible.

"This may sound egotistical," said Toberman, 84. "But I think you will find it is true: That I have done more than any other man to build Hollywood as it is today."

He lists what he has built: The Egyptian as well as the Chinese Theatre; the first big apartment house, the garden court; the first department store; a host of buildings along the boulevard; a studio, box factory and storage building; numerous subdivisions. He also helped found Hollywood Bowl and the Pilgrimage Theatre.

DOESN'T BELIEVE IN RETIRING

Toberman's office is in the new 12-storey building of First Federal Savings. A formidable-looking man with clear eyes behind rimless glasses, he spoke with initial reluctance.

"I don't seek publicity, never have," he said. "Publicity only gets you bread and mustard here today and gone tomorrow."

He came to Los Angeles in 1902 from his native Texas and worked for the Santa Fe Railroad seven days a week at $75 a month. Homesickness sent him back to Texas, but a drought returned him here. He settled in Hollywood and took the trolley to work downtown. It was a rickety ride that made the scarcely-settled area seem far from home.

He dropped into a real estate shack on the boulevard—then Prospect Avenue, unpaved and rutted, to ask a partner he has asked the harried - looking realtor.

"Hell, no," said the man. "But I'll sell you the whole subdivision for $50."

Toberman made a deal for the business, including shack and furniture; $10 down and the rest later. He still has the contract with other memebers of early Hollywood in his office.

Plan Civic Reception For 'Dancer'

TORONTO (CP) — Acting mayor Allan Lamport said Monday a special Northern Dancer Day and a civic reception is being planned for Canada's first Kentucky Derby winner.

Mr. Lampert said board of control will be asked Wednesday to authorize the celebration for the horse, which was bred and raised at E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farms in the northern outskirts of Toronto. No date for the reception was mentioned.

The reception would follow a ticker tape parade up Bay Street— the first in the city's history for a horse.

"This horse has become almost human in the minds of many Canadians," said Mr. Lamport.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Better Business Bureau covering the New York metropolitan area recently received a flurry of complaints about a television repair service—fake repairs and phoney bills.

A television set in working order except for one worn-out $2 tube was installed in the home of a bureau investigator and the repair service summoned.

The repairman, muttering something about a big, difficult job, carried the set to his shop. In due time it was returned—with a $41 bill. The information was turned over to the district attorney. Conviction followed.

"People often are attracted by low prices," said a bureau representative. "And one often is tempted to call in someone who advertises a charge of only $1 or $2 as a service call. We've pointed out many times that a repairman can't make a living on such a basis and that he might try to make up the difference with other charges."

The three major television networks, using millions of dollars worth of electronic equipment, hope to demonstrate dramatically tonight how computers have changed the business of reporting election results.

All three expect to come up with computer projections within a few minutes after the California polls close and to reveal accurately the winners. NBC and CBS will have returns available at 10 p.m. EDT and ABC will report with tape bulletins followed by an 11 p.m. special report.

'Jones Boys' Win N. E. Tourney

They're still talking about the "Jones' Boys" up around Northern Ontario — golf-wise, that is.

And well they might for two of them won the honors and a third a "less major" in the district spring golf tournament on Sunday.

Davy Jones upset brother Peter, last year's country club men's champion, scoring a six low gross while the "redhead" carded a 71 low net.

Second low gross in "A" Flight went to Fred Fisher with Bud Chipps winning second low net.

"B" Flight second low gross was won by Ken Armstrong with Les Desaulniers winning first low net followed by Carl Wood.

Fifty-eight golfers took part in the tournament each scoring well above par in the delicious heat that prevailed over the Bay of Quinte Country Club downwardesses.

BOWLING

Jack Bennet was elected president of the Northern Electric Tenpin Bowling League for the 1964-65 season.

Other officials are: vice-president, Vic Allen; secretary, Jim O'Bryan; treasurer, Ed. McGuigan and past-president Jim Ritchie.

The Mixed League opens Wednesday, September 9, and the Men's League, September 14th.

VIKINGS GM RESIGNS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)— Bert Rose, general manager of the Minnesota Vikings since the team's entry into the National Football League in 1961, resigned Monday. Rose said he was quitting "because of personal reasons." No successor was named.

AS WE PARK — Shirley Jones insists she doesn't, but Gene Kelly says a fairy man but that doesn't keep Commander Cliff Lyons from trying in "A Thinking Alsatian". Red Buttons and Carolyn Jones form another merry couple in the rollicking new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, filmed in Panavision and color opening Wednesday at the Park Theatre. On the main screen is the new MGM comedy in color "Move Over Darling", starring Buddy Hackett, Kay Dullea, and Lewis Nettleton. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 3

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Slow pace. Get sufficient rest tonight. Don't try to accomplish everything at once. Be versatile — but keep main goal in sight. Fine for visiting friend confined to home or hospital.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Overcome tendency to "pick on" friend. Being overly critical can lead to foolish misunderstanding. Important to be sure of details. Be specific. Ask questions; — obtain needed information.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Take initiative where change is concerned. If you do — social standing is enhanced. Expect some opposition. Regard it as challenge. Maintain sense of humor. Carry out convictions firmly.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Previously "dark" areas receive light . . . In the form of knowledge. You now possess proper key. Family adjustment necessary. One close to you is reluctant. Do some explaining!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Urge to investigate, write and create comes to fore. You require privacy but also encouragement. Unusual day. Planning must come first. Take it one step at a time —and then the "cold plunge."

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Pull in reins. Be observant. Don't commit yourself. Delaying action advised where legal papers are concerned. One who impresses you should be viewed with suspicion. Stress logic.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Present ideas, but avoid display of impatience. This applies especially to job, investments, relations with those who serve you. Key is moderation. Don't press too hard!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Friendship could blossom into romance. Be sure of your direction. What you seek . . . may have a costly price tag. Message should be clear before day is over! Important to think clearly!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Extra effort now required to accomplish goal. You are almost "over the top." Know this — not accordingly. Resist tendency to be lethargic. Tune when bit of added work can insure success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Put out "feelers." Get the lay of the land. Don't be too anxious to commit yourself. Show interest. But also remain skeptical. Sense of humor enables you to overcome potential pitfalls.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Be thorough. Comprehend situation as a whole. Bits and pieces can be confusing. Bring forth creative energies. Heed your own counsel. Change continues to be order of the day.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20): You may feel you are walking alone. Many persons hop on band wagon. But it is a "wagon" with weak foundations. Your own judgment is accurate. Obtain hint from Aquarius message.

If today is your birthday . . . your intellectual curiosity favors research, reporting, teaching and a study of law.

General Tendencies: Cycle continues high for Pisces, But news spotlight falls on Virgo and Gemini.

Nicklaus Defeats Boros By 4

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, professional golf's leading money winner, has put cemented the favorite's role for the PGA 46th championship tournament here next month.

Defending PGA king Nicklaus toured the 6,861-yard par 34-36 —70 layout with a 34-33—67. Boros, the National Open champion, was one over with a 36-35 —71.

The pro stars were dueling to set the target score for the 13th annual National Golf Day, held last Saturday.

Amateur golfers, who paid $1 each to play on national golf day, needed a four-under-par score, with handicap, on their favorite courses to earn certificates from the PGA indicating they "Beat the Champ."

Social Workers Want New Security Plan

By GEORGE McNEVIN

HAMILTON (CP) — A comprehensive social security program to provide financial and social protection "irrespective of age, race, religion, condition, political affiliation, or residence and citizenship status" was urged Monday by the Canadian Association of Social Workers.

In a policy statement ratified at the organization's annual meeting here, the CASW said need arising from interruption of income should be met by cash payments and other needs by provision of appropriate services.

Reviewing existing social welfare measures, the statement said they consist of a group of separate programs enacted at different times and with different historical backgrounds.

These measures did not cover all of the known risks and there is considerable variation among the provinces in standards and coverage.

It noted that the British North America Act designates welfare as primarily a provincial responsibility but added that resources of the provinces are no longer adequate to meet the constitutional responsibilities assigned to them.

250 REGISTER

About 200 delegates, representing more than 3,000 professional social workers across Canada, were registered for the one-day meeting.

In another statement, the association recommended establishment of a comprehensive national health program, financed by taxation, to ensure "full health care" to all individuals.

The statement said individuals should be free to make arrangements outside the government - sponsored plan if they wish to do so.

On employment conditions, the association said training and retraining demanded by technological advance should be made readily available to all.

It also said minimum wage laws should cover all classes of employment, including agriculture and other special groups.

SON IS NAZI

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A son of Adolf Eichmann turned up in olive shirt, boots and swastika armband Monday and said he is active in a world-wide Nazi movement. Horst Eichmann, 34, called a press conference two years and a day after his father, a former Gestapo colonel, was hanged by Israel for his role in Germany's Nazi extermination of 6,000,000 Jews.

'Solid Growth and High Hopes' in Car Industry

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

As car sales go, so goes the economy.

That's an old saying, but the spectacular success of Canada's car makers in the last 2½ years is giving it new meaning, especially in the communities housing the auto firms.

A survey of the car-making centres shows them all enjoying solid growth and high hopes.

"About the only complaint around here is that the guys are working too hard — but those cheques with double time for Sunday make it easy to take," says a cab driver from Windsor, Ont., home of Chrysler Canada Ltd. and part of Ford of Canada's operations.

In Oshawa, Ont., where General Motors of Canada is king, a furniture store operator says: "Sure, people have more money now and they show it by wanting better quality stuff than a few years ago."

"All they ask now is if they want it, not if they can afford it," reports an appliance salesman from Oakville, Ont., where Ford's assembly plant is located.

A Brampton, Ont., grocer, whose customers include workers from the American Motors (Canada) plant, says people are living better now than they used to, and are showing a liking for choicer and more expensive cuts of meat.

VOLVO WELCOMED

Hamilton has welcomed Studebaker's decision to assemble all its cars there as a major industrial boost.

In Dartmouth, N.S., where Volvo (Canada) has established the country's newest car assembly plant, the firm is regarded as a terrific shot in the arm, both economically and psychologically.

The performance of the auto firms starting in 1962 has been so gratifying it almost wipes out the picture of all the traffic jams the new vehicles can create.

Before the industry started its current sales surge, the record for production was the 471,350 vehicles made in 1956.

Production fell off by as much as 100,000 cars and trucks a year after that until 1962, when people started buying—and the auto plants started humming.

In that year, 508,780 cars and trucks came off the assembly lines, the first time in Canada's history more than half a million vehicles were made.

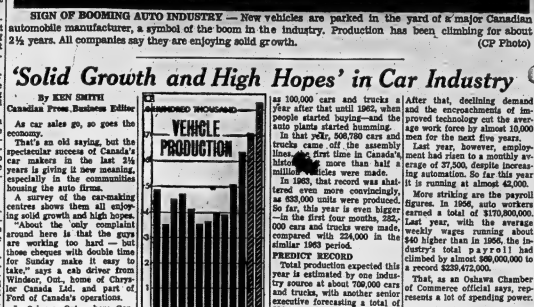
In 1963, that record was shattered even more convincingly, as 633,000 units were produced. So far, this year is even bigger —in the first four months, 282,000 cars and trucks were made, compared with 224,000 in the similar 1963 period.

PRODUCT RECORD

Total production expected this year is estimated by one industry source at about 709,000 cars and trucks, with another senior executive forecasting a total of 830,000 units being turned out in 1970.

For the auto centres, this surging production has meant relief from the clouds of threatened unemployment, as well as fat pay cheques for the workers.

In 1956, for example, the industry employed a monthly average of 40,250 workers to turn out the 471,350 cars and trucks.



After that, declining demand and the encroachments of improved technology cut the average work force by almost 10,000 men for the next five years.

Last year, however, employment had risen to a monthly average of 37,500, despite increasing automation. So far this year it is running at almost 42,000.

More striking are the payroll figures. In 1956, auto workers earned a total of $170,900,000. Last year, with the average weekly wages running about $40 higher than in 1956, the industry's total payroll had climbed by almost $69,000,000 to a record $239,473,000.

Tomorrow: Auto capitals confident of future.

Foundation Starts Action to Recover Money

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Woodsworth Memorial Foundation started legal action in Ontario Supreme Court Monday in an attempt to recover $125,000 it claims it lost in a 1962 property sale allegedly handled by disbarred lawyer Samuel Resnick, 45.

Resnick, who five months later died to larsel and surrendered himself to police last March, is free on $60,200 bail awaiting trial on 31 charges of theft and fraud totalling $341,000, including the Woodsworth House deal.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant was told that in November, 1962, Resnick, while president of the foundation and acting as its lawyer, received a $125,000 cheque to complete the $150,000 purchase of Woodsworth House by Mont Blanc Holding Limited.

The cheque, payable to the Woodsworth Foundation, was deposited in Resnick's trust account.

The foundation is suing the two banks, Mont Blanc, its officer. A. Y. Gronbord of Toronto and lawyer E. Lawrence Sloane, who acted on behalf of Mont Blanc in the transaction.

SAID MONEY INVESTED

Mrs. Margaret Lazarus, former treasurer of the foundation, said Resnick told the directors in November, 1962, that he had invested $40,000 of the money. The transaction was not questioned by directors until foundation auditors questioned the existence of the $93,000 mortgage Feb. 25, 1963.

She said that at a later meeting of the directors March 4, Resnick promised to make restitution. When he failed to do so by April 17, directors decided to take action to recover their money.

Evidence was that Resnick's $40,000 investment was to two shopping centres which he controlled at nearby Port Credit.

The Woodsworth foundation was established by friends of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the Co-operative Commonwealth Foundation, to conduct research into socialism and publish and distribute literature.

The hearing continues.

Mayor McFarland Working To Get New Plant in County

PICTON (Staff) — At last night's meeting of the Town Council, Mayor Harvey J. McFarland made an announcement that, if it comes true, will gladden the hearts of everyone in Prince Edward County.

"I have been working on this for some time now, there have been several transatlantic phone calls made, the latest one just the other day, after a letter was received from the company," he said.

"The first of three phases this company is planning on will cost about seven million five hundred thousand dollars," he added.

"In the next few weeks, I am flying abroad, at my own expense to see if I can wrap this thing up," the Mayor continued, "I won't say I have the nailed down yet, but I am certainly working hard on it. This plant will not be built in Picton, rather out in the county, but if the county prospers, some of this prosperity has to rub off on Picton," he concluded.

A committee was formed, with power to act, on the request of the Prince Edward Yacht Club for assistance on their building program, insofar as the sewer lines are concerned. The cost of pumping the sewage from the clubhouse to the existing sewer on Hill St. is almost prohibitive, and by a show of hands, council agreed to go along up to about $1,500 on helping in this expense.

"They should put up or shut up," said Councillor Randolph Clapp in referring to the fact that the merchants on the north side of Main St. do not seem to want to co-operate on the building of off-street parking behind their stores.

CAN'T GET ANYWHERE

Deputy-Reeve Don Thomson, who, as Chairman of the Parking Committee, has spent endless hours on this program, and has even talked to a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, and cannot seem to get anywhere with the merchants. "It seems to me to be a waste of the taxpayers' money to build a parking lot in behind these stores that will only take care of about 40 more cars than it is capable of doing now," said the Deputy-Reeve.

"I think that another effort should be made to interest these merchants, and that a letter should be sent to their association, and if they are not interested then, let them go soak their heads," said Mr. Clapp. The matter was left in the hands of the parking committee.

Reeve Barney Hepburn, Chairman of Streets and Sewers, reported that the new GMC truck ordered from Frank McKee Motors has arrived and at the moment is being lettered.

"There are apparently some taxpayers that seem to think that this truck was not up to the specifications called for in the tender. Today, Mr. Juby (town foreman) and myself examined this new truck very carefully, and I can report that it is precisely what was called for in the tender, including the 9,000 pound front axle," he added.

A request from Roblin Motors to purchase the property known as the Hare property, where the old arena once stood on Ontario Street, for $1,500 was turned down by council, for two reasons, firstly that the area is zoned residential, and secondly that the main trunk sewer runs right through the property.

An application to purchase the old Vigodda property opposite the jail, was also turned down, as it too, is zoned residential. Roblin Motors wanted to store used cars at these locations until they could be serviced ready for sale.

Picton council last night agreed to go along with the county on the Centennial program.

LETTER TABLED

A letter from Miss K. Keech, Librarian, was tabled at last night's council meeting. According to the letter, the Library Board is very much against the proposal to install a bus stopping station adjacent to the Library for the use of the bus that is proposing daily trips to and from Camp Picton.

The letter suggested, as an alternative, the area adjacent to the Fire Hall, or behind the Armouries.

Mrs. Merwyn Haight, who lives on Simeon Street waited on council last night with a request that signs, no parking from here to corner be erected on Simeon Street in order to alleviate what she called a deplorable situation regarding turning from Simeon Street to Washburn.

Mayor McFarland told her the signs would be erected, and that the police would prosecute any offenders.

15 building permits in the total amount of $6,195 were approved by council, and accounts in the amount of $6,515 were approved for payment.

The resignation of Herbert J. Colliver from the Municipal Recreation Committee was accepted. Mr. Colliver has acted as Chairman of this committee since its inception in January 1963.

Rusk, McNamara Back Home With Asian Proposals

Unlikely to Recommend Enlarging War Theatre

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara returned from a hio olulu conference today with "a number of recommendations" for President Johnson on new action to strengthen Southeast Asia against Communist pressures.

Landing at Andrews Air Force B.s.. Rusk told reporters: "We b ought back a number of rec ommendation , as we usually do from these meetings."

He said "the commitment of the American nation, its people and its government," to protect Southeast Asia against tied aggression "are well known."

He added: "The problem is to make sure the other side fully understands that we mean what we say."

Rusk and McNamara were scheduled to see Johnson late in the af ernoon for the president's return from a speaking trip to New England.

U.S. officials indicated Tuesday night in Honolulu that military action might be taken against Communist North Viet Nam if it and Red China continue b i n g rebellions in South Viet Nam and Laos. But they said Rusk and McNamara

Set Target Date For Wage Law

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has set Jan. 1, 1965, as target date for establishing a national minimum wage for workers in industries under federal jurisdiction, a r e l i a b l e source reported.

The deadline is subject to early parliamentary approval of legislation to establish the minimum wage and other labor standards.

The labor standards measure is expected to be placed before the Commons soon—in time for debate before a summer break.

Covering about 550,000 employees under federal jurisdiction,

Fine Electric Firms $29 Million In First Suit Over Fixed Prices

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Six of the biggest electrical equipment manufacturers in the U.S. were ordered Tuesday to pay nearly $29,000,000 to two Philadelphia utilities for fixing prices and rigging bids in the sale of power transformers.

A federal jury fixed damages at more than 29,000,000 in the civil anti-trust case and U.S. District Judge J. S. Lord III promptly trebled the amount, as allowed under the law.

The damage bill was brought by the , Philadelphia Electric Company and the United Gas Improvement Company against General Electric Company; Westinghouse Electric Corp.; Allis-Chalmers of West Allis, Wis.; Moloney Electric Company and Wagner Electric Company, both of St. Louis, and McGraw-Edison Company, Elgin, Ill.

The suits against the six companies grew out of successful criminal anti-trust prosecutions by the federal government in 1961. At that time 29 manufacturers and 44 individuals pleaded either guilty or no defence to bid rigging and price-fixing.

Fines of more than $2,000,000 were imposed, and six executives spent nearly a month in jail for their part in breaking the anti-trust laws.

GE and Westinghouse, after the verdict, said they would appeal to the U.S. circuit court.

GE, in its statement, said the jury didn't receive sufficient information on which to base a s o u n d decision. Westinghouse said the verdict . . . was clearly unwarranted by the facts.

This was the first of more than 1,000 similar suits against the electrical manufacturers based on their price-fixing convictions.

Many of the companies have settled out-of-court claims made by cities, government agencies and private utilities for alleged overpayments.

Farmers Will Be Assisted

By ARCH McKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — An important federal agricultural lending agency is nearly out of funds because of demand, Agriculture Minister Hays told the Commons Tuesday night in explaining amendments to loss $300,000,000 worth of financial best into the reserves of the Farm Credit Corporation.

Higher loans will cost farmers more, he said, but the existing five-per-cent interest rate will be continued for amounts up to the existing loan ceilings of $20,000 and $27,500. Those ceilings are to be doubled to $40 000 and $55,000 and anything over the existing limits will bear interest at a variable rate of six per cent or more.

More changes can be expected, Mr. Hays said in referring to the role of financial credit in helping Canadian farmers adapt to fundamental farm industry shifts.

His proposals to boost the borrowing power and increase lending capacity won general support. But the opposition took a dim view of the higher interest rates.

The debate was on second reading—approval in principle—and several speakers still remained to be heard when the Commons rose late in the night.

CHANGES ISSUE

Today the Commons turned to another priority item which will precede the debate on the flag issue.

This is the Columbia River Treaty, first signed in early 1961, then subjected to a protocol signed in 1963 and a session acrutiny by the Commons external affairs committee which formed a unanimous report of recommendation after more than 100 hours.

Then the New Democrats oppose this power and flood control project which will cost Canada an estimated $447,700,000 by 1973 and—the government hopes—bring in revenues more than paying for this in an advance payment, most of which is due Oct. 1.

The farm credit bill is one of four m a j o r farm measures promised in the 1963 session of Parliament and marks the third time since 1958—when the former Conservative government replaced the Farm Loan Board with the Farm Credit Corporation—that the farm mortgage loans for farmers have been expanded.

Since 1929 when federally-backed farm l o a n s began, these loans have been twice extended—some of it under the Veterans' Land Act but most going back to federally-backed bank loans.

SETTING RECORDS

Loans by the Farm Credit Corporation have been booming ahead in annual record amounts to a peak of $108,000,000 for the year ended last March 31.

The amendments also are designed to make it easier for relatives to establish younger kin on farms—a costly operation in today's mechanized farm world —or to c o n t i n u e operations pending settlement of estates.

Mr. Hays said a continuing inter - departmental committee has been established to appraise farm credit and that a recent survey covered 2,600 farmers in communities in 11 provinces plus practices in 11 or more foreign countries.

He said the extension of $200,000,000 should equip the Farm Credit Corporation with lending resources into 1966. But recent improvements in processing land had cut the time period by days and lending now was at the rate of $1,000,000 a day—the rate of lending meanwhile, were down to $22,000,000 for the corporation.

TIME IS ESSENCE

Time was of the essence in this measure, he said.

Mr. Hays said the Farm Credit Corporation would welcome an appearance this session of Parliament before the agricultural committee.

The increased loan maximums were necessary to meet farm

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—Deposed Laotian crisis consultations among the ambassadors to Laos from B r i t a i n, Canada, the United States, India, Thailand and South Viet Nam were in a one-day recess here today.

The talks opened Tuesday with the last-minute addition of India as one of the nations represented. The initial session went on for 75 minutes. The envoys were expected to meet again Thursday.

The British charge d'affaires, John Denson, told reporters the talks were aimed at supporting the position taken by Laotian neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Souvanna has a conditionally agreed on another international conference on Laos, provided the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces withdraw from positions captured from the neutralists during their three - week - long offensive.

Denson said the talks also were expected to produce "a clear picture" of the military situation following the latest Pathet Lao attacks.

Santa Claus Easy Winner Of Epsom Derby

EPSOM, England (CP) — Irish-trained colt Santa Claus, a heavy favorite, swept to victory today in the English Derby, the richest horse race ever run in England.

Indiana was second and Dilettante II third.

Santa Claus' owner, John Isay, won a record first prize of $150,000.

Santa Claus went off at 7-to-4 odds and won from a field of 11 other colts in the classic English test for three-year-olds.

Santa Claus was near the back of the field for most of the 1½-mile race. He came from behind and grabbed victory from Indiana over the last few yards in a thrilling finish. Santa Claus won by a length. Indiana was that length ahead of Dilettante II.

Indiana and third places went to Americans. Indiana is owned by Charles W. Engelhard and trained in the U.S. by Harry Galbreath, both New Yorkers.

Seoul Students and Citizens Wage Bloody Fight With Police

SEOUL (AP) — About 20,000 students and citizens demanding that President Chung Hee Park of South Korea resign fought a bloody battle with police today and on into the night. His shaken regime proclaimed martial law.

Seoul Radio broadcast around the capital and on the approaches to the capital in a day of wild disorder. Casualties were reported in other South Korean cities.

The decree putting the nation under martial law was announced after Park, who came to power four years ago on the heels of another student uprising, called the National Security Council into urgent session.

Also summoned were the representatives of the United States. They were U.S. Ambassador Samuel D. Berger and U.S. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, the United States commander in Korea.

So perilous were the streets, where students were seizing army trucks, battering at the capital's gates and raining stones on police, that Berger and Howze flew to the conference in a helicopter.

Then as the fighting sputtered on after nightfall, Deputy Information Minister Lo Sokchan announced the emergency martial law decree giving the army power to curtail the demonstrations and drive people from Seoul's teeming streets.

Park in a statement said his step was inevitable.

The decision was reached after Park had conferred for more than two hours with Berger and Howze.

As the talks went on in the Welfare Council May Quit

HAMILTON (CP) — The possibility that the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare may be abolished and its functions taken over by the Canadian Welfare Council was indicated here Tuesday.

Reuben Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the CWC, told the organization's annual meeting overtures have been made by the conference, inviting reaction to the idea of making the conference a project of the council.

The 38-year-old biennial conference provides the largest social welfare forum in Canada for a loosely knit organization of about 1,000 members.

The CWC is a voluntary association of public and private agencies that studies welfare issues and recommends policy to government and other agencies.

Mr. Baetz said the first formal step in the dissolution of the conference could come only from the conference itself at the biennial meeting which opens today.

TO STUDY POVERTY

He also announced the council proposes to launch a major study of the causes and effects of poverty in Canada — who the poverty-stricken Canadians are, where they live, how many there are and why they continue to live in poverty when the economy is buoyant.

The consensus of a panel comprising a doctor, a lawyer and a social worker was that everyone is concerned about parental child beating but the introduction of "police state measures" is not a preventative.

Walter Blackburn, assistant director of the Toronto Children's Aid Society, said child beating is a "criminal offence" and the police should be brought in.

Randall Dick, Ontario associate deputy attorney - general, said there was a statement on the rights of parents in bringing up their children.

NOT MAJOR PROBLEM

Dr. W. F. Armour, assistant secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, agreed, claiming there is approximately one case of child beating for every 60,000 persons in Ontario. He argued that it was not a "major health problem" to be com-

Bay of Quinte Trustee Calls For Ban of Teachers on Board

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The assistant superintendent of secondary schools in Toronto questions the value of urging high students to stay at school longer.

H. B. Dean told the Ontario Urban and Rural Trustees Association Tuesday that the point where a school's, protective environment would cause more harm than good to students had not been determined. But sooner or later a decision would have to be made.

Education, he noted, is obtained by the individual's ability and not merely by exposure to it.

When slow learners who have reached age 18 still have not advanced beyond Grade 9 "are we getting out of their best interest by keeping them in school?" he asked.

The association set aside for further committee consideration a resolution that would have barred teachers from sitting on school boards.

The resolution was presented by Gerald Wishart, a Bay of Quinte t r u s t e e, who said a committee took part in an ary strategy meetings of the Ontario Trustees' Council last year.

He called for a teacher ban to be considered to forestall a possible conflict of interest in collective bargaining with teachers on boards.

Rev. A. M. Laverty of Kingston, association president, and several other trustees said the experience of a teacher is often an asset on school boards in municipalities adjacent to those

Quebec Delegates Want To Stay in Federation

REGINA (CP) — Quebec delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said Tuesday they want to stay in the federation.

But they told a press conference they would ask the CFMM executive to see that the federation gives more attention to the special problems of various areas of Canada and takes greater care to avoid trespassing on provincial government rights in dealing directly with the federal government.

The press conference came after CFMM President C. N. Kushner, Mayor of West Kildonan, Man., said there were "powerful forces which would like to create (Quebec members) leave the federation."

Mr. Kushner's reference appeared to be a statement made a year ago by Quebec's municipal affairs minister, Pierre Laporte, who said the CFMM was "largely responsible" for an increasing number of cases in which municipalities deal with the federal government on matters which are solely provincial jurisdictions.

The Quebec spokesmen said

California Win Brings Him Near To Nomination

Los Angeles Voters Erase 'Rocky's' Lead

By a narrow margin, the Arizona senator captured a rich bloc of 86 delegates from Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York in California's primary Tuesday. The delegates are bound to vote for Goldwater on the first ballot at the nominating convention in San Francisco starting in July.

Rockefeller captured most of the state's 58 counties, but a decisive surge for Goldwater in the southern California returns, chiefly from Los Angeles, rolled down the bitter contest for the Westerner.

Results from 29,800 of 32,951 voting districts showed:

Goldwater 868,987; Rockefeller 836,386.

WITHIN HIS GRASP

The victory in the last presidential primary before the July 13 Republican national convention brought Goldwater within striking distance of the 655 votes he'll need for the nomination.

He called it a "giant step" toward his quest to lead the Republican ticket into the November election.

Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, trounced State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination. The U.S. senate seat held by ailing Democratic Senator Clair Engle.

The Salinger victory dealt a setback to Governor Edmund G. Brown and other party elements who supported Cranston. It showed, too, the votepulling power of the Kennedy image, used heavily by the press secretary to the late president.

The 39-year-old former San Francisco r e p o r t e r, who quit Congress to run for senator because he's registered in Virginia, will face the Republican nominee, onetime actor George Murphy.

IN CLIFF-HANGER

Republican National Chairman William E. Miller said the Onus Is Placed On Opposition

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Top Liberal party workers and organizers ended a two-day meeting Tuesday night with a ringing declaration by Prime Minister Pearson that if an early general election is precipitated, the onus and responsibility will be on the opposition's heads.

Mr. Pearson said so far as he, his cabinet and his Liberal supporters in the Commons are concerned, an election with all its problems and costs should be avoided at this juncture. Parliament was composed of men and women elected to do a job and they should stay at it.

The Liberal national council drawing about 225 delegate from provincial and federal organizations, devoted itself mainly to constitutional and organizational problems.

Behind closed doors, it passed along to the party's national policy committee a statement of principles outlining larger initiatives by the federal government in national affairs.

Three proposals

Mr. Pearson, speaking at the closing banquet, enumerated 40 items already promised by his government and said they were only part of the program for the life of a Parliament to be five years — for which he had a mandate.

He also included re-establishment of friendly, and frank dialogue in international relations, United Nations support, integration of the defence forces, setup up the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism and breaking the divorce log jam in Parliament.

"These are the measures that have been adopted, and there are others that will come before Commons order paper," Mr. Pearson said. "We are going to stay in office this summer until we get the important ones into operation."

He denounced political manoeuvrings, bickering, frivolities, irrelevancies, obstruction and opposition for opposition's sake and said his government is "determined to carry on as if we had a clear majority in the House."

The responsibility for provoking an election at this time through filibustering by other

Nehru's Will Asks That Ashes Be Scattered in Air by Plane

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The late Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru asked in his will, partially published today, that his ashes be scattered by plane to "mingle with the dust and soil and become an indistinguishable part of India."

Nehru died of a heart attack last Wednesday at the age of 74.

An agnostic, he asked "with all earnestness" in a will made almost 10 years ago that no religious ceremonies should be performed for him after his death.

"I do not believe in any such ceremonies and do submit to them even as a matter of form would be hypocrisy and an attempt to delude ourselves and others."

Hindu priests last week took part in the funeral-pyre ceremonies when the dead leader was cremated here.

Informed sources said Tuesday that Nehru's request ruled out the normal Hindu ceremony for the departed soul, held 10 days after death.

Nehru, asked that a small handful of his ashes be thrown into the River Ganges at Allahabad "for the river has for the great ocean that washes India's shore."

He added: "No part of these ashes should be retained or preserved. My desire to have a handful of my ashes thrown into the Ganges at Allahabad has no religious significance so far as I am concerned . . . I have been attached to the Ganges and Jumna rivers at Allahabad ever since my childhood and as I have grown older this attachment has also grown."

Nehru's will concluded: "The major portion of my ashes should, however, be disposed of otherwise.

"I want these to be carried high up into the air in an aeroplane and scattered over the fields where the peasants of India toil, so that they might mingle with the dust and soil of India and become an indistinguishable part of India."

Set Target Date For Wage Law

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has set Jan. 1, 1965, as target date for establishing a national minimum wage for workers in industries under federal jurisdiction, a reliable source reports.

The deadline is subject to early parliamentary approval of legislation to establish the minimum wage and other labor standards.

The labor standards measure is expected to be placed before the Commons soon—in time for debate before a summer recess.

Farmers Will Be Assisted

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — An important federal agricultural lending agency is nearly out of funds because of demand, Agriculture Minister Hays told the Commons Tuesday night in explaining amendments to loan $200,000,000 worth of financial bed into the reserves of the Farm Credit Corporation.

Higher loans will cost farmers more, he said, but the existing five-per-cent interest rate will be continued for amounts up to the existing loan ceilings of $20,000 and $27,500. Those ceilings are to be doubled to $40 000 and $55,000 and anything over the existing limits will bear interest at a variable rate of six per cent or more.

More changes can be expected, Mr. Hays said in reforming the role of financial credit in helping Canadian farmers adjust to fundamental farm industry shifts.

His proposals will boost the lending maximums and increase lending capacity won general support. But they also reflect a dim view of the higher interest rates.

The debate was on second reading—approval in principle —and several speakers still remained to be heard when the House rose for the night.

CHANGES ISSUE

Today the Commons turned to another reforming item which will precede the debate on the flag issue.

This is the Columbia River Treaty, first signed in early 1961, then subjected to a protocol signed Jan. 22 and a 30-session scrutiny by the Commons special committee, a committee which turned in a majority report of recommendation after more than 100 hours.

Only the New Democrats oppose this power and flood control project which will cost Canada an estimated $447,700,000 by 1973 and—the government has pointed out—will return more than paying for this in an advance payment, most of which is due this year.

The farm credit bill is one of four major farm measures promised in the Throne Speech at Parliament and marks the third such measure when the former Conservative government replaced the Farm Loan Board with the Farm Credit Corporation—that long-term mortgage loans for farmers have been expanded.

Since 1929 when federally-backed farm loans began, mortgage limits have not been extended—some of it under the Veterans' Land Act but most under agreements with federally-backed bank loans.

SETTING RECORDS

Hays said Rural Development Farm Credit Corporation itself have been romping ahead in annual record amounts of new loans, $108,000,000 for the year ended last March 31.

The amendments also are designed to make it easier for relatives to establish younger kin on farms—a costly operation in today's mechanized farm world —or to continue operations pending settlement of estates.

Mr. Hays said a continuing inter - departmental committee has been set up to study inequities in farm credit and that a recent survey covered 2,000 farmers in regard to their credit needs plus practices in 11 or more forming areas.

He said the extention of $200,000,000 should equip the Farm Credit Corporation with lending reserves until late 1966. But recent improvements in processing loans mean that the time period by days and lending now was at the rate of $1,000,000 a day. Reserves are lending meanwhile, were down to $22,000,000 in the corporation.

TIME OF ESSENCE

Time was of the essence in an appearance, he said.

Mr. Hays said the Farm Credit Corporation would welcome an appearance by this session of Parliament before the agricultural committee.

The increased loan maximums were necessary to meet farm

Seoul Students and Citizens Wage Bloody Fight With Police

SEOUL (AP) — About 20,000 students and citizens demanding that President Chung Hee Park of South Korea resign fought a bloody battle with police today and on into the night. His shaken regime proclaimed martial law.

Street fighting swirled around the capital and on the approaches to the capital in a day of wild disorder. Outbreaks were reported in other South Korean cities.

The decree putting the nation under martial law was announced after Park, who came to power four years ago on the heels of another student uprising, called the National Security Council into urgent session.

Also summoned were the representatives of the United States. They were U.S. Ambassador Samuel D. Berger and U.S. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, the United States commander in Korea.

So perilous were the streets, where students were seizing army trucks, battering at the capitol's gates and raining stones on police, that Berger and Howze came to the conference in a helicopter.

Then as the fighting sputtered on after nightfall, Deputy Information Minister Lo Sohchan announced the emergency martial law decree giving the army power to crush the demonstrations and drive people from Seoul's teeming streets.

Park in a statement said his step was inevitable.

The decision was reached after Park had conferred for more than two hours with Berger and Howze.

As the talks went on in the Welfare Council May Quit

HAMILTON (CP) — The possibility that the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare may be dissolved and its functions taken over by the Canadian Welfare Council was indicated here Tuesday.

Reuben Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the CWC, told the organization's annual meeting overtures have been made by the conference, inviting reaction to the idea of making the conference a project of the council.

The 38-year-old biennial conference provides the largest social welfare forum in Canada for a loosely knit organization of about 1,000 members.

The CWC is a voluntary association of public and private agencies that studies welfare issues and recommends policy to government and other agencies.

Mr. Baetz said the first formal step in the dissolution of the conference could come only if and when the conference itself at its biennial meeting which opens today.

TO STUDY POVERTY

He also announced the council proposes to launch a major study of the causes and cure of poverty in Canada — who the poverty-stricken Canadians are, where they live, how many there are and why they continue to live in poverty when the economy is buoyant.

The consensus of a panel incorporating a doctor, a lawyer and a social worker was that everyone is concerned about parental rights following the introduction of "police state measures" is not a preventative.

Walter Blackburn, assistant director of the Toronto Children's Aid Society, said child beating is a "criminal offence" and the police should be brought in.

Randall Dick, Ontario associate deputy attorney - general, said this would be an infringement on the rights of parents in bringing up their children.

NOT MAJOR PROBLEM

Dr. W. F. Armour, assistant secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, agreed, claiming there is approximately one case of child beating for every 60,000 persons in Ontario. He argued that it was not a "major health problem" to be com-

Bay of Quinte Trustee Calls For Ban of Teachers on Board

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The assistant superintendent of secondary schools in Toronto questions the value of urging slow students to stay at school longer.

H. B. Dean told the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association Tuesday that the point where a school's protective environment could cause more harm than good to students had not been determined. But sooner or later a decision would have to be made.

Education he noted, is obtained by the individual's activity and not merely by exposure to it.

When slow learners who have reached age 16 still have not advanced beyond Grade 9 "are we really acting in their best interest by keeping them in school?" he asked.

The association set aside for further committee consideration a resolution that would have barred teachers from sitting on school boards.

The resolution was presented by Gerald Wishart, a Bay of Quinte trustee, who said the school teacher took part in salary strategy meetings of the Ontario Trustees' Council last year.

He called for a teacher ban to prevent what he termed a possible conflict of interest in collective bargaining with teachers' groups.

Rev. A. M. Laverty of Kingston, association president, and several other trustees said the experience of a teacher is often an asset on school boards in municipalities adjacent to those

Quebec Delegates Want To Stay in Federation

REGINA (CP) — Quebec delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said Tuesday they want to stay in the federation.

But they told a press conference they would ask the CFMM executive to see that the federation gives more attention to the special problems of various areas of Canada and takes greater care to avoid trespassing on provincial government rights in dealing directly with the federal government.

The press conference came after CFMM President C. N. Kushner, Mayor of West Kildonan, Man., said there were "powerful forces which would have you (Quebec members) leave the federation."

Mr. Kushner's reference apparently was to a statement made a year ago by Quebec's municipal affairs minister, Pierre Laporte, who said the CFMM was "largely responsible" for an increasing number of cases in which municipalities deal with the federal government on matters which are solely provincial jurisdictions.

The Quebec spokesmen said

California Win Brings Him Near To Nomination

Los Angeles Voters Erase 'Rocky's' Lead

By a narrow margin, the Arizona senator captured a rich bloc of 86 delegates from Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York in California's primary Tuesday. The delegates are bound to vote for Goldwater on the first ballot at the nominating convention in San Francisco starting in July.

Rockefeller captured most of the state's 58 counties, but a decisive surge for Goldwater in Southern California's precincts, chiefly from Los Angeles, nailed down the bitter contest for the westerner.

Results from 39,800 of 39,861 voting districts showed:

Goldwater 968,907; Rockefeller 938,386.

WITHIN HIS GRASP

The victory in the last preprimary primary before the July 13 Republican national convention brought Goldwater within striking distance of the 655 votes he'll need for the nomination.

He called it a "giant step" toward his quest to lead the Republican ticket into the November election.

Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, frowned State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat held by ailing Democratic Senator Clair Engle.

The Salinger victory dealt a setback to Governor Edmund G. Brown and other party elements who supported Cranston. It showed, too, the voter-pulling power of the Kennedy image, used heavily by the press secretary to the late president.

The 39-year-old former San Francisco reporter, who couldn't even vote for himself because he's registered in Virginia, will face the Republican nominee, veteran actor George Murphy.

IS CLIFF-HANGER

Onus Is Placed On Opposition

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Top Liberal party workers and organizers ended a two-day meeting Tuesday night with a ringing declaration by Prime Minister Pearson that if an early general election is precipitated, the onus and responsibility will be on the opposition's heads.

Mr. Pearson said so far as he, his cabinet and his Liberal supporters in the Commons are concerned, the country will get its schisms and delays should be avoided at this juncture. Parliament was composed of men and women elected to do a job and they should stay at it.

The Liberal national council drawing about 225 delegate from provincial and federal organizations, devoted itself mainly to constitutional and organizational problems.

In its final hours, it passed along to the party's national policy committee a statement of principles envisaging larger initiatives by the federal government in national affairs.

LISTS POINTS

Mr. Pearson, speaking at the closing banquet, enumerated 40 points he said achieved by his government and said they were only part of the program for the 26th of the Trudeau years to five years for which he had a mandate.

His list included re-establishment of friendly and frank diplomatic relations with Indonesia, United Nations support, integration of the defence forces, setting up the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism and breaking the divorce log jam in Parliament.

"These are the measures that have been adopted, and there are others on the House of Commons order paper," Mr. Pearson said. "We are going to stay here this session and we get the important ones into operation."

He denounced political manoeuvrings, bickering, frivolities, irrelevancies, obstruction and repition in Parliament, and said his government is "determined to see that if we had a clear majority in the House."

The responsibility for provoking an election at this time through filibustering or other

Santa Claus Easy Winner Of Epsom Derby

EPSOM, England (CP) — Irish-trained colt Santa Claus, a heavy favorite, swept to victory today in the English Derby, the richest horse race ever run in England.

Indiana was second and Dilettante II third.

Santa Claus went off at 7-to-4 odds and won from a field of 16 other colts in the classic English test for three-year-olds.

Santa Claus was near the back of the field for most of the 1½-mile race. He came from behind and grabbed victory from Indiana over the last few yards in a thrilling finish.

Santa Claus won by a length. Indiana was two lengths ahead of Dilettante II.

Santa and third places went to Americans. Indiana is owned by Charles W. Engelhard and trained by Harry Gelb, both New Yorkers.

Fine Electric Firms $29 Million In First Suit Over Fixed Prices

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Six of the biggest electrical equipment manufacturers in the U.S. were ordered Tuesday to pay nearly $30,000,000 to two Philadelphia utilities for fixing prices and rigging bids in the sale of power transformers.

A federal jury fixed damages at more than 29,000,000 in the civil anti-trust case and U.S. District Judge Clary B. Lord III promptly trebled the amount, as allowed under the law.

pany and Wagner Electric Company, both of St. Louis, and McGraw-Edison Company, Elgin, Ill.

The suits against the six companies grew out of successful criminal anti-trust prosecutions by the federal government in 1961. At that time the manufacturers and 46 individuals pleaded either guilty or no defense to bid rigging and price-fixing.

Fines of more than $2,000,000 were imposed and prison sentences spent nearly a month in jail for their part in breaking the anti-trust laws.

GE and Westinghouse, after the verdict, said they would appeal to the U.S. circuit court.

GE, in its statement, said the jury received sufficient information on which to base a sound decision. Westinghouse said the verdict was clearly unwarranted by the facts.

This was the first of more than 1,000 similar suits against the electrical manufacturers based on their price-fixing convictions.

Many of the companies have settled out-of-court claims made by cities, government agencies and private utilities for alleged overpayments.

Nehru's Will Asks That Ashes Be Scattered in Air by Plane

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The late Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru asked in his will, partially published today, that his ashes be scattered by plane in "mingle with the dust and soil and become an indistinguishable part of India."

Nehru died of a heart attack last Wednesday at the age of 74.

An agnostic, he asked "with all earnestness" in a will made almost 10 years ago that no religious ceremonies should be performed for him after his death.

"I do not believe in any such ceremonies and to submit to them even as a matter of form would be to encourage and support belief in the unbelievable and others."

Hindu priests last week took part in the funeral-pyre ceremonies when the dead leader was cremated here.

Informed sources said Tuesday that Nehru's request ruled out the normal Hindu ceremony for the departed soul, held 10 days after death.

Nehru asked that a small handful of his ashes be thrown into the River Ganges at Allahabad "to be carried to the great ocean that washes India's shore."

He added: "No part of these ashes should be retained or preserved. My desire is that a handful of my ashes thrown into the Ganges at Allahabad has no religious significance so far as I am concerned . . . . have been attached to the Ganges and Jumna rivers in Allahabad ever since my childhood and as I have grown older this attachment has grown stronger.

Nehru's will concluded: "The major portion of my ashes should, however, be disposed of otherwise.

"I want these to be carried high up into the air in an aeroplane and scattered over the fields where the peasants of India toil, so that they might mingle with the dust and soil of India and become an indistinguishable part of India."

Recommended Police Locate Coffin Before Bodies Found

By GERRY McNEIL

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The 36-year-old leader of a group of volunteer searchers in 1959 recommended, even before the bodies of three missing hunters were found, that police "locate Coffin."

The report by Wilfrid Carter, now 41, a Quebec government researcher in Gaspe, was studied Tuesday night by the Quebec Royal commission into the Coffin case.

It said at one point that on July 14 "it was brought out that one Wilbert Coffin had been in that area with his pickup (vehicle) at the time the three hunters arrived there—June 10.

"We proceeded to request that Sgt. (Henri) Doyon of the Quebec Provincial Police locate Coffin. Following this, the subject of foul play was brought up. . . ."

The report, signed by Mr. Carter and David Johnson, manager of the Gaspe branch of a newsprint company, said that the following day, the first body was found.

The report said "we prevailed upon" Sgt. Doyon to close roads leading to the area. The sergeant then took charge of the investigation until Capt. Alphonse Maltais, ex QPP chief inspector, arrived.

Prior to death were Eugene Lindsey, 44, Lloyd Richard, 17, and a friend Frederic Clair, 30, all of Hollidaysburg, Pa. They were last hunting.

Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, still claiming he was innocent.

The report speculated that a "bird-flinging pistol" had killed the hunters since the shots were closely placed "into a moving body." But police believe a high-calibre weapon did the shooting, though the murder weapon has never been found.

Mr. Carter admitted that he had not met Coffin during the search and found out of the report was based solely on Mr. Johnson's observations.

TO TESTIFY AGAIN

Further testimony on the report will come from both in the courthouse here where Coffin was tried 30 years ago.

Earlier Tuesday, testimony centred on the head table were Mr. Archie Lewis, District Fire Warden; Mr. Lew Andrews, district treasurer; Mr. Archie Steenburg, assistant District Commissioner; Mrs. Jack Vogt and Mrs. Stanley Young, both Avondale Home and School Association; Mrs. Katherine Thompson, Avondale Cubs and Scouts' Ladies' Auxiliary; Mr. Ron Shattell, Scout Master, and Mr. Ken Bateman, Cub Master, and Mrs. Reid and Mr. Bob Legoff, both assistant Cub Masters.

Mr. Archie Lewis brought greetings from the district and Mr. Archie Steenburg related some of his more humorous experiences with the Avondale Cubs and Scouts after which he presented second stars to Cubs Billy Howe and Ricky Gibson and a first star to Steven Brinkman.

In the absence of Mr. Jack Vogt, president of the Avondale Group Committee, Dr. "Cocky" McCorquodale acted as master of ceremonies and he introdgced the head table, in addition to the members of the Avondale Group Committee, Mr. John Lewars, Mr. Bill Heaven, Mr. Owen Riddell, Mr. Al Suelzle and himself.

County Court Finds Reporter Guilty of Theft

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Wayne McLeod, 28, a part-time Napanee newspaper man, was given a three-month suspended sentence Tuesday after a county court jury found him guilty of breaking into a house and re-moving photographs.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville also required McLean to post a $100 bond to keep the peace.

McLean, a reporter for the weekly Napanee Beaver and a local fireman at the time of the offence, was accused of breaking into a private home and stealing eight photos of a woman whose body was believed found in nearby Sharbot Lake.

Charles Cooper of Camden East, from whose home the photos were taken last Nov. 20, testified during the trial that a man's body pulled from the lake was not that of his wife.

Provincial police Constable Ronald Roberts said at Tuesday's session he went with McLean to the basement of the Beaver office where the re-porter produced a package of photos.

Marie Hamilton, 18, who worked in the newspaper's business office, is also charged with theft of the photos. A separate jury is to be sworn in for her trial.

Napanee is 20 miles east of Belleville.

Steam Engine Will Be Used To Haul Train

As a prelude to "Railway Week" celebrations late this month marking plans for the removal of tracks from Pinnacle Street, Belleville and district residents will be privileged on June 20th to see CN's latest steam locomotive, No. 6167, in action.

The occasion will be the Upper Canada Railway Society's annual summer steam excursion from Toronto to Belleville by way of Lindsay.

The steam powered excursion train leaves Toronto 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, June 20th with stops at Danforth and Scarborough and after passing through Lindsay and Peterborough will arrive in Belleville at 5:40.

The banquet, held on May 29th, at Johnny Restaurant, Belleville Plaza, was attended by more than fifty fathers and Cubs and Scouts. Very few of those present were unable to do justice to the fine supper, consisting of half a fried chicken, chips, vegetables, salad, rolls, beverage and ice cream.

Commencement of the banquet was marked by the saying of Grace by Scout Steve Carter. After supper a toast to the Queen was proposed by Mr. G. Jones Cub Pierre Martel presented a most fitting toast to the fathers by his able recitation of a specially selected poem. Mr. W. Cassidy on behalf of the fathers then thanked Pierre for the toast.

British Seize Boat With Arms, Ammunition

LONDON (Reuters)—The defence ministry in London today announced that a British destroyer had chased and seized a launch containing arms and ammunition 45 miles north of Cuba.

The defence ministry said the destroyer Decoy chased the launch for 12 miles in the Bahamas area.

Five people aboard were arrested and arms, ammunition, explosives and other equipment seized.

The launch was spotted when leaving at high speed the tiny island of Anguilla Cay, 45 miles north of Cuba and a part of British territories in the area," it said.

"Decoy's captain, Cmdr. J. K. Stevens, ordered hot pursuit and chased the launch for 12 miles. The craft then hove to. Five people on board, including a woman, were taken into custody.

"The Decoy also put a landing party ashore on the island and three more people were arrested. The launch with prisoners and seized arms were taken to Nassau."

Treat Federal Servants As Traitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Queen's Printer Roger Duhamel complained Tuesday night that French-Canadians who join the federal public service are considered "traitors" and "deserters" by many of their own compatriots.

He told the Richelieu Club in suburban St. Laurent that this "prejudice" among French-Canadians is perhaps the main reason they are under - represented in the federal government.

Unless French - Canadians changed their attitude soon, their place in Confederation would be "dangerously compromised."

"We should understand the situation clearly," he said, speaking in French. "If we don't want to work for the federal government, let us stop our recriminations."

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Canadian Clubs supporting a distinctive Canadian flag was passed Tuesday with little discussion by the biennial conference of the Association of Canadian Clubs.

The resolution also offered the services of the 80,000-member association to promote acceptance of the flag when it is approved.

Dr. Norman H. Gosse, president of the Halifax club, asked the meeting to rescind a 1956 resolution which had accepted the Red Ensign as the Canadian flag.

Dr. Wilder Penfield, association president, said in an address the "quiet revolution" in Quebec will produce great educational advances which will be clear when they are balanced against the 1867 concept of Confederation, even to the point of Ontario

Child Killed, Struck by Truck East of Brighton

TRENTON — An eight-year-old Brighton area boy, Roy Olmstead, died in Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday, after he was struck by a half-ton pick-up truck on Highway 2, half a mile east of Brighton.

The driver of the truck, Antoine Schell of Picton, was arrested and taken to the county jail at Cobourg, charged with dangerous driving and criminal negligence.

The boy was returning home from Spring Valley School, north of Brighton, and had just left the school bus and was crossing the road in front of it when the accident occurred.

Roy Olmstead was the son of Sgt. Lloyd M. Olmstead of 4 Transport Operational Training United, RCAF Station Trenton, and Mrs. Olmstead. His father was posted overseas to Pisa, Italy, three weeks ago and is being flown home.

There are six other children, three brothers and three sisters, ranging in age from 17 to two.

Cpl. J. K. McKendry of the Brighton detachment of the OPP investigated.

Trenton Police Chief May Get Provincial Post

TRENTON—There is a report that Trenton's police chief, F. J. Taylor has been chosen to form a part of a three or four man investigating committee with the Ontario Police Commission. These men would travel throughout the province, visiting local departments, investigating the operation of the departments and, in effect, acting as "trouble shooters" in difficult situations.

Contacted, Chief Taylor would neither deny nor confirm the report. He said he had not actually "considered the appointment," as yet.

A check with the Ontario Police Commission in Toronto brought the comment that the officials contacted would not comment on "rumors."

Robert Allore To Be Thanked For His Services

TRENTON — Trenton council will send a letter of thanks and appreciation to Robert Allore, retiring chairman of the Trenton Conservancy Gardens' Commission.

At Monday night's meeting of council, Mr. Allore's letter of resignation was read. "Bob" is leaving Trenton July 1 to take up residence in Montreal, in connection with his employment.

Meanwhile, council will appoint a successor to Mr. Allore at the gardens' board at the next council meeting, June 15.

TO CHECK OWNERSHIP

Mr. Arthur Collette, of the real estate firm of Collette and LaGrace, thought the Manitoba maple tree in front of his office building on Division Street was an asset to his building and an excellent source of shade in the hot summer months.

That was until the public utilities workmen came along and lopped the tree, to the extent where it not only serves no useful purpose as a shade tree, but the tree itself split in a high wind.

Now, Mr. Collette views the tree in the light of a liability. Another high wind could send it crashing down upon his building.

He would like it removed by council.

Council agrees it would be better down than up, but isn't quite sure who does own it. If the town does, council will pay to have it removed. If Mr. Collette owns it . . . he'll have to pay to have it removed.

MAY BUY LAND

Trenton council voted Monday night to investigate the possibility of buying a triangular piece of land, approximately 25 feet x 25 feet x 25 feet at its apex, on the north terrace on Quinte Street. This property is owned by the Gitleman estate and council would like to secure the land before anyone else does, in order to widen Quinte Street at this point, and thus ensure a better flow of traffic.

TAKE SECOND LOOK

Illuminated traffic direction signs . . . perhaps thought to be "necessities" in some communities, are, in the minds of Trenton councillors, "luxury items."

Council voted Monday night to take a second look at the prices for an illuminated sign at the 4 top of Gilmour Hill, which would direct motorists to Highway 401 and let them know that they were on Highway Two.

Reflector signs, which would probably serve the same purpose and which would be supplied free of charge by the Ontario Department of Highways, will be considered.

HAPPY IN MONASTERY

NEW YORK (AP) — Dolores Hart, blonde actress who abandoned Hollywood a year ago to enter a Roman Catholic monastery, says she has found happiness and satisfaction. Miss Hart, 25, was interviewed Sunday by New York Post reporter Nancy Seely at Regina Laudis, the Benedictine sisters' monastery in Bethlehem, Conn., where she is a postulant.

Blame Monoxide For Two Deaths

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jo-Ann Milligan, 17, of London, and her 21-year-old companion, Clifford Linthwaite—found dead in a parked car in suburban Delaware Township Monday—died of carbon monoxide poisoning "probably sometime early Sunday," coroner Dr. J. F. G. Colling said Tuesday.

Dr. Colling performed autopsies on the young couple, found by an area farmer Monday in a woodlot.

P. E. District Masons Visit Toronto Lodge

TRENTON — Around 80 Masonic members from Prince Edward District, including 30 lodge members from Trenton, attended a Fraternal Night at the Bay of Quinte lodge in Toronto, last Saturday. Total attendance at the inter-lodge meeting was 200. This included 11 Masters from the Prince Edward District and W.M. J. A. Webb.

The lodge members enjoyed dinner in the banquet room of the York Masonic Temple at 3 Eglinton Ave. East. Entertainment was provided by a quartet of students from Lawrence Park Collegiate.

Guest speaker was Deputy Grand Master Rt. Wor. Bro. Hon. James N. Allen, M.L.A., who is Grand Master-elect for the Grand Lodge.

The Deputy Grand Master took as his topic, "Canada Growing Up." Quoting population figures, he pointed out that in 1864, Canada's population stood at three and a half million—in 1964, more than 19 million. In 1921, government expenses were $6 per capita—in 1961, $650 per capita. The Deputy Grand Master also gave statistics on the progress of industrial and agricultural growth through manufacturing. Progress in the province is also reflected in the growth of Masonic lodges and membership—there are now approximately 165,000 in Ontario.

Bro. Hon. A. Keiso Roberts M.L.A., proposed the toast to the lodges of Prince Edward District and this was replied to by Prince Edward District Deputy Grand Master, A. Clare McGee.

Charter members of the Bay of Quinte Toronto Lodge, came, for the most part, from the district, hence the name chosen—when the lodge was first formed in 1923. Saturday night's meeting was 25-year old Bro. William Griffiths, one of the charter members of the Toronto lodge, who transferred from his mother lodge, Dundas, at Belleville.

A toast to guests from lodges other than the host lodge and the Prince Edward lodge, was proposed by Bro. Hon. Leonard M. Reilly, M.L.A.

Wor. Bro. Shaw McDevie of the Bay of Quinte Lodge, expressed his pleasure at having so many from the Prince Edward District Lodge attend the meeting. Wor. Bro. McEwen owns the Dundas lodge as his mother lodge, as he became a Mason in 1936 while on the teaching staff at Trenton high school.

Frame Home On Smithfield Road Gutted

TRENTON — A frame house on the Smithfield Road, at R. R. 6, Trenton, was partially destroyed by fire yesterday, and a family of eight was forced to seek temporary refuge with friends.

The house was owned by Gerald Ross and occupied by Ben Hiemstra, his wife and six children, ranging in age from two to 11.

Mr. Hiemstra, who works in Trenton, had left for work when the fire broke out shortly after nine a.m. Mrs. Hiemstra told Brighton firemen she had been attempting to light a fire in the wood stove. She was unable to telephone the fire department as her phone was out of order and neighbors turned in the alarm.

Loss in the fire was set by Fire Chief Edwin Boes at $3,000. Firemen and neighbors managed to save most of the furniture and clothing.

Fire last year destroyed a barn beside the Hiemstra's house.

On completion of this conversion course Flight Lieutenant Wright, and his instructors will train other RCAF Pilots, who will fly the new helicopters at Search and Rescue units across Canada.

Mr. Donald G. Rikley, B.A., M. Ed., former resident of this area, graduates from the Ontario College of Education, University of Toronto, with a Master of Education degree on June 10, 1966. Recently Mr. Rikley was a successful candidate for the elementary school inspector's certificate, and has accepted a position with the Ontario Department of Education at Campbellford.

Long Courses Are Obsolete Says Official

KINGSTON (CP) — A British Columbia mining executive told the Chemical Institute of Canada Tuesday that university engineering courses over four and five years are obsolete.

E. G. A. Colls of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, Trail, B.C., told the Institute's three-day conference that the obsolescence is caused by the rapid change of science and discovery.

"Perhaps the best solution," he said, "is to provide a basic grounding at university level which would supply a young man with sufficient understanding to base his future education in the industrial sphere of his choice.

"Clearly, no four-or five-year engineering courses can prepare a man for many years ahead in view of the ultra-rapid change that science and discovery impose on the world and him."

At another session, Prof. D. J. LeRoy of the University of Toronto said soft-core students are partially responsible for a two-thirds failure rate among Toronto honors chemistry students.

"Non-studious students think they can get by on native ability alone," he said. "They just won't attend tutorial lessons, they won't go and see their professors for consultation, and their assignments aren't handed in."

Dr. LeRoy said he gathered statistics for 10 years of those honor students who passed out of their first year with an average between 55 and 60 per cent.

"We found practically zero were graduated in the honors program."

Unity Threats Overshadow Other Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—"Threats to our political unity overshadow all our other problems," R. B. Keeler, president and chairman of the Board of Northern Electric Company Limited, told deans and professors of science faculties of Canadian universities at a conference Tuesday.

"On the eve of the centenary of Confederation it is time to take steps towards a clearer national identity within the Commonwealth," he said.

He described three major groups of Canadians: Those of French descent, some people "more British than the British themselves," and "the many millions of Canadians who feel neither antipathy to the Crown nor the tug of British apron strings."

One-Way Street Recommended By Committee

TRENTON — The Trenton Traffic Committee, headed up by Councillor C. V. Graham, has recommended to town council that King Street, from Dundas Street West to Elgin Street be made a one-way street, with traffic proceeding in a northwesterly direction only. Cars and buses could not turn off the market square onto King Street and proceed to the post office corner. Nor could they proceed south down the entire length of King Street, make a left hand turn from Elgin onto King Buses, coming from Belleville, could turn onto King Street and make their way to the terminal, but would have to leave the terminal by the Division Street route, making a left turn onto Dundas Street West at the theatre corner.

Council's decision on making a resolution to cover the recommendation will be delayed until after the widening of Division Street, between King Street and Dundas Street West, for obvious reasons.

MAY CHANGE ENTRANCE

Mayor James MacDonald will approach officials connected with the beer retail outlet on Dundas Street East to get their reaction to a recommendation brought in by the traffic committee of council Monday night that entrance to the warehouse from Dundas Street East be cut off. The committee thinks entering the warehouse lot from the main street gives rise to traffic confusion, and that would-be purchasers could as easily approach the lot from Byron or Campbell Street.

APPRECIATE GESTURE

A letter of appreciation from Dougall Bleecker, Jr., was read at Monday night's meeting of town council. Mr. Bleecker wrote that it had been "with a considerable amount of pride and pleasure" that he had read in the newspaper that council meant to honor four old Trenton families by naming their streets in the proposed North Byron Street land assembly development after them. Streets in the housing development are to be named Bleecker Ave., Graham Ave., Cory Street, (or Ave.) and Ireland Street (or Ave.).

John Bleecker was one of Trenton's two first settlers, (the other was a John Smith); "Graham" honors an old-time Trenton family, contemporary members of which are Lt.-General Howard D. Graham and Councillor C. V. Graham; Cory Street will be named for Harry Cory, and Ireland Street will honor the late William Ireland, a former mayor and a constituency conservative while in this area.

"My late father would have been very proud of council's action," said Mr. Bleecker in his letter. Dougall Bleecker died in Toronto last year, after spending a lifetime in Trenton.

'Squealing' Tires Costly for Trenton Man

TRENTON — A Trenton man, Robert Pacey, paid $30 in Trenton court yesterday as a reminder not to make "unnecessary noise on Trenton streets while operating his car."

The court was told that Mr. Pacey had "screeched" his tires while drawing away from a parking meter. At the time, he was on his way to the police station to pay a parking fine.

At the station, Mr. Pacey, who admitted to the court that he "had a hot tempper," was said to have used profane language to a police constable, refused to show his license, locked himself in his car and taken off from the station, again "squealing" the tires.

In the witness box, Mr. Pacey said that he was "mad about having to pay the parking fine."

He said however, that the constable at whom he had sworn, Constable Frederick Nokes, had taken the keys from his car while he was paying the parking fine, and had thrown them under the car, necessitating him (Pacey) crawling under the car to retrieve them.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills warned the accused against making unnecessary noise, while operating his vehicle.

One Right, One Wrong

Dr. Reginald D. Atkinson of Waterloo, retiring president of the Ontario Medical Association, has urged doctors to take stronger disciplinary measures against erring colleagues.

Dr. Atkinson did well to make such a plea, in the light of some recent incidents. It is in the interests of all, and not merely of the doctors themselves, that everything possible be done to repair whatever damage may have been done to the public's faith in the profession.

We ought to recognize the validity of one of the two reasons why, Dr. Atkinson said, many doctors are reluctant to discipline their colleagues. The valid reason is the fact that much of medical practice is a matter of judgment. In matters of judgment, honest men may well differ, and be decided by merely counting heads. Any tendency to penalise a doctor because he happened to hold a minority opinion would not only be most unfair to the doctor but would also be against the best interests of patients.

It is distressing to find coupled with such a legitimate reason for caution a second reason which no person of sane mind would consider in the same category. Dr. Atkinson said that because a doctor is unprepared for any other occupation some colleagues hesitate to move to revoke his licence. Any statement less likely to help "restore the public's faith in the profession" would be difficult to imagine. Incompetents are not rehabilitated by either jobs for humanitarian reasons, but such a policy, if ever wise, is only defensible when the jobs are unimportant.

Imagine permitting an incompetent aeronautical engineer to design planes, because he was not prepared for any other occupation!

Where the lives, or the welfare, of others depend upon proper discharge of duties, not only in the medical profession but in teaching, engineering, military command, the administration of justice—even truck driving—the financial hardship inflicted on the incompetent by depriving him of work is inconsequential compared with the damage which may be done the incompetent by permitting him or her to continue working.

First War Story Told

The BBC has completed a television series on the First Great War. Critics who have seen the opening episodes are hailing it as a triumph, perhaps second to "The Valiant Years," the dramatization of Churchill's history of The Second Great War. The new series will probably be shown in Canada.

Will it interest large audiences? Not so large, we should think, as the earlier series on the Second Great War. For some reason, we are most attracted to historical movies or books when we have lived through the things they depict or describe. Not so many people nowadays remember the First Great War as recall the Second.

But for a handful of veterans of the first conflict, and for their contemporaries who spent long years waiting for their return, the passing of the additional years may merely have enhanced the appeal of the series. The rest of us ought to recall how heedless we thought the younger members of the household when they turned away from "The Valiant Years" and Richard Burton's magnificent voice bringing the Churchill of the early forties alive again. We shall have the opportunity to prove that we have a greater appreciation of the past than our offspring. If we make the attempt, we may even find that we enjoy the story of the first War as we did that of the Second.

Royal Road to Happiness

Eddy Gilmore, the veteran Associated Press reporter, spent too many years in Moscow not to recognize propaganda when he hears it. Nor is he the type of newspaperman who would knowingly assist in a propaganda campaign—anybody's propaganda campaign.

One is thus forced to the conclusion that, when he says in a story Wednesday that queens rule nations but princes rule the royal homes, he is convinced of the accuracy of that statement in the cases in point, Prince Bernhard of The Netherland and Prince Philip being the housemates in question.

Unfortunately, the supply of nations is not large enough to permit every June bridegroom to bestow this desirable dowry on his bride and it is doubtful whether anything less than a nation to rule will satisfy the feminine instinct for domination and leave the new husband in control of the house.

Wants Sand Banks Preserved

By Douglas H. Pimlott, Department of Zoology, University of Toronto

In Ontario there are a number of very interesting tie terms of geology, physiography and ecology) sand dune formations on the shores of Lake Ontario, Lake Erie and Lake Huron. They are the Pinery (7 miles south of Grand Bend), Wasaga Beach (southern end of Georgian Bay), Long Point (L. Erie, 9 miles south of Port Rowan) and three on Lake Ontario, Presqu'ile Sand Dunes, Scotch Bush Sand Banks and Outlet, both in Prince Edward County and within a short distance of Wellington.

These sand dune areas are favored for recreational development because of the fine sand beaches that are associated with them. Presqu'ile Provincial Park is an intensive use of the areas for either private development (e. g. Wasaga Beach) or for public use as Provincial Parks (e. g. Pinery, Long Point, Presqu'ile and Outlet Parks) with camping and picnicking as featured activities. The only areas that remain virtually undeveloped are the outer end of Long Point (which is privately owned) and Outlet Sand Banks. Apparently these are two of the most significant areas. . . .

The Sand Banks area is an elongated strip between Lake Ontario and Yee or West Lake. It is approximately five miles long from the Consecon turn-off at Wellington to its base at Owen Point. The sands of the beach and dune complex are glacial in origin. Long-shore drift shaped the beach and distributed the sand configuration. Presently blowing during a low water stage of Lake Ontario, immediately following the Iroquois, initiated dune formation. When Prince Edward County was first settled a considerable portion of the eastern end of the spit was under forest cover. A road from Consecon to Owen Point cut across the eastern end of the dunes and along it were located a hotel, a few stores and a number of homes. At this time Prince Edward County was being intensively settled and the forest on the dunes, which contained a considerable amount of white cedar, was gradually cut. The dunes began to move again and the hotel and other buildings disappeared under the sand. Following the first world war attempts to reforest the area were made by the Ontario Forestry Branch. The initial effort though quite intensive was unsuccessful except for the southeastern section of the dunes where Scotch pine was established. The reforestation program continued a varying levels of intensity until the late thirties but was almost completely unsuccessful. It is reported that every known native species were planted. An interesting point that began in 1907 has been stressed as a considerable portion of the eastern dunes now has plantations of Carolina poplar, black locust and Scotch pine. These plantings appear to have succeeded in breakdown and in active progress, but combined with the physiographic nature of the area and the associated ecology of the dune complex this is most significant area and should not be further altered by human intervention. . . .

I became interested in the area during the summer of 1963 when I spent several weeks in Prince Edward County working with a graduate student and officials of the Department of Lands and Forests at this time indicated that they were to be immediate plans to develop the area for recreational purposes. However, the Department of Lands and Forest News Release of April 17, 1964 (Vol. 17, No. 16) contained an announcement by the Hon. A. Kelso Roberts, Q.C. It stated that development work will start this spring of the Sand Banks Provincial Park. The announcement further stated that a bridge will be constructed at Wellington to join the mainland to the Sand Banks. It went on further stated, "From there a paved road will meander through the dunes and at suitable intervals lookouts and parking lots will be provided. Any part of the beach will be within walking distance of the long white beach. Campgrounds are planned for the southern end, among the plantations which were established there.

"Sand Banks will be 120 miles by road from downtown Metro and Hamilton and able to comfortably accommodate 30,00 bathers at a time. It will be a fine companion park to nearby Outlet Beach which handled 300,000 visitors and 17,000 campers in 1963 and popular Presqu'ile Park, 35 miles west, which handled about 297,000 visitors and 30,000 campers last summer."

I consider that it is vitally important that the remaining sand dune areas of Ontario, Canada should be preserved. I do not suggest that human use be completely restricted but that future development be centred around the use that can be made of the areas by persons travelling on foot or by boat. I also suggest that reforestation and other stabilization programs be discontinued.

If such a policy is applied to the Sand Banks, it could still result in a great deal of use of the area for special recreation purposes. A foot bridge at Wellington would permit access from the northwestern end of the area and would make the beach accessible for hiking (it is a comfortable 2-3 hour walk from Wellington to Owen Point), swimming, bird watching, botanizing or just simply enjoying the geological process of sand dune construction and destruction.

I urge sportsmen, naturalists, hikers and other outdoor enthusiasts to take a strong stand in this matter. In addition to the basic need and right to retain such a valuable and interesting natural area, there is also a need to keep the sands free from dominating every single aspect of our lives in the out of doors.

I suggest that persons or individuals in other parts of Canada also consider they that have the right to speak in this matter. Lake sand dune formations are rare in Canada hence those that occur in Ontario are of national as well as of provincial significance. Ontario has not encouraged the development of National Parks within the province, hence should be urged to establish a concept of national interest as it pertains to parks and to preservation of distinctive, rare environments.

Letter to the Editor

Suggests Footbridge Only to Sand Banks

Editor, Intelligencer:

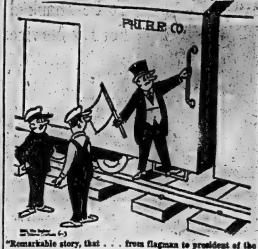
In a recent editorial you spoke out in favor of the proposal by the Hon. A. Kelso Roberts, Q.C., Minister of Lands and Forests, to develop the proposed turning the Sand Banks area of Prince Edward County into an open picnic, camping and bathing area.

While no one can argue against the need for more and better recreational facilities of this type, still I think we look should be taken as to the inevitable result of the proposal by the Hon. Minister.

You mentioned that Dr. Pimlott of the University of Toronto has voiced strong objections to this plan and that you agreed with him from a sentimental point of view. There is far more to this question than mere sentiment. We should be thankful that people of Dr. Pimlott's ability, vision and knowledge have taken a strong stand in behalf of the people of Ontario, who do not believe that every unique area in the Province must be invaded by the motor car.

That the Sand Banks should be forbidden territory to all would be ridiculous; however the intention to build a paved road running through the dunes complete with parking areas would spoil the end of the Sand Banks in a short time. The stated intention is to have accommodation for nearly 30,000 bathers at one time. Assuming that an average of four people arrive in each car, accommodation must be found for some 7,500 cars. A rough estimate would show that at least 50 acres of the dunes would require parking facilities to the acreage required for the motor road. What would be so unique about a field of sand and dune? We can all look at pavement during the week, but the average citizen is ready to rest his eyes on something more natural when he has time for recreation.

Open up the Sand Banks by all means, but do it with a foot bridge only at Wellington so that those people who claim that they are interested only have ready access at either end on the Banks, and they can enjoy a hike, a picnic, a swim or study the marvels of the dunes themselves.



The beach area between Lake Ontario and North Bay, near Consecon, is a fine example of what happens when man has followed free access to the sand dunes of that area. The whole beach accessible parts of the sand dunes are littered with broken glass and trash. This is not where we would like our children to play in the sand. Do we really want to see a fine beach and sand dune area such as we have at Sand Banks suffer a similar fate?

If we do not protect our unique resources today, in all probability tomorrow will be too late. Shall we have our descendants cheer us for our foresight or condemn us forever for our stupidity and lack of vision? We have a choice now; later we will not. Far too many similar mistakes have been made in the past, and being sorry is no insurance.

"Save the Sand Banks".

Supportive Hose Will Help Retard Varicose Veins

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will elastic hose help prevent varicose veins? I'm only 22 but stand all day at work. Please send me your booklet on "How To Deal With Varicose Veins." — J. P.

I can't say that supportive hose will help "prevent" varicose veins. But they will help retard the process. They will also afford a great deal of relief after the veins have become swollen and varicosed.

The important point to remember, perhaps, is that varicose veins develop in people who happen to have veins which don't stand up under pressure as well as we'd wish.

This is a matter of degree. One may have veins with a weakness (perhaps not in all veins, but in some of those of the legs) which decrees that they are inclined to become varicose no matter what you do. Yet what one does can make a lot of difference in how soon the varicose veins develop, how much they bother, how bad they look, and how successful any other treatment will be.

At the other extreme are people with rugged veins which do not become varicosed even though they stand on their feet all day, do things that would cause other individuals a lot of trouble; get fat; too often, too many hours, wearing tight round garters, and so on.

So some people violate all the rules, and others will have trouble even if they follow all the rules. The rest of us are in between these extremes.

When a vein starts to become varicose at some point, it is the extra further pressure on other parts of it, and the unhappy condition becomes double bad. The booklet explains why and how this happens.)

Anyone's veins varicose veins begin to be apparent, you really don't have much choice about "curing" them. What you can do is to keep the condition from progressing any faster than is necessary. You may or may not ultimately need surgery.

Elastic hosiery can help. Knowing how to move (even if your job keeps you in one place for hours), and how to give your veins a rest by keeping your legs elevated from time to time also is advisable.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have polyps of the nose and have had them removed several times. I use a "sneeller" and have had fainting spells during or right after removal.

My doctor now suggests that I go for allergy tests, and says that so far we have done nothing to find out what causes them. He does not want to keep removing them because of the risk. What is your opinion? — O. C.

Your doctor is making excellent sense. Removal of a nasal polyp is a simple office procedure as a rule. In your case, it is the fainting attempted quite so lightly.

While we do not know the exact cause of polyps (and they are benign—growths when in the nose) we have from long observation noted that continued irritation seems to explain many of them.

Allergy can be a "continued irritation" all right!

So yes, I think it is a sensible idea to try to find out what allergies you have, so you can avoid the offending substances or have treatments to desensitize you.

Note to Mrs. B. L. S.: I do not flatly oppose sterilization; I merely advise, as strongly as I can, that it should not be done without real and serious reason. But having had two babies die at birth, a miscarriage and a fourth baby saved only with great difficulty, and a warning that further pregnancies endanger both your life and the baby's — well, that is hardly a trivial reason. . . .

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, Box C, Bon Air, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 30 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling

We Protect Our Own Anxieties Unknowingly

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Sometimes, walking in the park with the dog, I willfully violate Ordinance 19-1, and let him off the leash for a few minutes. Anyone can see that he is a harmless puppy.

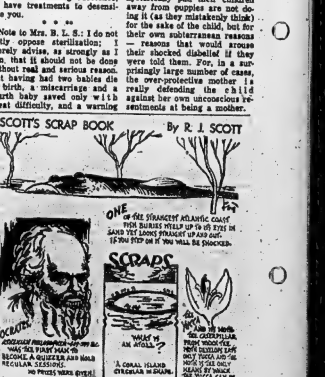
Anyone, that is, except an appallingly large number of mothers with small children. They see the dog, and immediately pull them to their breasts, and utter frightened moans over the ferocious beast approaching.

The little children, naturally, take this fear transmitted by the mothers, and begin to wail themselves. And thus is begun what may well be a lifelong fear of dogs and other animals.

Unknowingly, we project our own anxieties and hypersensitivities upon our children before they are able to judge the reality of the situation for themselves. An infant is born with only two fears — of falling and of loud noises; all the rest are instilled by those around him.

This is not to say that some fears should not be instilled. The child must learn to fear fire and open windows and bottles of medicine and razor blades — but these are objective and realistic things. The fears that paralyze some people for a lifetime are unrealistic ones, bobgoblins of the mind.

Moreover, it is the attitude and not the object itself that is the decisive influence. Children, especially in the city, must be made wary about talking to strangers, getting candy or rides from them. But they must not be made fearful of strangers in such a way that permanent damage can be done to the personality.



There is a fine line between trust and mistrust is a thin and precarious one. My children love and trust their dog, but have been trained always to ask the owner's permission before they go up to pet one. They are known to the dog, but first they want to know if she can be known to them.

It is better with children, I believe, to err on the side of caution rather than on that of carelessness. The worst that can happen is a nip from an ill-tempered dog, which is not dangerous to the child than a rigid attitude of suspicion and fear. Damage to the body is rarely as critical (or as irreversible) as damage to the emotions.

The mothers in the park who hysterically pull their children away from puppies are not doing it (as they mistakenly think) for the sake of the child, but for their own subterranean reasons — reasons that would arouse their shocked disbelief if they were told them. For, in a surprisingly large number of cases, the over-protective mother is really defending the child against her own unconscious resentments at being a mother.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks moved lower on the stock market in reduced morning trading today.

CPR set the example for industrials as it fell ¾ to 45¾. Algoma Steel and Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway were off ⅝ to 69¼ and 35 respectively. Bell Telephone and Abitibi slipped ¼ to 36¼ and 14⅝. Massey - Ferguson tacked on ¼ to 29.

Speculative mining issues were subdued, with mixed prices prevailing. New Kelore and Trinity Chibougamau were ahead two cents to 36¼ and 35 while Bunker Hill dropped three cents to 80 cents and Genex ¼ cent to 33½.

Senior base metals saw Conmco slip ⅛ to 35¼ and Falconbridge ¼ to 72.

Kerr-Addison eased five cents to 57.80 in golds.

On index, industrials were down .59 to 156.00, golds .21 to 128.30, base metals .12 to 63.98 and the Exchange index .30 to 143.78. Western oils were up .34 to 100.78. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,197,000 shares compared with 1,526,000 shares at the same time Tuesday.

Stocks lacked leadership on the market Tuesday.

Volume for the day was 5,425,000 shares, a sharp drop from the 7,012,000 shares traded Monday.

Volume decline was attributed to a loss of steam among speculative mining issues.

Only strong show was put on by Norbeau which gained 17 cents to 77 cents. New Kelore took honors as the day's most active issue, churning through 491,700 shares, but it only changed ¼ a cent—a gain to 34½ cents. Most other stocks were easier. MacDonald dipped 4½ cents to 43½, Belleterre four cents to 68 cents, Bunker Hill and Genex two cents to 63 and 34 and National Exploration one cent to 25 cents.

An example of the lack of headway made during the session was provided by industrials. The industrial index, a measurement of the market's health, was unchanged at 156.29.

Massey-Ferguson returned to favor with a gain of ¾ to 30¾ after selling at a new high of 29¾. Investors Syndicate A was ahead 2½ to 62.

Great Lakes Paper led losers, dipping ¾ to 25⅞. Imperial Oil and Dominion Bridge each slipped ½ to 51¼ and 21¼.

While the remainder of the market was uncertain, western oils were firm.

Noranda declined ⅛ to 45¾ among base metals. In other mining issues, Lafleh, a recent victim of selling, climbed 20 cents to 84.00.

Kerr-Addison was ahead 10 cents, to 57.85 among golds.

On index, golds were up .08 to 134.61, base metals were down .03 to 64.07, western oils 1.87 to 100.34 and the exchange index .07 to 146.28.

Beef Producers Visit Renfrew

On Thursday last, members of the Hastings County Beef Improvement Association enjoyed an educational visit to Renfrew County.

Entering by way of No. 7 Highway the group made its first stop at the farm of Hugh Gray to see a commercial steer enterprise.

In Renfrew County, Keith Thomson's farm, Glasgow Station, was the first visited. Mr. Thompson has an operation similar to that of Mr. Grace's but buys local steers.

The next stop was at Murray Gallagher's farm where he has a large automatic feeding station, using Western steers. Gerald Rankin, Foresters Falls, had a small but quality Hereford cow-calf operation; while at John Hawthorne's Queenvee Ranch, the group saw some excellent purebred Herefords. Then Harold Gallagher's farm they saw another steer feeder operation. Mr. Gallagher ships approximately 300 steers per year.

Of interest to all were the alfalfa plot demonstrations on Barkley Dick's Farm, Douglas Station.

The tour was an excellent one, both educational and scenic.

County 4-H Homemaking Clubs Complete Year's Spring Project

In the past two weeks, Hastings County's 4-H Homemaking Clubs completed the Spring Project, "Sleeping Garments". Achievement Days were held on May 22 at Moira Secondary School, Belleville, and on May 30, at Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc. On display were nightgowns, pyjamas and record books completed during the project.

Similar programs were followed each day. In the morning the girls judged classes of pyjamas and fabrics, and took part in group discussions of the pyjama classes. They also practised one skill learned in the project—by sewing on lace by hand. In the afternoon, each Club presented an educational skit, demonstration or exhibit relating to the project.

Club members completing the project, as well as leaders and assistants, were presented with sterling silver teaspoons in the 4-H Homemaking Club design. Certificates of Achievement, for completion of 2 clubs were presented to 49 girls at the South Hastings Day, and 33 girls at the North Hastings Day. Fourteen girls received County Honors, an award presented to club members who have completed six Homemaking Club units. Will Deduct Appeal Gifts

Effective for all united community campaigns conducted after December 31, 1964, public service and armed forces personnel in Canada will have the privilege of payroll deduction for their contributions to these campaigns. Such contributions will be voluntary and revocable.

This decision of the Treasury Board was announced by the Hon. Judy LaMarsh, Minister of National Health and Welfare, during her luncheon address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council held at Hamilton.

This action of the Government of Canada comes in response to several formal requests made by the Community Funds and Councils of Canada, a Division of the Canadian Welfare Council. Federal government employees across Canada will be able to donate more generously to the several thousand voluntary health, welfare and character building programs which receive support from united campaigns.

2 Women Graduate In Heating Course

Two Quinte district women were among a class of 16 persons successfully completing a 30-hour course in electrical heating held in Belleville. Mrs. Gena Miller, wife of an electrical contractor in Picton, and Mrs. Stan VanKeer of Trenton both achieved marks well above the class average in the course. CNR Pensioners Entertained at Turkey Dinner

The biggest turkey dinner of the year — so far — was served in Belleville yesterday.

Nearly 400 plates were set at Club Canada as CNR pensioners across Canada — and their wives took train for Belleville and their annual meeting.

The day was just one big visit. Speeches were held to a minimum by chairman Newt Thompson and the emphasis was on an atmosphere of personal reunion for the pensioners.

The upcoming Railroad Week in Belleville was outlined to the assembly by Rideau area manager Keith Hunt.

Mr. Hunt said the program for the big event was expected to be ready by the end of this week, with 45,000 copies printed.

CAKES ARE LIGHT

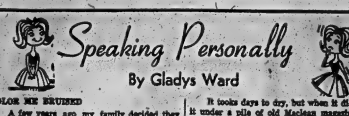
MELROSE W. I.

In spite of the inclement weather there was a splendid attendance at the May meeting of Melrose W.I. in Melrose hall, when they had as their guests members of the 4-H Club.

The new president, Mrs. G. Stratton welcomed all and thanked the hostesses, Mrs. R. Grahame and Mrs. R. Fox after which the minutes were read as well as an appreciative letter from the adopted Korean girl "Sim-Yon-Soo" who is in Grade 3.

Mrs. Roy McLaren, who had attended the conference for District Directors at Guelph, gave a glowing report of her trip. The theme throughout was: "To whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required" and Mrs. Trivers, president, WWIO, presided at most of the sessions. She outlined the qualifications of the D.D., who holds a key position and must know the hand book. Some of her characteristics are that she must be capable, interested, be able to take notes, be elected every year and promote a close link between the District and Branch. There was a panel discussion on "How to Revitalize Our Institute," which brought out many good recommendations.

The centennial program for 1967 with the motto "Make Canada Lovelier" in body, mind and spirit was briefly reviewed. The delegates were privileged to visit the Adelaide Hoodless homestead which is situated close to St. George and has been renovated and refurnished recently.



4-H HOMEMAKING CLUB

The Girls' Club with 16 members completing the project under the leadership of Mesdames R. Cook, T. Howard and J. McFarlane, had a fashion parade modelling their "Sleeping Garments," which they had made, each stating her name, description of garment and cost of same. Seven members staged a novel skit, "What Makes Good Sleeping Garments," which took the form of a pyjama party where they enjoyed themselves by discussing the importance of selecting a pattern, taking correct measurements and choosing suitable material which won't shrink. They described the different methods of making a seam and stressed the importance of pressing as one proceeds in making a garment. Their demonstration and garments exhibited were a great credit to the girls and their leaders who were presented with gifts in appreciation of their time and instruction.

GRANDMOTHERS' PROGRAM

Mrs. S. Demill took charge of the grandmothers' program, which opened with several old time songs rendered by the grandmothers. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. O. Hagerman, and a reading by Mrs. L. McLaren. Mrs. R. Bailfordread the characters in a humorous skit, portrayed by five ladies, Mesdames R. Cook, A. English, G. McLaren, T. Howard and S. Demill. In a hilarious manner two demonstrated the method of reducing by exercise without dieting but the others decided to stick to their rigid diets. However, after attending a meeting where savory aromas from the kitchen permeated the entire atmosphere they decided maintenance to postpone their proposed program until tomorrow.

Lunch was served and a delightful evening came to a close.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

COLOR ME BRUISED

A few years ago my family decided they were going to make a Grandma Moses of me and bought me a set of oil paints, brushes, a canvas and a palette. (The rags to clean the brushes I supplied myself.)

I don't know where they got the impression I could paint unless it was because I bragged about doing a nice job of painting the kitchen cupboards.

But children have an idea (often mistaken) that their parents can do anything. As Jean Riley's song says, "Faith you have in me." On the wall of my living room is an oil painting that my mother did so perhaps they thought some of her talent had brushed off on me, like a bee pollinating a flower. I had never had an art lesson in my life, outside of school classes, but they thought I might be a primitive painter like Grandma Moses.

So one afternoon I set to work, whistling blithely, and decided in my primitive way to do something easy like a primitive seascape. I happily squeezed out yards of absolutely fascinating colors from little tubes like toothpaste. I got quite carried away and ended up with enough paint mixed to redo the kitchen cupboards.

I held my thumb up at arm's length and squinted at it. This didn't accomplish anything, but it made me feel professional. I painted the sky into my picture, but it looked a seasick green, so I added some black.

I'm not sure how to describe the finished product. The only thing it resembled was a plague of locusts swarming in over Egypt right out of the Old Testament.

It looks days to dry, but when it did, I hid it under a pile of old Maclean magazines and hoped nobody would find it while I was alive.

When my children ask me how I am getting along with my painting, I plead that I am too busy.

Grandma Moses, wherever your spirit abides, I hand you back your laurels.

Sometimes I look at those pictures that people paint with the brush held in their teeth or with their toes and I ponder on this. Perhaps next time I'll try that way, and see if I am more successful.

PIGGY BANKS

The polythene bottles that bleach and detergents come in make excellent piggy banks for children. They can be left in their original color or made glamorous by spraying with a gold, silver or copper tone spray. Four stubby corks can be used for legs, either glued on or inserted in holes cut with a sharp pointed paring knife.

Decorations can be added, and the pig doesn't have to be realistic looking. Bright colored felt can be cut into flowers and glued here and there.

The neck of the bottle makes a natural snout, and features such as eyes, mouth and nose are cut from felt, and glued on. A believable tail if made with a pipe cleaner, twisted into a curlicue and set into a slot made with an icepick. The slot for pennies is cut with a knife in the centre back and a swist of the nosecap will take care of the day when the bank is robbed.

Women Approve Motion Against Hate Literature

By JEAN SHARP

HAMILTON (CP) — The National Council of Women of Canada unanimously approved a resolution Tuesday night asking for legislation to provide stronger safeguards against the dissemination of hate literature.

Telegrams were sent immediately to the prime minister, the minister of justice and the postmaster general, informing them of the resolution.

The resolution, passed at the second day of the four-day annual meeting, urges:

"Amendments to the existing provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada to provide stronger safeguards against situations of racial discrimination and religious intolerance while continuing to respect the fundamental rights of the individual; and specifically to examine the use of public mails for communication which seeks to arouse racial antagonism, violence and hatred against any ethnic, religious or racial group."

GOT LITERATURE

Mrs. Robert Leighton of Nanaimo, B.C., a national chairman, told the 125 delegates representing 750,000 members that she had been receiving hate literature because of her post on the council.

Earlier in the day, delegates passed an amendment to a resolution on the council which had been approved Monday. The resolution now urges that section 150 of the Criminal Code be changed to make distribution of birth control information by qualified persons legal.

The original resolution proposed lifting the ban on birth control information and the sale of contraceptives by deleting three words in section 150. The amendment came after delegates expressed concern that the original resolution would also make advertising of contraceptives legal.

In another resolution, the council asked for "a royal commission to inquire into and report on the laws in Canada affecting abortion, and to recommend clarification and amendment to bring these laws into conformity with the realities of Canadian life."

BACK REHABILITATION

Delegates also approved a proposal supporting council executives to ask the federal government for more measures for the rehabilitation of women prisoners.

A $500 tax exemption for dependents as well as taxpayers at age 65 is asked in another resolution.

Government aid for care of the chronically ill was also urged. The meeting agreed to ask the federal government to give grants to provincial governments to build and maintain facilities and to provide medical and social care for the chronically, especially or physically ill, with standards based on standards in centres operating under a national hospital plan.

Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver was elected president, succeeding Mrs. Saul Hyes of Montreal.

COMPULSORY ENRICHMENT

Flour enrichment in the U.S. with thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and iron was made compulsory between January, 1943 and October, 1946.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

A family get-together was held at the home of Mr. W. Insley, Yeomans Street last evening on the occasion of the birthday of her twin daughters, Mrs. Robert Liddle, Belleville and Mrs. Richard (Nick) Eyestrs of North Bay. An evening of chit-chat and general sociability was enjoyed as it has been over ten years since the honored guests had celebrated their birthdays together. Refreshments including the birthday cake were served at the close of the evening by the hostess.

L. A. Members Present Cheque To Building Fund

On Tuesday night members of the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary totalling nearly 100 sat down to a pot luck supper in the Legion Hall. This was arranged by the Ladies' Auxiliary Branch in connection with Legion week. The tables were loaded with many varied dishes and looked attractive with vases of gay flowers.

Afterwards the children were thrilled by several movies of Canada's great North country, depicting bears, moose and other wildlife. A touch of nostalgia for the older members was a movie of the trooping of the color.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a cheque for $300 by president Betty Hodge, to president Norm Hardwick of the men's branch towards their building fund.

Thursday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary will be holding a special euchre.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: What can you do when you get an uncontrollable impulse to sneeze, but sneeze? I had a rather embarrassing experience the other evening at a party in the middle of dinner I started to sneeze and couldn't stop My wife almost blew a gasket and kept whispering I should leave the table until I could stop sneezing. But I just couldn't move. Afterward, I apologized to the table at large and everyone made a joke of my sneezing fit. It was a trying experience and I still don't know how one should correctly cope with it. — A. W., Providence, St. L.

Answer: When you have to sneeze, well, there's little you can do about it, whether or not the situation happens to be conducive to sneezing. If possible, when it happens at the dinner table, one should try to leave the room. But, if that is not the way things can be worked out, as one should turn one's back as much as possible and make sure the sneezing is well-muffled in a handkerchief.

Question: Whenever I have company, my husband exasperates me. He sits there and reads the paper or looks at television, instead of joining in the conversation. His alibi is that my friends and I only discuss children or school or what's going on in the neighborhood, and he has nothing to say. I think it's rude of him to ignore my friends so completely. Whenever one of his friends drops by I try to make him feel comfortable by speaking to him and offering refreshments. As a hostess, I've never had a similar obligation whenever a friend of mine is in the house! — Mrs. A. F., Albany, N. Y.

Answer: As long as your husband stays in the same room, he should make an attempt at conversation instead of burying his head in the paper or staring at the TV. If he doesn't care to socialize, then he should excuse himself, and go into another room instead of ignoring your guest so obviously.

The conference held May 6th and 7th was for District Directors. The duties of District Directors were outlined. Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

One of the wonders of babyhood is the development of manual dexterity. Busy fingers become aware of their usefulness at 3 or 4 months. Exciting to watch baby discover that fingers are fine for sucking, playing with and getting the feel of everything from nose to toes . . . toys to clothes. At 4 or 5 months he can grasp toys . . . at 6 and 7 hold his bottle securely. Eight or 9 months find those hands working together . . . and oh ought to recreate, at 1 year, he can pick up and pinch-hold small objects with nimble thumb and forefingers.

P.S. If baby doesn't conform to the above "norms", don't worry. He'll do these things in his own sweet time, the best time of all.

Never breakfast bemoanes with a flavour bogone. How about a special cereal surprise for baby? Gerber Strained Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal, Rice Cereal or Protein Cereal—all with Applesauce and Bananas. There's a casserole to whet an appetite! Each cereal is cooked with the fruit and ready to serve. All have delightful flavours and a wonderfully smooth, moist texture. The B-triplets—B1, B2, Niacinamide, riboflavin and niacin added.

Two sock stories. (1) If you've more than one tot in your house, why not initial sock bottoms with indelible ink? Saves sorting time . . . prevents mismating. (2) Remember, socks should be checked for flat stitches as these hard seams can cramp tender toes, too.

Vegetable wisdom. Babies, like grownups, should have plenty of green and yellow vegetables because they're important sources of vitamin-A. (That's the vitamin needed to help maintain normal vision and healthy skin.) Gerber Carrots, Sweet Potatoes, Mixed Vegetables and Garden Vegetables, like all good-tasting Gerber Foods, are specially processed to protect precious vitamins. As for meat-appeal, Gerber Vegetables have come-hither colours and garden-true flavours. Small wonder so many babies love them and thrive on them. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Women's Institutes

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE

The regular meeting of the Canniston-Corbyville Women's Institute was held on Monday, June 1st at Canniston town hall with Mrs. F. Reid, the president in charge. A good deal of business on the agenda was disposed of and the meeting turned over to Mrs. R. Wilson, convener for Canadian Industries, who presented as her topic Forestry and Lumber. Mrs. Wilson had researched her subject well and members were made aware of the advantages Canada has in the wealth of her forests and the many conveniences the citizens enjoy that would not be theirs at reasonable prices were it not for this immense natural resource and the great lumber trade that has sprung from it. Mrs. Wilson provided many interesting pictures of the lumber industry, from the baby tree to the tall forest giant to the great rolling mills.

The evening closed with a pleasant social hour over a friendly cup of coffee and lunch.

Stricter Inspection Of Processing Plants Requested by Association

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada is expected to pass a resolution today urging stricter inspection of Canadian food processing plants.

Complaints that mouse droppings, string and other matter were found by consumers in canned goods were aired at the opening of the association's annual meeting Tuesday by Mrs. R. W. Morningstar of Toronto.

Mrs. Morningstar, chairman of the association's national food committee, later told a reporter that a Saskatoon consumer reported finding mouse droppings in a can of spaghetti. Two Saskatchewan organizations — the Co - operative Women's Guild and the Federated Co-operatives of Saskatchewan — had complained about foreign materials in canned goods. Other complaints had also been received.

The 200 delegates from across Canada attending the meeting at Carleton University are being asked to report instances dealing with water and air pollution, tobacco advertising, safe packaging, consumer credit, contracts and grading, packaging and inspection standards for a number of goods.

UP FOR RE-ELECTION

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Ottawa, national president of the 25,000-member women's organization since 1951, is expected to be re-elected when the association brings in its slate of officers for the coming year. She is the only candidate for the post so far.

The association's continuing campaign against the use of trading stamps in Canada came up when Mrs. Morningstar read U.S. statistics showing more than half of all American customers are indifferent to stamps.

Quoting from a 1953 survey presented to the annual meeting of a national association of U.S. food chains, Mrs. Morningstar said 53 per cent of American customers did not care whether they received trading stamps with their food purchases.

The survey also stated that the cost of trading stamps to U.S. supermarkets was .16 per cent of their expenses, second only to personnel expense.

FIGURES SIGNIFICANT

"These figures are significant to us if we plan to pursue the abolition of stamps in Canada," Mrs. Morningstar said.

Dr. Pauline Jewett, a Liberal M.P., is to address the annual dinner of the association tonight.

The annual meeting ends Thursday with a reception for delegates given by Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the prime minister.

Hope that consumer education would eventually become a compulsory secondary school subject was expressed by Mrs. W. Victor George of Montreal.

Mrs. George, chairman of the association's special education committee, said the committee hopes home economic courses would eventually have two sections—household skills and theory of home economics.

TWO NOTEBOOKS

Among the many letters I receive, most request straight forward fashion advice while a few comment on some phase of fashion relating to the writer's own experience. Letters which fall into this last category are usually quite amusing and I do enjoy receiving them. This interchange of ideas is stimulating and often reveals a new fashion philosophy worth passing on to our readers.

M. J. B. of Ottawa has a fashion planning aid that is simple and practical. She sews her own dresses and has her suits and coats tailored. Everything she makes or plans to make is listed on separate sheets of a large loose-leaf notebook. Each page contains the pattern number, a swatch of the fabric or fabrics used, price and width per yard, price of the trim, etc., and total cost of the complete creation. At the end of each year, she knows exactly how much she has spent on clothes.

PATTERN NUMBERS

In her purse, she has a smaller notebook, also loose-leaf, containing listings of pattern numbers she has liked, swatches of her current wardrobe, future plans and other pertinent information. In this book, which she calls her "mobile", she has listed the measurements of her family including shoe sizes. She keeps both books up to date by removing pages as she either fills her requirements or a dress becomes obsolete.

I like her idea so much that I am going to borrow it. I realize that in principle, I have used it for years, at least in the "mobile" form, but I have yet to keep a large "at home" book with precise listings of costs and how many mileages I received from each costume.

Aside from this idea, M. J. B. wanted to know if the owner of the Indian sari was pleased with the evening gown she planned to have made. She, herself, wore her sari as an evening gown when she was pregnant. The sari was only pinned and draped so it expanded to meet the need. She said that she received many favorable comments about it.

She also reports having made a Meterlitti had to match a wool bropsical skirt. This tall tubular shape is a great come-up for those. "I should have washed my hair", says. It is warm and comfortable during the winter.

Enclosed with her amusing letter were several clippings, which were new to me and so an added bonus — a funny cartoon on fashion forecasting. Thank you again, Mr. B. J.

Horticultural Society Enjoys Scenic Tour

STIRLING — Last Thursday Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president of the Stirling Horticultural Society, Mrs. Ray Rose, secretary, Mrs. Ashley and Mrs. F. Brown, went by chartered bus to Ottawa and enjoyed the fourth annual house and garden tour sponsored by the Laurentian Chapter of the I.O.D.E.

The proceeds from this tour will be used to further educational and welfare work of the chapter. Fifteen I.O.D.E. chapters were represented as well as visitors from other organizations. The group gathered at the Laurentian House where they enjoyed their own box lunch.

The tour began at the home of the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson and Mrs. Pearson. This house was built in 1868 and purchased by the Government of Canada in 1943. Prime Minister St. Laurent first occupied it in 1951 after renovations were completed. There were pictures in the main hall which dated back to 1810 and beautiful pictures displayed throughout the various rooms.

The second home visited was that of the Most Rev. Sebastiano Baggio, the apostolic delegate. The Manor House was built in 1929 for Senator C. Wilson and her husband Norman on the site of the first house in Rockcliffe Park Village. It is now the home of the Pope's special envoy to Canada.

On display were 14 pieces of 18th century venetian furniture which once belonged to the family of the Prince of Alcantara. The rooms contained articles from the Spanish 16th century and paintings dated 1590. His Excellency kindly allowed his private chapel open to visitors and the volunteers pointed out several articles of Venetian carved wood and Florentian pictures.

The third home visited was that of Mrs. H. S. Southam. The late Mr. Southam had it built in 1911. The home is filled with many pictures painted by Canadians. The rugs are Chinese and master bedroom contains a beautiful antique aubusson rug. A comprehensive group of Henri Masson's pictures were displayed in strategic places throughout the home.

SWISS AMBASSADOR'S

The fourth visit was to the Swiss ambassador, Hans W. Gasser. He purchased this embassy 18 years ago and it was furnished with Swiss reproductions of Louis 15 and 16 pieces. Mr. Gasser who specializes in French furniture and German porcelain of the 18th century found that his own antiques, pictures and chandeliers blended perfectly with existing decor. The table in the dining room was laid for a small official dinner with Bavarian hand painted porcelain and French silver candelabra. The book cases on either side of the black and white marble fireplace in the large drawing room held a complete first edition of the works of Rousseau. There were many treasures which included an 18th century gilt bronze clock and a chest of drawers dated 1750.

The fifth visit was to the home of the Mexican ambassador, E. Rafael Urdaneta and Mrs. Urdaneta. This house was formerly a Booth home and for the past 14 years the ambassadors from Mexico have resided there. The present occupants have collected treasures from many lands. The Louis 15 room is a work of art and the study contains lovely portraits. There are many clay figures which are modern copies of those found in Aztec and Mayan tombs.

The last home was that of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Feller which they designed entirely themselves. The driveway is kept clear of snow by heated pipes and the light standards are from an old Quebec house, now demolished. The entrance lobby floor is white Roman travertine while the walls are of swirled rubber with radiant heating. The home contains many beautiful articles such as a French marble table, a Spanish iron candle holder and rugs from Paris. The tour included visits to the kitchen, the study, the main powder room, the bedrooms upstairs, and the downstairs recreation area. Themes in the garden where a huge sugar maple is the main shade tree. There were species from all over the world in this garden of formal English style. The water from the sculpture of "Laughing Boy" ripples into the pool and gives the garden a unique appearance.

The tour concluded with a special drive along the Rideau Canal. There were all kinds of lilacs, but the tulips were almost a thing of the past. The journey ended at the Parliament Buildings and the group did some shopping before the trip homewards.

Miss Elinor Elizabeth Mary (Betty) Elsa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Elsa, Northwood Crescent, graduated from the School of Nursing of the Strathford General Hospital. Graduation exercises were held in the Festival building at Stratford on Saturday, May 30th. Miss Elsa attended B.C.I. and V.S. and is a graduate of Mohra Secondary School. She is accepted for classes beginning September 7th this year at Grace land College, Lamoni, Iowa, where she will take further studies toward an Associate Arts Degree in Nursing.

Miss Diane Burley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burley, 7 Hutton Drive, received her Bachelor of Arts degree at the spring convocation held at Western University, London, on Thursday, May 28. Diane has accepted a position in the English department, on the staff of College Avenue Secondary School, Woodstock, Ontario.

Ann Landers

Anyone Making Game Out Of Death Is a Tasteless Clod

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I work in an office where at least once a week someone approaches me about joining an office pool. If it isn't the Rose Bowl, a professional football game, or the Kentucky Derby, it's All-Star game or the World Series.

Gambling is against my principles but I have never criticized those who do it. I just say "No" and let it go. Something new has come up, however, and I wonder if I should say something.

Five of my co-workers have formed a pool in which of them has listed the names of 100 famous people who may die during 1964. When ANN LANDERS one of these people dies, the ones who had his name add points to their scores by deducting the age of the deceased from 100.

Recently a well known American died. Mr. X came into the office all smiles and announced triumphantly "He was on my list."

Under the rules it says, "If the player himself dies, ten points should be added to his score. If at the end of the year he is the winner, the proceeds of the pool should be spent for flowers for his grave, unless the surviving players should vote to have a party."

What do you think of this? — D.F.

DEAR D.F. — What you describe is a re-heated version of the old ghoul pool. Anyone who would make a game out of death is a tasteless clod.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is an emergency. I need help right away. I am 21, my fiance is 24. The wedding has been planned for September. I learned today that I am pregnant.

I'm ashamed to tell you how ignorant I am about these things. It will break my mother's heart if we don't have the big wedding as planned. That's all Mom has talked about for months.

The doctor said the baby is due in six months. Do you think if I wear a tight girdle and stand up straight I can get away with it? Hurry your answer — and put it in the paper, please. I can't have your reply coming to the house. — FINGERS CROSSED.

DEAR CROSSED — Sorry, I can't be of much help. I don't know if you are slim or heavy, whether you will gain 10 pounds or 40 pounds. Some girls look pregnant in the third month and others look as if they are going to a dance when they are really going to the hospital to deliver.

People can and do count, so don't plan on putting anything over —even with the help of a tight girdle. Your best bet is to level with your mother and ask her what she thinks should be done.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My sisters and I plan to give a party in honor of our parents' 35th wedding anniversary. Since my home is the largest, I have offered to have the party here.

The trouble is my folks know everybody in town and the guest list will run to about 300 people. My home can't accommodate that crowd, but I don't see how we can trim the list.

My husband suggested we remove all the chairs from the house to discourage people from sitting down. We plan to have sandwiches and a sweet table, but folks like to sit when they are having a snack — especially the men — so I vetoed the no-chair idea.

I know you are not running a social column, but this comes under the heading of a problem. Please suggest something. — HATTIE.

DEAR HATTIE — Stagger the guests. Invite 50 for 3:00 p.m., another 50 for 4:00 p.m. and so on.

Of course some people can be depended on to arrive with the first wave and to hang around till the last drop is poured, but nobody has ever figured out what to do about them, so don't try.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mother's Helper

PULLING a fewel off the red is easy for a shorty, but dropping it on the floor is much easier than struggling to put it back. Fasten a clip clothespin to a length of cord, tie the cord to the red so the pin can hold the towel at Junior's level. He'll like it—and so will you.

U.C.W. Meeting

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of the United Church Women of Beulah United Church was held at the home of Mrs. John Stephens. There were in attendance four members and two visitors.

Mr. Ian Munro, student minister, approached the U.C.W. re funds for the Missionary Maintenance Department of the church.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan. The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Clifford Mills. Mrs. Munro was in charge of the mission study. The president expressed appreciation to the hostess and closed the meeting with prayer.

Top Favorite Hawaiian Pork

by Mary Moore

One of the delightful dividends of writing a cookery column is that you meet good cooks, in some cases our postal friendships have developed into lasting personal friendships.

The recipe for Hawaiian Pork I am giving you today is from Mrs. H. G. H.'is Regina and she is such a good and generous cook I hope to meet her some day.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Swiss Steak; Corn Popovers (see Tuesday); Steam-fried Cucumbers and Green Peppers (see Tuesday); Individual Dessert Fruit Salads: Pineapple Rings, Grapefruit Sections, Cheese - Stuffed Dates with Fruit Cream Dressing; Coffee.

HAWAIIAN PORK
(courtesy Mrs. H. G. H. in Regina).

Mrs. H. G. H. says: "My Hawaiian Pork recipe ranks among the top favorites with my family. Because it takes quite some time to prepare I double the recipe and because it is easy to warm up we then can enjoy another meal. Hawaiian Pork with its sweet-sour sauce makes a tasty meal-in-dish served over rice. The following recipe serves 4 to 6."

1 lb. lean pork shoulder, 2 cups flour, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup salad oil, 2 green peppers, 6 stalks celery, 2 chicken bouillon cubes dissolved in 1 cup hot water, ½ cup pineapple chunks, drained (or more), ½ cup pineapple juice, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, ½ cup vinegar (or less) Cooked Rice.

Cut pork into 1-inch cubes. Beat together eggs, flour, salt, and pepper to make a batter.

Heat oil in heavy skillet. Dip pork cubes into batter and drop into hot oil. Fry slowly to brown, turning. Drain off excess oil. Cut peppers into 1-inch squares. Cut celery stalks diagonally into 1-inch pieces. Add vegetables to meat. Add ¼ cup chicken bouillon-water mixture, pineapple and pineapple juice. Cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp. Combine cornstarch and sugar in a saucepan. Blend in soy sauce, vinegar and remaining ¾ cup chicken bouillon water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick and clear. Pour over meat mixture, cover and simmer another 3 minutes. Serve over hot cooked rice.

Thank you Mrs. H. G. H. for this popular contribution to the column.

Women's Institutes

WELLINGTON W.I.

WELLINGTON — The Wellington Women's Institute met in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening when the new president opened the meeting in the usual manner.

A thank-you card was received from Mr. Jack Graham, Mrs. W. Adams, Mrs. O. Bovay and Mrs. A. Ogilvy were nominated as Institute directors, for the coming year. Mrs. Dick and Mrs. Way replenished the birthday box.

After a short business session Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Bovay as hostesses for the evening took charge of the program. Miss Margaret Salley and her baton class of 12 girls put on a splendid show which included two solo numbers by Cathie Quick and little three-year-old Charlotte Stewart; a selection by nine girls; Jeanette Wiltse, Kathryn Wiltse, Cindy Marvin, Cheryl Stewart, C. Newton, Charlotte Stewart, Leah Morris, Heather Barber, Ford and Heather Munday, and one by five older girls, Faye Middleton, Robin Wanamaker, Brenda Craig, Maria Munday and Sharon Conley. These numbers were greatly enjoyed by the ladies as was an impersonation of the Beatles which included Maria Munday, Robin Wanamaker, Faye Middleton and Brenda Craig.

A paper on agriculture was given by Mrs. Ogilvy and a poem was read by Mrs. Moore. Mrs. Walter Nind gave current events and spoke on the changing of the flag and gave various reasons why the Red Ensign should be kept. She suggested having the emblems of all provinces on the flag. She concluded her talk by reading an appropriate poem. Mrs. Clapp spoke briefly on the Folk School which she had attended at the weekend.

Refreshments were served by the ladies in charge and their group.

The Experts Say... Hazards at Summer Cottage Are Discussed

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—One of the biggest hazards at the summer cottage is the fact that fast medical help may be unavailable.

A combination of preventive measures and basic supplies to take care of at least the first few days in an emergency will cut down potential dangers, H. Lloyd Johnson, chief training officer for the St. John Ambulance Ontario council, has some suggestions.

If there is poison ivy or oak around, get rid of it, he says.

Check docks and rafts to make sure no nails have worked loose during the winter.

Examine the shoreline before anyone goes swimming to clear it of accumulated litter.

Children should be told not to chew leaves, berries or any other plants growing wild. They may be poisonous.

Whoever is doing the cooking should get into the habit of keeping all foods refrigerated until they are to be served. This will minimize the danger of food poisoning. You should also have some idea which foods are the likeliest breeding ground for bacteria and take special care with these.

In areas where drinking water is not tested, it's a good idea to have a kettle of boiled water standing all the time for use on cuts and scrapes.

KEEP CHARTS

A first aid chart and a poison antidote chart, both of which are available from the St. John Ambulance in any province, should be kept handy. The organization also has pamphlets on the fundamentals of first aid.

One of the manuals lists ingredients for basic and complete first aid kits:

The basic kit includes assorted adhesive dressings, triangular bandages, two- and three - inch roller bandages, gauze sponges, medium and large sterile dressing pads, a ½-ounce package of cotton wool, adhesive tape, oblique tape, pepper tissues, blunt-end scissors, safety pins, tweezers, plastic medicine glass or folding paper cups, note book and pencil, soap and nail brush, plastic sheeting, tissue labels.

The things people forget most often, Mr. Johnson says, are the soap and brush for cleaning their own hands before treating a wound, or the scissors for cutting clothes and bandages.

The more comprehensive kit includes everything above and adds a set of splints, a ½-ounce package of gauze, unbleached cotton wool or cotton waste for padding, dressing forceps, flashlight, stinkeh kidney basin, glucose candy or lump sugar.

Mr. Johnson says that in an emergency other materials may be substituted. For instance, a sanitary napkin or bonded paper tissue which won't disintegrate quickly can be used in place of sterile pads to press on a wound to stem bleeding.

He says medications and ointments are left out of the list for several reasons.

Pain killers can disguise symptoms which would help a doctor diagnose trouble.

Most commercial antiseptics are too strong. They burn exposed tissue. Plain soap and water are best to cleanse a wound."

A serious burn should be left alone, a minor one washed with tepid water.

"Cover a burn with a dressing and get a doctor. A good thick pad helps to cut the pain by keeping air from a burn."

He suggests that butter shouldn't be used because it can be a germ carrier. And ointments would probably have to be washed off by a doctor anyway.

Community Honors Couple

2ND THURLOW — About 80 friends, neighbors gathered at the Neighbors' Aid hall on Wednesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nail Keefe (nee Janice Embury) who were recently married.

Nine tables of euchre were enjoyed while others enjoyed a social chat. Prizes were won by ladies, Mrs. A. Embury; consolation, Mrs. Manley Mikelait; men's, Mr. Ronald Atkins; consolation, Mr. Tony Wever; lucky draw, Mrs. J. Chamblay. Mr. Sam Dean called the gathering to order and the bride and bridegroom were given seats of honor. After a few brief remarks Mr. William Leeming read an appropriate address signed on behalf of the community by Messrs. Sam Dean, Donald and Bill Leeming, Robert and Ronald Atkins.

Robert and Ronald Atkins made the presentation of an electric floor polisher and purse of money. Several individual gifts were also received from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Keefe. The couple expressed sincere thanks to everyone for the lovely gifts and to those who arranged the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Keefe will reside in their new home upon its completion on his father's farm.

What Is a Farmer?

At the annual meeting of Hastings East District of the Women's Institutes in Foxboro, Mrs. Percy Roy read the following paper:

Farmers are found in fields plowing up, seeding down, rotating from, planting in, fertilizing with, spraying for and harvesting it.

Wives help them, little boys follow them, the Department of Agriculture combines them, city relatives visit them, salesmen detain them, meals wait for them, weather can delay them, but it takes Heaven to stop them.

When your car stalls along the way, a farmer is a considerate courteous, inexpensive road service. When a farmer's wife suggests he buy a new suit, he can quote from memory every expense involved in operating the farm last year plus the added expense he is certain will crop up this year. Or else he assumes the role of the indignant shopper, impressing upon everyone within earshot the pounds of work he must produce to enable him to pay for a suit at today's prices.

A farmer is a paradox—he is an unrealistic executive with his home his office of scientific using fertilizer attachments; a purchasing agent in an old straw hat; a personal director with grasses under his fingernails; a dietitian with a passion for alfalfa, amince, and a sewage batting a price-cost researcher.

He manages more capital than most of the businessmen in town.

He likes sunshine, good food, country Fairs, dinner at noon, horses, his wife, Saturday night in town, his shirt collar unbuttoned, and, above all, a good soaking rain in August.

He is not much for droughts, ditches, conservators, experts, weeds, the eight-hour day, helping with housework, or gadgetgreen.

Nobody else is so far from the telephone or so close to good. Nobody else gets so much satisfaction out of homemade, good weather and homemade ice cream. Nobody else has in his pockets at one time a three-bladed knife, chest rub, a hillfold, a pair of pliers, and a combination memo book and general farm stuff.

Nobody else can remove these things from his pockets and not have them overlooked: 5 staples; one cotter key; a rusty spike, 3 grains of corn, a hillfold, a lead pencil, a square tap, a 4.98 postal batch and a cupful of chaff in each trouser cuff.

A farmer is both Faith and Fatalist—he must have faith to continually meet the challenges of his capacities and an ever-present possibility that an act of God (a late spring, an early frost, tornado, flood, drought) can bring his business to a standstill. You can reduce his acreage but you can't restrain his ambition.

Might as well put up with him, he is your friend, your competitor, your customer. Your source of food, fibre, and self—reliant young citizens to help replenish your cities. He is your countryman—a dedicated, hardworking, fast-growing statesman of stature. And when he comes in at noon having spent the energy of his hopes and dreams, he can be recharged anew with the magic words:

"The mariner's up."

Evening Service Procedure Like Afternoon Wedding

DEAR DORIS — If my daughter has an afternoon church service when she gets married a lot of the guests will not be able to attend. I have heard of a Candlelight Service, but have never attended one.

What is the procedure? Would you please tell me when and where the service is held? — U. C. MOTHER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR U. C. MOTHER — It's usually an evening service, around seven p.m. held in the church sanctuary. Candles on standards are placed on either side of the pulpit or chancel, and the candles are lighted as guests are arriving. Your caterers might supply candles and candelabra if the church does not have its own.

There's very little difference in the actual ceremony, if any. Details will have to be worked out with the minister.

DEAR DORIS — As a result of treatment for nose bleeds which involved constant packings when I was little, my nose is unusually wide at the bottom. I am in my fifties now, but my second husband never fails to poke fun at it. I have told him that I wore no mask when he courted me.

But the bobbers me a lot. Is there something a person can wear or do to help shape a nose? — WIDE NOSE.

DEAR WIDE NOSE — Maybe he'd better look at the mote that's in his own eye.

Plastic surgery for cosmetic purposes is coming into its own in a way it never did before. Doctors are realizing how looks can help or harm personality. You can be helped by consulting a specialist.

DEAR DORIS — My boy friend received a telephone call from his previous girl friend's family saying that she was going to give birth to his baby. He was surprised and upset.

He offered to marry her but she refused. He told me he knew he would have been losing something God if he had married her, but he said that it was his obligation to ask her to marry him.

He still thinks about the baby. She gave it up for adoption. Neither he nor his family can have it. His sister offered to raise the child but she refused. His sister loves children and I'm certain she'd be good for the child.

Do you think she has the right to deprive the child of a good home? For the sake of the baby I would be willing to marry earlier than expected and adopt the child. Evidently it would be impossible, but would I have done right if I could have adopted the baby and have others of my own? I have forgiven him and also forgotten. — ENGAGED.

DEAR ENGAGED — Once she decides to give up the child for adoption her responsibility ends. She doesn't have the say. And long practice proves the wisdom of placing him completely away from the natural family.

While your gesture is noble, taking him on would eventually be full of heartbreak for you.

DEAR DORIS — I just wish I could talk to you in person, or someone who understands like you. I am 30 and single. Both my sisters are single too; one three years older, one seven years younger.

None of us got along together. Right now one has a broken ankle and I am doing her job at the store. I will go back to another job in another city when I am not needed here.

I got nerve medicine from the doctor here but his mild medicine is not the answer. I feel so confused. I could write it all down but it would take a lot of time. What do you suggest? — UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY — That even a very long letter to me wouldn't solve your long standing family conflict. Unfriendly, unmarried sisters suggest to me a home background where warmth and confidence were lacking. I'd bet a lot your parents clashed too!

Sisters are precious possessions; become more so with age. Yours are well worth some effort to cultivate. You can find the counsellor you know you need, be it social worker, minister or understanding friend. With some of the emotion siphoned off, you'll see more clearly to mend family friendships.

DEAR DORIS — I like a certain boy but because of his bad family I am not allowed to see him in public. He has absolutely no feeling but hate for his drunken father. He has a good job and works hard at it. He has never been in any trouble.

I would like to encourage him to leave home but he is still quite young (17). He has quit school early. (Grade nine.)

Do you think it is more important for him to finish his education and quit working or to get away from his terrible family and continue to work? I don't feel that he can support himself while he is at school. — DISTRESSED AND WILLING TO HELP.

DEAR DISTRESSED — If he has the grey matter, you'll do him the favor of his lifetime to send him back to school — right now! He can stick it out at home a little longer.

DEAR DORIS — My parents open mail addressed to me. I keep arguing with them about this but it does not do any good. Isn't there a law against opening private mail? — NOSEY PARENTS.

• • •

DEAR NOSEY — You have a right to privacy, when it comes to mail, just as any person is entitled to carry on a conversation without being overheard. The law protects the mails from public tampering; not from parental snooping.

Try sharing your affairs with Mom and Dad a little more, so they'll know you aren't hiding anything. They need more confidence in you.

Confidential to LOVE CANNOT WAIT — "I love him." "Please don't say this isn't love." "This is different from anything I've ever known before." I get this refrain in so many letters, from girls 15 to 18, that is just isn't funny.

What we need is another word for it. Love has to grow, with companionship, mutual respect, the sharing of ideas. It takes time.

You are in love with love; but merely infatuated with this individual. Real love will come your way when you are ready for it.

Quebec

they agreed with Mr. Laporte "only up to a point." They said the CFMM is showing signs of being more careful of provincial rights.

The federation was set up 37 years ago to provide a forum for discussion of municipal problems and to present municipal ideas to the federal government.

Mayor Reg Dawson of Mount Royal, Que., treasurer of the federation, said the federation increased its dues by 50 per cent last year and six Quebec municipalities dropped out. Six Ontario municipalities also dropped out.

Earlier, CFMM Executive Director George Mooney suggested the dropouts had occurred because of Mr. Laporte's statement.

ASK TAX CUTS

In other business Tuesday, the convention passed resolutions asking increased federal funds through more tax exemptions and grants.

Mayor Ward Deyell of Calgary said it was "flattering" to see the convention passing so many resolutions asking for more federal money.

"Some day somebody is going to have to say stop," he said. "Surely we must recognize that ours is a free enterprise system. We can't go on encouraging paternalism."

Other resolutions passed Tuesday asked rebroadcasting and guidance services for unemployed persons and a change in the federal-provincial housing development and loan fund to allow municipalities to borrow from the fund without increasing their own capital spending.

QUEBEC (CP) — Pierre Laporte, Quebec municipal affairs minister, Tuesday denied he had either requested or ordered several Quebec municipalities to withdraw from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

George Mooney of Montreal, director-general of the federation, had made the assertion Monday during a press conference in Regina, site of the group's current annual meeting.

Mr. Laporte said he exercised "no pressure on the municipalities and still less have I ordered them to leave the federation."

Mr. Mooney listed Chicoutimi and Granby as Quebec "eight or nine" Quebec municipalities that have left the federation since the beginning of 1964.

Mr. Laporte said he has declared on past occasions that the federation is "a centralizing group and that the municipalities of Quebec would logically claim on the one hand a large measure of autonomy for Quebec and, on the other, time belong to the federation."

needs although a number of operators in the past had gone bankrupt. Many of these had been unable to use the facilities.

He noted that the recent report of the royal commission on banking and finance had urged that the five-percent lending rate be revised since it was a subsidy. But farmers needed help and the increase in lending rates would only apply at the higher levels to cover government borrowing costs and those of administration.

AGAINST RISE

Vincent Clement, chief spokesman for the Conservatives and member for Quebec's Nicolet-Yamaska, said he saw no justification for boosting the interest rate, which at the higher level probably would average about 6% per cent.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) called for holding the interest rate at five per cent. H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said the change wouldn't help low - income farmers or young men attempting to start farming.

Charles Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste — Roberval) said Mr. Hays has been criticized in the past but the amendments are a step toward lessening farmers. But he also opposed the interest boost.

SIGHT BABY CARIBOU

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — The state fish and game department passed out cigars Tuesday. The occasion: The first woodland caribou calf to be born in Maine since around the turn of the century when the last of the native herd retreated in the face of encroaching civilization and lumbering operations. The calf and its mother were sighted near the Baxter State Park area where 23 adult caribou were stocked last December.

Pick Contract By Number

TORONTO (CP)—A reporter broke a deadlock Tuesday when the Toronto Transit Commission found itself faced with three identical bids of $8,625 on 8,000 bags of cement.

TTC chairman Ralph Day asked the press table to pick either numbers one, two or three. A reporter shouted "two" and the contract was awarded to Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company Limited, the second listed bidder.

"This is the only way to treat these fellows until they learn their lesson," said commissioner Clarence Downey.

Major 'Chuck' Carswell Has Best Drill Company

PICTON (Staff) — The First Battalion Canadian Guards held a drill competition on Tuesday evening between 5-2-3 and 6 Companies participating. The Household Brigade Association Trophy was presented to the company with the most points in the drill competition.

The three man judging committee had a difficult task in coming up with a winner, but decided that No. 6 Company under Major C. W. Carswell, had amassed the most points.

The judging was done on arm swinging, dressing, smartness of movement, sequence, and personal drill of key personnel. One of the most difficult of manoeuvres came when the command came to change from slow to fast march, and the winning company did this, with hardly a hesitation.

Captain John Hayter, one of the judges, told The Ontario Intelligencer that in such a competition, a mark of between 70 and 80 would be better than average, this would include all the battalions on either side of the Atlantic. While he would not disclose the actual number of points earned by the winning company, he did say that it was close to the top.

Lieut.-Col. William Mulherin, Commanding Officer of the Guards, congratulated not only the winners, but all companies for what he termed, "a most excellent job by the officers and Guards. If you can do this well in Gagetown, it will be wonderful," he added.

The Guards move out to Gagetown for summer manoeuvres this year in style. For the first time, the entire battalion will be moved by RCAF Air Transport, from Trenton base to Fredericton, N.B. Col. Mulherin has not yet been notified of the day they will leave.

HOOVER ACTIVE AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Three months ago, Herbert Hoover lay near death from a respiratory infection and internal bleeding. Today, the former president, who is 89 years old, is "up and about" his apartment in a New York hotel. "The president has recuperated very well," said a spokesman for Hoover.

in which they work.

Present regulations forbid a teacher from being a trustee on the board that employs him.

At a panel discussion, Dr. Harold Pullen, Ottawa secondary school superintendent, said efforts by the department of education have failed to bridge the gap between elementary and secondary schools.

HAVE BRIDGING JOB

Another panelist, Mrs. Elisa Grossberg of Toronto, added that lack of leadership by the department has left the bridging job up to local school boards.

She said a survey showed few school systems provide consultation between teachers on the two levels, or discussions between elementary and secondary school principals.

Dr. Pullen said the department thought the wide gap between the two levels would disappear with the withdrawal of Grade 9 entrance examinations in 1940. This has not been the case.

Harold Jakes, adjustment counsellor for the Hamilton Board of Education, said his board is attempting a program under which qualified teachers from public schools are sent to teach in secondary schools for two years.

In other business, a resolution was passed asking the department of education to pay travel and living expenses of Northern Ontario students who have to leave home to attend high school.

presidential mansion, 1,000 infantry about a mile away hurled tear gas shells into a throng of students trying to march on the National Assembly.

The students, detaching from a crowd of 20,000 students and adults who had demonstrated and rioted in the capital, swarmed over barbed wire barricades before the capital and forced police to retreat. It was then that 1,000 army regulars were brought up to stop the march.

JAIL HUNDREDS

National police said 400 policemen and 200 demonstrators were injured. Hundreds of students were hauled off to jail.

The rioting raged into the night. The anti - government demonstrators battled army paratroopers guarding Park's mansion.

Fresh rioting broke out early after darkness fell when the soldiers of the capital defences command began pushing back 1,000 demonstrators milling around in the plaza in front of the capital.

He mob answered with rocks and bricks. The crowd built bonfires and hurled flaming pieces of wood at the soldiers. The soldiers retreated into the compound and locked the gate.

PROTESTS WIDEN

Student demonstrations began in March as a protest against Japanese - Korean negotiations to normalize relations. The students have since broadened their complaints.

They charge government corruption, indifference to poverty of the great masses of people, and police state methods and want Park to step down. These complaints are similar to those students expressed against Syngman Rhee, leading to his downfall four years ago.

The opposition Democratic Party's economic council issued a statement demanding Park retire to private life peacefully and form a caretaker government to hold new presidential and parliamentary elections in an honest way."

tion—about 10 per cent of the non-farm work force—the government labor code is reported to provide:

—$1.25 an hour as a minimum wage.

—An eight-hour standard work day.

—A 40-hour standard work week.

—Two weeks vacation with pay after each year of employment.

—Eight paid statutory holidays annually.

WILL GET TIME

The source indicated that machinery will be provided in the legislation to give local industries in low-wage areas more time to meet the $1.25 level.

Aim of the extra time would be to avoid economic disruption for local firms that could result from sudden upward adjustments in wage costs.

However, the source said individual firms granted extra time would be given deadlines for meeting the federal minimum.

Most workers within federal jurisdiction are employed in industries where wage rates are already above the $1.25 level. The federal labor code would cover workers on the railways, airlines, shipping lines, on the waterfront, in banks, radio and TV stations, telegraph offices and grain elevators.

MOST IN PRIVATE JOBS

About 200,000 are employed in private industry, Crown corporations and other public agencies. Another 200 are federal civil servants.

More than 5,000,000 other workers have jobs in industries under provincial jurisdiction. While all provinces have minimum wage laws, most are general level. In some provinces, eral level. In some provinces, the minimum rates apply only certain districts or to certain pations.

In the last two years, most provinces have been moving their minimum wage rates upward.

Ontario recently set $1.25 as the minimum hourly rate for construction workers in the Toronto - Hamilton - Oshawa area, where an hour for male workers other industries. By the s. 35, the $1 rate is to be extended to all workers in the province.

In another panel discussion Rt. Rev. V. N. Foy, judge of the Toronto Catholic Matrimonial Tribunal, suggested Ontario pass legislation protecting confidential information given to professional people in connectional and counselling services.

C. G. Hart, associate executive director of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies, urged the use of imagination in distributing incomes to prevent the creation of glorified vegetables in an age of automation.

He agreed with W. A. Dyson, consultant on aging with the federal health department, that welfare officials must look beyond the minimum need of welfare recipients and help them to lead more human lives.

Dr. W. Harvey Cruickshank, vice-president of Bell Telephone Company of Canada, told delegates automation is the most feared and complicated phenomenon ever to face mankind. Training, retraining and relocation programs would help man adjust to it, he suggested.

tacting "females with the opposition," Mr. Pearson said. "I don't want an election, but want to get on with the work and stand or fall by it."

WANT MORE SAY

The constitutional changes were sparked by women's and young Liberal groups, calling for more grass-roots say in party affairs, particularly with the inclusion of women on the national policy and organization committees. It was decided to hold a national convention every two years instead of every five years.

The policy statement, drafted by a committee headed by Gordon Blair of Ottawa, raised questions of greater federal responsibility for co-ordination of provincial efforts in education and cultural affairs.

There was little debate, however, after Mr. Blair emphasized that the party statement is for national party purposes not restricted to the federal field.

No amendments by way of deletions or additions were permitted and the policy statement was referred to the national policy committee for further discussion.

The closing banquet featured a program including impersonations by Rich Little of Ottawa and the Festival Singers of Toronto. Mr. Little closed his monologue by mimicking Mr. Pearson's speaking style.

SERVICES STUDIED

TORONTO (CP) — Counselling services at the University of Toronto, unknown to more than half the students according to a recent report, are under study by a special committee, Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the university, announced Tuesday. Dr. Bissell said he had appointed an advisory committee to study general counselling services. Last February a survey showed that of 400 students, 75 per cent of the men and 63 per cent of the women did not know university counselling services existed.

"Quit Drinking Or Quit Us"

NEW YORK (AP)—A 46-year-old office worker at a big corporation, called from his desk, walked uncertainly into the company's medical office. He was an alcoholic, one of an estimated 2,000,000 compulsive drinkers who work in U.S. offices and factories.

His company, for which he had been employed for more than 10 years, gave him a choice: Either stop or control the drinking or face the eventual loss of his job.

Thousands of workers, confronted with the same choice, in recent years have quit drinking. The success of rehabilitation programs in more than 80 major companies ranges from 50 to 80 per cent—a significantly higher success ratio than in non-industrial programs.

Discovered almost 20 years ago by the Du Pont Company, alcoholic programs are in effect now at such U.S. companies as Eastman Kodak Company, Corning Glass Works, Dow Chemical Corp., Consolidated Edison of New York, Metropolitan Life Insurance company, International Harvester, and Great Northern Railway.

DRINKERS COSTLY

A big reason, after humanitarian considerations, is money. The National Council of Alcoholism estimates that problem drinkers cost American industry $2,000,000,000 a year.

Since Jan. 1, of this year, according to the national council, 12 to 15 large corporations have begun alcoholism programs. By 1965, estimates Council President Merle A. Gullick, more than 100 major companies will have such programs.

The programs vary in size and in scope. Few companies actually treat alcoholics, but refer them to Alcoholics Anonymous hospitals and psychiatrists. The company keeps close watch on the drinker's progress or lack of progress, although behind him with support when he needs help or relapses when circumstances demand it.

As the Honolulu session ended, newspaper men there were told no change was planned in the role of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam — a role which has been described as advisory and training rather than front-line combat.

Actual decisions on what is to be done in the trouble area are up to Johnson.

Johnson himself was represented as being determined to do whatever is necessary to secure "the future of Southeast Asia as a whole"—a phrase he used at his press conference Tuesday.

At the same time he was reported anxious to avoid any unnecessary risks or troop commitments. This suggested that what he is looking for at this stage is some use of U.S. power in the area to demonstrate to the Communists that he is determined to meet any challenges they present in order to protect non-Communist regions and at the same time to stabilize peace in Southeast Asia.

RARE BISON BORN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Zoo has a new arrival—a baby European bison, one of the world's rarest animals. Birth of the calf, which was on its feet and nursing in two hours, was announced Tuesday. Its parents have been residents of the zoo for eight years. The European bison once lived in the great forests of Europe, but two world wars ended its existence as a wild animal.

Crime Lab
Making Cases From Bits and Pieces

MONTREAL (CP) — A passenger plane explodes in mid-air. The cause must be determined.

A hospital has difficulty finding a malfunction in a mechanical heart. It must be fixed.

Both were jobs—and successfully completed—for Montreal's medico-legal institute and forensic laboratory under Dr. Roland Fontaine, dean of Canadian criminologists.

Medico-legal experts sifted the workshop of crippled watchmaker, Genereux Ruest, after a DC-8 exploded near Quebec City in 1949, killing all 23 persons aboard, including the heavily insured wife of Ruest's friend, J. Albert Guay.

They found evidence bomb mechanisms had been touched off experimentally after discovering a small, scorched piece of corrugated cardboard in which were embedded two tiny particles of copper used in electrical detonating caps.

Ruest, Guay and accomplice Marguerite Pitre were hanged, and Guay admitted on the way to the gallows that the experts were right.

But Dr. Fontaine said in an interview, the laboratory and researchers are not only for law enforcement.

A hospital a few years ago reported difficulty finding out what was wrong with its mechanical heart, used for patients undergoing major surgery. The medico - legal experts established that silver solderings in the man-made heart were soluble and let poison into the patient's bloodstream.

Dr. Fontaine, who has been on the job 45 years, says scientific evidence has freed the innocent as often as it has caught criminals.

Police recently detained a "likely suspect" in a safecracking because mortar that crumbled during the breakin resembled material found on the floor of the suspect's car. The experts decided in 15 minutes the materials did not match, and the suspect was released.

In another case, laboratory evidence persuaded a motorist to change his plea from not guilty on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident in which a girl was severely injured. It was established that dusty imprints on the victim's ski slacks were from a headlight of his car.

The team, attached to the coroner's court, works in a crowded, 100-year-old building in downtown Montreal and looks enviously at its Ontario counterpart, headed by Dr. H. Ward Smith who has a staff of 56 and an annual budget of $450,000. Staff of the Quebec team numbers 15.

Queens Rule Nations

Princes Masters in Royal Homes

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Queens rule nations, but princes rule royal homes.

At least that's the way it is with a pair of the world's best known princes — Bernhard of The Netherlands and Philip of Britain.

Eleven years ago Bernhard gave the following advice to his friend Philip:

"To succeed as both husband and subject, I believe you need a lighthorse walker's sense of balance and an understanding wife. In the nation it is my wife who rules. In my home it is I.

"I can assure you there has never been the slightest doubt as to who is boss in our home."

Prince Bernhard, the husband of Queen Juliana, gave the advice to the husband of Queen Elizabeth in 1953, shortly before her coronation. The prince of The Netherlands relinquished it in an interview with a former Dutch court reporter, Donald Lanter.

There is nothing to suggest that Prince Philip doesn't follow the advice. There is, however, a slight suspicion that Prince Philip doesn't have his way all the time.

'WHAT DO YOU DO?'

Lord Kinross has said that Queen Elizabeth once asked a woman friend:

"What do you do when your husband wants something badly and you don't want him to have it?"

"Well, ma'am," the Queen's friend is reported to have replied, "I try to reason with him and sandwich him and sometimes we reach a compromise."

To this Her Majesty is said to have retorted:

"Oh, that's not my method. I tell Philip he shall have it, and criminal then make sure he doesn't get it."

But, according to persons close to the British throne, there is overwhelming evidence to suggest that Prince Philip rules the British royal home as surely as Bernhard does the one in The Netherlands.

SOME INSTANCES

For instance:

—The Queen opposes Prince Philip flying his Pa.

—The Queen was against Philip landing helicopters on the lawn of Buckingham Palace. He landed them.

—The Queen was not entirely in agreement with overhauling palace protocol. It was overhauled.

—The Queen was opposed to Prince Charles going to Gordonstoun, the tough Scottish public school. Charles went to Gordonstoun.

Then there was the time the Queen appeared before a royal party wearing a dress of her own choosing. In the hearing of several persons, Philip took a look at the frock, frowned and said:

"You're not going to wear that, are you?"

"Yes, dear," answered the Queen, and went and changed the dress.

ARE A BIT ALIKE

In many ways the two princes are surprisingly similar.

They both like fast cars and both have crashed them.

They both like planes and helicopters and fly them like professionals.

They are family men who adore their wives and children. Bernhard and Juliana have four daughters. Philip and Elizabeth have three sons and a daughter.

Both princes work extremely hard at being princes.

Both like travel and both get criticized for spending time away from their wives and countries.

But for every critic there seems to be a dozen defenders, saying that Bernhard and Philip are supersalesmen for their country's institutions, goods and produce.

TARGET FOR GOSSIPS

Both are handsome men, and naturally the gossips gossip about them.

Bernhard has said:

"Princes, unfortunately are choice targets for the gossipmongers. Even the smallest incident — however innocent-sometimes is magnified and distorted into a major issue. And we must especially be careful when in the company of women for at least 10 times more eavesdrop than any prudent ordinary husband."

Both princes are good at sports.

Bernhard is a splendid swimmer, horseman and skier. Philip is a fair swimmer, expert polo player and yachtsman.

Bernhard will be 54 June 29. Philip will be 43 June 10.

SMART DRESSERS

Both are good dressers and both go to British tailors. Both go hatless most of the time—to the annoyance of British hatmakers.

Both are good speakers and talkers.

Prince Philip possesses a slightly outrageous way of talking—on occasion. It is hard for him to resist a wisecrack. Bernhard seldom makes them in public.

Going to Royal Ascot once, Prince Philip strapped a transistor radio under the crown of his high formal hat in order that he could follow the play-by-play of a cricket match.

In Rio de Janeiro, Philip once told a British newspaper man (from Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express): "Your paper is a bloody awful newspaper."

It would be difficult to imagine Bernhard saying that.

CLEANING COSTS $2,200

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In some Los Angeles dump heap, $100 bills lie deep under irretrievably lost. Antonia A Martini told police Saturday he had asked his wife to clean up a closet full of old papers, but forgot about one little envelope. It contained $2,200, receipts from the sale of a piece of property in his native Italy.

ROYALTY HAS RESPONSIBILITY — Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, top, and Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, bottom, are ready examples of saying that queens rule nations, princes rule the royal home. Bernhard dominates the family scene behind the Dutch throne all the time. His family includes four daughters. Philip has his way in the British royal family that includes three sons and a daughter.

Psychiatrists, Some Clergy Blamed for Looser Morals In Britain by Archbishop

LONDON (AP)—Dr. John Heenan, Archbishop of Westminster and leader of Britain's 4,000,000 Roman Catholics, blames psychiatrists and some of the clergy for looser sexual morals in Britain.

Yet he thinks Britain is, on balance, a much more moral place than it was in the days of Charles Dickens (1812-1870).

"People will confuse immorality as mainly concerned with sex, fornication, adultery and so on," said the archbishop in an interview. "But oppression of the poor is what really cries out to heaven for vengeance. Then, too, there is the complete contempt most comfortably-off people—and I don't just mean the rich—have for the down-and-out. That's immoral, if you like."

TRAINED IN SLUMS

Dr. Heenan, who had long experience in London's east end slums as a parish priest before becoming a bishop, says:

"I think it's true that there are more criminals today. But then there are more good people too—and there are more people. In the 16th century the population of the whole of England was nothing like the present population of London alone. With the number of people still increasing by natural growth and immigration, it would be extraordinary if we said we didn't have more prisons."

The archbishop does not think any drastic action such as the use of worker-priests will help the church regain its lost contact with those who don't go to church.

"It's no good a priest going on the factory floor disguised as a lathe driver or something. You can't talk religion yelling over the noise of a machine. The priest should call on the man at home."

Turning to the current Christian ecumenical atmosphere, the archbishop said he did not think there would be any misunderstanding in Britain now if Dr. Michael Ramsey, archbishop of Canterbury, met the Pope.

"The great initiative of the Patriarch Athenagoras may well result in the East leading the Western peoples toward unity.

Prominent Jurist Boosts Eskimos

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas reports he braved arctic winds to discover world politics being discussed on a barren Canadian arctic island where the igloo is fast vanishing and hardy Eskimos vary their diet between frozen raw caribou meat and pre-packaged TV dinners.

"To the newcomer, Banks Island seems bald and barren," says the 65-year-old Douglas in writing of his travels in the current issue of National Geographic Magazine. "Yet it becomes a pleasant land when the May melt starts. Normally, by July the bays are free of ice and the land is ablaze with arctic flowers."

The distinguished U.S. jurist, who paddled down a stretch of the Mackenzie River in the Northwest Territories more than a decade ago, was invited last year to visit Sachs Harbor on the west side of Banks island, which lies in the western Canadian Arctic about 1,300 miles north of Edmonton and about 1,000 miles from the North Pole.

It is populated by about 70 Eskimos, but its future is in doubt because the children go to school in the new settlement in Inuvik on the Canadian Mackenzie mainland about 250 miles to the south. Old-timers wonder whether the children will be content with the rigidities of Sachs Harbor once they become accustomed to the habits of civilization.

At Sachs Harbor, life is simple. Most of the 30 Eskimo families speak some English. Every family has a radio. Some have a shortwave sets which bring in English-language programs from Moscow and Peking.

"I was surprised to find that, as a consequence of radio, even the Eskimo on Banks Island was thinking profoundly on many aspects of international affairs," Douglas wrote after spending 10 days on this the most northern community where winter temperatures drop to 50 degrees below zero. No trees grow except scrub willow.

Leader of the community and Douglas's host was Fred Carpenter, whose mother was an Eskimo and whose father was an American whaler. Fred, is the Sachs Harbor grocer—with no competition for hundreds of miles around. Douglas slept in a shack behind the supply house. With him was Angus Sherwood, postmaster at Norman Wells, N.W.T.

CARIBOU BEST

Caribou are numerous and Eskimos there like frozen raw caribou meat best of all.

One of the best hunters, Douglas discovered, was a tattooed elderly widow, Susie Thrasik, who, one year, shot more caribou than any man. Once on a hunt she was threatened by four polar bears when she had no gun. She scared them off by whirling her seal hooks around her head.

"Sachs Harbor has a powerful attraction for those who enjoy living off the land," said Douglas. "There is a spirit of independence and individuality . . . There are no unemployment lines and Sachs Harbor does not tolerate a drunk."

"I find I get to sleep fifteen minutes longer this way."

Baton-Twirling Talent Brings Her Acclaim at 17

By BOB FARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP)—At 17, Marlene Jackson has done more travelling than many people pack into a lifetime, all because she's one of the best baton-twirlers in Canada.

In four years of top level competition, Marlene has won 56 trophies and 72 medals.

Next January she will go to St. Paul, Minn., to compete in the U.S. national championships. The winner there is generally rated tops in North America.

Another of Miss Jackson's goals is to become Miss Majorette of America. The Miss Majorette contest is, in effect, a beauty contest among expert twirlers, and Marlene has the looks to go with her skill.

"There's only one drawback so far," she says. "To qualify for Miss Majorette of America you have to have already won a Miss title—of your province or state. Manitoba is just beginning to organize its first Miss Manitoba contest now."

Born in Saskatoon, Marlene first became interest in baton-twirling when she was eight.

"We were living in Edmonton then, and I was in hospital with rheumatic fever when I saw a magazine article about two twirlers. I decided then I'd like to become one, and finally coaxed my parents into letting me take lessons."

ALBERTA CHAMP

After four years of lessons Marlene began, entering competitions. She won international honors in Lethbridge, Alta., Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg and recently tied for first in the Regina International open.

For three years she was Alberta champion and two years ago won the Western Canada crown. After her first Alberta title the judges invited her to the Great Falls School of Baton in Montana.

"I studied there for two weeks that year, and the next year I went for a month. Now I go to Regina as often as I can to study under Maureen Johnson."

A recent arrival in Winnipeg, Marlene joined Manitoba baton artists by winning both the provincial championship and the International open, the latter her stepping stone to the St. Paul contest.

Marlene also hopes her talent will help her resume her education. She left school in Grade 10 for economic reasons.

Some of these competitions offer scholarships as prizes and I hope I can win one some day."

To keep in form she practises daily at the Winnipeg RCAF base gym. She has also taken on instructor's responsibility for a class of 30 youngsters working out two hours a week.

Twirling can be awfully expensive and it takes a lot of time if you're going to be good.

"I've had a lot of help from my mother. She makes all my costumes, and costumes can cost anywhere from $40 if you buy them at a store."

Expect Pickersgill to Walk Right Into Flag Fight After Trip to London and Paris

Even before Mr. Pickersgill's return, the Opposition peppered the government with questions Tuesday about his audience with the Queen last Friday.

Prime Minister Pearson detailed suggestions that the transport minister met the Queen on a government mission to consult her on the flag resolution introduced in the House last week.

He said Mr. Pickersgill travelled to London and Paris at his own expense on a private business trip. The minister had decided to seek a courtesy call at Buckingham Palace to inform the Queen about the flag resolution.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said this information should be passed on to Newfoundland Premier Smallwood.

He quoted Mr. Smallwood as telling the Newfoundland legislature that the federal government had done the province a great honor by sending the Newfoundland representative in the federal cabinet (Mr. Pickersgill) on a mission to consult the Queen.

WILL TABLE TELEGRAM

Mr. Pearson said he will be glad to table his telegram. He would ask Premier Smallwood for permission to table the premier's telegram.

Most of Tuesday's questions centred on the provision in the government's resolution that the Union Jack "may continue to be used as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth of nations and of our allegiance to the Crown."

Marcel Lessard (SC—Lac-St. Jean) asked under what circumstances would the Union Jack be flown over federal buildings.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) asked whether other Commonwealth countries have passed similar legislation.

Mr. Pearson said these questions will be answered when the debate on the resolution begins. This is not expected until next week since the Canada Pension Plan and the Columbia River treaty have been given higher priority in Commons business.

Meanwhile, the prime minister's office revealed that five extra typists have been hired to answer the ever-increasing flood of flag mail.

To date, more than 8,000 letters and telegrams on the issue have poured in. Supporters of a distinctive maple-leaf flag hold a 2 to 1 edge, down from a reported 3 to 1 advantage earlier in the controversy.

Sir John A. Holiday Is Talked Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Decrying Canada's treatment of its national figures, Heath Macquarrie (PC — Queens) proposed Tuesday the observance of Jan. 11 as John A. Macdonald Day in honor of Canada's first prime minister.

Mr. Macquarrie saw his bill stifled by discussion—most of it lauding Sir John A.—which ran beyond the hour allotted private member's bills.

The legislation would have made the first Monday following January 11 a national holiday each year.

J. I. Greene (L — Renfrew South) and Mrs. Jean Casselman (PC — Grenville-Dundas) endorsed the bill, but Gerald J. Regan (L—Halifax) said Canadians should avoid the "extreme cult of personalities" practised in the United States.

All three agreed that Canadians have ignored their history and their heroes until now. More biographies and more history books were needed to give students a balanced, comprehensive picture of Canadian history.

Private Bill To Establish Bank in Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill proposing the establishing of a Bank of British Columbia ran into further Liberal-Conservative opposition in the Senate Tuesday but four Liberal senators said the measure should at least be sent to a committee for detailed study.

Senators L. P. Beaubien (PC —Quebec) and A. K. Hugessen (L—Quebec) opposed the bill on grounds that it would enable the B.C. Social Credit government to enter the field of banking which falls under federal jurisdiction. They said they would vote against the measure.

However, Senators Arthur Roebuck (L — Ontario), David Croll (L — Ontario), Thomas Crerar (L — Manitoba) and Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said the bill should be sent to the Senate banking committee.

The sponsors of the bill, they said, should be given an opportunity to explain their case and this would place the Senate in a better position to make a decision on the measure.

Major-General Allard May Get No. 3 Job in New Defence Dept. Now Being Set Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj-Gen. Jean Victor Allard, a wartime commander of the Royal 22nd Regiment, is expected to become one of the key men in the reorganized defence department.

Informed sources say the 50-year-old native of St. Monique, Que., likely will be named chief of operational readiness, the No. 3 job in the new defence staff, with the rank of lieutenant-general.

Moreover, Gen. Allard may become chief of the science staff in some years when Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chief - designate, and Lt. - Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, vice-chief-designate, retire at about the same time. He would be the first French - speaking Canadian to reach the highest position in the armed forces.

Meanwhile, there are indications that the government legislation establishing a single chief of staff in place of the present chiefs of staff committee system will not be passed by Parliament before the original July 1 target date.

The bill still is in the Commons defence committee where former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness has been giving it a searching examination. Mr. Harkness' main point is that the new system will be more cumbersome than the present one.

Defence Minister Hellyer and Associate Defence Minister Cardin still are giving evidence and the committee will also hear from at least three retired officers.

In the meantime, defence headquarters has almost come to a standstill.

Informants said no decisions can be taken until the new integrated senior command is set up. Mr. Hellyer told the committee Tuesday headquarters integration below the top echelon will take about a year but that it can't start before the legislation now in committee is passed. The bill still will have to be approved by the Commons itself and the Senate.

Other decisions being held in abeyance awaiting appointment of the new defence staff include those on a new fighter-bomber for the RCAF and another on a new anti - submarine ship for the navy.

The defence department has apparently picked the personnel for the top 12 jobs in the integrated defence staff but cannot announce the appointments until the bill is passed through all stages.

Large Mental Hospitals Relics of the Middle Ages

A Kingston psychiatrist in Belleville last night said that large mental hospitals should be blown up or burned down.

"Once we get rid of these relics of the middle ages," Dr. R. F. Briggs told members of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children, "we can start again and build community hospitals for mental patients."

A staff member of the Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Clinic at Kingston General Hospital, Dr. Briggs said the large institutions tend to divorce people from their home communities. "Children and adults are sent to them for years at a time," he said, "and when they return they have lost all sense of identity with their homes and with their home towns."

"Proper care for the mentally retarded and mentally ill," he said, "could be provided by small hospitals, close to the homes of the people they serve, perhaps with one large centre in each province for specialized research. "Patients would normally enter the small hospitals only for short periods" he said, "and they would still be living in an environment with people they know."

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Answering questions at an informal discussion meeting with members of the local association, Dr. Briggs criticized medical doctors who advise parents to send their children to institutions.

He said such doctors were reflecting the attitude of the institutions themselves, that the mentally retarded are a problem that must be hidden away.

"The original mental institutions," Dr. Briggs said, "were established because the people of middle ages were afraid the retarded would breed a race of idiots. Professing Christianity, the people could not justify killing the retarded so they built the institutions. "In modern times," he said, "the institutions have become less like jails and more like hospitals, but the old attitudes persist."

Answering questions in an informal session with Association members, Dr. Briggs explained that there never was much real danger of the retarded breeding idiots. Retarded adults said, and exceptionally intelligent to produce children more intelligent than themselves, he added, retarded adults tend to produce children less intelligent than themselves.

3 PER CENT RETARDED

"About three per cent of all children will be retarded," he said, but the dividing line between "normal" and "retarded" children is arbitrary." He said a graph of the of the intelligence quotient of all children would look "something like a bell," with most children near the centre, (with an IQ of about 100). A total of about six per cent of all children would have IQ's of less than 70 and more than 130, he said, and the three per cent with an IQ of less than 70 are termed "retarded". He said also that some children with IQ's of less than 70 could learn to be useful adults and that others with IQ's of more than 70 might never learn to take care of themselves.

Dr. Briggs came to Belleville with Mrs. Paul Jenssen, a social worker on the Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Clinic staff, for a panel discussion and question period at the School for Retarded Children last night. The panelists were introduced by Mrs. Jenssen and by the president, Dr. Charles Dondale, and thanked by Mrs. D. W. Maddocks.

224-MILE CANAL BUILT

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has completed a 224-mile canal from the Baltic Sea to the Volga River. Tass said it will take more than 15,000,000 tons of cargo a year from overloaded railways. The Soviet news agency said ships of more than 5,000 tons could use the 12-foot-deep waterway.

Shastri Will Be Making First Trip Overseas

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Premier-elect Lal Bahadur Shastri of India will be making his first overseas trip when he comes to the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference here in July.

The 59-year-old, five-foot-two 100-pound Premier is likely to appear an odd duck at that international gathering in comparison with the aristocratic Jawaharlal Nehru.

In educational background, Nehru was practically as English as, for instance, Sir Winston Churchill or the Marquess of Salisbury. Although his politics were widely different from theirs, there was always a happy element of homecoming in his visits to London.

In the years when the wealthy young Nehrus attended Harrow —Sir Winston's school—in England, Shastri went to the Indian version of the little red school-house. He was so poor that sometimes he tied his books on his head and swam the Ganges River to save the ferry fare.

HAS PATIENCE

He became a Sanskrit scholar, totally Indian, with virtues of patience and humility Mr. Nehru lacked. He developed a working knowledge of English and is well acquainted with English literature.

Despite the differences no one seems to be expecting any sea change in Indian attitudes when Shastri meets his Commonwealth peers July 8. The fact that Nehru in effect singled out Shastri for the succession indicates the men saw eye-to-eye on Commonwealth affairs.

British Tory circles have been reassured by Commonwealth Secretary Sandys, who on trips to India has been impressed by Shastri.

Obviously Shastri will be just as opposed as Nehru was to the idea of Prime Minister Ian Smith of Southern Rhodesia for a seat at the conference. Nehru was one of the first to veto attendance by the leader of the self-governing colony where a white regime rules a black majority.

On the more positive side, some observers have expressed confidence that Shastri and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan may be able at last to make some headway on the long-festering dispute over Kashmir. It has even been suggested that Nehru's Kashmiri ancestry blinded him to a solution in the past.

The hopes are strengthened by Ayub's plea in a nation-wide broadcast Sunday night for a "putting out of the fires of hell" in the minds of the Indian and Pakistani peoples.

Teamsters Give Hoffa Money for Trial

CHICAGO (AP) — James R. Hoffa, on trial on mail fraud and conspiracy charges, said Tuesday he has received more than $50,000 from Teamsters union members to help defray his legal expenses.

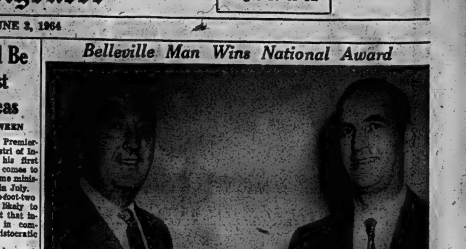
The Teamsters president told reporters outside of court that the contributions came from working Teamsters and retired members of the union.

"Another $25,000 has been pledged and more is coming," Hoffa said.

He spoke during a recess of his trial before Judge Richard B. Austin in U.S. District Court.

Hoffa and seven business associates are on trial on charges fraudulently obtaining more than $20,000,000 in construction loans from the Teamsters pension fund and diverting more than $1,000,000 to their own use.

IN CONTEMPT



Hoffa told reporters recently that he has been liquidating some of his personal assets to raise cash for his defence.

The Teamsters president, whose legal fees in earlier trials were paid out of union funds, has agreed to stop using union money, at least temporarily, for his legal expenses.

SUBWAY DERAILMENT

NEW YORK (AP)—A Coney Island-bound subway passenger train crashed into the rear of a standing work train and derailed it in a Brooklyn tunnel Wednesday. Police said 25 persons were injured. All were taken to hospitals and some were admitted.

Belleville Man Wins National Award

The presentation along with a cheque for $500, was made at the National Association of Tobacco and Confectionery Distributors convention held at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

This award is presented annually by the Neilson Company to the wholesaler who in the opinion of his fellow members has made the greatest contribution to the sale and promotion of confectionery during the year.

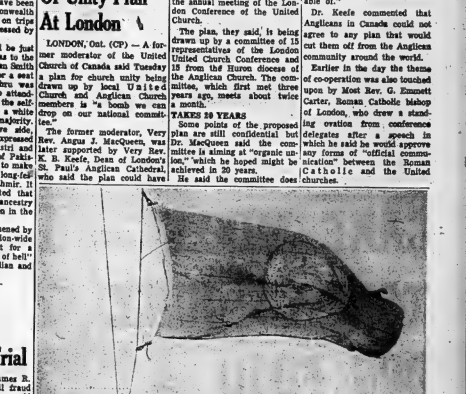
Church Told Of Unity Plan At London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A former moderator of the United Church of Canada said Tuesday a plan for church unity being drawn up by local United Church and Anglican Church members is "a bomb we can drop on our national committee."

The former moderator, Very Rev. Angus J. MacQueen, was later supported by Very Rev. R. B. Keefe, Dean of London's St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral, who said the plan could have "consequences from coast to coast."

The church leaders spoke at special service held as part of the annual meeting of the London Conference of the United Church.

The plan, they said, is being drawn up by a committee of 15 representatives of the London United Church Conference and 15 from the Huron diocese of the Anglican Church. The committee, which first met three years ago, meets about twice a month.



TAKES 20 YEARS

Some points of the proposed plan are still confidential but Dr. MacQueen said the committee is aiming at "organic union," which he hoped might be achieved in 20 years.

He said the committee does not anticipate a complete and perfect union "yet we propose to work and move along to obtain the best union we are capable of."

Dr. Keefe commented that Anglicans in Canada could not agree to any plan that would cut them off from the Anglican community around the world.

Earlier in the day the theme of co-operation was also touched upon by Most Rev. G. Emmett Carter, Roman Catholic bishop of London, who drew a standing ovation from conference delegates after a speech in which he said he would approve any forms of "official communication" between the Roman Catholic and the United churches.

IS THIS CANADA'S NEW FLAG? — No — it's the United Nations flag — being flown atop the flag-pole at the Black Diamond Cheese Company. President of the company, Donald Joss, lowered the Red Ensign yesterday. He said that in the company's opinion the UN flag is the only flag to fly in Canada without offending anyone. He stated the company will continue to fly it until the present flag controversy has been settled. Shown above is Mr. Joss raising UN flag while vice-president M. G. Weiner looks on in approval.

Sahara Desert Was Once Dense Jungle

RABAT (Reuters)—Evidence that the Sahara Desert was once a dense jungle and later a lush grassland capable of supporting huge droves of cattle is seen in prehistoric pictures found in many parts of south and east Morocco.

Rock carvings recently discovered at Foum El Hassan in the desert include 114 drawings of wild beasts like elephants, giraffes and rhinoceros, together with warriors and hunters, and eight curious pictures representing two-wheeled chariots.

Archeologists have found a total of 143 rock carvings of these chariots along a route stretching for more than 2,000 miles, from Fezzig in northeastern Morocco down to Tondis, near Goundam, in Mali.

Dating the drawings raises big problems, but it is estimated that the most ancient were cut from 5,000 to 3,000 years before Christ.

A second group is believed to have been carved in the second and first millenium before our era, and a third was drawn in more recent times up to the eighth century AD.

Experts in the first group indicate the desert was then a thick jungle with all the wild beasts which now are found only in central Africa.

In the second period, the drawings show huge herds of cattle and animals like antelopes, indicating that the Sahara was then grassland.

Finally, in the third period, horses and camels make their appearance, showing that the area had become a desert.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

The Duke of Windsor Is 70

By HELEN CATHCART

Author of "Her Majesty" and many other royal biographies.

The Duke of Windsor—the former King Edward VIII — will be 70 on Tuesday, June 23rd. . . .

In the 1920's, tens-agers had a craze for his photographs, especially an engaging brilliantly smiling one in naval uniform. It is fitting that this one of the shaking events of history when he abdicated the British throne rather than relinquish his love for American-born twice-married Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Now older folk will be startled to learn that the Duke of Windsor will be 70 in June. So he has always had an air of perennial youth. But for the abdication the pair would soon be celebrating a birthday salute to the king. And yet, as the Duke of Windsor himself says, "A new generation has grown up, unborn when I was king, that doesn't know me as Edward."

When he was born at Wilde Lodge, Richmond Park, on the outskirts of London, nearly seventy years ago, 1900 — not people queued up to sign their names in the baby album and Queen Victoria hurried over to see her great grandson. "A jolly little boy, a lovely child." Now he is seldom recognized when he strolls through the streets of London on one of his occasional shopping expeditions.

Quiet, courteous and brisk-moving, with blonde still decisively flecking his greying hair, he finds he is more apt to be recognized in New York, where cameras click readily. In Paris, his close friend Noel Coward long since showed him that he could sit at Fouquet's, one of the fashionable pavement cafes, and watch the world passing by, without attracting attention.

MARRIED 37 YEARS

After all, it is nearly 36 years since he relinquished the throne during the fateful reign and he has enjoyed 27 years of comparatively happy and contented marriage. Characteristically, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor celebrated their silver wedding on an American liner in mid-Atlantic, not that they planned it that way, but chiefly because they hadn't realized how time was catching up.

Today the Duke leads the tranquil, pleasant existence of any wealthy man in retirement. With an income secured, it is thought, on Sandringham lands and the bulk of his grandfather's fortune, he is unmoved by the millions of printed words that have described his actions so exhaustively.

"No twinge of regret!" he summed up his own emotions not long ago on revisiting the dust-sheeted room at Windsor Castle where he made his abdication broadcast. At the Moulin de la Tuilerie, his country home in the Seine valley, he still keeps the Chippendale table on which he signed the Instrument of Abdication. Housed in a former grain barn he calls his Museum, it is a shrine of freedom and happiness rather than frustration and exile.

Sprightly it keeps company with some of his old illuminated addresses of welcome, his youthful Menton in Despatches, signed by Haig and Churchill, his Highland pipe banners, steeple-chasing and pig-sticking trophies and three silver-mounted golf-balls recalling the three occasions when he made a hole in one.

The legend that the Windsors spend their lives flitting between hotels and nightclubs, in the shadow of royal ostracism, is a long time dying. Few people are aware that he sometimes has tea with his niece, the Queen and Prince Philip or indeed that he still has an office at Buckingham Palace where his secretary often types formal letters on palace notepaper.

VISITS BROTHER

A visit to London invariably sees a meeting with his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and a pleasant dinner party with his sister, the Princess Royal, at St. James's Palace. Not long ago, when visiting Windsor, he discovered a vast forgotten hoard of furniture that he ordered and arranged for it to be sent to Paris.

His home in the Bois de Boulogne occupies a privileged position in private grounds. A double staircase curves up to a gallery dominated by the red, gold and blue of the coat of arms. The servants wear royal blue livery and one comes away with impressions of crystal bowls glittering against crimson walls, royal miniatures shining on Louis XVI tables.

But the Duke's real home is 20 miles from the city in the secluded seventeenth - century mill that he bought 14 years ago from Etienne Drian, the painter, and renovated with intrepid enthusiasm. The mill-stream chuckles beyond his study window and, higher up the hill, a 25-foot waterfall cascades with intensely dramatic effect.

The atmosphere is that of cozy old house made over with sophistication and style. The beams are unexpectedly painted white and there are decorative touches perhaps possible only to a former monarch. A ceremonial bass drum of the Welsh Guards is used as a casual table, the skin bearing its complement of ash-trays and the painted Prince-of-Wales-feathers enhance a nearby wall.

Dividing husband - and - wife responsibility, the Duke leaves the affairs of the house to his wife while he supervises the garden. Both are keen gardeners, but while the grass man mows the croquet lawn the Duke tends with hoe or secateurs in the borders and likes to tell American friends that he's a "genuine dirt gardener".

Though old stables have been converted they are guest cottages, the Windsor's seldom entertain more than one group of friends at a time. Far from being addicted to elaborate dinner parties, the outdoor mill dining room is made to seat four, or six at the most.

Though the Windsors usually spend part of each winter in New York — and stayed over for the World's Fair this year — they are glad to get home to the mill. Occasional holidays are spent at Biarritz, with its five golf-courses, the Duke increasingly prefers "the garden of ours" and entertains friends with some pride around the rock-garden he built himself.

His pug dogs, Dory and Imp, flop at his feet as he browses over a gardening book. An inventive note-taker, the Duke has plans to write a garden book of his own but in the meantime a book on a life of his great - great - great - grandfather, George III. An informed collector of antiques, old and silver, he knows what to "throw out and I'm not" in the placement of some of his pieces with better ones that led to an auction-room sale a few years ago.

At seventy the Duke of Windsor is a healthy happy and contented man. No guns will boom a salute on his birthday but his 70th year of the waterfall at the Mill de la Tuilerie will do just as well.

A Tale of Two Cities

Riding High on Automobile Boom

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

If you step an industrial worker on the street in Windsor, or Oshawa, you have better than one chance in two of meeting a car maker.

Although city officials in those southern Ontario auto capitals like to talk diversification of industry, that kind of concentration—and the millions of dollars it wages it represents annually—makes it hard to over-estimate the importance of the auto business to their economies.

And with car and truck production booming as never before, both economies and hopes for the future are riding high.

In Oshawa, home of General Motors of Canada, acting mayor Hayward Murdoch says there's no question store owners are doing better now than a few years ago.

"The auto boom has certainly helped the general economic growth of the city and has created an increase in commercial trade.

"We had fewer people on relief, for example, in April than we've had for years and our whole employment picture is sound."

$50,000,000 GM PAYROLL

Doug Fisher, manager of Oshawa's Chamber of Commerce, says the auto industry pays a handsome wage to most businesses—"if people can afford to buy a new car, they can buy a new suit, a new dress, a lawn mower or what have you."

Of Oshawa's 90,000 citizens, 36,000 punch in at GM's plants. Last year GM's total payroll was more than $50,000,000.

Not all of that money, of course, was spent in Oshawa, since some GM workers commute from as far as 45 miles away, but Mr. Fisher estimates that GM accounts for 60 to 70 per cent of the city's business.

Mayor Michael Patrick of Windsor, home of Chrysler Canada Ltd. and Ford of Canada are located, echoes his counterpart's feelings.

"Windsor has been coming back during recent years from a particularly bleak period and, although there're many other important factors, there's no question the growth in the auto business has been a great stabilizing factor, especially as far as employment is concerned."

Of Windsor's total industrial force of about 30,000 persons, 18,700 are employed by the auto industry this spring.

FORD WINS ACCEPTANCE

Although the established auto centres are reaping the benefits of the expanding vehicle sales, newcomers are finding the auto industry tries highlight the excitement that can come from such a major business.

They are Oakville, Ont., where Ford established its assembly operation just years ago; Brampton, Ont., where American Motors (Canada) set up an assembly plant four years ago; Hamilton, where Studebaker has been making all its cars for world-wide export for the past month. N.S., home of Volvo (Canada), the country's newest car plant.

Ford's plans to move to Oakville—then a quiet, residential community mid - way between Toronto and Hamilton — were greeted at first with loud protests.

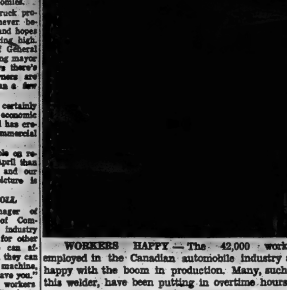
Those cries died quickly as Ford proved itself a good community citizen—and she started paying local taxes that by last year had totalled more than $2,000,000 and wages to local workers that now amount to about $9,000,000 or $10,000,000 a year.

Ford's total payroll last year to workers in Oakville, Windsor and other centres was $83,000,000.

At the modern American Motors plant near Brampton, company spokesman estimates, meaning an infusion of about $4,000,000 this year into Brampton's economy.

Equally important, several feeder plants have established there, turning out such products as steering wheels, headlamps, door locks and other accessories.

Studebaker, still in the process of expanding its Hamilton plant for increased production, estimates its total payroll this year for its 900 employees at $4,750,000.



Mayor Victor Copps calls the plant a great opportunity for the city and sees it as the most challenging development in Hamilton since the establishment of its steel industry.

Dartmouth's Mayor Joseph Zatzman describes Volvo plant, opened last summer, as "a terrific shot in the arm from the economic and morale point of view."

He says it reaffirms the city's faith in the area as a good industrial site, as well as opening up many other jobs.

Volvo's payroll since the plant was opened has totalled $400,000 and now is running about $40 000 monthly for the 325 workers.

Tomorrow: Auto makers confident of future sales.

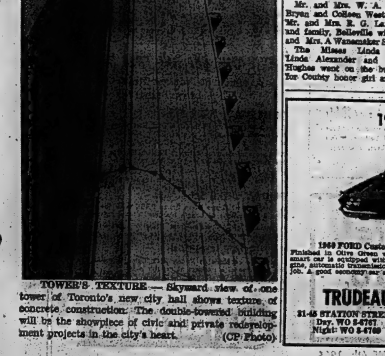
CLIMBS THROUGH CONTROVERSY — Concave towers of Toronto's unorthodox city hall climb into the city's skyline (right) despite controversy that has surrounded it since Finnish architect Viljo Rewell won an international design contest with his plan (left.)

Appraisals of the plan from city officials have ranged from a masterpiece of architecture to a monstrosity that "wouldn't even make a good grain elevator."



The 20-storey left tower is slated for completion in mid-summer, while the 27-storey right tower is to be finished by the end of 1964. Construction started in late 1962.

Council chamber will be enclosed in "clamshell" structure — between the towers — which includes space for 400 spectators under its poured concrete dome.

Cost of the entire project — originally estimated at about $13,000,000 — now is expected to be twice that amount. (CP Photo)

Battle Between Moderates And Extremists Looming up At Republican Convention

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)— Results of state presidential primaries held so far indicate President Lyndon B. Johnson's political power remains intact while the Republicans still search for a leader. Republicans appear to be bewildered, torn by inner dissension and demoralized by November's election prospects.

The big California primary, June 2 may change the situation slightly but not enough to end the likelihood of a wild battle between the moderates and extremists at the Republican nominating convention at San Francisco July 13.

With the forces of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge thrown behind support of New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, the underdog governor may finally slaughter Senator Barry Goldwater in the fight for the California prize —86 delegates at the nominating convention where 655 votes are required to win the party's presidential nomination.

GOLDWATER SUPPORT

But the ultra - conservative Goldwater is known to have gained sufficient delegate support from other states to climb within reaching distance of the nomination. Even if he loses in California, his influence on Republican policies and decisions will be hard to ignore. The national convention is likely to take on a distinctive right-wing color.

Presidential primaries, held in some states each election year, are state contests in which voters indicate who they would like to see as their party candidate in the presidential election in the fall.

On the Democratic side, Johnson's aides find no reason to worry about his strength, though they are irritated by the astonishing rise of pint - sized George Wallace, the anti-Negro governor of Alabama who has invaded selected parts of the North with his slogan of Segregation Today, Tomorrow and Forever.

When Wallace first announced he would seek the presidential nomination in the Democratic party, northern Democrats tended to scoff. Wallace was the man who stood in the school doorway, trying to block the entry of Negro students.

But Wallace won about 34 per cent of the vote in Wisconsin; about 20 per cent in Indiana and about 43 per cent in Maryland.

Party officials noted that Wallace had picked three states where the party leadership was in disarray. He got no delegates in the North for the Democratic convention at Atlantic City in August but the narrowness of the vote in Maryland indicated the Negro issue was highly sensitive and volatile.

Johnson would have to take that into consideration in selecting a running mate. This appeared to diminish any remaining prospects that Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy had for the vice-presidency.

Kennedy, brother of the late President Kennedy, is strongly linked with the Negro's drive for an end to second-class citizenship.

With his declared philosophy of being a president "of all the people," Johnson is likely to select a northern Roman Catholic for the vice - presidential spot. Those mentioned include Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and Peace Corps leader, Sargent Shriver.

CAMPBELLFORD

Matter Referred Back for Consideration

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Campbellford Municipal Council was held on Monday evening, June 1st.

Mr. T. Holmes and Mr. T. Smith addressed council relative to the establishing of a baseball diamond. The cost of which would be in the area of from four to five thousand dollars. After discussion concerning action of various organizations the matter was referred to the finance committee for further consideration.

No action was taken re resolution from another municipality asking for increase of one per cent in municipalities who wished so do so.

A sale of a park rented for some years by the town and now offered to the town to buy the price was not accepted and owner will be advised of termination of rental lease in July.

On another property it was decided to purchase for $3,000 steps to be taken to issue debentures for $2,500 over a three-year term.

Mr. Tony Shelton was engaged as assistant assessor for the period necessary.

The next regular meeting will be held on June 29th at which meeting Messrs. Sharp and Barker will be invited to attend. Mr. Sharp represents the Ontario Water Resources and Mr. Barker the British Consultant Engineers who will probably present the survey report at that time.

Not Signing Any Contracts For OPP

TORONTO (CP) — Some villages and municipalities which have been hiring the provincial police for protection during the summer may have to look elsewhere for policemen, OPP Commissioner Eric Silk said Tuesday.

In an interview, Commissioner Silk said he hoped the practice of municipalities writing contracts with the OPP for policing would end. There are 40 municipalities holding contracts with the OPP at the present time.

Grand Bend, 23 miles northwest of Sarnia, Wasaga Beach, 18 miles northwest of Barrie, and Crystal Beach, near Port Colborne, are three such resort municipalities with contracts for OPP policing.

The commissioner said "we need every man we can get in the summer to handle the heavy traffic."

WEIGHT A PROBLEM

CALGARY (CP) — Problems of overweight have left today's North American male "open to death or disease," says Dr. Thomas K. Cureton of the University of Illinois. Dr. Cureton said in an interview the average man eats and drinks 500 calories a day more than he should, so that by middle age he is from 30 to 50 pounds overweight.

Good Tourist Season for Ont. Expected

TORONTO (CP) — Chances are good that Ontario's tourist industry will experience a record season despite competition from the New York world's fair, James Auld, minister of tourism and information, said Tuesday.

Fishing camp operators in northwestern and northeastern Ontario report that bookings are well ahead of the same period last year, Mr. Auld said. He credited favorable May weather with contributing to the boom.

Expectations that domestic travel in Ontario would suffer because of the number of residents going to the world's fair were not substantiated. The number from southern Ontario would reap tourist business from travellers en route to New York.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — The regular meeting of the Evening Group of Thomasburg U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Emma Cronkwright on May 20, a week earlier than usual due to the "Family Variety Night" which was held on the regular night. There were eight members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Ella Walker was in charge of the devotional period and read the story of Susanna Wesley, mother of John Wesley, which was both interesting and informative. She was assisted in the devotions by Mrs. Mildred Preston and Mrs. R. Fraser.

The president Mrs. Ruth Seekings was in charge of business when several announcements of future activities were made and a considerable amount of business was transacted. A discussion took place in regard to the whereabouts of the "Travelling Apron" and the group would appreciate if the person who has it would return it to the president or the secretary, Mrs. Ruth Agnew, as soon as possible.

Mrs. Seekings thanked all who had participated during the meeting and to Mrs. Cronkwright for the hospitality.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

AFTERNOON GROUP

The U.C.W. Afternoon Group held the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Bolstridge on Wednesday afternoon preceded by a quilting and a pot-luck dinner.

The president Mrs. E. Priddle opened the meeting with a reading and a prayer and Mrs. Harold K. Morton led in the devotional, assisted by Mrs. Ross Wilson and Mrs. Marion Morton. Mrs. Henry Morton gave a report on stewardship and Mrs. Brough read the minutes and acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. H. Vance. Mrs. Priddle read the treasurer's report from the Evening Group. A thank-you note was read from Mr. Earl Morton. An invitation was received to attend a tea at Moneymore on June 3 sponsored by the Ladies Guild.

It was suggested that the Canada Packers labels go toward a table cloth for the kitchen. It was also decided that cards be sent to patients in hospital and that if an operation is performed a rose bowl is to be sent. An amount of $25 is to be set aside for flowers.

Mrs. Priddle expressed thanks to all who had taken part in the meeting and at the 4th recent tea.

A Name Is a Name Is a Name..

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—What's in a street name? Apparently a lot of headaches for urban councils throughout Britain.

In Shrewsbury, for instance, the town council found itself in the power after naming a street in a new residential development, Connyngar Crescent.

But one councillor wanted to know how the name was pronounced—with a hard or a soft "C". He also wondered what the crescent's future residents would think when they discovered that connyngar was a medieval word for rabbit warren.

With Britain building about 365,000 new homes a year, the problem of finding original and appropriate street names is taxing imaginations everywhere.

NAMES OF WARRIORS

To avoid the sort of disputes created by Connyngar Crescent, the Shrewsbury council usually sticks to something safe and simple such as the names of 19th century Battle of Shrewsbury.

The Shrewsbury Motorshead, a modern shopping centre, is named after Sir Reginald Motershead—one of the men who supported Henry IV in the battle.

At Corby, in Northamptonshire, there are no battles to fall back on so the policy has been to name streets after poets and writers.

Naming streets after people is disappointing, said the city of Birmingham because city councillors feel that names that are heroes today may become infamous tomorrow.

At the moment the city's naming committee is working its way through two lists, one of small Welsh towns and the other of inland waterways.

WRONG ADDRESSES

In London a six-man department in the London County Council is kept busy inventing or approving about 450 street names a year. The biggest problem in the capital's maze of lanes, alleyways and thoroughfares is to avoid duplication.

"We renamed a whole collection of streets in 1938 to try to sort out the confusion," a spokesman said.

"Before that we had King, Queen and Church streets everywhere and letters were always going to the wrong addresses.

"Now instead of just Church street we have Kensington Church Street and Deptford Church Street."

London selects its names from four main categories—local history, geographical references, names of persons dead at least 20 years and such group associations as Apple and Pear streets on the Orchard Estate.

"It's getting tougher all the time," said the spokesman, "especially since most of the historical and geographical names have been used already.

"We have to be careful in choosing appropriate names. There's a Bleeding Heart Yard in London but we wouldn't select that today. Nor would we call a Blokey Lane just because a man named Thomas Bloke once lived there."

Campbellford News

Stretch of Road Along River Said Dangerous

CAMPBELLFORD — A truck went into the ditch on River Road on East side of Trent River at Campbellford on Sunday.

On this stretch of road there are 75 cottages and farm homes plus two power houses, a summer hotel, Riverside Inn, Seymore Township fair grounds, a service garage, silo plant, saw mill and Crow Bay Camping Park. This is all on a three mile distance on a County Road, north of Campbellford on the East side of the Front River. There are several very sharp curves on this narrowly paved road.

There have been numerous accidents and last year one person killed.

One curve in particular is very sharp and very close to the river, at this point the river is deep. Several cars have gone off the road at this curve breaking hydro poles and in fact one went into the river, the door having been broken open by impact with a hydro pole saved the two occupants from drowning.

At this point the paved part of the road is less than 18 feet thus making it very difficult for two cars to meet on the sharp curve.

With a heavy daily traffic and tourist holiday traffic approaching, one who narrowly missed an accident here says it is high time, and long past due, that the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham take action to correct this very dangerous situation. With many near fatal accidents in this particular place loss of life by drowning or serious collisions will be unavoidable.

Many cottages are on the opposite side of the highway from the river. Crow Bay Camping Park is also situated on the opposite side, campers are continually crossing to the swimming beach on a curved part of the road, therefore unless there is some speed limit posted accidents will happen sooner or later.

There is also no control at the beach, swimming is permissable twenty four hours a day during the summer it is not at all unusual for cars to be parked any time in the night for so called swimming parties and quite often one hears more than the water splashing.

This is a good swimming beach, an excellent place for launching a boat but is sadly in need of municipal supervision.

OES Chapter Holds Fine Spring Tea

CAMPBELLFORD — A successful tea was held in the Masonic Temple, Campbellford, on Wednesday afternoon by Chapter 278, Order of Eastern Star.

The tea was convened by Mrs. William Dowling. Receiving the guests were the Worthy Matron Mrs. Preston Hall, assisted by Associate Worthy Matron Mrs. E. Carlaw.

In charge of the guest book was the first worthy matron of Chapter 278, O.E.S., Mrs. Harry Burgin, assisted by former worthy matron, Mrs. William Brady.

Pouring tea for the afternoon were worthy matrons of other chapters.

Mrs. J. Poulton and Mrs. G. Miller were in charge of the serving table and report that much interest was shown in this phase and returns good.

The candy table was looked after by Mrs. Doris McAdam and Mrs. William Moore.

Mrs. G. G. Stephens convened the bake table and the pantry shelf department was taken care of by Mrs. F. T. Rutherford and Mrs. William Cochrane.

A draw was made on a mop doll and William Brady held the winning ticket; a second prize of cheese was won by Frankford Osborne, R.R. No. 2, Campbellford. Two door prizes were given, one won by Mrs. R. Jones of Belleville, and the other by Mrs. Florence Birch of Trenton.

The decorative theme of the tea was a "Wishing Well" and was carried out effectively with an abundance of spring flowers.

Warden Speaks At Rotary Club Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Rotary Club meeting for their weekly dinner had as their guest speaker, Warden D. McMaster of United Counties on Monday.

Warden McMaster was born in Saskatchewan, coming to Ontario at ten years of age. He was educated in Trenton schools and is now a successful farmer in Murray township and Reeve of the municipality.

The Counties Council of the United counties was the subject of Warden McMaster's address. There are 43 members in the Counties Council which is the second largest in Ontario, there are 24 municipalities represented and 60 miles of lake front borders the two counties, Northumberland and Durham.

In recent years there has been considerable discussion, Mr. McMaster stated, concerning the probable continued usefulness of county councils, that such is the case could be proved by the increased public demands have made and county councils necessary and more important. The committees represent high school area, care of the elderly, child welfare, health unit and other important functions.

Grants to societies for 1964 amount to $8,800 in addition another $3,000 is given in scholarships and bursaries. The road budget for 1964 is over $1,000,000, the government paying a 50 per cent subsidy on roads and 80 per cent subsidy on bridges and culverts.

Warden McMaster was introduced by Reeve George Free and was thanked by Deputy Reeve Locke, both of Campbellford municipal court.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Whatever success the Bay of Quinte Country Club attains in what appears to be its finest season will not be wholly attributed to the male of the species.

For the distaff side is going to have a lot to do — before the year-end trophies, gew-gaws and whatnots are handed to winners and champions.

The gals are not going so far as to say "Anything you can do—we can do better," but in the season's co-operative effort they're ready and willing to do their share.

Time was, perhaps, when they picked up a friend or perhaps three, went to the club, shot 18s or 18 holes, had a cup of tea and called it a day.

That, this year, is "old hat." Now under organized effort and member co-operation, they're "cutting a much wider swath," so to speak, both socially and course-wise.

I talked with a gaggle of the golfing gals the other day and if enthusiasm is a criterion then madame president of the ladies' division, Mrs. Vera Fairman, can write off 1964 as a success.

Golf-wise the Thursday "Ladies' Golf" inaugurated last year, had a far-reaching effect. The 1963 success reached out and over into this season and at the moment some forty Eves of the links coeds are weekly to match shots and whatnot.

That pair of Bettys, Walmsley and Weymark, in charge of the Thursday tourneys, told me there is no need for any "press-gang" tactics. "Enthusiasm is increasing and we have no trouble in procuring up to 40 players even by the Sunday before play."

Past president Mrs. Ena Corke who helped inaugurate the tournaments, told me a number of new members are turning out. "This is a fine thing since it helps the girls to get to know one another and new golfers are learning a lot."

I do not know how far the "helping hand" goes, but friendly help, after some progress has been achieved, is a big factor in golf. A few inaccuracies, perhaps personal eccentricities, or whatever you will, are often corrected by a bit of advice given cheerfully now and then by a successful amateur or a friendly pro.

In the old days an ordinary established golfer was busy with his own game and rarely gave advice to a man who was hardly over the beginner stage. Desultory advice rarely benefitted the new golfer.

But that is changed now in the majority of cases. A different camaraderie has developed both on the course and in the clubhouse. Of course there are exceptions but generally there is a "three musketeers" all-for-one and one-for-all spirit apparent.

Socially, the club under the convenorship of Betty O'Brien, has developed a program that is designed for the enjoyment of both male and distaff sides.

Duplicate bridge parties are now monthly affairs. There will be a corn and wiener roast. There are mixed bridge nights. Dinners will be mixed tournaments and the annual "Mr. and Mrs." tourney.

True, the gals and the opposite sex have their own days, tournaments, championship rounds and trophy "battles," but while the name might have applied in the dim past, it cannot be said that the present Country Club is a "house divided."

Membership is at its highest peak, I'm told, and veteran golfers of both sexes are seeing to it that new members become part and parcel of the golfing family.

Even the near-venerable clubhouse has entered the spirit of the times. President George Orchiston took me on a "tour" the other day and showed me the "face-lifting" operations that have removed ten years of life from the building.

New interior decoration, "rejuvenated" locker rooms, a new lounge arrangement, and modern kitchen facilities have produced a remarkable new look.

Outside on the waterfront, a new stucco job enhances the exterior of the clubhouse. Low water levels in the bay have facilitated the work of beautifying the shoreline. Trees and other buildings in disuse have been removed, giving members a beautiful view of the bay sweeping between tree-crested shorelines towards Trenton.

It would appear that the Country Club with energetic committees and an able executive reaching for the top, is on the threshold of a new era.

Don't Need World Race Says Moss

TORONTO (CP) — Stirling Moss feels Canada has nothing to gain by attempting to promote a world championship motor race.

The retired international champion, who will act as a team manager in the 200-mile sports car event at Mosport Saturday, told a press conference Tuesday night the prestige involved in staging a Formula One race would not justify the expense.

"You have two excellent races already, the 200-mile event and the Canadian Grand Prix," he said. "Why try for more?"

The British ace, who retired after a near-fatal crash in England two years ago, said sports car racing is more interesting and gives the public more for its money.

"Granted, you get all the top drivers at a championship race, but in your two major events you get the best anyway."

Moss picked Jim Clark of Scotland to win this year's International championship with John Surtees and Graham Hill finishing second and third.

Tribe Dethrones White Sox

Angels' Hurler Whiffs 15 In 1-0 Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance stormed out of Fred Haney's office in a contract hassle recently and aimed a parting shot at Los Angeles Angels' general manager.

"All right," said Chance, "I'll pitch an $18,000 season."

Neither Chance nor Haney expected him to try to do it in one game.

But Chance turned in one of the top pitching performances of the American League season Tuesday night, keeping Boston Red Sox hitless for 5 3-5 innings and finishing with a two-hitter while striking out 15 in a 1-0 Los Angeles victory.

Chance, 22, a right-hander, had a shot at a no-hitter and probably a raise until Dick Stuart lined a single to centre with two out in the ninth. He also had a shot at the record 18-strikout mark until he ran out of whiffs in the last two innings.

Chance had 13 strikeouts through seven innings, but struck out only two in each of the last two innings and settled for the season's high of 15, an improvement over his 12-strikeout performance against Baltimore last April 26.

The 24-victory yardstick was applied by Haney a week ago Tuesday when the pair first called a special press conference and brought up the subject of Chance's contract dispute with the club. At that time, Haney said an $18,000 season figures out to about '24 winning games."

OTHER PITCHERS STAR

While Chance was showing Haney his stuff, standout pitching efforts were turned in by:

—Sam McDowell, a $100,000 bonus baby recently recalled from the minors who struck out 14 as Cleveland Indians defeated Chicago 3 - 2 and knocked the White Sox out of the league lead.

—Baltimore's Dave McNally who posted his second shutout with a stellar 4-0 triumph over Kansas City that lifted the Orioles into first place.

—Gerry Arrigo, who kept eight hits well spaced in Minnesota Twins' 6-2 triumph over New York Yankees.

The other AL game scheduled —Washington at Detroit—was rained out.

Besides Stuart's single, the only other hit off Chance was a single by Felix Mantilla leading off the ninth.

Chance got the only run he needed and the one run in the game in the fourth when Jack Lamabe walked Joe Koppe, Billy Moran singled and Lee Thomas doubled.

IMPROVES HIS RECORD

Meanwhile, McNally, a fastballer with only eight major league victories in four years, posted two of his best performances in his career recalled from the minors last Saturday.

Leon Wagner homered in the third inning for the Indians—No. 12 of the season and his fourth in four games—and Cleveland broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth when Max Alvis and Larry Brown hit consecutive homers.

McNally, also a 21-year-old southpaw, had been ineffective in his last two outings after pitched strongly against the Athletics, who were unable to get a man past second base. McNally slow has a 4-3 record.

Boog Powell homered for the Orioles, who scored single runs in their first three runs or wild pitches by Orlando Pena, now 6-4.

Arrigo, 21, a lefty, struck out Elston Howard with the bases loaded in the third and got out of a bases-loaded jam in the fourth without a run scoring.

Hector Lopez homered in the eighth for the Yankees but the Twins already had put it out of reach as Tony Oliva stroked three hits and Jerry Kindall, Leslie Allen, Don Mincher and Earl Battey all collected triples.

Half-Brother To 'Dancer' Is Destroyed

TORONTO (CP) — Stewart, a half-brother to Northern Dancer and Windfield Farm's entry with the Queen in the $60,000 Queen's Plate here June 20, was put to death by a veterinarian Tuesday.

He had smashed a bone in his left forefoot in a race at Greenwood Monday.

A son of Nearctic out of Solar Display, Stalwart was projected at $20,000 without talents, at E. P. Taylor's annual yearling sale.

Senior Tilt Depends On Weatherman

Belleville Joyces watched the clouds with fingers crossed this morning, after re-scheduling their Eastern Ontario Baseball senior opener here against Oshawa Merchants.

The game was washed out Monday night and rain was falling on the area again this morning.

A parade, opening ceremonies and presentations were re-arranged for tonight, weather permitting, of course.

The Belleville club has a return engagement against Oshawa slated for Friday night, at 8:30 in Little Britain and the home field here is only available on certain nights so the locals are rooting for the skys to clear as early as possible today.

"We realize postponements are going to hurt at the gate," a team representative said this morning, "but we think the Belleville fans will give us good support."

Joyces are expected to name Bill Latchford, the Lakeshore loop's leading pitcher last season, for the starting mound assignment tonight.

Leafs Whip Bisons 8-4, Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With his team leading 9-2 in the top of the ninth inning and two men ahead of him in line for bumped dirty, Herm Starrette didn't figure to see much action Tuesday night.

Then Buffalo starter Bill Short suddenly lost his stuff, Syracuse batters exploded for six runs and Starrette eventually had to strike out two men to preserve a 9-8 victory for the Red Wings.

His effective fireman's job benefited Toronto Maple Leafs, who stretched their International League lead over the Chiefs to two games by clubbing Buffalo Bisons 8-4. The other two games on the scheduled wire were rained out.

Five errors and 13 bases on balls featured the wild affair at Syracuse as the Red Wings appeared to be home free after a five-run outburst in the third inning.

Wally Post's three-run homer started the Chiefs on their scoring comeback and two walks and a single finished Short. Two more singles followed before Starrette came on to fan sluggers Willie Horton and Mack Jones for the final two outs.

Utility infielder Bill Kerr, filling in at first base, drove in the two winning runs with his second on a pair of doubles for the Leafs as Ken Nixon recorded his fourth victory in five decisions.

Bill Kunkel took over to preserve the victory when the Bisons routed Nixon in the sixth inning with a three-run rally featuring two triples and Duke Carmel's eighth home run.

Guelph, London Win Easily

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph CJOY's and London Frontiers got their runs by the dozen Tuesday as they bowed to easy victories in Senior Intercounty Baseball League games.

Guelph treated their home fans to two touchdowns as they won their third straight, walloping defending champion Brantford Red Sox 24-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Harry Barber.

Guelph batters belted Brantford pitchers Bruce Penney and Rex Hubbard for 18 hits to go along with nine walks and seven Red Sox errors.

London used a 15-hit attack and seven Chiefs errors to blank Stratford Chiefs 12-0 at Stratford. Ray Herbert set the Chiefs down on two hits for the victory.

NHL Meets Monday

Habs Ask Penalty Rules Change

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Proposals to revert to the old rule of continuing a minor penalty when a goal is scored and to make spearing a mandatory major penalty will come before the National Hockey League when it opens its annual meeting Monday.

Both proposals are from the Montreal Canadiens club which pointed them was not indicated. Other proposals for the rules committee likely will be comparatively minor.

Because of increasing agendas, this annual get - together of hockey men from all parts of Canada and the United States will be a four-day affair. Previously it lasted three days.

In addition to the NHL, minor pro leagues in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will send representatives and solid meetings of their own.

NO DEALS SIGHTED

So far, there has been little or no talk of comprehensive big deals or of the NHL's big intra-league draft, at which the major league clubs name their unprotected players from one another at $20,000 a grab. A club may protect 14 players, plus two goalies, against the draft.

The rule establishing the washout of a minor penalty when a goal is scored against the shorthanded team came into effect at the start of the 1956-57 season. At that time it was little favored by the Montreal club, which saw it as a move by other clubs to bogtie the then awesome power play of Canadiens.

In connection with Canadiens' Plante's accident spearing, discretion now rests with the referee whether to call a minor or major penalty. The rules committee would give him no choice — he would have to call a major.

DISCUS SHOLDING

Some action may be taken on previous discussions aimed at forbidding the goalie from holding the puck against the backboards or the nets in his arms. Even now the goalie cannot fall on the puck inside his crease but can do anything defensively while inside it.

The NHL owners may consider holding the junior amateur draft before May 1 in future, after the Ontario Hockey Association permits its clubs to sign players up to May 1 for the following season.

There may also be a proposal that junior-age players, whether professional or not, be exempt from the NHL's intra - league draft.

NHL president Clarence Campbell will introduce proposals to make all NHL rinks uniform in that the players' benches will be on one side and the penalty boxes on the other. Three clubs—Toronto, Chicago and Detroit — already have this arrangement.

Too Much Healey

Tweed Nip Trudeaus 2-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Another tight, low-scoring affair featured action in the B. and D. Softball League last night as Blaine Healey pitched Tweed Lombanks to their second win of the season, 2-1 over Trudeau Motors.

The loss left Trudeaus tied with Trenton for top spot, each with six points, but Trenton has a game in hand. The two clubs will break the deadlock when they meet in Trenton tonight at 8:15.

Healey, finding the going tougher this season than last, stopped Trudeaus on three hits. He struck out 14 and walked a pair, retiring the last 14 batters in order.

Tweed got their ace a 1-0 lead in the top of the second inning. Trudeaus tied it in their half of the frame and the winners ended the scoring in the sixth, another singleton in the 4th.

Wally White made his initial start on the Trudeau hilltop and hurled well after a shaky start. He allowed seven hits but whiffed three but issued seven walks.

Four of the free tickets filled the bases in the inning to account for the game's first run.

In the bottom of the inning, Faulkner beat out an infield hit, raced all the way to third on Blaine's sacrifice and scored later on a passed ball. A walk and the game's lone error put two more Trudeau runners on but Healey fanned his second batter to end the threat.

Lombanks used bunts to plate the deciding run. Carleton beat the first one out, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on T. LeGagy's two-out bunt single.

Tweed singles were divided among Lorne Carleton, Don LeSage, Terry LeSage, Eldon Gray, Paul Meawe, Rich Morden and Jerry Sherry.

Rick Locke hit a wrong-field double, Ralph Plane and R. Faulkner singled to account for the Trudeau safeties.

Tweed had 14 runners stranded on the base paths, while the losers left only five. Trudeau pulled off the game's fielding gem, a diving shoe-string catch of Faulkner's low liner centre fielder Gray in the third inning while Plane also made an outstanding play to force Sherry in the fourth.

Jaycees edged the Bad Boys 5-4 in a very tight B.M.S.A. Peewee game at Park Dale last night while in Tyke play, at the Almville, Melville Construction clobbered the Yankees 23-14.

The Peewee game was a see-saw affair in which the Bad Boys led 4-1 at one time. Aycees scored two in the sixth and a final pair in the bottom of the last inning for the final 5-4 score.

B. Wark and D. Demers in the seventh, pitched for Jaycees, allowing five hits, while P. Hall caught. W. Farrell gave up seven hits for Bad Boys. R. Jury was his battery mate.

Dick Fobert starred for the winners by hitting two doubles and a single. P. Hall and D. Demers each had a pair of one-baggers. R. Jury was best in defeat, slamming a three-run double and a single.

A Peewee game, between Fountain Park and the Glants, rained out on Monday, will be played Friday night, at Park Dale, at 8:15.

In the Tyke clash, Melville got the first one out, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on T. LeGagy's two-out bunt single.

Belmont Stakes

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP)—Nominations for the 96th running of the Belmont Stakes closed last night with 146 thoroughbred colts, fillings and fillies on the list.

The four days before this famous track race, third gem in racing's triple crown for three-year-olds, only two of the 14 were definite starters—Canadian-bred Northern Dancer and Hill Rise, his season-long rival.

The Dancer, winner of both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, will be driving Saturday in the Belmont to become the ninth horse in history to sweep this triad of races. If he does he will be the first since Citation in 1948.

A third horse, John Galbreath's Orientalist, a son of Swaps, also has been entered, via a supplementary nomination fee Tuesday that cost the Columbus, Ohio, owner $5,000.

The proprietors of another dozen or so of the original nominees which appear to have a chance to earn some money in the $125,000 added race were taking their time about declaring their intentions. It appeared certain that at least two or three would take the plunge between now and Friday night, closing time for entries in the race that will begin at approximately 4:48 p.m. EDT Saturday.

But there is considerable speculation as to whether he has the size and stamina to carry 126 pounds for 1¼ miles and beat Hill Rise. The distance is the true derby distance, the same as used at Epsom, England, today.

Hill Rise started as favorite in both the Derby and the Preakness. In the 1¼ - mile Derby he was gaining on the Taylor colt when he ran out of track. Northern Dancer finished one neck in front of the California colt in Derby record time.

In the 1 3-16-mile Preakness, the dazzling Dancer beat The Scoundrel by 2¼ lengths with Hill Rise settling for third.

The Scoundrel, third in the Derby, is out of the Belmont picture. Sold by Rex Ellsworth last week for $500,000 to Kjell Qvale of San Francisco, the colt injured a tendon in his left front leg shortly before last Saturday's Derby Trial, which he had been favored to win. The injury apparently has sidelined him indefinitely.

However, Northern Dancer, Hill Rise and Orientalist may get competition from Louis Wolfson's Roman Brother, winner of the Jersey Derby. A decision was expected today after trainer Hurley Parke confers with Wolfson. Roman Brother, a light little colt, has been out of the money only twice in his career. He finished a closing fourth in the Derby and was fifth in the Preakness.

Nip Dodgers 4-3; Mets Win Another

Phillies Extend Lead As Giants Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Cookie isn't crumbling for Philadelphia Phillies.

Ever since manager Gene Mauch decided last week that Tony Taylor needed a rest, Cookie Rojas has been behaving as though he owned second base. A career .221 hitter, he's currently averaging a gaudy .348, including 14 hits in 31 appearances since he took over.

Rojas continued his hot streak with two hits against Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night as the Phillies maintained their National League lead with a 4-3 victory.

Cookie scored their first run when he doubled, stole third and came in on Richie Allen's long fly. After Ken McMullen's two-run homer had tied it at 3-3 in the top of the seventh, Rojas opened the Phillie half with a single.

Allen's single and an intentional walk loaded the bases and Cookie trotted home with the winning run when Don Ferrarokil walked Wes Covington.

INCREASE LEAD

The victory, coupled with San Francisco Giants' 3-1 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates, extended the Phillies' league lead to 7½ games. In other NL games, Cincinnati Reds rallied to beat Warren Spahn and Milwaukee Braves 7-5, New York Mets came from behind and whipped Houston Colts 8-4, and Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis Cardinals 5-2.

Rojas' hitting helped Dennis Bennett win his seventh game in 10 decisions. In addition to scoring the first and fourth runs, Cookie squeezed John Herrnstein home with a perfect sacrifice bunt in the second inning.

And to rub salt into Los Angeles' wounds, old friend Ed Roebuck hurled the ninth inning and set the Dodgers down 1-2-3.

Spahn was breezing with a 5-1 lead and a five-hitter through seven innings when the Reds suddenly turned the tables. A four-run eighth tied it and then run-scoring hits by Deron Johnson and Frank Robinson won it in the ninth.

The Braves built the lead early with two-run homers by Gene Oliver and Denis Menke. Oliver also had a solo homer.

GETS SECOND STRAIGHT

Bob Veale hurled a five-hitter for his second straight victory over the Giants and his fifth win in eight decisions. He struck out nine and walked four.

The Pirates grabbed a quick lead in the second inning when Willie Stargell tripled, Roy Freese doubled and Donn Clendenon singled for two runs.

The Mets rallied with 4-2 scoring in the seventh when three hits, two Colt errors and a pair of hit batters produced five runs and the victory.

New York spotted Houston a 4-0 lead and then got 8 2-3 innings of skilful relief from Gill Wakefield and Frank Lary.

Hot-hitting Billy Williams had three hits including his 14th homer and ran his league-leading average to .422 against St. Louis as the Cubs won their sixth in the last seven games.

Ron Santo, Billy Cowan and Jim Schaffer also homered for Chicago and Larry Jackson went the route to beat his ex-teammates.

Softball Loop Clears Up Minor Problems

Team managers of the Belleville and District Softball League met with the executive to straighten away a few minor problems following last night's game at the CNHA.

What was expected to become a major problem did not develop, however, when Trudeau Motors agreed to clear pitcher Pat Marcelo to play with the Trenton club. Formal clearance must now be obtained from the OASA through the league executive. Marcelo lives east of Belleville.

The teams agreed to keep playoff arrangements the same as last year, with the first and third place teams meeting in every half of the semi-finals, second and fourth in the other half. Semi-finals will be best-of-five series, the finals a best-of-seven.

Postponed games came up for lengthy discussion since Tweed and Trenton have problems in using their parks on any but their regular-scheduled night. Tweed must play their postponed games on either Friday nights or Sunday afternoons or evenings. Trudeau agreed to play there on Sundays and Trenton also thought it could be arranged. Ellis Juniors were not keen on the matter and none of the clubs wanted to play on Fridays. Monday's Juniors-at-Tweed match-up game has not been re-scheduled as yet but may be played on Sunday, June 14. The Trenton club hopes to complete plans to have any rained out games there played on Saturday nights, at 8.00 p.m.

It was also announced that a team made up of R. & D. League players will play the California Cuties, a touring club at Fairgrounds on Monday, June 15, at 7.15 p.m. The game will be in connection with Minor Softball Week and all proceeds will go to the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The two top pro golfers from America, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, head the overseas entry for the British Open golf championship July 9-10.

Twenty-five Americans were among the 327 entries listed Tuesday by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews. The ones exempt from qualifying have not yet been named.

Bob Charles, the New Zealander who last year became the first left-hander to win the British Open, will be defending his crown. Among the challengers will be Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., who tied Charles for first place but lost the playoff, by eight strokes.

Nicklaus finished third last year, a stroke behind Charles and Rodgers. Palmer, British Open winner in 1961 and 1962, finished well down the list.

Cards Trade Burdette To C'icago

CHICAGO (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals traded Lew Burdette to Chicago Cubs for Glen Hobbie Tuesday in a swap of veteran righthanded pitchers.

Burdette, 37, has been in the majors since 1951 and enjoyed his greatest years with Milwaukee Braves before the Cardinals acquired him a year ago.

Burdette twice won 20 games for Milwaukee and twice reached 19 victories. He had a 9-13 record last season and was 3-0 this year while making eight relief appearances.

Hobbie, 26, reached the majors in 1957. In 1959 and 1960 he won 15 games each season. He also topped the National League with 20 losses in 1960.

Hobbie was 7-10 last year and has a current 9-4 record, appearing in eight games and making four starts.

AT THE PARK — "A Ticklish Affair" is something of a family affair, with Red Buttons playing Shirley Jones' brother and the favorite uncle of six-year-old Peter Robbins and nine-year-old Bryan Russell. We wonder, when he brings them toys like U.S. Navy weather balloons, one of which takes Peter aloft, if Gig Young and Carolyn Jones also star in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, filmed in Panavision and color opening Thursday at the Park Theatre for a three day engagement. On the same program a second M-G-M fun hit in color "Mail Order Bride", stars Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton. Both his are first showings.

CBC Thriller Show Runs for 5 Weeks

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP) — "Up to about a month before we taped it the premiere was considered impossible to do."

Producer David Gardner recalls the initial opinion about the feasibility of videotaping A Train of Murder, Halifax writer Ray Hill's new pay-TV comedy murder mystery which will be seen on CBC-TV's The Serial next fall.

Almost all the action in the five half-hour episodes, involving about 60 characters, takes place on a train during a trip from Vancouver to Montreal, making the first time a TV show this long has been confined to such a setting.

A major problem, seemingly insurmountable, was how to avoid boring the viewer with a suffocating, cigar-box atmosphere.

Fortunately, the series was divided into short scenes. Also CBC-TVs set design and staging department was able to create what must surely be one of the most ingenious and complicated sets.

The play calls for three cars —a lounge, a diner and a sleeper. On the set, about 80 feet long, one car serves for both lounge and diner.

The set consists of four compartments, one roomette, one vestibule and a porter's room-ette, the lounge-diner car, the lounge aisle to the sleepers, one sleeper aisle, one roomette aisle, and a short aisle used as a distance piece.

The CNR stripped two of its cars to provide some of the set's furnishings. It even sent a waiter down to the set to ensure that the dishes were properly placed in the diner.

ROCKS LIKE TRAIN

To achieve the important sense of motion, designer Harold Maxfield supported the entire set on some 600 rubber balls in lines with wires secured by ordinary bed springs, enabling one man to rock the whole set.

The set wasn't cut in half lengthwise, as is normally the case. Instead, a honeycomb of ports, or openings, permitted the cameras to peer inside the set, keeping a continuous watch on action at any spot.

Because of the restricted studio space, a projector was equipped with an anamorphic lens to throw images on a screen, giving the impression of landscape flashing by.

Maxfield spent about a month designing the set, which was built in another studio.

"Without being too flowery, I think we've got the most versatile designers on the continent," says Maxfield, who worked in the British motion picture industry before coming to Canada as an industrial designer. He's been with CBC nine years.

CBC-TV has 51 set designers from coast to coast. Montreal, centre of the French - language production complex, has the most with 23 followed by Toronto with 17.

The set design and staging department have members about 370 employees working in set design and properties, studio staging, graphic design and still photography, animation, costuming and makeup, special effects, carpentry shops and warehouse and trucking.

One could say that everything seen on the screen, with the exception of the performers, comes from this department," says Its recently appointed chief, Peter Garstang, a Toronto native who once worked in theatre in Vancouver and Britain.

HAVE MOST PROPS

The department does have a larger selection of props than NBC and the BBC because they're able to rent most of theirs. We also have about 10,000 costumes."

The props include 1,200 chairs, 500 tables and 150 coat-tierfields, as well as a ceiling-high assortment of articles ranging from ashtrays to barrels. Fireplaces. The old master you saw hanging on the wall of a set probably was painted by a senior designer during a slack period, and the rustic wood-mounting kitchen stove that dominated a rural setting probably was made of plastic. The props branch also has a fair collection of antique Canadiana, picked up by prop men who haunt auctions.

All sets are built by master craftsmen to withstand the knockabout wear and tear of production. Permanent sets are refurbished during the less busy summer period and the others are destroyed.

Some ostensibly simple sets are expensive to execute. Perhaps it's necessary to give an orchestra a light, airy appearance in a variety production. A difficult cantilever effect may have to be used to make it look as if it's hanging in mid-air.

On the other hand, some sets aren't as difficult as they might appear. The canal scene in the production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" was remarkably easy to execute, although the set as a whole was one of the more major efforts of the season. All that was necessary was to ensure that the plastic tarpaulin didn't spring a leak, flooding the studio with 50 tons of water.

Sometimes the elaborate set you see on your screen doesn't exist at all. For example, you see a palatial ballroom, with an elegantly gowned woman descending a staircase.

Actually, only the staircase exists. It was built in the shops and placed against a blowup backdrop projection of the ballroom. All the actress need do is descend the stairs, remembering not to touch the non-existent railing on the way down.

CBS Predicts Vote Result With Only 2 Per Cent In

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—The most fascinating stars of television Tuesday night were the networks' electronic tote boards rolling up the vote totals in the California primary.

CBS daringly demonstrated its faith in it "vote profile analysis." With only two per cent of the vote counted, and the polls still open in San Francisco, CBS declared Senator Barry Goldwater the winner of the presidential preference vote at 10:2 p.m. EDT.

NBC, while noting the Goldwater lead that appeared within the first few minutes and remained throughout the program, delayed predicting a winner because of the closeness of the race. When 75 per cent of the votes had been counted, Chet Huntley noted a projection would give Goldwater 51 per cent of the vote and Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller 49 per cent. ABC predicted a Goldwater victory on the basis of 22 per cent of the vote.

DECLARE FOR SALINGER

Originally both networks expected to name the winners based on findings of their computers—within a half hour after southern California polls closed. CBS, in fact, planned to give the primary returns only half an hour of its time at 10 p.m. EDT and then return to regular programming.

But CBS stayed with the primary story until midnight and NBC kept reporting returns until 1 a.m.

One of the most interesting aspects of watching the tote board was noting whether the numbers were keeping out the early CBS prediction.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A new degree course in physical education to be introduced at University of Manitoba in the fall has already prompted more inquiries from potential freshmen than there are spaces in the class.

"We've already received 250 inquiries," said Frank Kennedy, head of the physical education department, in an interview. "Our limited facilities will allow for only about 100."

The likely surplus of applicants adds to already abundant proof that the demand exists for the new three-year course, which is designed to turn out instructors both for secondary schools and adult physical activities.

Some 90 or 90 centres told a provincial government study committee in 1957 that facilities for promoting physical fitness were available but leadership was lacking, Kennedy recalled.

Manitoba students interested in obtaining a degree in physical education had to go to another province or to the United States.

"Germany didn't come back," Kennedy says.

GETS GRANTS

The decision to introduce the physical education course was welcomed widely—with a $16,000 grant from the fitness and amateur sport branch of the provincial welfare department and with two $1,200 scholarships from the province's auxiliaries of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The response from students through inquiries and applications came despite the fact that tuition will cost $300 a year and total annual cost for an out-of-town student is likely to be about $1,200.

Applicants must have senior matriculation and the list will be whittled down to those fulfilling a catalogue of requirements including scholastic achievement, organizational ability, emotional stability, a high degree of skill in at least one physical activity and above-average skill in several others.

The course has been planned to insure the students don't wind up physically fit but mentally dull. A generous schedule of academic courses is included along with instruction in physiology.

The university has started on a construction program designed to provide facilities for the new course.

An Olympic - size outdoor swimming pool, indoor pool, gymnasium, additional tennis courts, skating and curling rink and a football-soccer-football, baseball and track and field are in the building plans.

They're to be completed within 10 years," said Kennedy, "if we can find about $3,000,000 or $4,000,000.

Negress Refused Work Because Of Color

TORONTO (CP)—Jean Burke, a Toronto negro stenographer, is to receive $50 compensation after two water works officials from Florida refused to employ her because of her color.

Mr. Daniel Hill, director of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, said Tuesday a solicitor for the city for which the men worked offered on their behalf to compensate Miss Burke for her days' work she had lost.

In accordance with other parts of the settlement, the men agree to promise in a letter to commission chairman Louis Fine that they would abide by provincial human rights laws in future dealings in Ontario They also had to apologize in writing to Miss Burke, owner of a stenographic service.

Miss Burke told the commission one of the men, whose names were not released, hired her by telephone Monday to take duties for them at the American Water Works Association conference they were attending there. When she arrived at the conference the men said they did not want a colored person.

Richard Boone Foresakes Hollywood for Hawaii

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So it's goodbye, Hollywood, aloha, Hawaii, for Richard Boone.

After 14 years as a Hollywood actor, including service in three television series, Boone is moving with his wife and 10-year-old son to the island of Oahu. But that doesn't mean he's relegating himself to a life of ease among the palms.

"I am not capable of retiring," he explained. "I'm merely shifting my base of operations to a place that is only 4½ hours away from Hollywood by jet. I expect to be here often, if producers call me, and I hope they do."

But he also hopes to be working in the Islands.

"I think I've learned the production side of our business pretty well—I'd be pretty stupid if I hadn't," he said. "I want to establish a film studio in Hawaii with the purpose of producing features and television series and providing a base for other movie companies that come to Hawaii for locations.

"The studio would be a boon for film locations. Many movie companies cover sets to use in case of bad weather; within two hours they could be shooting indoors. Time lost by weather can be murder on a budget. We lost 16 days on Rio Conchos, which I just made at Kanab, Utah."

Boone has rented a house near Honolulu for 15 months, then will decide where he wants his permanent home in the islands. There can be no doubt as to his pulling up stakes. He has shipped his fishing boat to Hawaii, and his son Peter is registered at Punahou School.

Terrorist Turns Tunesmith

Well - - That's Showbusiness!

By MALCOLM REID

MONTREAL (CP) — What does an unemployed 19-year-old just out of jail for separatist terrorism do?

Richard Bizier preaches Quebec separatism in song in downtown Montreal nightclubs.

When he left Montreal's Bordeaux Jail after serving four months in a six-month sentence for helping Georges and Jacques Schoeters plant a bomb in an Outremont RCAF station, Quebec separatist publications said Bizier was "free to starve to death."

But soon his photograph appeared on the marquee of a St. Urbain Street cabaret with the Parisian name of St. Germain des Pres.

"Marc Gelinas had the idea that I could sing nationalist songs in his act—he is very nationalist himself," explains Bizier. Gelinas, a crooner who somewhat resembles Bizier in tall plumpness, has since moved with his troupe east to a new club on St. Catherine Street called, with more habitant earthiness, Le Cochon Borgne—The Fat One's Blind Pig.

There, twice each night and three times on weekends, Richard and Bizier sing numbers ranging from topical ditties ridiculing Quebec federal politicians to Gallic monologues and Guy Favreau to a song from the French Resistance.

SEPARATIST AUDIENCE

"I don't want to make a career in music," he says. "It gives me a chance to pass on a message, to work for independence democratically, and at the same time save money for my studies."

Before he joined the Front de Libération Québecoise, whose 1963 bombings killed one man and maimed another, he worked as an elevator operator in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. But the money he farned there went into the terrorist organization, he says, and he did not take up political science studies at the University of Montreal as he had intended.

Most of the clientele exposed to his message at Le Cochon Borgne are young and separatist, and he admits he is preaching largely to the converted.

"But some people come here who are undecided, and there is nothing like music for stirring

SINGING SEPARATIST—Shortly after Richard Bizier finished four months in jail for separatist terrorism he started singing in a Montreal night club. Bizier served four months of a six-month sentence for his part in the planting of a bomb at an RCAF centre, says singing gives him a chance to pass on a message and "to work for independence democratically." (CP Photo) people's enthusiasm."

His voice is not as polished as his fellow-performers' and he hasn't quite the verve—his delivery is solemn and argumentative like his conversation.

But when comedienne Mickey Vail lectures him — "direct from St. Pierre and Miquelon" —he usually has his audience with him. When English-speaking students from Sir George Williams University came to hear, he sat down and debated with them, he says.

FLED AFTER ARREST

The "St. Pierre" reference is to his flight to the French possessions off the coast of Newfoundland while free on bail between his arrest last June and his conviction in October.

He says he was "received like a king" on the islands, and on stage he wears a legal button of the island arms which he says their mayor gave him. He returned to Montreal to seek asylum for political asylum was answered by French authorities.

His repertoire is mostly Canadian in origin—he says most of Quebec's popular chansonniers stage-compose songs are separatists. The words of their songs sometimes get amended in the Bizier treatment, however, as with song - writer Claude Gauthier's ballad of the six-foot-tall lumberjack, where the proud hero becomes a "Quebecois" rather than a "Canadien."

The closing number for Bizier's turn on stage comes from occupied France of the Second World War, it calls, to a drumlike beat, on French workers and peasants to "take your machine-guns from the straw."

MANAGER NERVOUS

Bizier expresses sympathy for other independence movements than Quebec's, such as that of Flemish-speaking Belgians and of the Irish republicans — songs whose lyrics he says he heard from a sympathetic Irish customer.

He recently appeared at a Canada-wide telecast expounding his views—in French only—and has been reported advising Paris director Jean-Luc Godard on a film about the FLQ.

At the end of each performance, Bizier joins Gelinas, Miss Vail and singer Michele Sandry in a separatist parody of a chcha from the French hit parade and in an anthem for an independent Quebec. The ensemblement pour l'Independance Nationale recently published on the front page of its newspaper. This Gelinas composition brings patrons to their feet.

The only uncommitted one at Le Cochon Borgne is Roger Moller, French-born naturalized Canadian who manages the club for Mrs. Sandry, its owner. Noting that his liquor license is a provincial privilege, he declines to express a political opinion. Separatists, he says, are "customers like any others."

Liston Asks For Spot In Ratings

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—President Ed Lasaman of the World Boxing Association said Tuesday Sonny Liston, former heavyweight champion, has applied for reinstatement to the WBA ratings.

Liston was dropped from the ratings after his arrest in Detroit on charges of reckless driving and carrying a concealed weapon.

His letter asking reinstatement noted that the charges were disposed of last week. Liston was fined $600 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

Lasaman said he is polling members of the WBA executive committee and a decision on reinstating Liston may be announced by the end of this week.

There have been reports that disposition of the charges against the ex - champ would clear the way for Chelsea's return match with Cassius Clay, who won Liston's crown at Miami Beach Feb. 25.

Woman Wins Twin Double Twice In Week

MIAMI (AP)—Winning the twin double at a race track would be a once-in-a-lifetime feat for the average bettor. But Mrs. Martin Carpenter did it twice in seven days.

One week ago she walked out of the Flagler Dog Track with a cheque for $10,719. Monday night, she hit again for $12,330, a record payoff for the twin double inaugurated this year at Flagler.

Mrs. Carpenter shared her second payroff, however, with a tennis professional who asked to remain anonymous and a Miami Attorney, George Heller.

After the sixth and seventh races, won by Luxuriant, $3.60, and Witchwood, $13.60, Mrs. Carpenter pooled her five live tickets with 10 held by the tennis pro and two owned by Heller.

One of their tickets paid off when Talia, $4, won the sixth race and George Tipp, $54.30, took the 10th. Mrs. Carpenter won $3,425, the tennis pro $5,350 and Heller $2,055.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jammed Lively, an oddly-colored three-year-old colt, ran one of his finest races at Greenwood Tuesday despite competing with only three horses.

The room son of Jamie K. raced away from Arctic Hills and Winkin in the stretch run of the one-mile fifth race and was timed in 1.39 flat for the distance to establish himself as a threat for the Queen's Plate.

Jammed Lively combined with Arctic Hills for a $22.70 quinella.

The daily-double of Twilight Tempo and Clumy Miss paid $32.40.

Yanks, Dodgers Vulnerable
Trade Talk Buzzes Dugouts

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Dugouts are buzzing with trade talk as the June 15 deadline approaches and both New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers appear vulnerable.

Bullpen problems prompted St. Louis Cardinals to deal 37-year-old Lew Burdette to Chicago Cubs for Glen Hobbie, another veteran righthander, a Tuesday deal.

The Dodgers are doing their best to bolster a pitching staff that developed a leak when Johnny Podres went on the shelf.

Hank Aguirre may be next to walk the plank at Detroit and could be Dodger-bound if the Tigers could get veteran relief help in the American League.

UNLOADED ONE

Chuck Dressen already unloaded one of his veterans when he sent Frank Lary to New York Mets on a conditional purchase.

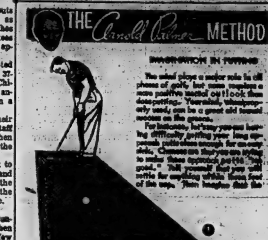
Minnesota Twins are reported to be interested in Ken McBride, Los Angeles Angels' pitcher who has been having a tough time winning.

With the Yanks limping along only a few games over the .500 mark, Ralph Houk reportedly they can make a strong move for the pennant if they can come up with some more pitching.

The Phillies are in the market for a rebounding outfielder and are reported willing to give up an extra infielder—probably Bobby Wine—for one and pitching to land the man they want. With a southpaw-swinging outfield of John Callison, Tony Gonzales and Wes Covington, the Phils are a natural target for lefthanded pitching.

Jack Reppen Sports Artist Dies At 30

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Reppen 30, who became famous for his caricatures of personalities in sport as a Toronto Star cartoonist, and who was one of Canada's most promising painters, died Tuesday of cancer.



He underwent major surgery several months ago and had recuperated to the point where he had resumed working. However, the cancer had suffered a relapse and was taken back to hospital.

He is survived by his wife, Clair, and two children, Christine, 6, and Michael, 4, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Reppen of suburban Don Mills.

He began painting and sketching in his teens and sold his first caricatures of athletes to the newspaper while he was a high school student.

He spent his high school years studying electricity, that took a back seat as a traffic light repairman.

Reppen soon became bored with his trade and decided to become a commercial artist. He put himself through art school at night by painting white lines on city streets.

Special Showing Of Film Will Be Given

TORONTO (CP) — A special screening of the controversial film, Mr. Pearson, will be held in Ottawa within the next two weeks, Richard Ballantine, president of InterVideo Productions, announced Tuesday.

"The National Press Club of Canada has arranged with InterVideo to show the film to club members and guests," the president said. The film, which showed candid shots of Mr. Pearson in action, said in a statement.

The specific date, time and place of the screening of the film, which was rejected by the CBC as technically and intellectually faulty, will be announced shortly, he said.

Epidemic Turns Leading Resort Into Pariah City

ABERDEEN (AP)—The growing typhoid epidemic in Aberdeen has turned the once leading resort into a pariah city.

The epidemic, which has caused the death of one woman, continues unchecked. The total of identified cases reached 348 today and 30 suspected cases were under observation.

Complaints from visitors to the tourist season, the outbreak has already cost Aberdeen hundreds of thousands of pounds.

As a government inquiry sought the cause of the outbreak the secretary of state for Scotland, Michael Noble, ordered two brands of corned beef removed from grocery shelves throughout the country because Aberdeen health officials believed each of them had spawned the epidemic.

Noble told the House of Commons, however, that there was no positive evidence that the two brands—both South American—were involved. But he said that nothing could be understood," Prime Minister Pearson told the House of Commons.

Replying to questions from Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) and Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), he did not say precisely what was "no bad" about the sound track.

Mr. Pearson said he saw the film at a trade fair in Toronto. It was also shown in an office at Parliament Hill.

The film, produced at a cost of about $35,000, was later canned by the corporation for not living up to technical standards.

WORK LOSS DECREASES

Although the number of workers involved was higher, the number of work stoppages and man - days lost in April than in March, the federal department of labor reported Tuesday. There were 41 work stoppages during April, involving 8,617 workers and a time loss of 88,900 man - days. In March there were 50 work stoppages, involving 7,043 workers with a time loss of 92,450 man-days.

RAILWAY REVENUES RISE

Railway operating revenues in 1963 increased 3.9 per cent to $1,259,113,200 from $1,164,128,700 in 1962, while operating expenses rose 2.5 per cent to $1,147,-953,600 from $1,120,245,000, the bureau of statistics announced. Net railway operating income advanced to $61,250,000 from $43,880,700.

Endorsement Court Is Told

TORONTO (CP) — Bank of officials did not realize until six months later than an endorsement changing a $125,000 certified cheque into Toronto lawyer Samuel Resnick's bank account was forged, a Supreme Court hearing was told Tuesday.

The court is hearing a suit brought by the Ontario Woodsworth Memorial Foundation which is seeking to recover $125,000 it claims it lost in the November, 1962, sale of the Woodsworth estate.

The suit, against the Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of Nova Scotia, Mount Blanc Holding Limited, its officer A. Y. Gronbord, and his lawyer S. Stone, involves the intricate financial dealings of the 42-year-old Resnick who was the foundation's president and lawyer at the time of the sale.

Resnick went to Israel and was disbarred by the Law Society of Upper Canada.

Resnick pretended to police here last March and is free on $60,200 bail while awaiting trial on 81 charges of fraud involving $341,000, including the Woodsworth deal.

WAR EXPENDITURES

J. L. Murray, manager of a Toronto branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, testified the $125,000 cheque, part of $150,000 gained in the sale of the house, was credited to Resnick's account because of Resnick's personal account and that of Mrs. M. H. Bryden, secretary of the Woodsworth Foundation.

Mrs. Bryden's signature was later proved to be a forgery.

Mr. Murray said he did not realize anything was wrong with the cheque until May 10, 1963, nearly six months after its deposit.

On that date, a court order was secured to freeze Resnick's trust account which contained $126,338. Six months before, it had contained $124,338.

A few days later it was found that Resnick had left for Israel.

The trial continues.

Canada Has Vital Interest In Moves in British Guiana

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Staff Writer

Canada has a vital interest in policy no one to end violent disorders in British Guiana whether or not she becomes directly involved in efforts to solve the complex racial and political problems in the British colony.

Some of the worst of the latest outbreaks of murder and arson have also reflected in the plight of the Canadian-owned Demerara Bauxite Company at Mackenzie, which is the mainstay of mineral enterprises in the country.

Canada's interest in British Guiana is also bolstered by the appointment of a Canadian commissioner in Georgetown in mid-May to Mr. Williams, prime minister of neighboring Independent Trinidad and Tobago, who has been active in efforts seeking to reconcile differences between East Indian and African racial groups, divided largely by political antagonisms. British Guiana Premier Cheddi Jagan, leader of government forces, has been to Trinidad in recent weeks at Dr. Williams' invitation.

Earlier in the year in Jamaica, Commonwealth Caribbean heads of governments discussed the British Guiana question. Dr. Jagan said they held the view that an attempt would be made in the Caribbean by Caribbean leaders to solve the issues.

When the Trinidad prime minister was in Ottawa in April Caribbean area problems were discussed with Canadian leaders. Afterwards he hinted a possible closer Canadian involvement in the region but spelled out no details of his thinking. British Guiana was not specifically mentioned in

In October, a report from London referred to the "approaching possibility" that Governor Sir Wilfred Jackson Secretary Duncan Sandys would confer on the Canadian government on keeping the peace in British Guiana after it gained independence.

Premier Jagan was said to be interested in the idea that other Commonwealth countries might send contingents to help the local Guianese troops how to maintain internal stability.

Another suggestion put forward by British Guiana's premier is that a neutralization of the country. Last year he proposed that major world powers guarantee British Guiana's territorial independence and neutrality for British Guiana as they did for Laos.

The British Guiana question may also come up at the Commonwealth prime ministers' meeting in London next month, when Southern Rhodesia is expected to be a controversial topic.

Dr. Jagan has aroused Britain by applying one yardstick for dealing with Southern Rhodesia, a self-governing colony with a white - dominated government, and another for British Guiana, which is essentially and racially but ruled by colored politicians.

Elections are scheduled for this fall, based on a form of proportional representation system —Britain's proposal for removing racial conflict from the political arena. The vote would precede Negro towards outright independence.

Meanwhile, Britain has sent additional troops to the country, but officials feel that a political solution has to be the answer.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, June 6, 1944

Prime Minister Pearson said the Queen was personally informed of the proposed flag by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Agriculture Minister Hays said the government is considering making payments on farm price support items every three months.

The Commons passed a bill in connection with the construction of a second St. Lawrence River bridge near Quebec City.

A proposal to celebrate a John A. Macdonald day on Jan. 11 was voted down.

Mr. Hays said the federal government is increasing the interest rate to farmers on some farm credit corporation loans.

He said the heavy rate of borrowing is rapidly depleting the corporation's reserves.

Egg Producers Are Eligible For Payments

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hays said Tuesday the government has been considering making payments to farmers on farm price support programs every three months instead of annually but has made no decision.

He was replying in the Commons to Frank C. Richardson (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) who complained that eggs were selling in Napanee, Ont., at 21 cents a dozen, which he said was far below the cost of production.

Mr. Hays said that the stabilization board has set a floor price of 34 cents a dozen and if producers kept their sales slips they would be eligible for deficiency payments to make up the difference.

Replying to Alfred D. Hales (PC — Wellington South), Mr. Hays said the government is considered making deficiency payments on a quarterly basis.

Portuguese Fishermen Always Warmly Welcome

By JAMES H. HUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Seamen from many nations visit St. John's and other Newfoundland ports in the run of a shipping season but none is more welcome than the plaid-shirted fisherman of Portugal.

Some 6,000 Portuguese fishermen who sail 3,000 miles each spring to harvest codfish on the foggy, storm - swept Grand Banks and off thousands more of dollars into cash registers in Newfoundland stores.

Their purchases of necessities for themselves and luxuries for loved ones back home are estimated to run to about $150,000 alone in St. John's.

Some city merchants specialize in catering to the Portuguese, who may visit port four or five times during the seven-month, April-to-October season.

Royal Stores, for example, has E. J. Sousa, an office clerk from Lisbon, on its staff just to handle sales to the Portuguese fishermen. He has been with the firm for three years, succeeding another Portuguese.

Mr. Sousa says crew are allowed to bring $5 to $15 with them when they come ashore and they usually spend it all before returning to their ships.

They spend little on themselves, preferring to purchase toys for their children and lingerie, cosmetics and other gifts for wives and sweethearts.

They speak little English but this is no barrier. They point to what they want or carry lists made out in English by captains or mates. Some bring along old mail-order catalogues to show what they want, and occasionally they come in with a sample of the item.

The Portuguese fishing fleet consists of 72 ships, including trawlers and schooners. Last year there were 314 entries into the port of St. John's. Only Canadian ship arrivals at 300 exceeded them in number.

During stormy weather the vessels may remain in port as long as two weeks.

Once a leading customer for Newfoundland dry, salt codfish, Portugal has built up its own large fleet of fishing craft. But the province still benefits through sales of fuel, bait and other supplies. Sale of frozen bait, such as herring, squid and capelin, runs into the thousands of dollars.

Flag Issue To Be Debated Late Next Week

Opposition Charges P. M. Is Backing Down

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday his resolution for the adoption of a maple leaf flag will come up for debate late next week.

But he indicated he wasn't necessarily expecting the flag issue and that of the anthem which will follow it to be dealt with overnight.

He said it is possible Commons debate will have to be interrupted for passage of interim supply—the granting of spending authority for July.

The postponement to the end of next week for debate of the flag resolution prompted Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to charge that the prime minister was backing down.

One of the items that definitely would take precedence over the flag issue was the amendment to the British North American Act which is needed to provide survivor benefits under the Canada Pension Plan and which must be forwarded to the British Parliament.

Prior to mention of the pelicity of the BNA amendment, Mr. Pearson spoke of other legislation already under way which "the government hopes to complete as soon as possible."

MAY INTERRUPT

After saying the flag issue would come up at the end of next week, Mr. Pearson said:

"If progress on all the matters I have mentioned is not very fast, it may be necessary to interrupt the debate in order to ask for interim supply. . . ."

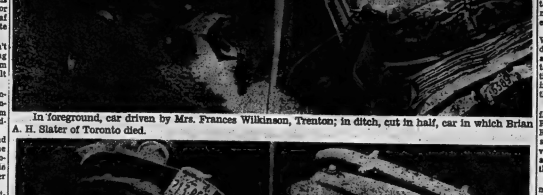
Regardless of when the flag officially becomes the subject of debate, it continued Wednesday to hold the daily question-period limelight.

Mr. Pearson satisfied Mr. Diefenbaker's request of Tuesday by tabling a telegram sent to Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland following the government's method of choosing the distinctive maple leaf flag and its intent to use Sir John A. Macdonald as a symbol of Commonwealth membership.

It outlined that the method of adopting the new flag would be the cabinet-order-in-council followed by a royal proclamation.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who held an audience with the Queen last Friday while on a private visit to Britain, declined to say if questions about the Royal audience, saying his was a matter of secrecy as a privy councillor prevented it.

WANT LONGER HOURS



Mr. Pearson said Parliament may be asked to extend the daily hours of sitting in order to make more rapid progress with government business and

Liberals And NDP May Merge

By KEN KELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Well - informed political sources say the Liberals have made some changes in their party structure in line with requirements laid down in top - level talks with the New Democrats for possible merger of the two parties.

These sources give the following account of discussions between the two parties:

The requirements were spelled out for the Liberals after a meeting last December between Finance Minister Gordon, Liberal National Organizer Keith Davey, New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas, Deputy Leader Douglas Fisher and NDP Vice-President David Lewis.

Prime Minister Pearson was to have attended but was ill. He had agreed to the talks to explore a basis for co-operation between the minority Liberal government and the New Democrats for this Parliament and possible eventual union of the two parties after the next federal election.

Apart from generally similar views on a legislative program, the New Democrats insisted that the Liberal party needed certain structural changes before any large number of their followers could agree to a merger.

CHANGES IN WIND

Some of these changes already being pressed for by Liberal constituency associations. Most were put into effect or will come into effect as a result of the Liberal National Council meeting here this week.

The New Democrats told the Liberals there were at least five requirements essential to pave the way for eventual merger. They were:

1. A national convention every two years; this was adopted by the Liberal National Council Monday when a recommendation of the policy committee calling for a convention every three years was amended from the floor. Mr. Pearson made a public plea before the vote for a convention every two years.

2. Constituency-appointed delegates to a national convention.

3. A convention endorsed leadership; the Liberal party leader already is elected by a national convention. The consti-

Car Torn to Pieces in 401 'Accident Alley'

They're starting to call it "Accident Alley"—and maybe with good reason.

It's the two-lane, two-way stretch of Highway 401 north of Marysville, which claimed another victim last night.

Instantly killed when his small British automobile was ripped apart in a two-car crash was 25-year-old Brian A. H. Slater of Toronto.

He died when his car spun out of control into the path of an automobile driven by Mrs. Frances Wilkinson, 37, of Dundas Street, Trenton. Mrs. Wilkinson is in Belleville General Hospital with a broken knee, face and neck cuts and contusions.

It was the grisliest accident on a stretch of highway that has marked up a black record for mishaps since it was opened last fall. (Since the beginning of this year there have been at least 15 accident at the scene, about five of them involving personal injuries and one other fatality—in March, when a trucker standing beside his vehicle was killed.)

Wreckage of the Slater vehicle was spread 60 feet along the roadside after it was sliced in half by the impact. The dead man was driving eastern route to Kingston where his wife and months-old child had been visiting relatives. The reasons for him losing control of the car are unknown.

It spun across the highway and was hit broadside by the oncoming Wilkinson car. The impact jammed Mrs. Wilkinson behind the wheel and LaSalle ambulance operator Stu Weeks had some slight difficulty in freeing her.

Exact time of the accident was graphically registered. The dead man's watch had stopped at 5:43 p.m.

Militia Shakeup Started

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin is getting set to carry out the biggest shakeup of the 51,000-member militia in a decade.

One of the pieces of information spearing him on, informants say, is the discovery by the committee looking into militia organization that some reserve army units comprise no more than two officers and six men—complete with drill hall and canteen.

The committee is headed by Brig. Earle R. Suttie of Montreal and its report will be made to the minister this month.

Informants said Mr. Cardin will act on some committee recommendations immediately with the objective of reducing militia strength to some 30,000 and thus saving some $10,000,000 annually.

Mr. Cardin is also looking at the possibilities of the army, navy and RCAF reserves using

River Treaty Launched

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Columbia River treaty, representing an often-troubled 20 years of Canada-United States negotiation, was launched Wednesday on the final parliamentary step to ratification.

It was to continue before the Commons today in the shape of a government resolution that the power and flood-control project—dwarfing the St. Lawrence Seaway in cost—be approved once and for all.

But the New Democrats indicated Wednesday that they will continue to buck it down the line and at least one amendment was expected to be moved today.

The government's position, even in the prolonged scrutiny of more than 100 hours by the external affairs committee, is that any change will be a test of confidence in the government.

Since only the New Democrats oppose the 1961 treaty and

Secrecy Cloaks Any New Moves Being Planned

Believe Drastic Action In Viet Nam Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson kept tight wraps today on what—if any—new moves he is planning in Southeast Asia.

A White House statement Wednesday night gave some indication, however, that Johnson and his advisers have decided to soft pedal talk of drastic action such as enlarging the war in South Viet Nam, at least for the time being.

Johnson received a report from State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara on the results of two days of policy review which they conducted at a conference in Hawaii earlier this week.

When Wednesday night's meeting ended, Press Secretary George Reedy issued this statement:

"The secretaries met with the president about an hour. They reviewed the situation in Southeast Asia in light of the consultations in Hawaii which were held to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of our program."

GIVES NO HINT

There was no hint of enlarging the war to include military action against Communist North Viet Nam, or of putting U.S. military forces into Thailand or assigning reinforcements to the Southeast Asian area generally.

Within the last few days the Communist advance in Laos has come to a halt and this apparently added to the ignoring emergency as far as the Johnson administration was concerned.

In two speeches Wednesday President Johnson said that the United States must maintain peace through unsurpassed power.

"There are those who oppose freedom and security," the president told cheering workers at the submarine yard at Groton, Conn. "They seek by fear and subversion to thwart man's hopes for peace.

"If they do not understand our motives of peace, we must be sure they do not misunderstand our means of power."

But the president said in

Critical Stage Is Shaping Up

By RALPH SHAW

ABERDEEN (Reuters) — A critical stage was shaping up today in the two-week typhoid epidemic that has swept this east coast Scottish city and filled the area's hospitals.

Within a few hours it should become clear whether the outbreak has run its course or whether there will be a "third."

So far, 301 cases of the disease are in hospitals here—263 confirmed and 38 persons on the suspected list.

The city's chief medical officer, Dr. Ian MacQueen, said Wednesday night the next 24 hours would be the "critical time."

Meanwhile, a hunt was on throughout Britain for cans containing corned beef that were possibly contaminated. It was a can of corned beef in a butcher's shop in Aberdeen which was said to be the source of the outbreak.

The total number of cases in Aberdeen this morning was close to the total in the epidemic which swept Croydon, South London, in 1937. Then 310 cases were reported.

KILLED 42

Forty-three persons died in the Croydon epidemic.

Only one death has been reported in Aberdeen so far—an elderly woman who also suffered from two other diseases.

Aberdeen, a port and also a tourist centre, was described as a "beleaguered city" with schools closed, entertainments curtailed and visitors discouraged from entering the community.

One estimate of the cost of the outbreak so far—hospital and medical care, lost tourist money and so on—was £7,000,000 ($21,000,000.

Real Problem in Asia Is People, Not Communism, Says Presbyterian

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Hugh MacMillan, new moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, believes the real problem in strife-torn Southeast Asian countries is "people and people, not communism and democracy."

A missionary on Formosa for most of 38 years and now retired in Toronto, Dr. MacMillan was elected to the church's highest post Wednesday at the opening of the 90th Presbyterian general assembly. He succeeds Dr. Harry Lennox of Vancouver.

In an interview following his election, the 72-year-old native of Lucknow, Ont., said the situation in Southeast Asia can't be studied from a Canadian point of view.

He suggested economics was a basic underlying cause of strife in Asia.

Asked about church unions and other current topics in Canada Dr. MacMillan said he would have to "find out what people are talking about."

"I am a stranger to Canada. I have to think in the oriental pattern."

Dr. MacMillan did say, however, that he thought the biggest problem facing westerners is that they must realize that everybody is living in one world. The wealth of the West must be shared with the East. Westerners must also pay attention to what is going on in the rest of the world, he added.

The church through missionary work is bringing countries closer together, but much more has to be done.

Dr. MacMillan and his wife went to Formosa in 1924 as Presbyterian missionaries. Previous to that he had served overseas with the army in the First World War.

In Formosa, the MacMillans lived at Taipei and became fluent in Amoy Chinese, Mandarin Chinese and Japanese. In the Second World War Dr. MacMillan was on the staff of the British embassy in Washington as a specialist in broadcasts to Asia.

As a representative of the Canadian Red Cross and Canadian Aid to China, MacMillan was one of the last foreigners to leave Shanghai when the Communists moved in.

After his retirement two years ago, the YMCA sent Dr. MacMillan back to Taipei on a different mission. He helped set up Taiwan Press, a university student hostel.

He returned to Canada about one year ago and has since been spending most of his time on a relative's farm near Toronto.

He was chosen moderator in succession with Rev. William Weir of Stratford by 304 voting delegates at the assembly representing 800,000 Presbyterians across Canada.

Anti-Castro Rebel Leader Among Eight Seized by British Warship

a police official who declined to make use of his name.

Police Commissioner of Nigeria Norris said the eight would be arraigned on illegal entry charges.

Two Americans, Andrew St. George of New York, free lance news photographer and Mirta Barras, were among those arrested.

Five of the group, authorities said, were arrested aboard a 30-foot boat after a 16-mile chase from Angullla Cay. The other three, they said, were taken on land on the Bahamas island, 30 miles north of Cuba.

An officer aboard the HMS Decoy, which brought the prisoners to Nassau, said authorities seized 1,000 rounds of ammunition and much photographic material from the party.

Sailor's Bush Farm Makes Him Wealthy

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The Times-Journal tells the story of a young seaman who was offered $1,500,000 for a farm in the Timmins area he had considered worthless.

The story was provided by a Fort William businessman who struck up an acquaintance with the seaman while travelling by train to Toronto.

It says a Toronto lawyer had got in touch with the seaman while his ship was docked at an Australian port, told him he had a good offer for his farm and arranged for air passage to Toronto. Instead, the seaman left the plane at Vancouver because he enjoyed train travel.

The Times-Journal says:

"The young man couldn't understand the urgency of the sale of 312 acres. The land had been left to him by a bachelor uncle and he didn't think it could be worth too much. He had paid a tax bill of $116 last year, he said.

"This took quite a hunk out of his wages and he had almost decided not to pay the taxes and forget the whole thing."

When the Fort William man learned the farm was near Timmins, he realized the seaman had not heard of the spring major copper strike in the area. He urged the young man to telephone the lawyer when the train reached Chapleau.

He did, and the lawyer offered to send a plane to pick him up. He declined. The story continues:

"What's all the big rush about anyway?" he asked.

"His body stiffened to attention when he heard the answer to that. On replacing the phone and turning to his friend his sea-tanned face was almost pale.

"'Holy smoke,' he said dazedly. 'It isn't a 312 - acre farm. It's 1,312 acres; Some birds are offering me a million and a half dollars for it.'"

At Sudbury, the newspaper said, the seaman was met by "several men from one of the largest mining companies in Canada" and hustled into a private coach. His Fort William friend didn't see him again.

Will Honor Armentieres Mademoiselle

LILLE, France (AP) — A group of British tourists of 1914 have found the grave of the woman they believe was the original Mademoiselle of Armentieres. They plan to raise a monument in her honor.

Coming on a pilgrimage in the 50th anniversary year of the bloody First World War battles along the French-Belgian border, the delegation located the grave in the Armentieres cemetery.

The veterans told reporters the woman, Marie Lecoq, was an independent and proper barmaid in a small cafe when the British Expeditionary Force arrived. An officer who became too familiar got a resounding slap.

The officer was Harry Carlton, who later wrote the famous song that began Mademoiselle from Armentieres, Parlez-Vous? The veterans said the story was found in Carlton's personal papers.

Miss Lecoq died in 1945 at the age of 55. She was said to have received a British pension for life for having worked as a contact agent.

Male Nurses Could Solve Shortage

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa hospital official said Wednesday that prejudice against male nurses "would make Florence Nightingale turn in her grave."

Dr. Sydney Anderson, general director at Civic Hospital, told a regional meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association that more male nurses would solve the nursing shortage, increase nurses' salaries and result in better patient care.

He said he could see no reason for confining male nurses to men's wards.

"Why would it be right for a male doctor to attend a woman patient and yet not a male nurse?"

Salaries for nurses would have to be raised in order to attract more men to the profession.

Albino Bear Cub Will Be Spared

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Keller Shepherd, Ontario lands and forest minister, Wednesday ordered that a white bear cub trapped near this town must not be destroyed.

He intervened after being informed that trapper Roger Filion, 43, of nearby Field, had captured the bear in the cub, which is golden-white in color.

The cub's mother was shot when it charged the trapper.

A trap injured the cub's leg, but Mrs. Filion says it does not appear to be serious.

Dr. Jack Smiley, a North Bay veterinarian, went to Filion's farm Wednesday to check the cub's condition.

Mr. Filion said he had been warned by a lands and forests official in North Bay it was illegal to keep a bear and that he should kill it before it suffered too much.

The cub weighs about 90 pounds and is about four months old. The mother weighed about 250 pounds.

District Bush Fires Lower Than Last Year

Ten brush fires burned over nearly 16 acres of the Tweed district last month. Only seven fires were reported during May of 1965, but the total of the fires is still lower this year than for the same time last year. Nineteen fires were reported by the end of last month, 41 fires had been reported by the end of May, 1965, according to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Rainfall during May was low this year, only 1.77 inches fell at Tweed compared with 2.74 inches during May of 1965. Normal rainfall for May at Tweed is 2.83 inches.

Careless smoking caused four of last month's fires, according to a Lands and Forests report. Two of these fires were in Kaladar township, one in Griffith township and one in Bithfield township. A spark from a power saw started a fire in Dungannon township, a fisherman's camp fire caused a brush fire in Ashby township and a careless resident touched off a fire in Grimsthorpe township.

Three fires are attributed to natural causes. One fire in each of Wollaston and Abinger townships was caused by lightning and one fire in Radcliffe township was started when wind blew a tree down across a power line. Largest of the fires covered about 10 acres in Griffith township on May sixth, started by a careless smoker.

Birth Control Pills Will be Given at Cost

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto welfare committee recommendation that birth control pills be supplied to welfare recipients at the city's cost was approved by board of control Wednesday.

The board tied 2 to 2 on an amendment by Controller Allan Lamport that would have authorized women on welfare to receive the pills for uses other than birth control. The tie vote defeated the amendment and the original recommendation was approved. It will go to city council Monday.

Mr. Lamport urged the city to seek a change in legislation before adopting the new policy. He based that view on an opinion by City Solicitor William Callow that expenditure of civic funds for birth control could be illegal.

The committee's recommendation to pay for the drugs was made last week after it was learned the Toronto welfare department had been approving prescriptions for birth control pills apparently without the knowledge of senior officials of the department.

BAKER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter Baker, who passed away June 9, 1962.

Those we would give it, we could not buy,
Health, wealth or years,
To hear your voice, see you smile,
Or share your joys and tears.
So you, who have a father,
Be sure to treasure him,
For you'll never know the heartache,
Until he's gone.

Till you see his vacant chair.
Sadly missed and mourned by son Preston, daughter-in-law Mary and grandson Kevin.

In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
But could not make you stay.
But when we saw you sleeping,
Death's peace was on your face,
We would not wish you back,
To suffer as you did.

Sadly remembered by wife Mary and daughter-in-law Doreen Gibson.

Believe Missing Girl May Be Still Alive

OSHAWA (CP) — Police believe 16-year-old Noreen Anne Greenley, missing from her home since last September, may still be alive following a tip from an Oshawa girl who claims to have seen her in Calgary last November.

Inspector James McBride of the provincial police criminal investigation branch and Chief Bernard Kinsey of Bowmanville police flew to Calgary recently for a four-day search for the missing girl.

Insp. McBride said the tip "provided the first clue as to this girl's whereabouts — it seems indicative she is still alive."

The informant — whose identity was withheld—told police she talked to the Greenly girl for about 20 minutes in a Calgary restaurant last November.

The girl, who is still being questioned by police, said Miss Greenley told her she was living in an apartment, had a part time job and "liked Calgary very much."

The two police officers with the help of Calgary police turned up no trace of her.

The Greenley girl failed to return home Sept. 14 following a bowling party.

Won't Reveal Names of Three Advisers Picked

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says two police chiefs and a deputy chief are likely to be appointed advisers to the Ontario Police Commission within a week.

The newspaper says Deputy Chief Robert Kerr of Metropolitan Toronto, and Chiefs Irvin L. Robertson, Sault Ste. Marie, and Jack Taylor, Trenton, have been recommended to Attorney-General A. A. Wishart by the commission.

Mr. Wishart said three men have been recommended to him but he wouldn't reveal their names until they are approved by the cabinet.

The three, when approved, will join former provincial police commissioner W. H. Clark, who was appointed to the police commission more than a year ago. They will be paid about $12,000 annually, the Telegram says.

There were about 30 applicants for the three openings, and these were narrowed to 15 by Judge Bruce Macdonald, former chairman of the police commission. The final three were selected by the police commission under its new chairman, F. Percy Milligan.

Nursery Rhyme Causes Twitter At Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker twitted the government Wednesday night with an adapted nursery rhyme on a parliamentary fuss surrounding Transport Minister Pickering's audience with the Queen last Friday.

The verse also deals with the report that Newfoundland's Liberal premier, Joseph Smallwood, wants to keep the Union Jack in Canada's flag despite the national Liberal government's promotion of a maple leaf flag.

When the Pearson government first proposed the maple leaf flag alone, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "They said nooy." So the Ottawa government added a proposal to keep the Union Jack flying alongside the maple leaf as a symbol of allegiance to the Queen.

After the Opposition bombarded Mr. Pearson with questions Tuesday regarding Mr. Pickering's November Pickeregill's Royal audience about the flag, backbencher R. G. Fairweather (PC—Royal) scribbled the verse. The Conservative leader quoted it at a dinner meeting of the York Scarborough Progressive Conservative Association.

"Pickeregill, Pickeregill, where have you been?"

"I've been to London to visit the Queen."

"Pickeregill, Pickeregill, what did you there?"

"I tried to get Joey from Lester B.'s hair."

Shastri Retains Six Members Nehru Cabinet

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Lal Bahadur Shastri, Indian prime minister-designate, has asked six senior ministers of the late Prime Minister Nehru's cabinet to serve in his new government, to be formed next week.

B. Chavan, defence minister; M. C. Chagla, education minister; and Dinanarayan Misra, information and broadcasting minister.

It was not immediately known whether they will retain their present portfolios but most are expected to do so.

Shastri was expected to take the oath of office tomorrow as government which is due to be sworn in with him on June 9.

Another minister, Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, former prime minister of Kashmir who recently had talks with Nehru and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan on the Kashmir question, had also been in touch with Shastri Wednesday.

Abdullah said after the meeting he would visit Pakistan again, but only after Shastri's return from Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London in July.

Merchants Will Improve Fronts Of Stores

TRENTON — Front Street merchants, including stores in the block between Dundas Street West and Elgin Street, on the west side of the street, have approved tentative plans to improve the appearance of their stores, according to Norwich Plan, and have given the green light to the Trenton Chamber of Commerce to have an architect draw up working plans. Trenton architect Anthony Lassing has been retained by the Chamber for the work.

If the merchants decide to follow out the architect's suggestions, the stores will be repainted, carrying out a suggested compliment to have an overhanging signs will be removed in front of the stores and other, economical improvements will be carried out, according to the Norwich Plan.

Other merchants are watching the "Front Street experiment," with interest, and it may not be too long before the whole downtown section of the town takes on a new look.

Heading up the special Chamber of Commerce committee, to implement the Norwich Plan in Trenton are Donald McPherson and Douglas Whitley.

D-Day Veteran Tells of First Morning on Normandy Beach

TRENTON — A D-Day veteran, and a man who described himself as a "soldier-civilian," told the veterans of three wars at the D-Day banquet in the Trenton Legion Hall last night that "there was no soldier in the world like the Canadian soldier."

Col. S. W. Lett of Tweed, who had a meteoric rise to the rank of major in World War II, was second in command of the Queen's Own Regiment, under Brigadier J. G. Spragge, the man who led Canadian troops into Normandy on June 6, 20 years ago, told the assembled veterans of events of That First Day. Col. Lett said that for the first hour and a half of the invasion, he was, in effect, the commanding officer, as Brigadier Spragge was still aboard a ship off the beach.

"What I saw on the beaches of Normandy that morning made me proud that I was a Canadian," Col. Lett said.

With the air force supplying "blanket" protection overhead, the men of the regiment, many of whom were see sick from a seven-mile float onto the beach in a small craft and choppy seas, and "ready to fight anyone," got to the heavily defended beach, and as it was impossible to launch the promised tanks, forced their way forward "with their bare hands."

Modestly admitting that he was a past master in handling the men from the rear," ("Go to it men, I'm right behind you,") Col. Lett played down his part in the initial thrust, and gave full credit to "the men."

GREATEST IN HISTORY

The June 6, D-Day invasion was the greatest invasion in history. It involved 140,000 men, 40,000 ships and 11,000 aircraft.

"You couldn't see the horizon for ships," Col. Lett said last night, adding, "but how times have changed! Now, one atom bomb could wipe out the lot."

Present at last night's commemorative banquet were five other D-Day veterans . . . Sgt. Russell King of the Trenton Police Department; Lt. Gerald Paro, commanding officer of the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps; Lt. Ross Milligan, a naval veteran; William McLaren and Norman Brown.

Many of the first World War veterans at the banquet, to honor the D-Day men and Charles Baker, a veteran of the Boer War and World War I was a special guest.

Councillor Ross Burtt, a World War I veteran, represented Mayor James MacDonald and extended a civic welcome to the guests.

A commemorative service To The Fallen, was conducted by deputy district commander of the Royal Canadian Legion, Earl Donaldson.

Chairman for the evening was Legion Branch 110 president, Victor Burtt.

Ladies from the Legion branch auxiliary prepared and served the banquet.

Proposed Filling Of Gravel Pit Stirring 'Row'

TRENTON — The proposed filling of the gravel pit in Stanley Heights with garbage, is stirring up quite a "row" among the residents of the housing development, which up to now, has been considered "exclusive" as far as the residents go.

Trenton council voted Monday night to carry out a suggestion, advanced by Councillor Joseph Gould, chairman of public works, that the "unusable" pit be made "usable" as a parks area by the sanitary landfill method. Councillor Gould promised that garbage covering would be fast and efficient and that the earth used for fill would be deeper than ordinarily thought necessary.

However, no matter how the pill is sweetened, Stanley Heights residents, for the most part, want none of it. Rumors are that some residents are just waiting for the first load of garbage to fall into the pit to slap an injunction on the town.

At the town office, local realtor Herbert Sinnett, who has a considerable interest in the housing development, showed up yesterday with a petition against filling the pit by the method suggested, signed by a reported 180 residents from the development.

At latest word, the first load of garbage is scheduled to be plummeted into the pit Tuesday morning. What will happen then is no surprise to anyone.

One Stanley Heights resident has announced that he intends to appear before the Court of Revision with the request that his taxes be lowered to the extent applied on Bay Street, the street which lies adjacent to the present sanitary landfill area, south of the Community Gardens.

INVOKED FERTILITY

Throwing handfuls of rice at the bride and groom is an ancient custom—grain was used in pagan wedding ceremonies to invoke fertility.

Flight Lieutenant Ernest Miller, Air Transport Recreation Officer for the past five years, has been promoted to the rank of Squadron Leader. Squadron Leader Miller is the son of Mr. Ernest Miller, Orangeville. He is married to the former Marion Bateman, Strathroy, Ont. They have five children and live in the RCAF Married Quarters in Trenton. Squadron Leader Miller and his family will soon move to RCAF Air Defence Command Headquarters, St. Hubert, Quebec, where he will be the Command Recreation Officer.

Must Keep Canadian Voice

The Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions has criticized the federal government for allowing the "dumping" of American magazines in Canada.

We wish it had not done so. This resolution can only confuse the issue, already badly misunderstood by many people, including those in high places.

U.S. officials have made a point of referring to the free interchange of information. In order to preserve this, "dumping" of U.S. periodicals and newspapers—of all periodicals and newspapers—must be permitted and the Federation's opposition is unsound.

The Federation's resolution included Time and Reader's Digest, but there was a split over their inclusion in the resolution, because these magazines print Canadian editions which, of course, provide work for Canadian printers.

But these magazines are precisely the ones which are most busily engaged in the practice of "dumping." They use, in large measure, the same editorial content as that printed in their U.S. editions and then sell Canadian advertising for the Canadian editions. In other words, they "dump" editorial content. The federal government proposes to exempt these magazines from legislation forbidding such practices printed elsewhere but carrying Canadian advertising. We think the government is wrong in this decision.

Any publication which sells advertising addressed to Canadians should be produced wholly in this country. By this we certainly do not mean that every article in it must be written by a Canadian, but rather that the editorial content must be acquired, primarily for use in the magazine, which must be printed in Canada.

Every publication whose advertising is aimed primarily at the non-Canadian market must be allowed to enter the country freely.

That way Canadian publishers will receive the protection they deserve, while at the same time there can be no justification for charges that the free flow of information across international borders is impeded. The U.S. editions of Time and Reader's Digest should enter Canada freely. The mere fact that the so-called Canadian editions are printed in this country should not be permitted to rob Canadian publications of the exclusive right to the Canadian market for magazine advertising.

The royal commission appointed by the Diefenbaker Government and headed by Senator Grattan O'Leary made eminently reasonable recommendations for the solution of this problem. Any attempt to water down these recommendations should be resisted. Resolutions like that of the Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions which are concerned primarily with protecting the jobs of Canadians, while they support these recommendations, do so for the wrong reasons. The loss of a few extra jobs could be endured. The loss of a Canadian voice on public affairs could not.

He Faces Arduous Task

A small man succeeds a great one.

That is one way of looking at Lal Bahadur Shastri, chosen the new leader of India's ruling Congress Party. It is his own prediction of what would happen when Pandit Nehru died, uttered in the full realization that he himself might be the man chosen.

But small men sometimes become great—people look at the record of Harry Truman after stepping into the shoes of the great Roosevelt.

Shastri enters upon his task buttressed by goodwill, not only the passive kind consisting of hopeful wishes amongst the rulers and peoples of distant nations but the active kind at home, best illustrated by the fact that the man who was his greatest rival for the leadership ended by seconding his nomination.

He will need to retain this goodwill if he is to turn Nehru's dreams for India into realities.

And it may be that he is just the man who can achieve what appears impossible, that the very differences between him and Nehru will prove assets rather than liabilities.

Nehru was the architect, the man of ideals. Perhaps what is wanted now is the craftsman, the practical man who is an able administrator. Whether Shastri fits this pattern we do not know. But whether he succeeds or fails he seems to fit the mold in which Gandhi and Nehru were cast, a selfless man who desires not his own glory but his country's welfare. India to date has been fortunate in the calibre of the men who have captured the imagination and earned the loyalty of the masses. There is, at least as yet, no reason to fear that this good fortune has now ended.

Speculation on Cabinet Switches Runs a Wild Course

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The speculation, Prime Minister Pearson has commented, kiddingly, on rumors of Cabinet shuffles, "can get pretty 'way out."

How far out?

Well, maybe like this . . .

The PM himself has set the stage with the broadcast of hints that the Liberal candidate in the June 23 byelection in Saskatoon, former mayor Sid Buckwold, is a cinch for the Cabinet if he makes it at the polls.

A basically simple hunk of election balt, that, for the campaign fishing line . . . except for a couple of complicating snags.

There has been, in fact still is, talk — and from what are known in these political parts as high places — that there are soon spots in the Cabinet, too, for Larry Pennell, MP for Brant-Haldimand, and J. J. Benson, MP for Kingston. Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South, is highly rated, too, although probably he will have to wait a spell for his promotion.

But say that Sid Buckwold makes it, with Larry Pennell and E. J. Benson waiting impatiently in the Cabinet wings.

There men for one appointment.

To make room for even two of the three, someone has to get to go from the Cabinet — perhaps to the Bench or maybe the Senate.

COFFEE CONFERENCE

That is the stage. Now let's set the scene in the Parliamentary Cafeteria, dawdling over coffee, are three Hill types. Tom Wall, Harry Hayes and the Minister of Such and Such.

Dick, a House of Commons Confidential Messenger.

Harry a hot-on-the-scent news hound from the Humboldt-Melfort-Tisdale Star-Journal-Times Star and Evening Bulletin Herald Express.

Harry: Hey, Tom. Say, Tom, what's the jazz on the Cabinet switcheroo?

Tom: Don't ever print that I leaked, but I hear that Youknow - who is getting the business.

Harry: How so?

Tom: Well, I heard the boss saying something about sending him one of those Cheery Chinky cards. Pictures he'll be really down when he gets the bad news.

Dick: He's not getting the bounce. His secretary told me the real reason he's turning him in that the PM has ordered him to enroll for those special night classes in French.

Harry: Is he ever got to face the old "French Fact." What else is new?

Dick: They tell me that So-and - So could be getting the boot.

Harry: Like who tells you?

Dick: Some of the Maritime Members. They had a couple of cases of Scotch sent in by the other afternoon, for a send-off party. They say that's the way it shapes up, he's for the cabinet chop, and they're getting at him by way of the pain-killer so he won't hurt so bad when he gets the knife from the PM. They're going on his way out, or maybe with luck, into the Senate.

AN EXCUSE FOR CARS

Tom: He's on his way alright, and it's a send-off, but not out of the Cabinet. Just one of those working holiday junkets to Jamaica or Trinidad where they eat a lot of rich food and they're hoping he'll peddle some of their fish.

Harry: You guys are a big help. Guess I'll have to dope it out myself.

Dick: OK, OK. So I won't tell you about the piece of paper with the doodling that Minnie — you know, the good - looking blonde on the chair staff —told Donald the Whip after she picked up under the PM's desk when she was tidying up the Cabinet conference room a couple of days ago.

Harry: You're kidding. What'd it say?

Dick: Well, there was something about Pick.

Harry: Pick? What about Pick?

Dick: Dicked a pack of pickled peppers. Guess the PM must have been practising some of those pseudo-caped Gones for his next go on TV.

Harry: Wise guy. So I'll figure it out for myself.

Tom: Like what?

Harry: Well, lemme see. Judy to Finance. Dick to Trade and Commerce. Harry Hayes to External Affairs.

Tom: Harry Hayes to External? What's with Paul Martin? Where you putting him?

Harry: Now, Tom. Pete's sake don't pass it around. But I hear somebody high up in the East Block's raising cain about one of the PM's eggheads whispering at the Commonwealth High Commissioner's cocktail splash the other night something about Mike and the Queen. You know, the PM always did think External was the greatest, and well, everybody figures Paul . . . so it's an angle, isn't it? And new, too.

Tom: Sure, you've got an exclusive.

(Like the PM said, speculation on Cabinet switches "can get pretty 'way out.")

Strictly Personal
True Science Is Not Cold And Heartless

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices; Nobody thinks of himself as illbred; if one were to ask the most ill-bred person to describe his manners in a word, he would doubtless reply: "Earthy."

Few of us are as capable of discriminating between our opinion and our affection as well as John Selden, the seventeenth-century wit, who remarked: "I love apples the best of any fruit, but it does not follow that I must think apples to be the best of fruit."

Those who most make the future are most oblivious to its men of action are concerned with immediate goals, and rarely have the time, temperament or inclination to envision the new problems created by their "practical solutions" of present difficulties.

What is called "symbolism" in art is effective and artistic only when the artist is unaware of it himself; the conscious manipulation of symbolism in a film or a novel is utterly self-defeating, like lovers who keep verbalizing their attachment, and soon find that they have been drained of content.

The most curious array of creatures to be seen while visiting a zoo does not necessarily consist of those found behind the bars.

No one is so religiously sensitive as the outsider in a man when his creator is called into question.

I have little patience with stories and jokes about children not liking to go to school — being unalterably convinced that in such cases there is something very wrong with the child or very wrong with the school; or both; for it is not a natural tendency of children to resist learning and socializing, but rather to enjoy them.

The "natural scientist" (which is making a false deity out of a mere process) deserves to be attacked, too, since he is not the cold and heartless thing it is often depicted by its detractors; rather, it contains a large spiritual element in its disinterested quest for truth, and, as Claude Bernard once remarked, this "detachment increases our power for proportion as it lowers our pride."

To the oft-repeated statement these days, "We can't legislate people's feelings," one can only reply with Samuel Johnson's remark: "It is not within our power to be fond, but it is within our power to be kind." (And very much within our power to be just.)

In reading various academic analyses of Shakespeare's sonnets we get the distinct impression that, to such pedants, the commentary's the thing.

Haute Cuisine Thing of Past

Montreal Star

"It is not a bit of use dooming a tall lad and calling yourself a chef," says the chef de cuisine of the Chateau Frontenac. "First you have to be able to cook, and you can only do that with training." And there is a serious shortage of properly trained cooks in Canada, he proposes a national apprenticeship scheme, with training lasting for three years.

The plaint is familiar, and so is the solution. But are they valid? By nature, I fear, we are overlook two things: first the profound change in eating habits in this country since the equally profound change in working habits.

Everything today from a pot of Dijon mustard to a can of peas with a few onions added dishes its wonders to the "gourmet" trade. But there are, in fact, precious few gourmets left. Even those people who have a reverence for quality as such, where are some whose a taste buds have not been corrupted by the marxist, there are those who do not live up to the wrath over the way in which geese are fattened for their livers, there are those who have money and there are some who have leisure. But how many have all these qualifications at once?

Meanwhile, back at the stove, how many men are willing to give three, four or more years of their lives to standing in a stifling kitchen and acting as fust for the sake of reaching the bottom rung of the ladder of la grande cuisine?

La grande cuisine is a dying art. It is being killed by hunry, by fear of cholesterol and particularly by economics, and I'm sure it is true in France as it is in Canada.

This does not mean we are condemned to subsisting on the TV dinner. Good cooking, as opposed to legendary cooking, survives in at least a good handful of restaurants and in a rather surprising number of homes. But excoffier Soubise over the ex-chef, the ghosts of Brillat-Savarin and Lucullus will be appreciative.

To Your Good Health
Psychological Factor of Rapid Pulse Very Common

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a man of 40, above average in health, but have had a heart rate of 120, standing, 90 lying down after a night's rest, since I was a young man.

I first learned about this when taking a physical for the air corps in 1942. I was turned down because my blood pressure was also slightly high — 150-80. I was later accepted by the army.

This rapid pulse rate apparently has had no adverse effects.

My question is will it affect my length of life, and should I adjust my daily living and physical activities to such a condition? I have fairly regular check-ups, and my doctor says my blood pressure is O.K. Are there other cases like mine or am I an exception? — E. J. M.

There's nothing very unusual about your case.

There are various reasons for a rapid pulse, but the psychological factor is very common. This shows up when people are examined for Service, Civil or — or volunteering for the air corps. The pulse (or heart-rate) is very likely to speed up because of nervous stress, and the stress is free of slightly elevated blood pressure.

You don't tell me what your occupation is, but I suspect you're not unusual for them to drop back toward what is really normal for you when you're not accustomed to your doctor and his mannerisms, and in general are not under the "wouldn't surprise me if, after some years of going to your regular physician, you now have a perfectly normal readings. His report that your blood pressure is "O.K." would indicate.

The fact that you did your army service without difficulty is good evidence that there was nothing seriously wrong with you then. Your regular check-ups reinforce the indications that you are healthy now.

Doctors sometimes have difficulty persuading some patients to slow down and "adjust daily living and physical activities."

Other times they have nearly as much trouble convincing patients that they have no need to slow down, and will in fact be better off if they just keep on living naturally as they have been.

So, R. J. M., I think you are worrying needlessly.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have 3 children under 7 years and have found out that I have a phenomenal will this hurt my unborn baby in any way? Is there a test to be made to treat them in my condition? — Mrs. N. E.

Pregnancy won't hurt the baby, but you should be treated anyway, to try to rid yourself of the four members of the family (5) of them before the baby is born.

If you don't understand how pinworms spread — and I find that many people don't — send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., and ask for the booklet, "Pinworms, the Compassionate Pest". Until you understand how they spread and multiply, you are in an intelligent job of protecting yourself and family against getting them again.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it healthy to keep small quantities in the living room and kitchen windows, or as, a friend of ours claims, do they take out oxygen over and affect our health? — Mrs. D. C.

Such oxygen as may be used is so slight that you needn't worry. Some people have a cat. Some have a dog. Some have children. Some like to keep flowers living with them. Some have visitors. Any one uses a lot of oxygen, but there's still enough for everybody. So don't WORRY for a minute about your plants. Not plants really robbed the atmosphere of oxygen, then forests and farms would be unhealthy places, wouldn't they.

'Humanoid' Hunt Costly

Milwaukee Journal

A possibility that intrigues many serious scientists, as well as science fiction writers, is that somewhere else in the universe there exist human beings — not precisely like man, perhaps, but "humanoids" in the sense of being living organisms, having intelligence comparable to man's and possibly being able to communicate with us.

To carry out a search for such life, extensive — and expensive — research programs are being developed. The national aeronautics and space administration (NASA) has a "space biology" section. The science of extraterrestrial life is called "exobiology," gaining increasing recognition.

To Dr. George Gaylord Simpson, however, this search represents the wildest sort of gamble. Dr. Simpson, a research Assistant professor of vertebrate paleontology at Harvard university, states that a search for life on other planets is "a big, forthcoming book that is reprinted in part in Science, weekly magazine of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It is possible, Dr. Simpson conceded, that on some of the enormous number of stars elsewhere in the universe, conditions that favored development of life on earth also existed. But he points out that the evolution of life on earth has been marked by such chance mutations and recombinations. He declares:

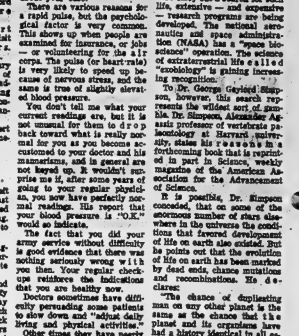
"The chance of duplicating man on any other planet is the same as the chance that the planet and its organisms have had a history identical in all essentials with that of the earth and the evolution of man.

Let us grant the unsubstantiated claim of millions or billions of possible habitable planets of life; the chances of such historical duplication are still vanishingly small."

Dr. Simpson who is concerned over these "enormously disproportionate" costs of the scientific gamesmen that is divorced from any idea what is to be gained if we do find traces of the existence of extraterrestrial life. He continues:

"We may have life — known and unknown — around us. We are only beginning to understand it. We can learn much from it that may number of hypothetical Martian microbes."

Dr. Simpson's plea is that we take a bit of the money and manpower being "gambled" on the space programs and devote it to study earthly organisms. On such an approach, he says, the "profit is sure."



Redistribution

Vancouver Sun

In many ways redistribution will make a British general election a brand new ball game. Not a complacency in any of the 10 provinces will survive. Even a new shape, a new electoral map will be born. The battle of question marks in the party organizers. Which party will benefit and which will suffer, in this day of shifting political allegiances, will be largely decided by the boys in the back rooms. The one sure winner will be Canadian democracy.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks moved lower in all sections in moderate morning trading on the stock market today.

Losses, however, were restricted to fractions with the result that index changes were small.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,413,000 shares compared with 1,197,000 shares at the same time Wednesday. The increase was attributable to a surge in trading in MacDonald, a speculative mining issue. The stock traded heavily, rose 14½ cents to 60 cents and then settled back at 41½ cents. All other speculative changes were in a three-cent range.

Among industrials, Massey-Ferguson fell ¼ to 29¼ in profit-taking.

Noranda dipped ¼ to 45¾ in leading base metals lower. Falconbridge dipped ¾ to 72. Leitch continued to rally with a gain of 20 cents to 94.90.

Dome dipped ¼ to 28⅛ and Bollinger ¼ to 9⅛ in golds.

A group of selected issues outshone the rest of the stock market Wednesday.

Only the western oil index managed to show a gain and the key exchange index's measurement of the health of all segments of the market dipped .58 to 145.70.

In the western oil list, Home A climbed ¾ to 20¾ and Hudson's Bay Oil was up ¼ to 18.

Massey-Ferguson jumped 1¼ to 29¾ before settling for a gain of 1 at 29¾; as the standout of the industrial list. Texaco was also up ¼ to 66¼ while T.A.C. trading ex-dividend 50 cents, was ahead ¼ to 25¾.

CPR led the mails list, lower. It slipped 1¼ to 46 and Algoma Steel 1¼ to 89¾; Distillers Seagram and Dominion Textiles were each off ¼ to 56¾ and 36¾ respectively.

A late spurt of buying in Leitch and Highland-Bell featured base metals. The former climbed 65 cents to 94.90 and the latter 75 cents to 96.25. The group was otherwise lower in all dealings.

Speculative mining issues were mixed as volume declined. Bunker Hill and Northern Pipeline were each ahead two cents at 45¾ and 24 cents respectively. Donald and Trinity Chibougamau were each ahead two cents at 45¾ and 24 cents respectively.

PRESSURE COOKERS were being installed yesterday at the rebuilt Baxter Cannery in Bloomfield. The 20 steam-heated cookers each hold ten baskets of canned goods, and each basket holds about four cases. Plywood laid on the steel-grill floor to the left, covers holes through which other cookers will be mounted. In the background, other workmen erect a conveyor over the cooling tanks.

Pea Canning Machinery Being Placed in New Plant

Pea canning machinery is being delivered and installed now, at the Baxter Cannery in Bloomfield. The first machines arrived more than a week ago, and some items are still to come. Plant manager Earl Smith says the plant will be ready for operation by June 20. Cool weather is slowing the crop though and the peas probably will not be ready for canning before June 25. . .

Canning of frozen lemonade concentrate stopped Monday, after nearly 50,000 cases had been produced on the temporary line, originally set up to run 30,000 cases. Another order came in, Mr. Smith said, before the first had been completed. Total production for the year will probably be more than 150,000 cases, but storage costs for the frozen concentrate are so high that production is limited to immediate requirements.

Still building part of the complex, Jack Tatham of The Tatham Co. plans to pour the floor of the office section Friday. Walls of the office are now being erected. The hydro sub-station beside the plant went into operation Tuesday and the plant's boiler will be ready for use within two weeks.

Korean Students Demonstrate In Four Cities

SEOUL (AP) — Students staged anti-government demonstrations in four South Korean provincial cities today and President Chung applied the Park's cabinet threatened to place the entire country under martial law.

More than 6,000 students overran police lines in a bloody, rock-throwing fight in Kwangju, 150-miles south of Seoul. Police tried to disperse the students with tear gas, but they squatted in front of the provincial government building and shouted for Park's resignation and the lifting of martial law in Seoul. Many students and policemen were reported injured.

Less violent demonstrations broke out in Taegu, Pusan and Chunchon. More than 2,000 high school and college students were involved.

KEEP SEOUL QUIET

Heavy troop reinforcements kept Seoul relatively quiet as martial law proclaimed by Park in the capital after 30,000 students and adults rioted Wednesday. More than 600 police and demonstrators were injured and 91 persons were arrested.

After an emergency cabinet meeting today, a cabinet spokesman said martial law would be extended to the rest of the country if the demonstrations continued.

Truckes moved troops into the capital during the night. The soldiers took stations inside the capital's major universities and schools, breeding grounds of the anti - government demonstrations which began in March.

Military censors blotted out some stories and photos of the rioting in Seoul newspapers. Dispatches abroad were delayed for a time, but officials said the censorship applied only within the country.

The northern Seoul Wednesday was by far the most serious challenge to Park's regime.

Napanee Girl Acquitted on Theft Charge

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Marie Hamilton, 18, of Napanee was acquitted Wednesday by an all-male jury on a charge of stealing photographs from the home of Charles Cooper of nearby Camden East.

Miss Hamilton and Wayne McLean, 24, a reporter for the weekly Napanee Beaver at the time of the alleged offence, had originally been charged with breaking and entering and theft. The girl worked in the newspaper's business office.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville withdrew the charge of breaking and entering after McLean had been acquitted of the same charge Tuesday in a separate trial. He was found guilty of the charge of theft and given a three-month suspended sentence.

The two were accused of breaking into Mr. Cooper's home and stealing eight pictures of Mrs. Cooper's whose body was believed found in nearby Shabbot Lake.

Mr. Cooper testified that the body found in the lake was not that of his wife.

Cross-Canada Survey

More Students Than Ever Hence Less Summer Work

By STUART LAKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A sharp increase in enrolment at Canadian universities and colleges is having an adverse effect on summer job opportunities for students.

The bureau of statistics reports 158,240 full-time students attending institutions of higher learning this year compared with 141,388 last year.

"And the number of jobs available to students certainly hasn't kept pace with the enrolment," says an official of the National Employment Service.

Another factor that could spell disappointment for some job-seeking students is automation, but the NES says there is no factual information on which to base predictions.

There are some bright spots in the picture, the spokesman says. Unemployment in the permanent work force has dipped to its lowest point in years "and that can only be good news for the students."

Another thing going for them is their "amazing initiative and industry" in finding jobs on their own. Many go back to jobs they held the previous summer or else begin seeking employment as early as January.

NOT PROMISING

An indication of what's ahead for students is contained in a special survey of job opportunities conducted this year by Loyola University of Montreal.

It says the situation is "not promising" and recommends that the four-year courses in arts and other faculties be boiled down to three years so that students can more quickly join the permanent work force.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that, as usual, engineering and other technical students will have less trouble than others landing jobs.

Here's the situation, province by province:

NEWFOUNDLAND

Engineering students are being signed up for work almost as soon as they apply. NES, which was able to place more than 200 last year, says it expects to find work for a larger number this summer.

NOVA SCOTIA

There are far more job-seekers than jobs, say Nova Scotia universities. Dalhousie has 600 looking for work and though encouraged to register with NES, most haven't done so yet. At Acadia, there are three applicants for every job available. At St. Francis Xavier about 400 have registered for work.

NEW BRUNSWICK

An increased demand from employers indicates most N.B. students will be placed. About 80 per cent of the University of New Brunswick's job-seekers are placed and prospects are good for others. There is the usual lack of opportunities for first- and second-year students.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Engineering and commerce students should have little trouble getting work, a St. Dunstan's University spokesman says. But chances are slight for others after the federal government reports have filled their openings.

QUEBEC

McGill expects to place only 300 of an expected 1,500 wanting jobs but prospects are bright for engineering, geology, architecture and third - year commerce students. "All students in first or second year are having great difficulty," says Colin Dubell, assistant to the director of the university's placement service. Placement officers for other Montreal-area universities say there doesn't seem to have been much change in the number of jobs available, although engineering students can expect to be placed easily.

ONTARIO

Job opportunities in southern Ontario are unchanged from last year, says Kenneth Bradford, director of the University of Toronto's placement service. About 80 per cent of the 8,000 registered job - seekers at the U. of T. would find jobs. "Our experience has been that those who start looking early for employment usually find it." Leonard Coulson, NES regional employment officer, says job openings are not appearing as quickly as in previous years.

MANITOBA

Placement officers at the University of Manitoba say the situation is "not good." A late spring has resulted in employers delaying decisions on summer help, and the railways are not expected to hire as many students as last year.

SASKATCHEWAN

More jobs are available in all industries but there are also more students seeking work. Nevertheless, with prosperity resulting from the strong grain market and with generally lower unemployment, there is a fair demand for undergrads to fill summer jobs.

ALBERTA

The province is one of the brightest spots for student employment, says John LeMay, student placement officer in Edmonton. He expects most of the 1,500 students registered with NES to find jobs. "This year, if a student wants to work, he should be able to find a job," says Mr. LeMay, who placed 850 in jobs last summer.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

With 2,500 students seeking work at the University of British Columbia employment centre, there is strong demand for engineering and forestry students but arts and education undergrads are expected to have trouble. Female students also will find work scarce. The CPR will probably hire about 800 students for trains and resorts and the Heavy Construction Association says it will have more jobs for students this year than last.

ATHENS (AP) — Greek Premier George Papandreou has announced plans to investigate the personal finances of all politicians and civil servants and their wives, children and other close relatives, going back as far as April 1, 1945. Bermuda Fashion Parade Is More Than Sportswear

By THERESE BERNIER

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — The Hawaiian muumuu, a peek-a-boo lunic over a bikini and, naturally, Bermuda shorts were features of the annual spring fashion show run by the Bermuda Junior League in conjunction with the Festival of Flowers.

Beach wear and informal evening clothes—essentials for this island's tourist wardrobe—were on display. And of course there was clothing for boating, as Bermuda where regattas are continually being held.

For these occasions, long or short slacks are suggested with a hand-knitted sweater or a striped pullover, topped with a sea cap. Pastel tones predominated at the show, notably in a sailor's blouse of pale pink over a skirt of darker pink.

Also shown was a two-piece marine blue outfit and a simple white dress with a tri-colored short V-neckline and a contrasting jacket of red and white stripes.

Typically Bermudian sportswear included the sleeveless blouse of printed material, a straight skirt of Bermuda shorts, flat shoes and a hat reminiscent of the Peter Pan but of a more tropical style.

For the hostess there was an overblouse and slacks or a full silk-tone summer evenings on the terrace overlooking the sea.

For night and evening, the collection featured many models of foreign inspiration, including a long Chinese tunic split up one side of the skirt, or a heavy skirt in tapestry design with a Spanish-type hem. It is won with a sleeveless blouse and rolled collar.

Printed fabrics sometimes reminded one of the clothing won by Hawaiian subjects while others were as fresh as a salad of Bermuda-grown fruit.

Silks and cottons were in rich colors, often running the gamut of blues and green evoking the surrounding sea.

An original from the Paris House of Lanvin, made of pure silk in pink, was modelled by Patricia Schips, Queen of the Flower Festival.

Art Exhibition Will Travel To Various Centres in Canada

Devoted solely to contemporary Canadian drawings, prints and water colors, the National Gallery of Canada has arranged an exhibition to include an exciting selection of 60 of the best works in this field. They were judged outstanding from some 1400 entries from artists across Canada.

The exhibition is the outcome of a recommendation by the jury for the IV biennial of Canadian art. While some of the most interesting and creative work in Canada is being done in the graphic art field, the artists, limited as to the number of submissions for the biennial, generally prefer to submit paintings. These, it was decided to hold a special exhibition of water colors, prints and drawings.

To ensure the best and most objective selection of work being done, the National Gallery felt the judge should be an acknowledged authority on contemporary graphic art and preferably be largely unfamiliar with the work of Canadian artists. Accordingly, international-known William S. Lieberman, curator of drawings and prints at the museum of modern art (New York) was invited to judge the entries.

HEALTHY STATE OF ART

It is interesting that the final 60 selections made by Mr. Lieberman are not confined to any one school or style and include works by both well-known and lesser-known artists from Newfoundland to British Columbia. This is surely an indication of the healthy state of graphic art in Canada today.

Mr. Lieberman was greatly impressed with the high quality of work and the "extraordinary vitality and variety," and he suggested that the National Gallery arrange to show the exhibition outside Canada. He found that most of the works placed particular emphasis on abstract construction and in many others, there was a "vein of fantasy," which he termed "unabashedly romantic".

After being displayed at the National Gallery, from June 5th until September 13th, the exhibition will travel to various centres across Canada. It was organized by Miss Keith Fenwick, curator of Prints and Drawings at the National Gallery, and her assistant, Miss Joan Scanlon.

Women Help Change Laws Meeting Told

HAMILTON (CP) — Women do help change the laws, says Mrs. E. H. Steen of Vancouver, incoming president of the National Council of Women.

In an interview during the council's four-day annual meeting here, Mrs. Steen said: "I've followed resolutions from the local level right through the national and seen them implemented. This is no myth. This is actually takes place. They can eventually affect national and provincial laws.

"This is the image of council that we speak for so many thousands when we take a resolution to the government. Through its affiliated women's groups, the council claims to represent about 750,000 women.

Mrs. Steen was elected president of the 71-year-old council Tuesday.

FIRM STEP NEEDED

Nik Cavell, Canadas first Colombo Plan administrator, told delegates Wednesday night that land reform to provide peasants of the newly - emerged nations with purchasing power must be a first step towards a solution of mass poverty in the world.

Land reform and resulting higher incomes for peasants could provide a new, huge market, for the products of their country's new industries.

Construction of new industries and land reform would have to be financially assisted by the rich countries, Mr. Cavell said.

Experts in the field of international aid agreed that nations should devote one per cent of their gross national product to aiding the poor. For Canada that would mean $400,000,000—roughly twice as much as the country does give today.

Father Head Of Family in Old System

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Translation to a modern "democratic family" where mother and father play equal roles has caused mental disturbance in many parents, a Brockville psychiatrist said Wednesday.

Speaking to a convention of the Canadian Federation of Christian Reformed Ladies' Societies, Dr. A. Hoogenraad of the Ontario hospital said family affection plays an important role in mental health.

The old patriarch system of family life, in which the father was supreme boss, was good, he added.

He said that parents who were brought up under the patriarch system, but who bring their own children up democratically, are disturbed when children are no longer dependent on the father, who was head of the family in the old system.

Dr. Hoogenraad also said parents, particularly mothers, often cause disturbances in children.

He gave as examples the cold mother, who may appear outwardly successful in her undertakings, but has no true love or warm affection for her children; the overindulgent mother who removes all frustrations and obstacles from her child's path, but keeps him tied to her apron strings; and the sexually-frustrated parent, who transfers his or her love to the child of the opposite sex.

Children of sexually - frustrated parents often have difficulty relating properly to a member of the opposite sex in adult life, he said.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Religion must often be saved from its friends. Many religious folk seem to want religion to be as much unlike life as possible.

In the Middle Ages, the very architecture of the churches served to foster the illusion that the church was a sanctuary — that is, a place of refuge, and indeed, "sanctuary" developed a double meaning. The church sanctuary, served to symbolize its function as refuge from life's hurdles — its stained glass windows, refracted misty and wistful rays of light in order to emphasize the difference between the world within and the world without.

INTELLIGIBLE RELIGION

So, too, the more mystical and the less intelligible religion is made to be, the more some people find satisfaction in it. When attempts are made to introduce standards of intelligence, rational content, or deliberate thought, or when efforts are undertaken to prevent religion from becoming submerged in inconsequential unrealities, many will claim to be "Anti-Intellectuals", rise up in protest. They seem to need a religion sprinkled with spiritual novocaine. As one man wisely said: "Most people like to come to church or synagogue and check their heads as well as their hats at the door."

Vital religion, however, can and should be a fundamental approach to life which can serve to teach us more about our hidden human potential. A main goal of religion should be to get us to grapple with ourselves — to inform, reform and transform our lives in dramatic and significant ways, to see the human enterprise under the aspect of eternity.

FITHILLY PORTRAYED

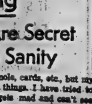
The high function of religion is vividly portrayed in this discussion of a parent with a great schoolmaster. "Where is your master, "do you teach religion?" "We teach it all day long," the schoolmaster. "Where in your curriculum," he asked the teach it in arithmetic, by accuracy. We teach it in language, by learning to say what we mean. We teach it in history, by emphasizing mans humanity. We teach it in geography, by transmitting to our pupils a breadth of mind. We teach it in handicraft, by thoroughness. We teach it in astronomy by reverence. And even in the playground, we teach religion, by fair play." And then, he added: "we teach it by kindness to animals, by courtesy to servants, by good manners to one another, and by truthfulness in all things."

"Well, then," asked the parent, "do you talk much to them about religion?" "No," said the schoolmaster somewhat perplexed, "not much — just enough to bring the whole thing to a point now and then."

PRACTICE RELIGION

Regretfully, the way many people "practice religion" seems only to be "enough to bring the whole thing to a point now and then." They "celebrate" religious holidays and events — but not too much more. Clearly however, unless "the point of religion" is constantly lived in the playground, in the classroom, in the home, in the office, in the marketplace, in the world of letters, personal relations, Religion may very well fall into disuse.

Spiritual insights must be fought on all of life's activities. Not penetrate all of life's curriculum. If not, Religion can become and other-does become a shallow sentimentalism which leads us away from reality. Religion, in fact, can often hallow a man's hate by making him believe that he loves, when, in fact, he does not. Religion can encourage us to run away from life in a series of neurotic withdrawals from its thorny problems. Instead, it should be stimulating us to renew our vigor and face up to our own world.



Successful Living

Regular Breaks Are Secret To Maintaining Sanity

DEAR DORIS — I love to play crokinole, cards, etc., but my husband won't come with me to those things. I have tried to teach him to play cards but he just gets mad and can't see anyone playing cards and then going to church.

People have to have some kind of entertainment, and forgetting one's troubles. I've just got to get out. It helps me forget the way we have to live (with no bathroom or hot water), when I was always used to these things at home.

All they have ever done on the farm is work and go to bed and this is all he has ever known. He has worked terribly hard all his life. I hope you can help me feel a bit better. — FARM WIFE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR FARM WIFE — Cards got their bad name many years ago, when they meant gambling. Today's sociable card game is a far different thing. Makes for fun, friendship, relaxing from serious things. Many church groups now sponsor bridge evenings.

Your slave-labor farmer just doesn't know about the new Joy in living that learning to play would give him. Our Lord said "I came that you might have life, and have it more abundantly." We weren't meant to keep our poor old noses to the grindstone all day and all night too.

And this is the way to mental health, as all experts agree. Keep working for and planning for regular breaks.

Loosen up a little!

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEVEN

OPEN WINDOWS

This is the season when most of us like rather without it to shut ourselves of your neighbors. It's also difficult then not to be aware of what is going on across the hedge in your yard.

During the Summer, courtesy is more important than ever in this day-to-day jostling of living peacefully with those around you. It sounds meaningful from here? Now see if you can't. It's safe to assume that a noisy gathering at your house is having the same effect on your neighbors.

While it's impossible, as we said at once, to ask a dozy scene below can be kept to a decent minimum. A considerate neighbor can, also, manage to sandwich in chores that make a racket during hours when he/she is not actually in those around him.

John lawn-mowing, for instance, is distasteful in the afternoon, under cover of shouting traffic and the noisy play of children at play, then it is first thing in the morning when others are trying to sleep or in the evening when neighbors are trying to relax after dinner.

The same applies to the job of putting out the trash. The noise it involves is less apparent in the early evening when everyone else is doing the same thing. Puttering around the garbage cans is at night is disturbing to neighbors just about to doze off, and a banging cover can be very loud. If you have to turn an edgy neighbor into an insomniac—be the night.

EVENING NOISE-MAKERS

Solution to other everyday noise-makers can be found once you're aware of the problem. If you're entertaining outdoors, for instance, try to arrange to get your guests on the side of the house farthest away from the neighbors' sounds of conversation are not considered a nuisance, but they become more of a drone than a shattering shout.

When you say good-night to guests, do it indoors instead of carrying the conversation out to the front of night. If the hour must be announced, depart in friends to their cars, make final farewells held and then go indoors to preserve the peace of the neighborhood.

The only legitimate excuse for making the sound of your radio and TV are more important, than over another person's outdoor weather. Also, if your neighbors are elderly, it is kind to get them to install their hearing aids until neighbors have had a chance to adjust to the new set, and at least, brush their teeth.

If you become aware of the way sound travels on Summer breeze, and take steps to tone them down, chances are the neighbors will copy your example and do some self-pedaling of their own.

The same applies to the job of putting out the trash. The noise it involves is less apparent in the early evening when everyone else is doing the same thing. Puttering around the garbage cans is at night is disturbing to neighbors just about to doze off, and a banging cover can be very loud. If you have to turn an edgy neighbor into an insomniac—be the night.

EVENING NOISE-MAKERS

Solution to other everyday noise-makers can be found once you're aware of the problem. If you're entertaining outdoors, for instance, try to arrange to get your guests on the side of the house farthest away from the neighbors' sounds of conversation are not considered a nuisance, but they become more of a drone than a shattering shout.

When you say good-night to guests, do it indoors instead of carrying the conversation out to the front of night. If the hour must be announced, depart in friends to their cars, make final farewells held and then go indoors to preserve the peace of the neighborhood.

Ann Landers

Son Asks for $35 for Prom Pop Pops a Blood Vessel

DEAR ANN LANDERS — People write to you with gripes and complaints just to get things off their chests. I guess that's what I am doing — letting off steam.

I am a boy 17 who just heard my father say the 100th time — "When I was your age I WORKED to pay the rent." He said it like saving a red cape in front of a bull. It doesn't matter what my father says after he opens out like that because I'm already mad.

Don't parents realize they are not our age and the way they act it's hard to believe they ever were. Things are different today. For example, a kid without wheels is the same as ANN LANDERS dead. If I asked any of the top five girls in our crowd to go to the flickers on a bet, she'd laugh in my face.

When I told my dad he'd have to put down $35 for the prom, he almost popped a blood vessel. He said, "When I was your age $35 fed a family of five for a week." Well, maybe it did, but I don't help that now.

If you print this letter please give my sad advice, not ha. He needs it. — TROMPED ON.

DEAR TROMPED — Maybe you were tromped on, Buster, but if you were, it wasn't hard enough.

You bet things are different today, and one of the differences is that kids are allowed to shout at their parents like they've been brushing their teeth with gunpowder.

If you have to come up with $35 for the prom why don't you try earning it?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband is a fine man in many ways. When I read in your column about the troubles some wives have I consider myself fortunate. But please tell me, Ann, if there is anything I can do to help my husband with a fault that seems to be getting worse all the time. He exaggerates something awful.

If he buys six pieces of equipment for his shop he has to tell our friends he bought twelve. If he makes a profit of $4,000, the figure becomes $6,000. He told a group of relatives last night that he made a speech the other evening to 1,000 salesmen. I was present and there were about 120 people there.

Why can't he tell anything straight? — R.M.V.

DEAR R.M.V. — People who must double and triple everything are not satisfied with themselves or their achievements. They must try to knock everybody dead, and they don't think the truth will do the job — so the facts and figures multiply in their mouths.

Maybe you don't understand is that their friends get wise and then don't believe a word they put out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I grew up next door to a very fine young woman. That woman is now married and has four children. Her husband died six years ago. I've been married 18 years but my wife and I were never blessed with a family. I've always been very fond of the children of my former next-door friend.

The oldest boy will be graduating from high school next year and I'd like to send him to college. His mother is unable to do so. This boy is bright, he's a good kid, and does not smoke or drink. As a stipulation I want the boy to promise he will continue to stay away from tobacco and alcohol.

My wife says I have no right to impose my standards on others. What is your opinion? — OLD TYRANT.

DEAR O.T. — I don't agree with your wife. You are not imposing your standards on anyone. You are making the boy an offer — and a handsome one at that. It's his choice to accept it or reject it.

Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives good and solid rules for teen-age dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Couple Honored At Presentation

The Rev. W.G. Fletcher was chairman for the evening and extended a welcome to the bride and groom and best wishes for future happiness. Mr. Robert Hoard conducted the singing with Mrs. Kenneth Warner at the piano.

Several young men of the community staged a hilarious fashion show with Mrs. Cheryl Jeffs as pianist and Miss Sally Maddox as commentator. Mr. Ron Jeffers was cast as Mr. Milford Wrightman and Mr. Raymond McConnell of Mr. Flaherty. Mrs. Lynda Thompson and Robert C. Hoard as Hoardy. Piano duets were contributed by the Misses Barbara and Brenda Williams, Mrs. Mac Sharp and Miss Nancy Jeffers; vocal solos by Sally McAdam, and Lynda Potts; Jean Smith and Donna Knight; Judy and Joyce Clayton Thompson accompanists were Miss Sally McAdam, Mrs. Garth Smith and Miss Jean Sharp. Accordion duets were given by Kenneth Couch and Peter Brown and two vocal selections were contributed by Mrs. Robert H. Hoard and Mrs. Marguerite McMullen.

The couple were given seats of honor and Roger Smith read an appreciative address which extended a welcome to the bride. Paul Jeffs made the presentation of a platform occasional bronzed chair with leather trim, a wool blanket, and pillow slips. The individual gifts included a plate from the local United Church Women.

David and Ruth expressed thanks for the party in their honor and for the gifts and invited the group to visit them in their new home.

The committee in charge served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

It's Time for Rhubarb Pie

by Mary Moore

Some of you will remember Mrs. I often mentioned one of her favorite recipes, Mrs. Ellis' precious friend died in March of this year. Mrs. Smith is a lady with farm, and since is very fond of rhubarb pie, my sister and I met a mutual friend, Jo Hamilton, a girl who loves rhubarb pie.

Just as we were leaving Jo offered to send us some new recipes for pie shell; being sure it cuts all of the shortening and butter into the flour. This flour mixture is then mixed with ice water, tossed with a fork, until there is enough water to make the dough roll out on floured board to fit deep 9" pie plate; main factor is to have shortening cut in pieces of 1¼ tablespoons each, brown sugar and flour. Fill pastry-lined pie plate with 3 cups cut rhubarb cut into ½" pieces (or about 4 cups, not heaped) mixed together 1 cup brown sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 egg yolks, ½ tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 2 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt. When this is well mixed, spoon it over the rhubarb in pie shell; being sure it coats all of the rhubarb. Bake at 450 deg. for 10 minutes then reduce heat to 375 deg., and bake 35 minutes longer. Five cups rhubarb, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 egg whites until foamy then gradually add 1 cup sugar, beating until beaten until very, very stiff. When pie is baked remove from oven, spread meringue over hot filling. Cover pie with waxed paper, pushing it up from edges. Let stand in oven for about ½ hour; turning out on rack during last 10 minutes of baking. Meringue will be a rich biscuit color. Cool at room temperature. Delicious.

NOTE:

One-third of our pie was left over from the night before. We put it in the refrigerator to keep today and I think it was even better. Quite simple. Thanks, Jo.

I strongly advise you to try this economical, pastries! —

Adopt Indian As Sister for Negro Indian

TORONTO (CP) — When Mr. and Mrs. Alec Gamble of nearby Dalesville went to visit Stephen, they found a pitiful conditions.

Their two other children Stephen, 14, a Negro, and Stephanie, 9, an Indian-Negro girl, adopted what the new arrival signified.

The girl was the boys' sister, Mrs. Gamble says. They finally had to give up my idea to make a partner.

ECLECTIC FASHION?

Once in a fashion is words and chic's one best as there is a fashion in clothes, colors, architecture, food and in nearly every phase of our daily lives. A year or so ago, everything was "pragmatic". The dictionary defines pragmatic as: "something practical springing from experience, not theory." Pragmatism is described as being the philosophy that makes results the test of truth. To refer to a bathing suit as pragmatic, as one fashion coordinator did, is to step right out of the vocabulary of fashion into the philosophy classroom. I suppose the commentator used the word because the suit was made of some man-made fabric, possessing miraculous properties of built-in stretch and other virtues.

Pragmatism now seems just another way of saying practical and I am waiting to hear the word used in connection with such other items as frozen foods, cosmetics and household cleaners.

The newest word, just lately borrowed from the academic world and hovering on the fashion scene is "eclectic". This again is a philosophic term defined as "an idea or theory springing from many sources." Until recently, I had encountered it only in text books and in the few learned lectures I sometimes attend, but never in a fashion magazine. But a few days ago, I heard a fashion designer use it to refer to silhouette.

DESCRIBING FASHION

It is surprising that eclectic has not been used in connection with fashion long before this because it rightly describes fashion at any season and in any year. Fashion does spring from many sources. The most obvious inspiration of western fashion over the years has been history and local customs borrowed from isolated countries.

When a country is isolated from outside influence, native or local customs in dress and food also always strengthened.

The popularity of textured fabrics which began to sweep the fashion picture about four years ago can be said to have produced an eclectic effect. It is directly traced to advances made in Europe in the field of textile development. With fibre-textured look came deeper, richer colours, because these tones helped to hide the small imperfections in the weave of the earlier experimental looms. These heavier textured fabrics led to simple styles with almost no trimming, resulting in a simple rather stark silhouette. The millinery softened this look by designing hats with softly bloused crowns and brims, achieving an eclectic effect.

All these various ideas and trends in fashion are developed by specialists in widely separated fields. Thus, fashion could be called eclectic. Anyway, it sounds as elegant as some of the loveliee we will be seeing on the runways this fall.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Ask Sheltered Workshops For Retarded

Several delegates from the parish councils of the Catholic Women's League attended the Kingston diocesan convention of the C.W.L. in Smiths Falls, Ont., May 21 and June 1. St. Michael's parish council was represented by Mrs M. Rashotte, president; Mrs. L. Brown, convener of citizenship and immigration at both parish and diocesan levels; Mrs. M. Moran, treasurer; Mrs. B. Farrell, spiritual convenery; and Mrs. M. Burley advisor. Among the attending guests were Mrs. C. Logan, Mrs. M. Boyd and Mrs. H. Kelly.

A resolution was passed at the diocesan convention to suggest to the provincial council that a request be submitted for government sponsored sheltered workshops for the mentally retarded who have completed their program in the schools for retarded children. This would enable them to take a place in society to perform profitable work and realize a sense of their own worth and independence.

Accused Placed On Probation For Nine Months

PICTON (Staff) — Deputy Magistrate F. E. D. Baker of Kingston took over the court duties of Magistrate T. Y. Wills here Wednesday morning during which time he heard six cases, including a lengthy one having to do with fraud.

Laverne Harvey, 33, Wellington, was charged with false pretence after a cheque for $300 he had given to Prince Edward Motors as the down payment on a car, was returned from the bank marked NSF. The bank also said that two signatures were needed on the cheque.

Clifford Beckwith, a salesman for Prince Edward Motors, testified that on March 22, a Saturday, Harvey had signed finance papers and had issued a cheque for $300 as the down payment on a car.

When the cheque was presented at the Royal Bank in Belleville it was marked NSF. It was also pointed out that the two signatures were necessary before the cheque could be accepted, even if there was sufficient money in the account.

Mr. Norman Moore, manager of the bank, told the court that when the cheque was presented that there was not enough money in the account to honor it.

Laverne Harvey admitted that he knew there was not sufficient money in the bank when he wrote the cheque to pay it, but he told the court that he figured by the time the cheque was presented that he would have enough money, from his father, William G. Harvey, to pay it.

Mr. Oscar McKee, manager-owner of Prince Edward Motors, drove to Belleville to have the cheque accepted, instead of putting it through his own bank.

CAR RETURNED

Mr. Harvey Sr. testified that the car his son had purchased was returned to Prince Edward Motors on the Thursday after it had been purchased by his son.

"Technically there has been a worthless cheque presented by the accused," said the magistrate. "He could have very easily stopped this if he had told Mr. Beckwith that his father's signature was needed on the cheque. This is not too serious an offence but I will find him guilty as charged. He will be placed on probation for nine months, and will pay the costs of the court," he concluded.

Warden D. Gaimon, 17, Picton, will have to get a faster car if he plans on running away from a police cruiser. He was fined a total of $58 when he pleaded guilty to driving at speeds up to 75 m.p.h on the streets of Picton on May 23.

Constable Allen Marvin testified that he first saw the accused driving on Main St. at about 40 m.p.h. He took after him and the young man "took off" down the town hill and up Union St., with the cruiser in hot pursuit. Apparently realizing he could not outrun the cruiser, the accused stopped and was apprehended. He admitted to the officer that he was trying to run away, but the car was not fast enough.

A charge of failing to yield the right of way against Ronald Garretsee, Consecon, was marked dismissed by the magistrate after hearing lengthy evidence from four witnesses.

The charge was laid after an accident at the intersection of the new and old highway 33 on May 3. Mr. Garretsee decided to conduct his own defence, and at a five-minute break in the proceedings, Magistrate Baker remarked: "I have seen some lawyers who were no better than this man."

REMANDED WEEK

A charge of drunk driving against Douglas Kirby, Lake St., Picton, was remanded at his own request for one week, while he contacts a lawyer.

Two members of the First Battalion Canadian Guards at Camp Picton, were fined equal amounts when they pleaded guilty to ability impaired.

John D. Noonan paid $75 and costs when he pleaded guilty to ability impaired on May 20 Andre Viens, also of Camp Picton, paid a like amount when he pleaded guilty to the same charge, the offence occurring on King St., Picton, on May 31. He was also assessed an additional $10 when he pleaded guilty to driving without a driver's licence.

Society Elects Year's Officers

PICTON (Staff) — The Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario Bay of Quinte Chapter, have elected their slate of officers for next year.

The new chairman will be Mr. George Lewis of Pyrotenax of Canada Ltd., Trenton.

The first vice-president will be Mrs. C. Bodak of Elaine Footwear, Belleville.

88th Birthday For Dean Of Publishers

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — H. Leslie, dean of Canadian daily newspaper publishers, celebrates his 88th birthday today.

Associated with him in the newspaper are his son, W. Bruce Leslie, editor and manager; and grandson, Frank B. Leslie, recently appointed assistant general manager as well as treasurer.

Mr. Leslie began newspaper work as a part-time country correspondent in 1886 while teaching school in the Bruce County village of Glamis.

The 10 delegates already have passed resolutions urging the federal agriculture department to enforce more rigid inspection of Canadian food processing plants.

They also asked the department Wednesday to review its standard measurements and labelling requirements for fruit juice cans to ensure that labels in future state the correct fluid contents.

WASNT ALL THERE

The resolution was the result of a study conducted by the CAC showing the majority of cans sold 20-ounce cans did not, in fact, contain 20 fluid ounces.

Pauline Jewett, Liberal MP for Northumberland and a former member of the CAC national executive, told delegates she thought the government should set up a separate department of consumer affairs. She said this was the only way to ensure adequate protection of consumer interests in Canada.

The citizen as a producer already was given more than adequate representation in government, Miss Jewett added.

"It is time the consumer were given a full and effective voice.

She also suggested the federal government should strengthen existing consumer protection laws and introduce and enact new ones where necessary.

"The initiation of new laws is badly needed in certain areas with respect to consumer credit for example. We need much greater degree of truth in lending so that consumers will know what is in their credit contract."

URGE GRADING

Other CAC resolutions passed Wednesday included one urging the federal fisheries department to enforce compulsory grading of canned fish.

The CAC also wants the Canadian food industry to take steps to ensure more extensive laboratory testing for bacteria in food processing plants to combat the increase in cases of food poisoning.

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Ottawa was re-elected president. She has held the post since January, 1961.

The wife of Canada's deputy minister of finance, Wynne Plumptre, and mother of two children. Mrs. Plumptre was highly praised for her voluntary work on behalf of consumers by Dr. C. A. Morrell, director of the agriculture department's food and drug directorate.

Dr. Morrell said she was "probably the outstanding figure in the consumer field in the world today."

Kingston Man Given 3 Months

BROCKVILLE (CP) — James Harold Salmon, 25, of Kingston, driver of a car which collided with another, killing a Rochester N.Y., woman last August, was sentenced to three months in jail Wednesday for dangerous driving.

Mrs. John Emery, 47, died following the accident which occurred Aug. 21 on Highway 401, 28 miles west of here.

Some Jurors in Coffin Case Couldn't UnderstandFrench, And Others No English

By GERRY McNEIL

PERCE, Que. (CP)—Some of the members of the jury that judged Wilbert Coffin could not understand French and some could not understand English.

Cornelius White was an exception. He could understand neither language a good deal of the time.

Mr White, 65, admitted to the Quebec royal commission into the Coffin case Wednesday that he was so deaf during the trial that he may have missed half the testimony.

"Did you ever at any time during the trial complain to anyone that you were unable to hear?" asked Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, the commissioner.

"No. I never complained."

Mr White, who was not wearing a hearing aid, could barely catch the commission questions. He said that in 1954, he had had ear trouble before the trial and was hard of hearing in the right ear during it and partially deaf in the left side.

There were more than 90 witnesses at the trial. Testimony was translated from French to English and vice versa by a court clerk. Wilbert Coffin was convicted and hanged for the murder of one of the three slain United States hunters.

Another juror, Zephirin Hotton, 72, also told the commission he had been slightly hard of hearing during the trial.

Attention centred on the ethnic makeup of the jury as all 12 members testified.

Jacques Hebert said in his book "Jacques les Assassins de Coffin" (Jacques the assassins of Coffin) that although the defence fought for an all-English jury Judge Gerard Lacroix decided upon a mixed one. Half the members would be French-speaking and half English-speaking.

As it turned out, eight of those chosen normally spoke French and two more of the English jurors were of French descent.

Coffin didn't speak French.

Minister Denies Charges Made By Levesque

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Affairs Minister Laing denied in the Commons Wednesday, a charge by Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque that he has put a road block in stalemated negotiations concerning jurisdiction over 2,500 Eskimos in northern Quebec.

Mr. Laing said the federal government is anxious to continue the negotiations but under no circumstances would it impose an abrupt change in government services on the Eskimos without first consulting them.

Mr. Levesque, who has been pressing for more than a year to transfer the Eskimos' education and welfare services to his department, told the Quebec legislature Tuesday that the talks are pointless and he would break them off.

Mr. Laing said an impasse had been reached in the talks on the definition of consultation of the Eskimos. "We insist that consultation is in fact consultation," he said, and it applies from Liberal and Conservative benches.

The Quebec government, on the other hand, insisted that the Eskimos should not be consulted about the transfer of government jurisdiction, but only about the "technique of implementing" the transfer.

Mr. Laing said Mr. Levesque "apparently made an assertion of bad faith against me" and he wished to make an extended statement instead of replying briefly to Opposition questions.

He still believed that the differences could be settled through further discussions with Quebec. He added that Mr. Levesque may have had "reasons external to discussions" for making his statement in the legislature Tuesday.

the protocol of last January, the government is safe.

HAS HIGH PRIORITY

The Columbia is one of four high-priority items to be cleared by Parliament before the flag issue is debated, Prime Minister Pearson indicated Wednesday.

He warned that longer Commons hours are coming soon and that he hopes the choice of a distinctive Canadian flag to replace the Red Ensign can be debated starting late next week.

Expanded farm credit, changes to the National Housing Act and a constitutional amendment involving the proposed Canada Pension Plan are the other priority legislative measures mentioned.

Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) said he knows that the Columbia decision has been made but his party hopes by maintaining opposition to the last gasp to make sure that future similar Canadian projects "are handled properly."

A major NDP criticism, he said, is that future Canadians under the treaty are being denied guarantees of their rights to use that water. The former CCF Saskatchewan government pressed that view.

WOULD ALLOW DIVERSION

His amendment will seek to make diversion possible for multi-purpose use—power production as well as the needs of irrigation, sanitation and industry.

The treaty and protocol make provision that water can be diverted for non-power or "consumptive" uses but the only legal authority to testify to the external affairs committee said diversion can't be made outside the Columbia basin.

The Columbia treaty proposes that B.C build three storage dams to level out the wide seasonal fluctuations in stream flow on the river that rises in southeastern B.C. and eventually crosses into the U.S.

B.C. will derive payment in advance of some $350,000,000 from the U.S.—for extra power capacity and for flood control—to finance all three dams and leave a bit over.

That river control also will make possible Canadian generation of some 4,000,000 kilowatts of energy at a cost of about two mills per kilowatt hour for projects to be added after the treaty schemes. Work can start this summer.

Birth Control Urged to Limit Number of Aged

OTTAWA (CP)—Alberta Welfare Minister L. C. Halmrast said today that without some form of birth control, problems associated with the care of the aged and infirm will become more acute as the population increases.

"The great social problem, to my mind, on this earth is population growth," he told a special Senate committee studying problems posed by Canada's aged population.

"It is within our means to control our own numbers, but apart from one or two countries where this is being faced realistically, our birth rate goes on unchecked," he said in a brief.

"Inevitably the problem must be met and what better time before our population becomes a burden to us. If we think we have problems in the care of the aged or infirm in our time they will be nothing to those faced by our children and grandchildren."

Mr. Halmrast said he does "not profess to have the knowledge of a geneticist, but I believe man's destiny will depend on his ability to qualitatively and qualitatively control himself."

"In saying this I am in no way scoffing at religious tradition," he said. "Indeed, it is out of a sincere religious conviction I make this statement for I believe that man has the opportunity to attain a higher plane, but he also has the tendency to devolve to a lower life. Some of the decisions are in his own hands." (Mr. Halmrast is a Lutheran.)

Immigration Racket Broken, Two Arrested

VICTORIA (CP)—A total of 21 charges have been laid against two Victoria men in police describe as a Chinese immigration racket of unprecedented proportions.

The charges were laid Wednesday against shipyard worker Chong Wing Ming, 46, and his brother — in — law Yoon Chung Hing, arrested in Dauphin, Man., on a warrant issued by police here. Chong appeared in court here and was remanded two days without plea.

Police said the two are accused of securing the illegal entry to Canada of 10 Chinese and attempting to admit another 16.

Chong, alias Peter Chong, faces eight charges and Quon, also known as Wong Kun Kon, [illegible]

RCMF spokesman described the case as "probably the biggest of its kind in Canada."

"In previous cases persons have been charged with bringing in three or four immigrants illegally," he said, "but never as many as 26."

He said all 26 Chinese named in the charges apparently were refugees from Communist China who fled to Hong Kong.

have a summer recess.

All but three provinces, have agreed on the wording of the constitutional amendment needed to provide survivor-benefits under the Canada Pension Plan, and the government hopes the remaining three will give their consent. Parliament can deal with the amendment next week.

The amendment to the British North America Act requires action by the British Parliament, and Mr. Pearson said it is important to have it passed before the British Commons is dissolved for a general election.

He expected this fall.

As soon as the constitutional amendment has been passed by the British Parliament, the Canada Pension Plan in its revised form will be introduced in the Commons and sent to a committee for detailed study.

Next to be dealt with will be extension of family allowances to youths 16 and 17 remaining in school, and revised federal-provincial fiscal arrangements. Also on the government's priority list are loans for university students, consolidation of the defence forces under a single chief of staff, the 12-mile fishing zone, tax and tariff proposals to encourage Canadian publications, redistribution of parliamentary constituencies, establishment of the treasury board as a separate government department, and creation of the new department of forestry and rural development.

CUBA CO-OPERATION

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the fact that 40 pieces of legislation have been passed—as mentioned by Mr. Pearson—showed that the Opposition was co-operating, he said.

The Conservatives would continue to co-operate on legislation it thinks good for the people, Mr. Diefenbaker said to cheers from all sides. That applied to the list read by Mr. Pearson.

New Democrat Leader Douglas said most of the legislation Mr. Pearson mentioned was essential. The government, however, could forego the flag resolution.

It could wait until next October or November.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said Canadians expect MPs to produce some results, not just talk about the work to be done. The first priority, therefore, was for MPs to make up their minds to get down to work.

He urged that the government list our priorities for legislative business and the opposition parties do likewise. The government also should introduce legislation and let it be dealt with, without dropping it at an intermediate stage and turning to some other piece of business.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the prime minister's threats to call an election and blame it on the opposition did not scare his party.

Labor Minister MacEachen said in reply to a question that the government is making progress with a draft on new national labor code.

ch. same quarters in cities and towns where two or more are located. In the past, each reserve unit has had its own organizes.

RCAF CUT

The RCAF has already cut its qualities drastically in line with the defence department's avowed aim last December to reduce air force reserve strength to 900 from 2,200.

The RCAF auxiliaries now are down to 1,100 personnel and to six squadrons from 10. The reserve squadrons at Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon and Hamilton were eliminated, leaving two each at Montreal and Toronto and one each at Winnipeg and Edmonton.

Naval reserve strength has been reduced to 3,330 from 3,600 but likely will be cut further to some 2,700. The reserve units at Prince Rupert, B.C., and two others at Victoria and Toronto have been disbanded.

The fate of naval reserve units at Edmonton, Regina, London, Ont., Kitchener, Ont., and Charlottetown still is unresolved pending a recommendation from the Suttis committee on common use of quarters by both militia and naval reserve units at these locations.

SAVE $5,000,000

The RCAF and naval reserve cuts will save some $5,000,000 a year.

Mr. Cardin is expected to order before the end of the summer, the amalgamation of many militia units.

There are, for example, 26 reserve tank regiments though the regular army has only four tank regiments. There are 35 reserve artillery regiments.

In 1954, 30 of the 387 units in the militia were disbanded or amalgamated in the most sweeping reorganization of the reserve army in Canadian history. Another 75 units were reduced in size.

The strength of the militia was then 47,000 but it has increased in strength in recent years, especially after the defence department called on it to form some 200 mobile columns for civil defence operations.

speeches at Groton and at the commencement exercises of the U.S. Coast Guard academy in New London, Conn., military strength alone is not enough for national security.

U.S. STRONGEST

In his speech at the academy, he said the United States is strongest military Power in any adversary or combination of adversaries."

This staggering strength is not to destroy but to save, not to put an end to civilization but to help it to end in conflict," he said.

The president predicted that this country's strength will continue to grow more rapidly than that of all others.

He said the first area of increasing strength must be the ability to deter atomic destruction.

The United States now has more than 1,000 fully armed intercontinental ballistic and polaris missiles ready for retaliation, Johnson said. The Soviet Union has far fewer missiles, and none ready for launching beneath the seas.

INCREASING ABILITY

Johnson said this country is increasing its ability to fight less than all-out war and to fight subversion.

"The response must suit the threat," he said. "Those who would answer every problem with nuclear weapons display not bravery but bravado, not wisdom but a suicidal disregard for the survival of the world and the future of the race."

Johnson also said the United States has more than 1,100 strategic bombers, many of them equipped with air - to - surface and decoy missiles to help them reach almost any target. He estimated the Soviet Union could with difficulty send less than one-third of that number over targets in the United States.

NEW ST. JEAN — This is a model of the 11-foot wooden statue of St. Jean Baptiste that will be carried by 40 men in the annual June 24th parade in Montreal. Said the parade organizers to be a symbol of the new Quebec, the statue will replace the traditional curly-headed boy accompanied by a lamb which in the past has represented the patron saint of French Canada. (CP Photo)

11-Foot Wood Sculpture Of St. Jean to Be Carried

MONTREAL (CP)—St. Jean Baptiste, who last year left his lamb at home and stayed up late, will grow this year from a curly-haired boy into a giant of a man.

The change is in keeping with the growing maturity of French Canada, of whom he is the patron saint, say organizers of the parade marking his June 24 feast day.

In previous parades he was portrayed as a tot dressed in lambs' fleece and holding a wooden cross.

Before 1963, the infant St. Jean had a live lamb by his side. Last year the St. Jean Baptiste Society, 130 - year - old cultural association that sponsors the parade, left the lamb and for the first time staged the downtown Sherbrooke Street parade in the evening.

This year, sculptor Gaetan Thwaites carved out an 11-foot wood sculpture of St. Jean.

DYNAMIC ST. JEAN

"My St. Jean is a precursor, a prophet he says. "His personality is strong, powerful, dynamic."

The modernistic statue, showing St. Jean with his hands raised in benediction, will be carried at the end of the parade by 40 men. There will also be 40 torch-bearers.

Theme of this year's parade is "French Canada, a 20th Century Reality."

Yves Bourassa, the society's parade planner, told a press conference he didn't know how tradition of St. Jean as a child began but the time has come to recognize that "today's French Canada is indeed very much alive, a very modern 20th century reality."

The society has been taking steps to strengthen itself. It has called an estates-general, a representative assembly to draft long - term aims for French Canada.

Jean Duceppe, an actor known to English-speaking television watchers as Stan Labrie of the Plouffe Family series, is helping in a recruiting program

A new society emblem merging the fleur-de-lis with a bright sun has been designed.

Jean Gascon, director of Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, is artistic director for the parade. Artists who have undertaken work on the float include Jean-Claude Rintret, operatic set designer, and Jean-Pierre Mousseau, creator of an illuminated mural for the headquarters of Hydro-Quebec Industry will be the dominant theme.

Montreal St. Jean Baptiste celebrations have been increased to eight days and will include concerts by recording stars and folk dancers, performance of an oratorio written on St. Jean, a banquet, a fireworks display, a torch-lit mass and fancy-dress balls.

The oratorio is Jean is Precursor, by Guillaume Couture, which hasn't been performed in full since 1928. Wilfrid Pelletier will conduct the Montreal Symphony Orchestra and the University of Montreal Students' Choir in the work at Place des Arts June 22.

headed search for the canned corn beef spread, some city councils and school authorities in Britain banned corned beef from school menus and from some city stores.

In other parts of Britain 12 cases were reported as of this morning—six of them definitely confirmed as typhoid. Not all of them were linked to the Aberdeen outbreak.

HUNT CANS

The search for the corned beef cans was concentrated on South American cans of five meat weighing six pounds each and produced between January, 1963, and March 9, 1964.

The Scottish home and health department Wednesday issued a letter saying that there were three separate instances of the disease last year in Britain associated with the six-pound cans of corned beef.

The letter said the typhoid was of the type found in Spain, South America and the southern United States.

The cans were packed at the same plant in the Argentine and it was found that river water used for cooling the cans, may have entered the cans before they were sealed.

Cans from other plants using the same process were known to have been on sale in the Aberdeen store to which the outbreak was traced.

NOMINATE ROBERTS

OTTAWA (CP) — James A. Roberts, deputy trade minister, has been nominated by Canada for the post of deputy secretary-general of NATO External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday in the Commons. He denied emphatically the suggestion of Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) that the nomination was made to rid the liberal government of the only deputy minister appointed by the former Progressive Conservative government from outside the civil service.

Work Will Be Made Easier Committee Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Elgin Armstrong, deputy defence minister, said Wednesday the reorganization of the armed forces' top command will make it much easier for his civilian branch to exercise control and management over defence programs.

He testified before the Commons defence committee that there will be an improved system to control defence programs by frequent review and analysis of the capital and operating costs of each project as well as personnel involved and effects on other projects.

Mr. Armstrong also said the defence minister, deputy minister, chief of defence staff and representatives of the finance, external affairs and defence production departments — will become what it has not been in the past in practice, a policy board.

He conceded in reply to questions by Heber Smith (PC—Simcoe North) that there will still be some crapping between the defence and defence production departments. The latter is purchasing agent for the defence department.

At another point, Mr. Armstrong said tri-service committees will eventually disappear with integration but that a single departmental information service will be provided at "considerably reduced cost." Each of the services now has its own information branch.

The committee is studying Bill C-80 which establishes a single defence chief.

Alpine Char for Saskatchewan Lakes

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — An experiment in exchanging game and gourmet fish between the French Alps and Saskatchewan looks like being half a success on the first try, but encouraging enough to promise another.

Fifty thousand embryonic Saskatchewan lake trout shipped to Thonon on the French shore of Lake Geneva are reported to be doing well there as fingerlings.

But an equal number of eggs of the Alpine version of arctic char sent here from Thonon in February were devastated by rust in hatchery water and only 8,000 survived.

The intention of the Saskatchewan resources department was to plant the French char in a small, unnamed lake northeast of Prince Albert after their development in the fish culture station at Fort Qu'Appelle.

But Peter Edwards, supervisor of sports fisheries with the department, says planting the 8,000 survivors would not be worth the effort, despite preparations that involved the eviction from the lake of predator fish and hostile algae.

TO TRY AGAIN

But the department plans to get another 50,000 char eggs from the Alps in the fall—spawning time — and try the planting next spring.

The French char and Saskatchewan trout, despite sharp differences and their separation by 8,000 miles, likely are descendants of a common forebear called Salvelinus.

The Latin name of the arctic char is Salvelinus alpinus and of the lake trout Cristivomer or Salvelinus namaycush.

The arctic char, though usually associated with the northern waters of Canada, Europe and Asia as an anadromous fish which migrates to spawn in rivers, is also found in a more colorful version in fresh water far south of the Arctic.

Colonies of arctic char were planted during the retreat of the prehistoric glaciers in lakes of Canada and Scandinavia, the Lake District of England and as far south as the Alps. The freshwater arctic char developed bright coloring — bluish green on top, pink to scarlet underneath, sometimes with orange spots on the sides—compared to its larger, silvery cousin which still migrates between salt and fresh water.

LESS COLORFUL

The various trouts, believed to be another development of the original char, also lacked colorful characters like the speckled. But the lake trout, a native of North America, is a less spectacular greyish blend.

Both the Alpine char and the Saskatchewan lake trout are sporty and tasty enough to entice sportsmen and gourmets on both sides of the Atlantic.

Hence the Thonon-Prince Albert trade.

Paul Laurent, director of the Thonon fish research station, reports the Saskatchewan fish planted in Alpine lakes will be given another year to establish themselves before it is known for certain how well they adapt. Under Saskatchewan conditions they would mature to between 18 and 20 pounds.

The Alpine char are smaller fish, but Edwards hopes they will develop to about four or five pounds if they take to local water.

Not Enough Canadian Money To Settle Indians' Claims Against Whites Says Officer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wilfred Pelletier, executive director of the National Indian Council of Canada, says there isn't enough money in the country to settle Indians' claims against the white man.

He made the comment in an interview while about 125 Indians discussed in groups behind closed doors the federal Indian claims bill given first reading in Parliament last December.

He said Indians from time to time during the last 100 years have pressed for a claims act but "to tell the truth I don't think there's enough money in Canada to settle our claims."

The United States has had such an act for about 100 years, he said. Many claims have had been submitted, but only 18 settled.

CALLS FOR COMMISSION

Canada's bill calls for establishment of a five-man Indian claims commission to consider claims that the Crown:

—Took land from the Indian "without agreeing to compensate for it or disposed of land set apart for Indians without compensating Indians or compensating them adequately;

—Incorrectly used money it held for Indians;

—Failed to discharge any obligations to Indians arising under any treaty, agreement or undertaking;

—Failed to act fairly in dealings not related to lands and caused injury to Indians.

Mr. Pelletier said the three-day claims conference which opened here Wednesday is not aimed at drawing up recommendations. He said any discussions in the closed groups may not be made public.

The council's job was to give the delegates as far east as New Brunswick and west as British Columbia a clearer picture of the bill.

While Mr. Pelletier avoided giving his own views on the bill, he did say it does not state when claims should be settled. He suggested that might be "one element of discussion."

Fifty lawyers are attending the conference, helping to interpret the eight-page bill. Two are members of the council, the other three non - Indians who agreed to help free of charge.

Mr. Pelletier said the conference in an opening address the economic problems of Indians in many parts of Canada are as serious as those facing emerging African nations.

He suggested the federal government establish a national Indian development board to see solutions to these problems.

At one point in his address he said: "Indian, Eskimo, and the yellow and black flag was unfurled. It is without official status. It shows a black thunderbird symbol of the North American Indian, incorporated in a red maple leaf on a red background.

Mr. Pelletier said the council is the sponsor of the flag at its fourth annual meeting at Garden River Reserve, Ont., near Sault Ste. Marie, and design competition would be held.

W. I. C. Wuttunee of Calgary, Indian lawyer and author in opening remarks he would like to see history books tell more of the Indian's role in Canada. Indians want to take their place in society as "equals."

Frank Grandame New President Of 40 Chapters

At the annual meeting of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada held May 30th in Toronto, Frank V. Grandame was appointed president for the year '64 - '65.

Mr. Grandame was vice-president in charge of Conferences and Seminars in 1963 and has been an active member for the past 14 years. The I.M.C.C. is a national organization, with its approximate 4,000 members spread from Halifax to Vancouver in 40 Chapters. It is dedicated to the further education of people in management; and has members in all fields of industry and education; while its prime function is education of its members, the courses and seminars sponsored by the I.M.C.C. and open to non-members are and recognized by Educators and Industry as to their contribution to a better understanding of managerial problems and their successful solution.

Management Development Courses are run each year at Laval University, Quebec, and Western University, London, Ontario. Both of these universities administer bursaries given by I.M.C.C. to provide assistance to students who are felt deserving. Mr. Grandame brings with him to this post a long and varied background of service on a municipal and social level. He was at various times an alderman (1955 - 1959), member of Parks Board, Arena Commissioner — member of the Belleville Fair Board 1959, '60, '61, Belleville Fire Department (chairman two years) and has served on the Public School Board.

SEES NEW CAR

EDMONTON (CP)—An automobile that requires no servicing is becoming a definite possibility, S. E. Swallow, Ford Motor Company director of servicing, said in an interview Wednesday. An illustration, he said, was that one car now has a steering system and front end suspension that are guaranteed service-free.

Meeting to Define Problems And Issues on Leisure Is Suggested by Official

HAMILTON (CP) — A national conference on leisure to "define the problems and issues" was suggested Wednesday by David Critchley, executive director of Children's Homes in Winnipeg.

He told a seminar on leisure at the biennial conference of the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare that leisure has crept up on the person who labors in the field of leisure—the YMCA secretary, the adult education, the recreation director.

"I think this is largely because society still sees such people and their efforts as a frill that can be dispensed with or cut down to size when the pressure on dollars becomes too heavy," he said.

He decried the idea of inducing young people to complete their education by promising them an easier job, high earnings and therefore, a brighter future.

"This is only partly true today. Tomorrow it will be an irrelevant if not a criminal deception."

The conference, which ends Friday, hit high gear Wednesday with the nearly 1,000 delegates attending various seminars and work-shops.

SUGGESTS COURSE

Dr. Jessie Bernard Wednesday, a labor official said the labor movement should attempt to make it more expensive for an employer to lay a man off than to keep him working.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian sub - regional director of the United Auto Workers of America (CLC), said labor should challenge big business "to cooperate with the community for a change."

Both management and government should be pressed to institute "progressive, enlightened retraining and rehabilitation facilities for an adequate income for people using these facilities."

Mr. McDermott said management so far has reaped all the benefits of automation while getting it absolutely free of charge.

Scientists who developed it were invited at public expense in universities and other educational institutions largely financed by public money.

In another discussion, a social worker priest and a welfare administrator called for establishment of a guaranteed annual income for all Canadians.

Oeuvres in Montreal, said poverty is a massive social evil in Canada and must be defined in terms of modern standards of living.

Mr. Madden said that taking $2,000 as the cutoff line for a family of four, only 13 per cent of Canadian families are poor, not including non - urban families.

In a paper presented to a conference seminar, he said: "... the adoption of policies designed to create wants among the poor and to satisfy them by public action is a way of avoiding structural unemployment in the public welfare industry."

From statistical evidences available, "it cannot be said that the average Canadian family ... was poor in any sense of the word."

Poverty in Canada can be dealt with through some improvements in existing benefits, not crash programs, he said.

"We know who they (poverty stricken) are ... raise the pensions of the needy poor, raise unemployment benefits substantially after the first month of unemployment, give the widow a reasonable allowance, the mentally ill more humane treatment, ensure that the mentally and physically disabled are recognized as handicapped and rehabilitated.

"Subsidize families to move out of regions where they can only live on the margin of poverty.

"Close down the (Indian) reservations, which provide protection for inefficient industries but support those who cannot adjust."

Canada's legitimate poor are not hidden, he said.

P. J. Fogarty, economist-social worker and director of research with the Saskatchewan department of social welfare and rehabilitation, said the $2,000 is less than basic welfare assistance given in Saskatchewan families. This assistance is calculated on the basis of need and the cost of living.

Mr. Fogarty will present a paper on rural poverty today, estimating that 1,000,000 Canadian farm families are in poverty.

Dr. Leo A. Perman, secretary of the national council of social work in The Netherlands, told delegates that foreign aid programs tinged with neo - colonialism and riddled with moral contradictions could endanger the economic future of the world.

SEEKS RECRUITS

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Australian Air Force is mounting a recruitment drive in Britain it has 800 vacancies for radio and engineering experts and 1,000 others selected will receive free passage to Australia for themselves and their families.

Municipal Officials Warned Against Building Empires

REGINA (CP) — Canadian municipal leaders were asked Wednesday night to "resist pressures to become empire builders."

D. G. Steuart, Saskatchewan health minister and former mayor of Prince Albert, told the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities that municipal governments are the level which people have the closest contact.

Should local governments allow themselves to become computer burocrats, this direct contact would be lost, Mr. Steuart said.

Mr. Steuart said a major problem of municipalities was the widening gap between the cost of the services they provide and the amount of tax money they can collect.

This gap could be met partly by municipalities forming metropolitan councils and similar regional groupings to jointly finance services they all need such as hospitals. Municipalities also should keep a rein on increases in services.

AGREE TO TWINNING

Delegates agreed to implement a mass program of "twinning" of French and English-speaking cities and towns to help bring about a better "exchange of thinking" between the two groups.

CFMM Executive Director George Mooney said 150 twinnings by 1967 would be a good target.

Mr. Mooney said one of the most successful twinnings already in force was that between Granby Que., and Windsor, Ont.

Exchange visits of civic, business, church and school leaders had taken place and members of the two communities had been able to exchange views on a variety of subjects.

Municipal leaders welcomed legislation just introduced in the House of Commons which provides federal financial aid for a broader range of urban renewal projects.

The legislation would provide aid for commercial and industrial renewal developments and for renovation of existing housing. At present federal aid is largely confined to new housing projects.

Delegates passed a resolution asking the federal government to set up a special board to study the problems faced by transportation systems in cities and towns.

The board, which would work with the Canadian Transit Association, would gather statistical information on urban transportation problems, study various experiments in the field conducted by United States and make it available for consultation.

Meanwhile the CFMM executive was asked to gather information on the question from studies being made in Montreal, Toronto and other cities in Canada.

In another resolution the federation was urged to get all its local range aims the relieving of municipalities of all hospital costs.

Delegates also heard from senior governments was municipal aid is most critical bed shortages.

The federal government was urged to enter into an agreement with the Bell Telephone Company in Ontario and Quebec to provide free local service on municipal taxation on the company's facilities.

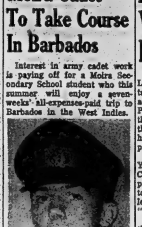
REDISTRIBUTION

A seminar session asked that the federal and provincial governments be more generous in their support for redistribution of legislative seats to be "more consistent with representation by" population.".

The seminar on problems of large cities will prepare for presentation a federation submission to the federal government in November, 1965, that urban areas be seriously under-represented.

A Dorval, Que., alderman sparked discussion when he suggested that traffic signs throughout Canada should be bilingual. However, Alderman J. R. Brault withdrew his suggestion when other delegates suggested traffic signs bearing only symbols would be even better.

The convention passed a resolution saying the CFMM approves the principle of uniform traffic laws, signs and regulations across Canada.



In other resolutions the convention asked the federal government to regulate the operation of power boats, allow home owners to deduct property taxes from federal income tax returns, extend the winter works program and ban detergents that form up and clog sewer systems.

A federal government civil disaster fund was requested.

Reeve Melvin L. Swart of Thorold Township in Ontario told delegates that continued decline of the financial position of municipalities will hurt the economy of all of Canada.

"Stagnaton at the local level due to insufficient financial resources will affect the whole country. Local government is a major role in the well-being of the nation and the expansion of the economy."

Moira Cadet To Take Course In Barbados

Moira School Cadet RSM Larry Shoebridge, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Shoebridge, has been selected to represent Moira Secondary School Cadets on an exchange course to the Barbados. He is one of 24 boys across Canada who will make the trip. In exchange 24 West Indian cadets will visit Canada.

Selection of cadets for the trip is based on merit and ardent interest in cadet work.

School principal James. Mus grove said Larry has been an active interest in cadets. For several years he has taken summer courses at Cadet camps and this year was one of six cadets to receive Master Cadet Certificates at his school.

Interest in army cadet work is paying off for a Moira secondary School student who this summer will enjoy a seven-weeks' all-expenses-paid trip to Barbados in the West Indies.

Diefenbaker Says Party Will Not Filibuster to Block Adoption of Flag

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker turned aside Wednesday night an election challenge issued by Prime Minister Pearson, saying the government is safe because the smaller opposition parties have been swept up with higher parliamentary pay.

Mr. Diefenbaker told the York Scarborough Progressive Conservative Association the parliamentary party will battle to block adoption of the maple leaf flag. However, he added, "we're not going to filibuster"

Spurning the idea of making the flag an electoral issue, Mr. Diefenbaker said that "a general election on this question will separate this country for years and generations to come." He suggested a plebiscite might be the best way to settle the issue.

A speech to the national Liberal council in Ottawa, Mr. Pearson accused the opposition of obstructing but said his minority government intends to carry on. "The responsibility for an election remains now with the opposition," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker, addressing an overflow crowd at a Toronto suburban dinner dance, retorted that the prime minister knows he stands in no danger from "his allies"—the Social Credit, Creditiste and New Democratic Party — because the government voted MPs a pay increase to $18,000 a year from $10,000. "MONEY MORE important

"It had a wonderful effect on third-party support," he said. On the flag vote, the attitude would be "not that I love the Red Ensign less, but $18,000 more."

He drew the loudest burst of applause in the hour-long address when pointed towards two Red Ensigns on the wall behind him and declared:

"A flag that does not contain the greatness of your heritage is no flag for a nation."

On Mr. Pearson's obstruction charges, he said the government is obstructing itself by indecision, flutter and connivance with the smaller parties.

"This is the government of diplomacy," he said. "When there is opposition to anything they back up."

CHANGED FOR JOEY?

He charged the flag proposals were changed to please Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, who wants the Union Jack retained. The cancelled one way to please Ottawa was delayed in the face of provincial opposition, budget proposals were altered in effect to please States fears and redistribution of electoral seats has been postponed because of constant bickering between the NDP and Liberal parties.

The flag issue was intended as a red herring to distract attention from the government's failure to fulfil more serious election promises, he said.

He quoted Mr. Pearson as saying Canada is two nations. The flag resolution would allow him to ask to fly alongside the maple leaves as a symbol of allegiance to the Queen. O Canada would be the national anthem and God Save the Queen the royal anthem.

Two nations, two flags, two anthems — you can't build a country on this kind of duplicity."

Goldwater Policy May Turn U.S. Into 'Fortress America'

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Barry Goldwater means what he says, a U.S. government under the Arizona Republican would withdraw into Cuba, perhaps use small atom bombs to defoliate Vietnamese jungles and consider withdrawing the U.S. from the United Nations.

He would turn the U.S. into "Fortress America," reduce aid abroad and welfare payments at home, curb international relations of the federal administration and leave the Negro situation to the individual states. His critics say the senator would be turning his home and bloodshed and suffering abroad.

Among the more moderate features of his platform are his opposition to the Tennessee Valley Authority and his proposal to sell the government's Alaska railroad.

The California flag was not just a case of the polls going wrong and New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller virtually blowing his chances for the nomination. More significantly, it was a defeat in the first few years for operation of a "Stop Goldwater" movement and a victory in a major state for such groups as the ultra-conservative John Birch Society and others who back Goldwater and advocate a "win" policy, even if this means nuclear war with Russia.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, labelled by the Goldwater Birchers as a Communist tool, apparently was unable to halt the tide favoring Goldwater with his subtly worded statement favoring a moderate for the Republican leadership.

The power Goldwater has amassed around the country at home, curb international relations of the federal administration and leave the Negro situation to the individual states. His critics say the senator would be turning his home and abroad and welfare payments at

Ouananiche Husky Version Of the Landlocked Salmon

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundlanders are considering the fighting qualities of a freshwater fish in their midst and government officials are hopeful it will serve as a new lure for mainland sportsmen.

The fisher is known as ouananiche — an Indian word pronounced roughly win-aish —and it abounds in the lakes and rivers of interior Newfoundland and Labrador, a husky version of the landlocked salmon.

Finance Minister E. S. Spencer sparked the revival of interest. He has been giving the fish special attention for five years on fishing trips, photography missions and in special studies of its habits.

"There are literally millions of these fish in the lakes of central Newfoundland, particularly in the Red Indian Lake area," he says.

"We saw and photographed schools of them and in some places you could easily have loaded a boat with six-, seven- and eight-pounders — and we were not there at the best time of year."

AVERAGE EIGHT POUNDS

Mr. Spencer believes the ouananiche would average at least eight pounds. Loggers in the interior have told him 30-to 35-pounders are not uncommon and some reports mention 30-pound catches.

The finance minister himself brought back one trophy that fish measured 33 inches from head to tail with a girth of 16 inches and a weight slightly over 12 pounds.

The ouananiche is Newfoundland's version of the landlocked Atlantic salmon known scientifically as salmon salar Sebago, the last name after the lake in Maine where they were discovered.

The record catch came from pounder in 1907—although nowadays New England's landlocked salmon are fewer in number and smaller in size. The fish also are caught in Quebec's Lake St. John and Ontario's Trout Lake, where they were planted as fingerlings.

But Newfoundland's Chief Forester E. B. Ralph believes Newfoundland could very likely provide the largest North American specimen year after year." If local fishermen become interested to enter for records, which they apparently don't very often now. An eight-pounder from Newfoundland won the Field and Stream record for 1960.

LIVE BAIT BEST BET

Live bait is best for the big ones, but the ouananiche will strike small plugs and streamers, artificial minnows and large flies, although Mr. Spencer says none but the smaller fish are taken easily on flies.

Ouananiche begin to strike early in June, then drop off during July and August. They are back strong by the end of August and are biding until the end of September.

The fish fights like a larger Atlantic salmon and is inclined to jump more often, especially in lakes.

Sportsmen now journey to Newfoundland for moose and caribou and the bluefin tuna of Conception Bay on the east coast. Mr. Ralph believes the ouananiche is destined to rival the game and tuna as a lure before long.

Economists Dubious But

Auto Industry Confident of New Records

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

Few industries have shown as much strength during Canada's current economic expansion as the car makers, and the men who make auto plants tick see no reason why their growth should slacken.

Vehicle production has leaped from one record to another during the last 2½ years, causing some economists to ask how much higher it can rise before toppling.

The top auto executives, however, are committing themselves and their companies to bigger things in the immediate future.

E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada, predicts that car and truck production will total 830,000 units in 1970, compared with the present record of 633,000 built last year.

GM recently announced plans to spend $120,000,000 during the next two years on expansion—a vote of confidence in the future, Mr. Walker says.

CERTAIN OF DEMAND

Carl Scott, president of Ford of Canada, says the demand for cars in the near future is as inevitable as the need for universities.

"No one questions that we'll need [illegible] universities. The youths who will need them are in high schools now and we can see that need.

"But they are the very same people who will be buying cars in a few years, so the demand will be there, although it may fluctuate a bit year by year."

E. K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., takes sharp issue with the economists who express doubts about the future.

"This is part and parcel of the country's growth, and it's just as inevitable," he says.

"It's obvious that people have a lot more faith in the future of their country than many economists."

Strangely enough, the very prosperity that has accompanied the sharp rise in car sales has brought some problems to the cities most dependent on the industry.

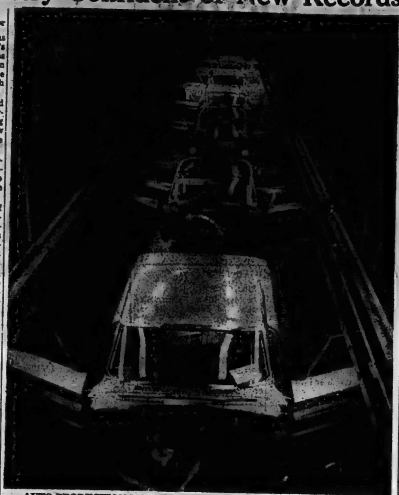
In Oshawa, centre of GM's giant operations, steady growth to a population of 70,000 from less than 30,000 in 1804 has brought expansion pains.

NEED SCHOOLS

"With this growth we're getting a need for schools, churches, road improvements and all the other services that today's communities have to have," says acting Mayor Hayward Murdoch.

"Right now we know we'll need two new high schools to add to the four we already have."

He also mentioned in an interview the trouble that can accompany some transient workers who move in with the first word of improving auto business.



"Now don't misunderstand me, most of the people who come here to work at GM, or any other plant, are fine citizens and we're proud of them.

"But some—let's face it—are drifters with no roots and they can cause trouble and expense for the city."

Oakville, Ont., where Ford had its assembly operations, had to pass through the transition from a residential town to an industrial community when Ford moved in 11 years ago—a transition that despite early fears, apparently has been completely successful.

Several people now are demanding, however, that more low-cost housing be put up so Ford workers living in neighboring communities can move there.

Windsor, Ont., where Chrysler Canada Ltd. and another Ford works are located, also is suffering growing pains, although a general spurt in its economy in recent years is at least as important a factor there as the auto industry.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Dick "Bulldog" Brower, who married, growled and tore his way to several victories here last year, "dog-housed" himself last Friday and failed to show for his bout with Gentleman Jim Healy.

The "Bulldog" who figures what he holds, he has, is scheduled to appear here this Friday and special precautions are being taken to see that he doesn't chicken out again.

The Ontario Athletic Commissioner didn't like his failure to appear here with a grain of salt and has made Brower post a bond of $1,000, guaranteeing his appearance come fish-day evening.

One thousand cheats is a lot of money—but then look who the "Bulldog" matches muscle with? None other than our old buddy—and one of the nicest wrestlers extant—Yukon Eric.

It should be a mighty mat melee of muscle. The "Bulldog" jaggied steel girders when a boy in hometown Delaware, while Yogun toothed on six-foot logs in his native Alaskan village.

Eric is one of the most popular wrestlers to display his wares in this village. He has made a host of friends and he won't lack for support when he climbs into the ring with the fearsome "Bulldog."

And semi-finalling a card that fairly spews action is Professor Hiro, a Nipponese gentleman of topnotch wrestling ability, and a master of judo and karate, who tangles with the popular Billy "Red" Lyons.

The Japanese is one of the best Orientals to show his ring antics here. He is clever, cunning and subtle and Bill "Red" will have his hands full.

And adding further color to the international tenor, Malibu's Mike Valentine, a rugged customer, hooks up with Chief Sani Waroland, in what looks to be a rough preliminary.

RUTH AND COBB

Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, two of baseball's immortals, never shaved in front of a television camera or advised younger players to lay off "the greasy kid stuff" nor did they have the hungry choppers of income tax slavering at their bankrolls.

The fiery Cobb and the easy-going Bambino were two of baseball's opposites from a financial point of view. Tyrus died a multimillionaire—the Babe blew the, greater part of his fortune, but saved enough for a $10,000 annuity.

How much Cobb actually earned as a player is not known. His most brilliant years were those when salaries were rather low. Perhaps his income did not exceed $40,000. But he invested his money in soft-drink and motor-car firms and died leaving millions.

The Babe's total income from 1914 to his retirement in 1935 is fixed at $1,676,447. He drew $850,000 regular salary, $45,577 in world series money and about $150,000 in exhibitions, for syndicate writings, etc. When his baseball days were over this wildest of wild spenders in the days of youth, had a small amount in cash and $350,000 in annuities which brought him roughly $18,000 annually.

Ruth received $600 from Baltimore for part of a season in 1914 and $1,400 from Providence and Boston, a total of $1,900 for the year. A 1956 amateur hockey player would turn up his nose at that.

In 1915 Ruth received $3,500 and this was the bottom at a big scale-up. In 1922 he received a five-year contract at $52,000 and in 1927 he began a three-year term at $70,000.

He reached the peak in 1930 and 1931 when he signed for $80,000 per season. Then came the turning point as the Babe began to slip. In 1932 he drew $75,000—in 1933, $67,000—in 1934, $35,000, his last year with the Yankees.

He left the Boston Braves in June, 1935, and had drawn about $8,000 up to that time.

The Babe's attitude toward the coin of the realm is exemplified in the story that after playing an exhibition game and receiving $15,000 he lost the roll on his way back to the hotel.

Discovering the loss the Bambino merely shrugged his broad shoulders and quipped: "After all, it's only money."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Avelino Gomez booted three of his four mounts to victory at Greenwood Wednesday and boosted his lead in the winners' circle to three more than his nearest rival.

Gomez began his spree atop Field Trial in the fourth, coming from just off the pace to nip Chilly Filly and return $6.40, $3.70 and $2.10.

River Party won by half a length in the fifth to give Gomez his second winner and pay a straight $6.50. Journey Home, who finished half a length back in the fifth, combined with River Party for a $19.80 quinella.

Gomez won the sixth with Diamond Pete, who paid a straight $3.80.

The daily double of Strathroyal in the first and Black Coral in the second paid $29.60.

Landscapers Shade Cementmen

A pair of third-inning runs accounted for all the scoring as Barriage Landscapers edged the Point Anne Cementmen 2-0 in a Commercial Softball League thriller at the Point last evening.

Another tilt, Black Diamond vs Lightfoots, was postponed because of wet grounds. It will be played at the Alemite Field on Sunday night at 6.30.

The Barriage-Point Anne tilt was one of the loop's best of the season, despite slippery spots, as Gerry Genereaux and Denny Hull hooked up in a tight pitching duel.

Genereaux gave up three hits for Barriagas, struck out seven and walked two. Hull gave up only two hits in the fast while fanning two and passing three.

Barriage's runs came on a walk to Sopha, a passed ball to T. Cook's line single to centre, scoring Sopha, and two more passed balls. The losers had a great chance in the sixth when two singles in a row, plus an error, filled the bases with none out. Genereaux struck out Hall on the next two men on fielders' choices.

Jim Sopha and Tim Cook had the Landscapers only hits, while MacDonald, Rosebush and Hull had the Point Anne safeties.

Whitey Ford, said teammate Ralph Terry, wins because "he's got it in three places—here, here and here."

Terry pointed to his head, his arm and his heart.

The trio allowed Minnesota Twins only four hits Wednesday night, Ford keeping tight rein on the controls as he pitched New York Yankees to a 4-0 victory and took over the American League lead in shutouts and earned-run average.

Making his 12th start, the 35-year-old lefty brought his record to 6-1 with his fourth shutout and lowered his E.R.A. to a sparkling 1.53. Ford also is tied for the No. 1 spot in strikouts with Dick Radatz of Boston Red Sox. Both have 84.

How does Ford, who had a 24-7 record last year, do it?

USES HEAD

Terry says: "He's got a reason for every pitch. He thinks out there on the mound. He can put up a hitter but nothing because he's got everything to do the job.

"Get set for a curve and you might get a sinker, fast ball, or slider and varying speeds on all of them. His breaking pitches make his fast ball look better. Top it off with control and you've got Whitey Ford."

Robin Roberts allowed six hits and rode to four-hound salvo to his fourth victory as the first-place Baltimore Orioles defeated Kansas City Athletics 5-1 for their sixth consecutive victory.

Elsewhere in the AL, Joey Horlen permitted only three hits but needed ninth-inning relief help before Chicago White Sox subdued Cleveland Indians 3-0, Washington Senators belted Detroit Tigers 6-2 and Los Angeles Angels swept a doubleheader from Boston 10-3 and 9-8.

Ford, who hasn't lost since opening day, got the only run he needed when Elston Howard slammed a Jim Bouton pitch for a homer in the fourth inning. The Yankees then wrapped up their first victory over the Twins in five games with a run-in eighth.

BOOG BOOSTS TWO

Roberts got more than enough support as Boog Powell hit his 10th and 11th homers and Lou Aparicio and Willie Kirkland each hit one. Powell and Kirkland connected back-to-back in the ninth inning.

Horlen, now 3-3, left after John Romano opened the Indians' half of the ninth with a double as both Don Mossi and Hoyt Wilhelm came on to preserve the victory. Horlen drove in the White Sox' first run when he grounded out in the second.

Al Weis homered in the seventh and Dave Nicholson, who had three hits, wrapped up the scoring with a run-producing single in the eighth.

Claude Osteen, 4-4, sent the Tigers down to their fifth straight defeat with a six-hitter. Al Kaline and three of Detroit's hits and produced both runs. Jay Aparicio and Willie Kirkland and Dick Phillips each hit a homer for the Senators.

The Angels broke a scoreless tie in the opener when a walk, Tony Conigliaro's error, Billy Moran's double and a single by Leo Thomas. Conigliaro hit a grand slam in the second game, but the Angels scored the decisive runs in the eighth inning on Albie Pearson's two-run single.

Pitching—Whitey Ford, New York Yankees, stopped Minnesota Twins 3-0 on four hits, posting his fourth consecutive, lifting his record to 6-1 and lowering his earned run average to 1.53.

Batting—Orlando Cepeda, Giants, took care of all of San Francisco's runs in 3-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates, driving them in with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly.

Second Error In 10 Years

Willie's 'Basket' Sprung A Leak

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays has dropped another fly ball for an error. And 10 years ago he did the same thing.

San Francisco's great centre fielder made the error Wednesday night, but it was harmless as the Giants blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

Don Cardenon was the recipient of Mays' rare generosity with two out in the seventh inning. Mays raced in for Clendenon's fly ball, turned around and waited, ready to set up the ball with his famous basket catch. The ball fell into his glove but fell right out again.

The last time Mays had erred was on Sept. 9, 1954, in the Polo Grounds against Chicago Cubs.

Just after losing that one Mays made his first error of the season, he got into the middle of a protest lodged by Pirates' manager Danny Murtaugh.

A ground ball hit by Willie McCovey in the eighth was ruled foul by the umpires struck Mays, who was at third base after hitting a triple. Murtaugh contended Mays should have been called out under the rules governing a runner hit by a batted ball.

IN FOUL TERRITORY

Umpire Jocko Conlan ruled, however, that Mays was in foul territory and could not be called out.

While Mays was being hit, Philadelphia was having trouble getting the ball back from Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 in 11 innings. In the other NL games, Milwaukee Braves edged Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 7-5. Houston at New York was postponed by rain.

Allowed to remain at third in the disputed sixth inning, Mays scored minutes later as Orlando Cepeda slammed his fifth home run. Cepeda later drove in Mays with a sacrifice fly.

Ron Herbel limited the Pirates to four hits in winning his fifth game in four decisions. Pittsburgh starter Vernon Law was struck on the right elbow by a Herbel pitch in the sixth and had to leave the game. Law, however, isn't expected to miss his next pitching turn.

ROJAS DOUBLES

Don Drysdale held the Phillies to three hits until Cookie Rojas doubled for 11th with a double. Ron Perranoski relieved Drysdale with one out, walked Johnny Callison purposely, then got a force at second as Rojas homed to score. Rojas scored when Jim Gilliam fumbled Tony Gonzales' grounder.

Denny Lemaster won his seventh game against two defeats, stopping the Reds on six hits, including Veda Pinson's home run in the sixth. But homers by Lee Mays in the sixth and Denis Menke in the seventh halted the Braves' four-game losing streak.

The Cardinals stopped the Cubs' four-game winning streak and held Billy Williams hitless. Williams' league - leading average dropped 10 points to .412. Ken Boyer cracked a three-run homer for St. Louis in the third, offsetting Ron Santo's three-run blast in the eighth.

Mosport 200 Attracts 34 Entries

TORONTO (CP) — Four cars were added to the lineup Wednesday, bringing the entry list for Saturday's 200-mile sports car race at Mosport to 34.

Von Emery and Bob Grossman, both of New York, will both drive Ferraris. Imery's Dino Ferrari will race in the class for under two-litre sports cars, while Grossman's Ferrari GTO is entered in the Grand Touring category.

Herb Swan of Cleveland, Ohio, a regular competitor at Mosport, will drive a Porsche RS, a model that at one time completely dominated the under two-litre class.

Rounding out the new additions is Bob McLean of Vancouver, one of Canada's top west coast drivers. McLean will drive one of five Lotus 23Bs entered in the race.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Don Parker had the night's high mark at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club last evening. He scored a perfect 25, closely followed by Earl Marvin, Harry Farnell and Jim Shortt with 24 scores.

Other good scores were: Cy Gardner 23, John Walsh 22, Doug Johnston 21, Ron Hutchinson 21, John DeLong 21, Garn Skindale 20 and Cliff Hart 20.

Crothers Kidd Meet In Mile Run

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's two top track hopes for the Olympics at Tokyo next October—Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers—will meet head-on in a mile race at the Metropolitan Toronto Police Amateur Athletic Association meet July 4.

Kidd's best distance is the 10,000 metres (six miles) and Crothers is being groomed for the 800-meter run at Tokyo.

"Kidd needs speed and Crothers needs stamina. This should help them both."

Ryan Legs of Toronto who was clocked at 4:03.5 indoors last winter, and Jim Irons of Toronto, will probably be in the race. Irons ran the second fastest mile ever by a Canadian last summer in 4:01.9. Kidd has the fastest on record, 4:01.4, and Crothers' best is 4:02.5.

'Dancer' Not Yet At Peak—Trainer

Five Entered

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Northern Dancer heads into Saturday's 89th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes with his peak form still to come.

That's the opinion of Horatio Luro, trainer of the Canadian-bred winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, and at least one trainer of the four-three-year-olds expected to oppose the son of Nearctic-Natalma in the 1½-mile final leg of the triple crown.

"I actually don't know his capabilities," said Luro today. "He's done everything we have asked of him so well that I hesitate to guess just how far he'll go.

"He probably hasn't reached his peak," said Jimmy Conway, trainer of Orientalist, who was made a supplementary entry at the cost of $5,000. "He has held his bloom so well. In fact he seems to look better every time I see him."

All of which could be bad news for the Dancer's rivals in

Legion Stages Outstanding Sports Show

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99 can take a bow. And that goes double for the 1st Canadian Guards of Camp Picton.

Toss in an accolade or two for the weightlifters and judo exponents of the city and you've paid your tribute.

They combined to stage an outstanding sports show in Memorial Arena last night, and the only people who lost were those who stayed away.

A sparse up-to-400 enjoyed a highly entertaining evening highlighted by clever competitive boxing, eye-opening "lifting" and clever judo demonstrations.

Eight guardsmen, most of them champions or runners-up in their respective classes gave boxing here a much-needed shot-in-the arm. They deserved a better spectator fate.

The four bouts, one of them garnished with some hilarious comedy, drew rounds of applause from the pewsters. All were keenly fought, with no punches pulled, and productive of fast hard-hitting action.

WELL-FOUGHT

The well-trained, well-coached soldier boxers fought clean action-packed five-round bouts in fact referees Mark Storms and Jerry Downes had little to do and were more or less decorative appendages.

There were no knock-downs, and according to army regulations governing exhibition boxing, no decisions.

All four bouts went the limit of five rounds with Guardsmen Cyril Johnson and Tony O'Quinn leading off with some fine welterweight action.

Lance Corporal Paul Ballam and Guardsman Don Keech followed. The middleweights staged a hard-punching bout that had the crowd repeatedly applauding.

Guardsman Tommy Chesson, a veteran of the ring and trainer of many army boxers had the crowd in an uproar with a bright three-round comedy bout with Lance Corporal Bill Keetch.

Chesson arrived in the ring wearing smoked glasses, smoking a strong stogie and wearing his habitant toque. He did everything wrong and with his opponent playing a "straight role" staged three rounds of hilarious high jinks.

They fought two rounds "honestly" and both being army champions staged one of the best bouts of the night.

Army heavyweight champion Corporal Bill Paradine and Guardsman John Sweeney fought a spirited five-round bout that saw plenty of punches thrown to wind up the boxing part of the evening.

Ken Carr-Braint brought weightlifting at its best in various demonstrations. National middle-heavyweight champion John Lewis and Canadian junior champion Fred Morris combined with clubmates Larry Carr-Braint, 12, and Morley Bly, 19, in an outstanding exhibition.

Lewis and Morris are slated to attend the Olympic trials in Ottawa later in the month. Both stand an excellent chance, their coach thinks.

A bevy of mixed judo exponents from the Belleville Hashido Club had the crowd on edge with demonstrations of various phases of the sport.

Outstanding were the girl exponents, Gladys Smith and Susan Craig, as was black belt Gordon Oliver and Jim Gulley.

Following the show the participants were presented with special awards by Legion Zone Commander Jack Rashotte.

Later they were entertained at a reception given by President Norm. Hardwick of Branch 99 and members of the show committee in the Legion auditorium.

Building fund chairman Ed Smith and his associates are to be commended on the arrangement and production of outstanding sports entertainment.

Jack Devine was the master of ceremonies, with Tom Hooking and Lloyd "Red" Doran acting as timekeepers for the boxing show.

Epsom Derby

'Santa Claus' Wins Thriller

By ALAN HARVEY

EPSOM, England (CP)—They said Santa Claus had a great big run in his stocking, and the colt with the Christmassy name proceeded to do forecast Wednesday to win the 185th Derby in sensational, spine-tingling fashion.

Last but three turning for home, the hot favorite from Ireland suddenly shifted into high gear and spirited home a length clear of the 17-horse field to pick up the winner's share of £72,067, richest prize in Derby history.

Indian, owned by U.S. industrialist Charles Engelhard, was second at 30 to 1 with a 100-to-1 shot, Dilettante II, a closeup third. Dilettante ran in the colors of American Lawrence Gelb, giving U.S. owners two horses in the first three.

England's outstanding hope, Ouridium, owned by senior steward of the Jockey Club, Lord Howard de Walden, led into the stretch but faded right out of the money.

Santa Claus, starting at 15 to 2, gave star Australian jockey Arthur (Scobie) Breasley his first victory in the Epsom classic on his fifth attempt.

Santa Claus is something of a raving freak. A bargain basement yearling, bred by the 20-year-old Chamossaire which is not a fashionable classic sire, the angular bay colt has an awkward-looking stride.

"He's a rotten mover," said one expert commentator as Santa lumbered to the start of the 1½-mile event.

But the Christmas cracker exploded at the right time and place. He seemed almost to fly past Indiana and Dilettante. Few could believe he had won by as much as a length.

"This is the first time he has really had a race," beamed 80-year-old owner John Lumley, a reticent Tynesider who now lives in the south of France.

Epsom Downs was the usual colorful scene on big race day, with a tardy sun helping to dry the track after days of rain.

Cockneys and tipsters mingled in a crowd that included the Queen with her guest, President Ahboud of the Sudan. Pop singer Billy Fury was there to see his £8,000 purchase Aniselmo run a surprisingly good fourth at 100 to 1.

Santa will run in the Irish Sweeps Derby late this month, with Dilettante probably among his rivals.

Liston Not Ranked

Chuvalo Rated Number 8

MIAMI BEACH (CP)—Heavyweight George Chuvalo of Toronto was listed eighth in the division Wednesday in the June ratings of the World Boxing Association.

Two Puerto Rican middleweights, Jose Torres and Joey Gonzales, were named boxers of the month.

Torres won the honor for his upset of Wilmer McClure and Gonzales for a technical knockout of Florentino Fernandez.

Sonny Liston, who lost the heavyweight title to Cassius Clay Feb. 25, remained out of the rankings.

However, Ed Lassman, president of the WBA, said the executive committee is considering an appeal by Liston's advisor, Jack Nilon, for reinstatement of the former champion in the July ratings.

Liston had been dropped after charges of carrying a concealed weapon and reckless driving were filed against him March 10 in Denver.

what stacks up as the smallest Belmont field since Count Fleet beat two others by 25 lengths in 1943.

HAS WON LAST SEVEN

Northern Dancer, from E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, has won his last seven starts, never finished out of the money in 17 races, set a Kentucky Derby mark of two minutes flat for 1 1/4 miles and came close to the Preakness standard with a 1:56 4-5 clocking for 1 3-16 miles.

After being the second choice to Hill Rise in both the Derby and Preakness, the Dancer is expected to go to the post at the short odds of around 3 to 5.

Hill Rise, from George A. Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch, loser by a neck in the Derby and by 2¼ lengths in the Preakness, figures to get the bulk of the remainder of the play in the betting machines.

Post time is 4:45 p.m. EDT, with television on the CBC national network scheduled for 4:30—5 p.m.

Louis Wolfson's Roman Brother, winner of the Northern Dancer in the Derby and Preakness but finished up the track. Since then Roman Brother has won the Jersey Derby and Quadrangle and was second to the four-year-old Olden Times in the Metropolitan Handicap.

DOESN'T COUNT

Bill Finnegan, trainer of Hill Rise, said he was inclined to disregard his horse's Preakness performance.

"I am encouraged by Roman Brother's good race in New Jersey. He didn't appear to take to the Pimlico track in the Preakness and I know Hill Rise didn't, so I'm inclined to throw out that race. Tough to do, though, when a colt like Northern Dancer is around."

There is an outside possibility that Herbert Allen might decide today to enter Shook, winner of three of his six starts this year. R. N. Webster's National, out of the money only twice in eight 1964 starts, also is a possibility. Entries will be made Friday morning. It costs $250 to enter and another $1,000 to start. With five starters the gross value of the race will be $150,850.

Hawks Scored Most Important Goals

Wharram Top Target Shooter In NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — If you want the cold, hard facts, Kenny Wharram was the most accurate shooter during the 1963-64 National Hockey League season and his team, Chicago Black Hawks, scored more important goals than any of the other five clubs.

This may seem odd because Wharram finished sixth in the scoring race, 18 points behind teammate Stan Mikita, the scoring champion. And Chicago was knocked out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals after losing the NHL championship to Montreal Canadiens by one point.

Yet, they say figures don't lie. And these, released Wednesday, were among the latest batch of off-beat facts on the past season by Ron Andrews, league statistician.

Wharram, the all-star right winger and Lady Byng recipient, had the best percentage among players taking 100 or more shots on goal. He scored 29 times on 191 shots for a 20.4 percentage.

Among players who scored 10 goals or more, Gary Dornhoefer, the big, rugged Boston Bruin rookie, led with a mark of 27.3 based on 44 shots and 12 goals.

HULL LED IN SHOTS

Bobby Hull, Chicago's golden boy whose 43 goals led the league, had more than twice as many shots but scored only four goals more than Wharram. Hull's scoring percentage — on 408 shots—was only 10.5.

Behind Wharram in the best-shot category were two New York Ranger stars, Camille Henry, 29 goals, 153 shots for a 19.0 percentage and Phil Goyette, 26 for 17.8. Next was Gilles Tremblay, Canadiens, 22-141 for 15.6, and Don McKenney, a late-season Ranger trade to the Toronto Maple Leafs, with 18 goals, on 117 shots for a 15.4 percentage.

Hull's 408 shots on net led the league. He was followed by Gordie Howe, Detroit 341; and Mikita, 305.

Hawks fired 218 goals to lead in the team-scoring division and 167 of them fell into what Andrews described as the "important category."

"The importance of a goal is based on the state of the game at the time the goal was scored," Andrews said. "Those goals rated important are the first goal of a game, a score-tying goal, a leading goal, an insurance goal . . . and a proximate goal which moves the losing team to within one goal of its opponent's score."

Chicago's percentage was 83.5.

RANGERS WERE SECOND

New York Rangers were second in important goals with an 83.8 percentage on 209 goals on which 154 were declared important. Next were Toronto, 153 important goals of 193 scored for 79.7 percentage; Detroit, 151 of 191 for 79.1; Boston, 124 of 170 for 72.9; and Canadiens, 151 of 209 for 72.2.

McKenney and Floyd Smith of Detroit led individual players with 17 of their 18 goals declared important, a percentage of 94.4. The other top five were Dave Keon, Toronto, 91.3; Andy Bathgate, Toronto, 90.5; Goyette, 87.5.

The statistical review also revealed that Chicago had the best power-play in the league, scoring 51 goals while enjoying a one-or-two man advantage 379 times. Their power-play scoring percentage was 13.3.

Toronto led in penalty-killing, successfully killing 88.7 per cent of its penalties. Leafs were short a man 286 times, but allowed only 30 goals and the opposition was unable to penetrate their defenses during the 13 times the Stanley Cup champions were short two men.

They Make It, Now They're Printing It

NEW YORK (AP) — The Big Three of tournament golf —Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player—are no longer satisfied with just collecting money. They're going to start printing it.

They announced that they were joining a New York bank note company, Security Columbian, which specializes in printing bonds and making foreign currency.

Bill Talbert, former Davis Cup tennis captain and vice-president of the firm who conceived the idea of adding the golfers to his staff, explained their role this way:

"They will be largely contact men. They play all over the world. They play with the most prominent people. In the course of their activities, they might mention the merits of the company. It could be very lucrative."

Wild Pitch Costs Leafs Ball Game

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A wild pitch by Ron Nischwitz, newest member of the Toronto pitching staff, cost the Maple Leafs a 3-2 decision to Buffalo Bisons and a half-game of their margin at the top of the International League standings Wednesday.

Nischwitz, the Leafs' only left hander, took over from starter Howie Koplitz in the ninth inning with a 2-1 lead, runners on first and third and nobody out. He struck out one batter and walked another intentionally.

Then catcher Ken Retzer lost his low pitch to Pompeio Green, permitting the tying run to score. Moments later, the winning run came in on Green's sacrifice fly.

Syracuse Chiefs, whose game with Rochester Red Wings was rained out, moved within 3½ games of the Leafs and were joined by Jacksonville Suns, who swept a doubleheader over Richmond Virginians 6-3 and 10-7. The last - place Atlanta Crackers rounded out the schedule by blanking Columbus Jets 5-0.

Koplitz had a three-hitter over the first eight innings at Toronto and was staked to his lead by Don Dillard's sixth - inning homer. Only 554 fans turned out in chilly weather to watch the game.

Joe Morgan, who had hit an earlier home run, broke up the second game at Richmond with a bases-loaded triple in the 10th inning. Dick Lemay scattered seven hits to win the opener as Morgan collected four unearned runs.

Rookie Gordon Seyfried, who went into the game with an earned - run average of 7.54, pitched a two-hitter at Columbus for his first win and Atlanta's first shutout of the year.

Woodbine Opens Meet On June 8

The thoroughbreds return to Woodbine June 8 for a 36-day meeting which will feature the Royal Week of Racing, climaxed by the 105th running of the Queen's Plate June 20. Although horses have been stabled at the majestic racing plant all winter and training there all spring, this will be the first meeting of the season at Woodbine.

The Royal Week of Racing, from June 13 to June 20, will feature the $25,000 added Canadian Oaks Stakes, the top filly event of the season; the Plate Trial Stakes June 15; the King Edward Gold Cup June 17, the season's first stakes race for grass horses; and finally on June 20 the $10,000 added Highlander Stakes Handicap and the $50,000 added Queen's Plate Stakes, North America's oldest annual race.

Northern Dancer, the continents outstanding three-year-old, will bid in this year's Plate to become the first thoroughbred to win the Kentucky Derby and Queen's Plate. The Dancer, owned by Windfields Farm, will ship to Woodbine after the running of the Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct.

Fifty-six three-year-olds have been kept eligible for the mile and one-quarter Queen's Plate and despite the ominous threat of Northern Dancer a full field is expected to go postward on June 20.

Woodbine's two grass courses, the Marshall turf course and the Main turf course, will afford the turf clippers their first opportunity to show their stuff. Of the 17 scheduled added-money races at Woodbine, five will be on the grass.

Besides the rich Royal Week of Racing stakes, Woodbine will offer such stake races as the $25,000 added Dominion Day Handicap on July 1, the important Canadian Maturity Stakes for four-year-olds foaled in Canada, and the Connaught Cup Stakes for the handicap stars.

RACE-VICTIM BURIED

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—With two drivers flag stop his coffin, Dave MacDonald was laid to rest Wednesday as fans and friends joined family in paying last respect to the young driver who lost his life at Indianapolis Speedway last Saturday. His children, Richie, 7, and Vickie, 5, placed the flags—symbols of victory in the race world—on the coffin. MacDonald and Eddie Sachs suffered fatal injuries on the second lap of the race.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Gene Dopp wonders what all the fuss is about because somebody has "revealed" that Parliament never did pass an act declaring lacrosse to be Canada's national sport. He has known this for years.

"What's nothing new about this," said Dopp, who has been on the lacrosse scene as player, coach and administrator for more than 60 of his 70 years. "I agree it isn't officially Canada's national game, but people have been believing that it is for so long now it can't change."

One man hopes to change it. He is Jack Roxburgh, Liberal MP for Norfolk, who plans to introduce a bill in parliament to declare hockey Canada's national sport.

Roxburgh, 63-year-old Simcoe fruit farmer, has spent months studying Canada's statutes. He couldn't find anything in the books to show that Canada enacted a law banning lacrosse as the national sport and he hopes his fellow MPs will go along with his motion on hockey.

It seems natural that he should introduce such a bill because he has been mixed up with amateur hockey for years. He's a past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, a founder of the Ontario Minor Association and one-time director of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

NO SURPRISE

He should have talked to Dopp before he undertook his research. It could have saved a lot of time.

"All on record that I know about it is a Montreal dentist, Dr. George Beers, proclaimed lacrosse as Canada's national game in 1867," said Dopp in an interview at his Brooklin, Ont. home. "Beyond that, nothing was done about it.

"Nobody ever questioned it before. I've heard it mentioned in casual conversation with hockey officials a couple of times. It never got beyond that stage.

"It's peculiar that no one really got around to passing an act back in Dr. Beers' time because in those days, and for many, many years, lacrosse players in Canada outnumbered hockey players. That isn't the case now, but . . .

He isn't perturbed at Roxburgh. "All of this talk is good publicity for lacrosse." But he cautioned him to take it easy.

In plain language, forget it and leave things as they are.

PART OF PAST

"The way I look at it is this: Indians, lacrosse, the maple leaf and the beaver have been with Canada since the beginning. You don't change these things. It rather just keep it the way it is."

Dopp has devoted nearly all of his life to lacrosse.

Born in Brantford, he played the game there as an eight-year-old, moved to Toronto and played with Jarvis Collegiate, the old St. Simons and Young Torontos and eventually called it quits in 1922 after an active career of about 20 years.

He has seen, played with or against most of the all - time greats of the game. Newsy Lalonde . . . Billy Fitzgerald . . . Lionel Conacher . . . Ted Reeve . . . Joe Lally.

He is a life member of the Ontario and Canadian Lacrosse Associations. He was secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Lacrosse Association for 25 years, from 1925 to 1949 held the same position and also the presidency of the CLA for another 10 years and moved to Brooklin four years ago.

And he is still in the game as president of the lacrosse league in this community of 1,500 persons 36 miles northeast of Toronto.

Probably his proudest moment came in 1963 when his town's team won the Ontario senior lacrosse championship.

STOP LIFT LEG
CAUSES TOPPED SHOTS

We have mentioned, in past articles, that the knees should be slightly bent in the address position, to demonstrate here in "1". With the knees bent you have the flexibility needed to produce good leg action during the swing.

Unfortunately, many golfers over with their knees bent and then suddenly stiffen their left knee (*2) on they come into the ball. This stiffening forces the body to rise slightly. This action causes the clubhead to pass over the top of the ball.

Trapped, or more skilled, shots usually. In "3", I show the correct left leg position on the downswing. This leg is firm, as is the entire left side, but it should still be slightly flexed so that the knee of your swing remains the same as it was at address.

Pearson Passes Baseball Test by Kennedy's Aide

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — John Fitzgerald Kennedy stzed up Lester Bowles Pearson during a 30-minute test on baseball before they launched serious diplomatic negotiations in 1963, Dave Powers, one of Kennedy's most trusted aides, says the prime minister came through with flying colors.

"I'd say Mr. Pearson showed an exceptional knowledge of the game," said the 51-year-old Boston Irishman who can rattle off facts and figures on the history of the sport as fast it makes your head swim.

It happened on a cold, raw day of May 10, 1963. As usual, the president took Powers with him as he flew to the family summer compound at Hyannis Port, Mass., for the first round of talks with Pearson.

"We stood around the fireplace, keeping warm and waiting for some of Mr. Pearson's officials to arrive," Powers recalled in an interview.

"Then the president raised the subject of baseball and we got off on a three-way talk on all the greats—Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig; the all-stars; the dates, the places, the combinations and stars."

POWERS ASTONISHED

Pearson, a one-time semi-professional ballplayer, astonished Powers with his baseball knowledge. If Powers slipped on a date, Pearson would supply it. If Powers was looking for an argument on the kind of player combinations needed for World Series perfection, the prime minister was ready to air his thoughts.

"Mr. Pearson had a ball-player's insight," said Powers, who used to sell scorecards in Boston Stadium at the age of 10. "The president seemed to be listening to us, after a while. He was a golfer in practice but he was more of a football buff. He could give you the background on all the great football players. Mr. Pearson knew his baseball."

Powers recalled that the little verbal play on baseball went longer than anticipated but it helped warm up the two leaders for their confidential diplomat talks later. In two days of discussions, they washed the Canada-U.S. slate clean of a number of irritations and cemented a warm, close friendship.

Powers said that on the first visit the president made to Ottawa May 16, 1961, just a few months after he took office and just a month after the Cuban invasion disaster, Kennedy did not get along well with John Diefenbaker, then prime minister. And the president wrenched his back at a tree-planting ceremony at Government House.

"He was in pain, but he didn't complain," said Powers, who acted as a sort of companion-valet. "If it hadn't happened at Ottawa, it would have happened somewhere else. He had a bad back, as you know. You could never tell what would set it off. I agree with his brother, Bobby. The president was in pain much of his life.

"And yet, when we'd get him ready for big events, where he'd be all dressed up under the lights, with the crowds cheering, he'd look like the all-American boy. The crowds would be envious, sure. But they didn't know how he suffered, and suffered.

"I was in the car behind him in the motorcade when he was shot at Dallas last November. I saw the back of his head. I keep thinking that for the difference of a few seconds, he might still be alive; he might still be here in the White House."

For 17 years, this open-faced Irishman was at Kennedy's side—from the precincts of Boston to a seat in Congress and then the White House.

Now Powers gets Johnson ready for events but, he says, "it just isn't the same any more."

Rural Beautification Society Gives Better Look to P.E.I.

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Visitors to Prince Edward Island usually agree that nature made a spectacular, success when it created the Garden of the Gulf.

The rich red soil, emerald green grass and patchwork quilt landscape are attractively framed by the deep blue sea.

But nature alone isn't entirely responsible for the island beauty. People made the sparkling white fences, the freshly painted farm homes and bright, neat barns and farmyards.

Much of the credit for this well-scrubbed look goes to Canada's only province-wide Rural Beautification Society. The RBS does it with an annual contest.

Working with a $3,500 provincial grant and another $2,000 from community - spirited businesses, the RBS offers money and silverware as prizes for improvements. Prize money is more than doubled this summer because the 100th anniversary of the 1864 meeting of the Fathers of Confederation in Charlottetown makes this a special season.

Entrants—about 300 last year and many more this year—must live outside an incorporated area. They enter any of seven fields of competition, but the original clean, farm-home improvement, still draws three-quarters of the entries.

FEE IS $2

The $2 entry fee lets the farmer compete for a perfect 500 points, awarded for such things as painting his buildings and fences, planting trees, flowers and shrubs and getting rid of rubbish.

If it's his first contest, he's judged on a county basis. A winner or more of the total points moves him into provincially judged second- and third-year classes.

Judges look for improvement, not beauty. This way the man with the already perfect property can't hog all the prizes year after year.

RBS President Robert Staebelle says this is actually hardest on the old competitor. The longer he stays in, the more difficult it is for him to make improvements.

But, says Mr. Snazelle, once he has his place well scrubbed, chances are he'll keep it that way even though he drops out of the competition. And that well-kept look is after all the purpose of the society, founded by E. W. Johnstone of Woodleigh.

"If you get one fellow in a community painting up this year for the competition, the next year two or three of his neighbors paint up, whether they enter the contest or not. It's keeping up with the Jones."

OTHER CATEGORIES

But farm home improvement is only one category. Prizes are also given for beautifying flower beds, cemeteries, dairy barns, small homes that aren't on farms, community buildings and tourist motels and cabins.

Judges make two trips to each of the competitors and use photographs to check on the degree of improvement. The first visit is in early spring after the contest starts. After Labor Day the final judging is carried out.

This year Mr. Snazelle arranged for a contest concentrating on improving farm gateways and lanes, ending in July so that the changes would be in evidence by the time the tourists arrive.

Working along with the society is the Burnbury Nursery, a government - operated outfit set up with a $100,000 donation from a Charlottetown real estate agent on 26 acres at suburban Bunbury.

Its purpose is to supply shrubbery, trees and hedging to islanders as cheaply as possible. Each year it handles 70,000 bulbs, 5,000 rose bushes and about 3,000 plants for hedges.

The society is still growing and apparently intends to stay that way despite agitation from some incorporated areas to get into the competition. The RBS feeling is that the urban homeowner has much more free time than the farmer in which to make improvements.

Jack Gilford a Delight As Mute King in Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Only Upon a Mattress, the bright Broadway musical comedy of five seasons ago that exposed the fairy story of the princess and the pea legend and made Carol Burnett a star, survived the difficult journey from stage to television.

A lively adaptation occupied 90 minutes on CBS Wednesday night, with Miss Burnett in her original role given every opportunity to clown and sing.

The book simplified the background of the fairy tale of the princess who proved her royal sensitivity by being made sleepless by a pea placed under 20 mattresses. It was a perfect setup for Miss Burnett's talents.

Jack Gilford was cast to perform came close to stealing the show. He was a delight as the mute King, and proved by soprano's spell and able to express himself only by playing a one-man game of Simon Says the Stars.

The production was excellent, the dancing imaginative, the music charming and the dialogue often witty and amusing. But the frequent lengthy interruptions for commercials had the distressing effect of destroying the audience's mood.

Divorced Stars Show How Movie Should Be Made

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The sign on the movie stage door seemed ominous: "Welcome—proceed at your own risk."

But inside on the set of The Night Walker, everything looked cozy.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor were seated next to each other, chatting with director William Castle.

"How old were you when you made Camille — 30?" Castle asked Taylor.

"No, I was 26," the actor replied.

"I was the one who was 30 " said Stanwyck, and all laughed heartily.

That is the tone on the set where Bob and Barbara are making their third film together. The first since their divorce in 1951. She has remained single; he married actress Ursula Thiess. Their reunion has caused a considerable stir in Hollywood, but both refuse to gossip. Here is the fuss.

JOB IS A JOB

"A job is a job," said Stanwyck. "When the phone sounded notice that the camera crew was ready for shooting, the stars hurried to the set and took their positions.

The scene called for Miss Stanwyck, now widowed, to express concern to Taylor, the family lawyer, over dreams that seem real to her reality. The rehearsal was letter-perfect, but she wasn't satisfied.

"It's too pat," she complained. "I played it very bad. As a matter of fact, it stunk."

She rehearsed once more, finally striking the spark of spontaneity she was seeking. The players hit their marks and the scene began.

PRIZE IT

"Cut — print it!" announced Castle. He sighed to a bystander, "I hate how movies should be made."

"I like to work this way," said Taylor. "When you think of the waste on some movies today —it's incredible. Why, when Barbara and I made our first picture together, His Brother's Wife, Woody Van Dyke shot it in 14 days."

After some more talk, the banter sounded. Taylor and Stanwyck were off to the set like a pair of fire horses.

Nobody Goes Hungry in Big Skyscrapers

NEW YORK (AP) — A 50-storey skyscraper built up in already congested area in mid-Manhattan, seven thousand persons start toiling in a space where only a fraction of that number formerly worked.

What happens at lunch time when they're all looking for a quick meal?

The answer is that nobody goes hungry.

One reason is that the new office buildings of gleaming steel, glass and concrete come equipped with their own dining facilities, and some with shops and stores.

When it is fully completed the 58-storey Pan American Building over Grand Central Station will have three restaurants, a cafeteria, a coffee shop and a private luncheon club for its 20,000 workers.

The 47-storey Time-Life Building, latest addition to Rockefeller Center, offers three restaurants and a private lunch club. Some 6,700 persons work there.

Across the street the recently completed 42 - storey Equitable Life Assurance Building with 7,500 workers.

It has an exclusive dining room and a vast cafeteria. Lunch periods are staggered so all employees can eat in the cafeteria if they wish.

VARIETY AN AID

In most all of the new buildings, the idea is to provide a variety of eating places to suit different pocketbook ranges.

At Rockefeller Center, Rockefeller Center, largest privately owned business and entertainment center in the U.S., and the 3rd largest of feeding large numbers of people was recognized well before the first building was started in 1931.

The centre now has 36 restaurants. Six of the buildings, ranging from coffee shops to gourmet dining, for the 40,000 persons working there and 300,000 daily visitors.

It also has 200 air-conditioned shops as part of what it calls its desire to give "total service."

Another reason why everybody gets fed without trouble, according to the Restaurant Owners of New York, is that New York already has about one-third more restaurants than are needed.

Moira

MOIRA — Mrs. Joe Kellar spent a few days with her brother, Mr. Clarence Defoe and Mrs. Defoe, Foxboro, before they moved to their new home at L'Amable, on Saturday.

Miss Linda Kelderman was an overnight guest of Miss J. Blakely, Tweed, on Friday, and both attended a chivaree at Day in Madoc on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foster attended a reception at Bloomfield in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Norton on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kellar spent Sunday with Mr. Alex Grabowski and children, at Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Defoe of Gilmour spent Monday with his sister, Mrs. Joe Kellar.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIlroy and girls spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Will Malmes and Grant, Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Scott and family, Foxboro, visited on Sunday with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holden spent Monday with their son, Mr. Herman Holden and Mrs. Holden, Cataraqui.

DELIVER UNIT

OTTAWA (CP) — Atomic Energy of Canada Limited is delivering an $18,000 Chalk River unit to apply unit to the World Health Organization for use in Communist Albania for medical purposes, Industry Minister Drury said Wednesday.

Plenty of Rest Said Cure For Obesity

PARIS (Reuters)—Rest and grow slim is the latest advice both attended a chivaree at Day given to fat people by Professor Jean Delay of the Academy of Medicine.

The professor, 57, said: "Obesity is one of the evils of the age of 70, made the point in a lecture here to an audience including largely of fat-conscious elderly matrons.

The gathering was a sign of the times in which French men and women are becoming more and more jerrified of obesity, and Frenchmen are beginning to forget bread as a staple of their diet.

Arguing that obesity is a worse scourge than tuberculosis, de Gennes declared that if you exceed the normal weight for your size by about 6f pounds your life may be in danger because your heart is strained.

But obesity is not necessarily caused by too much or too rich food. In most cases, the professor said, it is caused by a defect in the nervous centre regulating fat assimilation.

A cure can be achieved by reaching the ideal balance between your height and your weight. Rest is the most efficient part of such a cure, de Gennes explained, but you should also restrict your diet to no more than 1,500 calories a day.

Unable to Qualify at Home Go to U.S. Universities

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Many Canadian students seek higher education in the United States because they are unable to qualify for entrance to Canadian universities, a government study shows.

The federal labor department made a special survey to find out why almost 7,000 Canadians enrolled at universities and colleges in the U.S. in the 1963-64 academic year.

The study, based on a sample survey of 500 students, showed the largest group—27 per cent of the total—went to U.S. universities because they could meet their admission requirements, which they couldn't do in Canadian universities.

Some specified failure to meet the language requirements in Canada, usually French.

Another large group—23 per cent—said they were studying in the U.S. because their families were residing there or because they themselves wanted to become permanent residents or citizens of the U.S.

Other reasons for going south of the border for higher education included a wish to attend a church operated college, the proximity of some U.S. colleges, and the opportunity to take courses not offered in this country.

AID AVAILABLE

Postgraduates had a different set of reasons for leaving Canada for U.S. schools. Twenty-nine per cent said they were attracted by better schools, curricula, faculties and facilities.

Next to scholastic reasons, a combination of scholastic and financial reasons were most frequently given. Most students in this group said better educational programs and more opportunities for financial assistance were available in the U.S.

The labor department said the number of Canadians studying at U.S. universities increased by 40 per cent between 1956-57 and 1963-64, jumping from 5,000 to almost 7,000 in the six-year period.

The largest numbers of Canadians studying in American universities were enrolled in the humanities and social sciences. These two fields of study accounted for 2,500 of the total. Other popular courses included the natural sciences (971), engineering (631), business (723 and education (713).

Although enrolment of Canadian students in U.S. colleges has increased significantly since 1956 - 57, enrolment in Canadian universities has expanded even more.

This means that relatively fewer Canadians are studying in the U.S., when compared with the total number of Canadians in Canadian universities.

140 - YEAR - OLD LYNCH HOUSE Located at 75 South Front Street

The ancestors of all our present day 'Contractor's Colonial' houses are quietly elegant buildings like the 140 year old Lynch Coal House at 75 South Front Street. The Lynch house, although it lacks the impressive size of the MacKenzie Fred building down the street, shares with it all the features of the Loyalist Neo-Classical style. These are the houses whose rediscovery, after the flamboyant Victorian period, touched off the fad for "Colonial".

Few people realize that this kind of house was once as common in Upper Canada as it was in the United States. In the 18-20's, our builders were mostly of American descent, with buildings that faithfully reflected the public, and they copied the most popular architecture of their neighbours across the lake.

The windows and door of the Lynch House are arranged in the manner brought here by the settlers from the United States. There are always nine windows and a central door. The front door and its pilastered architrave stretches across the breadth of the hall. The four ground floor windows are evenly spaced, two on each side of the door. Upstairs, the centre window is isolated from the other four in the row. The great breadth of the hall results in the wide space on either side of the window centred above the door. This grouping, also conspicuous on the MacKenzie Fred House, was abandoned after the 1830's, when the windows were spaced at equal intervals on the facade.

The beautifully panelled pilasters supporting the cornice over the door are a departure from the reeded Neo-Classical type. They resemble those on the front of the Barnum House at Grafton, and might have been copied from that trend-setting building.

The slipsee, whole, halved, or quartered, was the trademark of the Loyalist style. British visitors decried how it colonial harpsicon for "eccentric clipses" plastered on everything from houses to stables. Bellering taste must have been more restrained, for the only elliptical shaped decoration that has come down to us is the fan on the north gable end of the Lynch House. On a more pretentious house it colonial have been a window to light the attic, but here it is an applied device, a touch of carpenterly whimsey.

The Lynch House was built around 1820 by John Thompson, formerly an Ensign of the Provincial Corps of New York, who was one of the band of United Empire Loyalists who came to the settlement at the mouth of the Etobicoke Creek in the 1790's, when the windows were spaced at equal intervals on the facade.

Bumper Tourist Season Is Predicted - Canadians Spending More at Home

By JOHN E. REED
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Another record year—the second in a row—appears to be shaping up for Canada's tourist industry this summer.

Present indications point to a favorable tourist trade balance well in excess of last year's $13,000,000.

Federal government tourist promotion officials foresee a big year provided Canada enjoys reasonable weather and a speeding trend among Canadian vacationers continues.

One factor that helped produce last year's favorable balance—the first since 1950—was a six-per-cent drop in spending by Canadian tourists in the United States.

With spending by Americans in Canada up seven per cent over 1962, the balance on the current account stood at $157,000,000 in Canada's favor, reduced to $19,000,000 because of a $144,000,000 deficit on the account with countries other than the United States.

The lower value of the Canadian dollar in relation to American funds leads tourist officials to expect continuation of the trend in which Americans spend more in Canada than Canadians do in the United States.

SEES INCENTIVE

"More Canadians are beginning to realize that their vacation dollar will farther in Canada than in the U.S.," says Dan Wallace, assistant director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau. "There is a greater incentive for Canadians to spend their vacations at home."

Mr. Wallace said at the same time the lower value of the American dollar in relation to its Canadian counterpart is an incentive for more Americans to come to Canada. They can get more for their dollar in Canada than they can at home.

The Canadian dollar was devalued in May, 1962, to 92½ cents in U.S. funds. This had little impact in 1962 but contributed significantly to the favorable income figures for last year and is expected to have an even greater effect this year.

Mr. Wallace said the volume of inquiries for tourist information from other countries, mainly the U.S., is about normal. However, this was an indication that the volume of visitors will not be any greater than last year.

"We no longer feel that a majority of tourists make up their minds early in the year about where they are going to spend their vacations. We now believe that great numbers do not make a decision until the summer, especially those who plan vacations in September."

EXPECT FAIR OVERFLOW

New York's world fair also was expected to be a shot in the arm for the Canadian tourist industry this year.

"This fair will attract American tourists from many states including those in the deep south and the far west," Mr. Wallace said. "Americans from the deep south and the far west form only a small segment of the visitors who come to Canada for their vacations.

"However, many of those who will be in New York for the fair are expected to take advantage of their trip north to visit Canada's scenic areas. We hope that many from the western states will return home by car through Canada."

Here is the tourist picture by provinces as reported in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press:

Newfoundland

A record year is forecast, although the province has failed to advertise itself as a tourist attraction. Its fishing and hunting have become more popular to Americans and roads and accommodations are improving.

Prince Edward Island

The tourist advertising campaign is stressing the centennial celebration of the 1864 Confederation conference in Charlottetown. PEI officials expect more than 225,000 tourists, including many attending conventions and national events like the Dominion Drama Festival, a total almost triple the Island's population and well up on last year's 375,000 visitors.

New Brunswick

Efforts are underway to attract more Canadians by means of advertising, including television spots in Toronto and Hamilton. About 1,600,000 of last year's 1,900,000 visitors, spending an estimated $96,000,000, were Americans.

Nova Scotia

The provincial travel bureau expects new highs in numbers of tourists and spending. The 732,126 who visited last year spent $54,067,986. Camping is a booming feature of tourism and use of campsites and trailer parks increased 44 per cent last year over 1962.

Quebec

Communities close to the U.S. border expect a flood of visitors. Add X154—Bumper Tourist from the New York world fair. Most are expected to visit Montreal, which hopes to recover from a 15-per-cent slump in tourism last year that was blamed on terrorist bombings by Quebec separatists. The tourism, game and fish department is spending $900,000 on promotion.

Ontario

The department of travel and publicity estimates more than 20,000,000 visitors will spend a some $250,000,000 in Ontario. A government report says there has been a "fantastic" growth in the popularity of camping and the department could not keep up with the demand for sites.

Manitoba

The department of industry and commerce says an increase in demands for information about vacation sites indicates tourism will grow from last year's 1,455,000 visitors—59 per cent from the U.S.—who spent about $42,400,000.

Saskatchewan

The travel bureau has set a goal of 1,000,000 tourists for the province's 60th anniversary in 1965 and hopes this year to welcome at least 850,000. Camping remains the fastest-growing outdoor activity and the majority of American visitors are interested in wilderness vacations.

Alberta

The government travel bureau expects a record year on the basis of inquiries received. Visitors numbered 34,289 in the first three months and are expected to reach a record 110,000 for the full year.

British Columbia

Bruce McWilliams of the government travel bureau predicts a record year on the basis of inquiries following last year's record 2,147,000 visitors who spent an estimated $150,000,000. A government report showed U.S. tourists outnumbered Canadian visitors three to two during the summer.

Govt. Would Be Glad To Display Proposed Flag

Force Opposition Head To Withdraw Remarks

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government would be glad to display the proposed new national flag—with the maple leaf design—on Parliament Hill for the edification of MPs and the public, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday.

But he gave no further details in answer to a Commons suggestion from Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood).

Aides outside the House said later they knew of no firm arrangement for such a display.

In other developments Thursday in the continuing flag debate:

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker withdrew remarks made at a Wednesday night meeting in Toronto area at Speaker Alan Macnaughton's request. Mr. Diefenbaker's comments in which they were interpreted as accusing the three smaller Commons parties of supporting the new maple leaf flag in return for last year's parliamentary pay boost to $18,000 from $10,000 annually.

He was quoted as saying the increase had a "wonderful" effect on Liberal support by the third parties and that votes by some MPs would be cast on principle "not that I love the Red Ensign less, but $18,000 more."

R.'SED BY DOUGLAS

The matter was raised on a question of privilege by New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas who said the remarks—if they could be said on a question of privilege: "I do not propose to discuss whether a slanderous lie stated by a preposterous mountebank who will seize upon anything in his desperation and that if a case of this kind occurs again outside the House I will take the matter to the courts myself."

Robert Coates (PC — Cumberland) and Mr. Pearson said threats have been made to the life of the wife and family of Conservative Speaker of a flag demonstration favoring the Red Ensign.

He also said only one Ottawa retail outlet would sell the Red Ensign and the rest apparently feared retaliation. That one retailer was also threatened and Mr. Pearson guarantees protection against boodlums!

Mr. Pearson said he'd had no personal threats. However, he said later none was on his life —but he would study Mr. Diefenbaker's statement and carry turn it over to police and Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

Finally, in a raucus hour devoted to private members' business:

Consumers Want Own Department

OTTAWA—(CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada wants the federal government to set up a separate department of consumer affairs under its own cabinet minister.

The 25,000-member organization passed a resolution to this effect Thursday at the closing session of its three-day annual meeting.

The recommendation followed a similar suggestion from Liberal MP Pauline Jewett who spoke to the annual banquet Wednesday night.

Miss Jewett, a former member of the association's national executive, told the 100 delegates that a separate consumer affairs department incorporating the federal food and drug directorate would be the most efficient way for government to protect the interests of the consumer.

The Liberal backbencher's suggestion received much enthusiasm by the delegates, who unanimously passed the resolution Thursday.

The proposal is not new. Several years ago, the association passed a resolution recommending that the department be organized as a branch of the justice department.

This is the first time, however, that it has asked for a separate federal department with its own cabinet minister.

One of the few open differences of opinion at the annual meeting developed over a resolution calling for uniform grading terminology on all food products.

The resolution called for all types of graded foods to be labelled either grade one, two or three—not labelled A, B, C, fancy and choice as is the case with some products now.

Delegates agreed with the principle of the resolution, but a few women felt the grading system should be grade one, two and standard.

After a lively debate, the resolution asking for the simple grades of one, two and three on all food products was passed by a narrow margin.

In other resolutions passed Thursday, the association endorsed a recommendation of the Porter royal commission on banking and finance that would make full disclosure of terms of conditional sales and cash loan transactions mandatory.

A resolution calling for a 72-hour "cooling off" period following the sign of time-payment contracts at one's door or at any "off-store" location was also unanimously approved.

Another resolution endorsed the principle that consumers should be protected from high interest rates on small loans.

Brazil, Ivory Coast and Morocco Likely Indo-China Conciliators

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Security Council President Arsenu Asouan Usher was expected to name Brazil the Ivory Coast and Morocco today to make an on-the-spot investigation of border troubles between Cambodia and South Viet Nam.

Usher, Ivory Coast's delegate, was holding formal consultations with other council members on the makeup of the study group. But diplomatic sources said the three countries had been agreed on.

The council called for the study Thursday in a resolution that also deplored South Vietnamese incursions into Cambodia, the subject of a Cambodian complaint that had been under debate since May 19.

The resolution, sponsored by the Ivory Coast and Morocco, was adopted unanimously. The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia voted for it after abstaining on the provision for a UN study group.

The council directed the three - nation group to report back within 45 days with recommendations of measures to prevent recurrence of the border incidents.

Cambodia's delegate Nisolai T. Fedorenko said he was abstaining on that provision because a UN study group was unnecessary.

Other parts of the resolution (1) deplored "incidents caused by the penetration" of South Vietnamese army units into Cambodia; (2) asked fair compensation for Cambodia; (3) invited "those responsible . . . to prevent any further violation of the Cambodian territory," and (4) requested "all states and authorities and in particular the members of the Geneva conference to recognize and respect Cambodia's neutrality and territorial integrity."

Ruling Upheld By House

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democrats accused the government of muzzling Parliament and of behaving like Hitler as they kept up their fierce but lonely fight against the Columbia River treaty in the Commons Thursday.

The NDP stood alone when it appealed a ruling that MPs cannot change the terms of the 1961 treaty with the United States and the protocol signed last January.

Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled that treaty-making is a prerogative of the federal cabinet. Parliament could only approve or oppose ratification of a treaty, it could not amend a treaty.

This ruling was upheld by a vote of 147 to 13. Mr. Lamoureux's ruling was backed by 80 Liberals, 55 Conservatives eight Creditistes and four Social Credit MPs, in opposition to the 13 New Democrats.

Before the ruling was made, NDP House Leader Hees accused the Liberals of denying Parliament the right to decide on the contents of the Columbia treaty. MPs were being told to vote yes or no and leave the rest to the executive branch of government.

RAISES PROTESTS

"What we are allowed to say about it (the treaty) is exactly what Hitler allowed the Reichstag to say before and after angry protests from Liberal and Conservative MPs.

"Hitler said you say "ja" or "nein;" they could say yes or no."

He said the Liberal government, in arguing against the admission of an NDP amendment to broaden the terms of the treaty, showed a wrong conception of the supremacy of Parliament.

"This is dictatorial arrogance of the very worst kind. This

Hot Debate On Flag At Regina

REGINA (CP)—The annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities wound up Thursday with a hot debate on whether Canada should choose a new flag in referendum.

A resolution from North Bay, Ont., proposing that a referendum be held on the flag question was overwhelmingly defeated.

Mayor C. H. Hewitt of North Bay kicked off the debate when he charged that "it's just a basic democratic procedure to have a plebiscite. We feel Canada as a whole should choose their flag.

"The federal government is a party to the government. It chooses the flag, we may have an election soon and have to stump the country when the government changes."

The resolution asked that five flags including the Red Ensign be submitted to the people in a referendum at the next general election. Only three delegates voted in favor.

DELEGATES SHOUT

During the debate, delegates attempted to shout down two speakers and Mayor Marcel d'Amour of Hull, Que., tried without success to move that discussion cease.

When all was done, Mayor C. N. Kushner of West Kildonan, Man., outgoing federation president, said: "Feelings were running pretty high. But I'm convinced that each and every man who went to the microphone was sincere and spoke as a Canadian."

Mayor A. A. Campbell of Toronto, who also seconded Mayor Hewitt's resolution and said the CFMM was a democratic body, had the right to discuss the flag question.

"It is my considered opinion that the fleur de lis with three maple leaves on top of it would be a symbol of Canada.

"The Red Ensign is a flag we have fought and died for but it is British. It is a take-off of the Union Jack. It is not a symbol of Canada, it is not a symbol of

Nixon, Scranton Shunning Any Stop-Goldwater Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two potential challengers of Senator Barry Goldwater in the Republican presidential nomination—Richard M. Nixon and Governor William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania — have announced they'll have no part of any stop-Goldwater drive.

Some Republican leaders who oppose Goldwater's candidacy have hoped that one or the other would leap into the Republican race, become the rallying point for a coalition and take the play from the Arizona conservative at the national convention.

But as Goldwater rested away from the political storm and his campaign manager appeared to be taking on more steam, Nixon, the party's standard-bearer in 1960, said on Long Island Thursday night he would not take part in any stop-Goldwater movement.

The former vice - president said such a movement would so badly split the party that whoever got the nomination would find it wasn't worth anything at all."

International Judge Is Proposed for Claims Board

WINNIPEG (CP)—An Indian conference suggested Thursday a judge from the international Court of Justice at The Hague be included on a proposed Indian claims commission.

The suggestion emerged during the second day of a three-day national conference to examine a bill which would establish a five-man commission to consider claims against the Crown on land, money and other matters.

The bill, along the lines of one in effect in the United States for about 100 years, was given first reading in Parliament last January.

The current claims conference, sponsored by the National Indian Council of Canada, was attended by 125 Indians from New Brunswick and every province west of it, considered the bill behind closed doors.

W. I. C. Wuttunee of Calgary, a lawyer and chief of the national council, reported "appointed" suggestions in an interview.

He said the conference also suggested the government pay for counsel for Indians making claims before the commission.

Paying for counsel would assure Indians would be represented by counsel and at the same time ensure lawyers would not be reluctant to act.

The conference also wanted to see a right of appeal to the supreme court established for Indians in the matter of claims.

Mr. Wuttunee said the bill as it stands provides that the appeal court for claims would be the Exchequer Court of Canada.

He said the bill also provides that notice of claims would have to be presented to the commission within two years of the time the set comes into force. The conference wants this period extended to 10 years.

Mr. Wuttunee said the suggestions committee made in the Indian tongue, will be transcribed and prepared in a report as soon as officials have time. A copy would be sent to Ottawa as well as to Indians.

Federal - provincial relations on Indian affairs administration was another topic for closed discussion.

Mr. Wuttunee said before these discussions that in some provinces, municipalities have been agreements whereby the federal government pays to the province the cost of certain Indian services.

Education was an example. Provincial curricula applied and education costs were paid by federal funds on the basis of school population.

He said that while many reserves in Canada have facilities such as telephones, electric power and good roads, reserves in parts of Ontario and the Prairies lack such services. Indians on reserves should be entitled to services available to other people in the areas of the reserves.

Thursday night the conference had a banquet and pow wow. The Royal Alexandra Hotel shook to the beating of drums and dancing.

Korean Colleges Closed

By ROBERT LIM

SEOUL (AP) — Kim Chong-pil, a chief target of the mounting student demonstrations in South Korea, resigned today as chairman of President Chung Hee Park's ruling Democratic Republican party.

Park accepted Kim's resignation in an effort to quiet the swelling public discontent. He also rejected a resignation from Kim during the weekend.

Kim, 37, was Park's right-hand man, former head of the secret police and a key plotter in the 1961 military coup that brought Park into power.

Park also ordered all colleges and universities in the country closed until July 4, a day before the start of the two-month summer vacation. Eighty-five schools with a total enrolment of 135,000 are affected. Leading universities had been the breeding ground for demonstrations which this week have raised the greatest challenge so far to Park's regime.

The government warned that it would take drastic police measures against any heads of schools whose students participated in future demonstrations.

HATED BY STUDENTS

As a leader in recent negotiations to restore normal relations with South Korea's one enemy, Kim was a particular object of student wrath. The current wave of protests first began last March to protest the talks with Japan.

Seoul remained quiet under martial law. But despite a government threat to arrest anyone violating martial law over the whole country, students demonstrated in five cities today. The worst outbreak occurred in Pusan, South Korean's second largest city. Police opened fire on the crowd for the first time in Pusan to break up a gathering of students at Pusan University.

Later, 1,000 rock - throwing students laid seige to a police station until reinforcements arrived. From the police station, some 500 students descended on the Pusan city hall, storming the building. About 40 or 50 were arrested.

A total of 2,500 high school students staged anti - government demonstrations in Kimchon, Chong Ju and Kwangju.

In Taegu, 17 law students continued a hunger strike they began Thursday, demanding the end of military rule in Seoul and the release of students arrested in earlier demonstrations.

TROOPS ON DUTY

Two divisions of troops enforced martial law in and around Seoul. Troops concentrated on roads leading to the

Webb Protests As Denison Gets Uranium Order

Says Contract Worded To Bar Small Mines

OTTAWA (CP) — Denison Mines Limited has won a $5,025,000 contract which is expected to keep some 500 uranium miners on their jobs for another year at Elliot Lake, Ont.

Trade Minister Sharp announced Thursday night that Denison got the order to supply 1,200,000 pounds of uranium oxide to the United States because it was the company that promised to provide the most working time by filling the order and by building up its own extra stockpile of uranium at its own expense.

The company will be filling out the undelivered part of an order that originally went to Gunnar Mines. The government will pay $4.18 a pound.

Since the contract has gone to only one firm, it means that possibly some 700 other miners will be laid off at other mines June 30, when the government's new — $25,000,000 — contract ends for uranium producers. They are in the Elliot Lake and Bancroft areas, of Ontario — where uranium producers have had mines facing closure when the government's stockpiling subsidy is ended.

Earlier in the Commons Thursday, Ged Webb (PC — Hastings - Frontenac) said the contract forms in connection with the uranium order ensure "are so worded that only the wealthy Consolidated Mines and Denison Mines can tender on these contracts."

He asked Prime Minister Pearson whether he would have prepared new contracts so that "our own small wholly - Canadian companies can tender on this contract."

Mr. Pearson said the offer was made in terms which did not discriminate against any producing mine.

Later, Mr. Webb, whose riding includes Bancroft, asked whether representations had been made to Mr. Pearson or the trade department from smaller mines stating their due to the wording of the forms it would be impossible for these small firms to tender.

"I have received representations," said Mr. Pearson. "The offer made to the producing mines was in a form to ensure that the maximum amount of employment would result from the successful bidder."

Mr. Sharp's statement said invitations to tender were mailed by the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited to the four mines still in operation.

Replies were received May 29. Denison was prepared to provide the greatest number of man-days employment — 150,- 000 — and was awarded the contract.

Delivery of the uranium is to be at the rate of 100,000 pounds a month between July 1, 1964, and June 30, 1965. The price of $4.18 per pound is the same as Gunnar would have received.

190 Bancroft Area Miners Are Now Looking for Jobs

One hundred and ninety of the 245 persons employed at the Bancroft area Faraday Mines scheduled to close at the end of June are now looking for other employment.

Cecil Hauser, manager of the employment office here, said that registration of the 190 workers had now been completed and job opportunities in the Bancroft area were being sought across Canada.

Approximately one third of the mine personnel are underground workers, the other 65 per cent being made up of workers, maintenance crew and office staff.

Inquiries from local employers listing job opportunities available are invited by the employment office.

Due to termination of the government's uranium stock-piling program production at the Bancroft mine will be ended. Underground work will cease at this end of June, followed by a gradual closing down of the mill and other operations.

Charge Poverty in Canada 'Myth' Continues to Stir Hot Debate

HAMILTON (CP)—An argument over the welfare state in Canadians continued, unabated Thursday as a Welfare Council official charged that Professor John Madden of the University of Saskatchewan "may be an economist but he obviously can't add up a family budget."

Professor Madden had told a seminar at a welfare conference on social work Tuesday that poverty in Canada was a "myth" created by social workers to give themselves something to do and by a sensational press seeking to increase circulation.

His statement came the day after announcement of a massive study of poverty which would cost $250,000. The announcement was made by Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of the Welfare Council, who made the statement about Professor Madden in an interview.

He said he hoped Professor Madden was speaking with tongue in cheek to stimulate discussion when he criticized the poverty study.

But in another interview, the professor said he had not put his tongue in his cheek, he meant every word and he still considered a family earning $2,000 annual income for a family of four the dividing line between being poor and being well enough off.

Mr. Baetz said Thursday that he knew of no research that poverty is a myth in an affluent society "is preposterous. He did not offer an alternative figure to professor Madden because $2,000 but said this is one of the reasons the Welfare Council wishes to carry out the study.

"We know there are poor but we have yet to find any figures the cutoff line is, who the poor are and where they are.

He added that anybody who considers $2,000 annual income adequate in this day, economist or otherwise, should be able to add up a family budget.

Professor Madden had said in his report that the cut-off rate is the $2,000 cutoff figure, only 18 per cent of Canadian families are poor and this did not rate a mammoth national study project.

Of Professor Maddens charge that the social workers were just trying to make jobs for themselves, Mr. Baetz said: "Of all the professions, social work is the one which more people are needed.

Last Freight Train Over Pinnacle Street Tracks Occasion for Celebration

June 18th, 1966, is the day Belleville has been waiting for.

That's the day when the final freight train will rumble down the Pinnacle street tracks and to observe the occasion a special railway week celebration is planned.

Yesterday final plans for the 22-23, were aired at a special meeting at city hall when the various events were outlined.

Included will be train rides behind the one remaining steam powered locomotive owned by CN, street dances, band concerts, a live "Tommy Hunter show", bands, a hootenany, boat races, horse racing, motor cycle racing and a symbolic track lifting ceremony on Pinnacle street.

Throughout the week a display of past and present railway equipment will be open for inspection at the north station.

Forty thousand official programs will be off the press on Monday ready for distribution during railway week.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

It is estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 persons will visit the city during the week-long celebrations with railway-minded people as far away as California, Texas and Florida coming in for the event.

Celebrations will get underway at noon on June 22nd with the Rotary Club entertaining the supplied children to noon luncheon at the Hotel Quinte.

Quite fittingly the kiddies will ride a special steam train from the north station to the hotel. Throughout the luncheon the train will remain parked on the tracks outside the hotel. It will be the last train ever to run up the Pinnacle Street track which have been a terrific bottle-neck for years.

Following the hotel luncheon Railway Week celebrations will mission.

officially get underway with a brief welcome from Hideaki Kanazawa, manager K. R. Hunt, at the entrance to the north station display area.

HOLD CIVIC DINNER

Monday evening the Belleville and District Real Estate Board will hold their annual civic dinner at Club Canada at which J. A. McDonald, vice-president of CN St. Lawrence Region, will be the guest speaker.

Throughout the week twice a day steam train runs will be made to Anson Junction was of Stirling, giving local school children the opportunity of enjoying a train ride.

Special steam train runs will also be made to Peterborough on Saturday, June 27th, and to Cobourg beach on Sunday, June 28th.

Yesterday at city hall Mayor Jack Ellis expressed his appreciation to railway week committee members who, he said, had come up with a "tremendous job".

Special committees representing the city and the railway co-operated in planning for railway week celebrations. Alderman Frank Murray headed up the city committee while K. P. Keating heading that for the railway.

Will Accept Ontario Post If Offered

TRENTON — Police Chief S. J. Taylor said today if the Ontario cabinet approved his appointment as a member of the board to the Ontario Police Commission, he intended to accept the appointment.

Attorney General Arthur Wishart yesterday confirmed that the commission had recommended the appointment of Chief Taylor, Chief I. E. Robertson of Sault Ste. Marie and Deputy Chief Robert Kerr of Toronto to a three-man advisory committee to the commission.

With a record of 30 years of service on the Trenton Police Force, Chief Taylor said today that it was with mixed feelings he had tentatively accepted the appointment but, that the position offered was a different job and a different challenge and that he was highly honored that the Ontario Commission had recommended him for the post.

TORONTO (CP) — R. Percy Milligan, Ontario Police Commission chairman, announced Thursday that three of 50 applicants for positions as advisory to the commission have been recommended to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The three are: Deputy Police Chief Robert Kerr, 60, of the Metropolitan Toronto force; Inspector Ernest Gladwell, assistant secretary of the Ontario Police Commission, and Chief Robertson is accepted for the position he will remain in Sault Ste. Marie as adviser on policing Northern Ontario.

The commission had first recommended Deputy Chief Kerr and Chief Taylor and provision for another $10,000 to $15,000 salaries was included in the attorney-general's department estimates in the last legislative session.

Chief Taylor, who has not yet turned in his resignation, was the Belleville police chief ever appointed in Ontario.

Nurse in Charge Of VON Branch Being Moved

TRENTON — Miss Anne Stewart, VON nurse in charge of the Trenton branch, has been appointed nurse-in-charge of the Frankford VON branch, and will take up duties at the four-nurses base in September.

Tonight, and tomorrow morning, 63 VON taggers will be out with Trenton taggers, soliciting the annual appeal for funds to the public. Tag day chairman is Mrs. Ken Thurlow. Taggers are branch members, C.G.I.T. members, Guides, Rover Scouts and Rangers.

In Middleton Park, James Giles is in charge of taggers. George Greer, president of the Trenton branch, former presidents Clare Finkle and Ralph Weaver will canvass hotels and downtown stores.

This year, the Trenton branch has moved to new quarters in the Ireland Block, and as the monthly rental, which, is understandably more than the $5 charged for the old quarters in the CNR station, needs greater operational funds. Hence, Mr. Greer has appealed to the public to be extra generous this year with the taggers.

Veterans Find Little Debris Of D-Day

CAEN (Reuters) — Another invasion of France began Thursday by men refuting D-Day—the storming of Hitler's Europe 20 years ago.

Former servicemen from Canada, the United States, Britain and France poured into this town Thursday in advance of the anniversary of the historic air-sea invasion of June 6, 1944.

The soldiers returning to Normandy found little of the debris of war. Instead of 9,000 houses razed to the ground he found a proud new town of wide streets, with orchards and gardens.

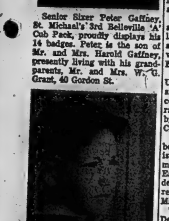
There were 'only the cemeteries and memorials to remind him of the battle for the Normandy coast which cost the invading force 4,132 lives on D-Day. Some 200,000 men stormed ashore in this Normandy area.

Delegations from the wartime allies will remember the dead late today in a search-light parade on the sands at Hermanville-sur-Mer.

BRADLEY ON HAND

Gen. Omar Bradley heads the U.S. delegation which today will attend a service at the British cemetery at Bourvre-la-Deliverance. He will be accompanied by Deputy Defence Secretary Cyrus Vance.

Canada's representatives will be led by Veterans Affairs Minister Ralph Tellier, while the minister of defence for the navy, Earl Jellico, heads Britain's delegation. France will be represented by Veteran Affairs Minister Jean Sainteny.



The cemetery at Bourvre-la-Deliverance is on the eastern flank of the 90-mile assault area stretching from the foot of the Cherbourg peninsula in the West, where U.S. troops landed, to the Caen Canal area in the east, where British and Canadian troops with a group of French commandoes, made their onslaught.

There will be a ceremony this evening at the Canadian cemetery at Beny - sur - Mer, where Canadian troops landed with British troops.

One of the main attractions at the 20th anniversary celebrations will be the opening of a commemorative museum at Ste. Mere Eglise, built in the shape of a glider plane topped by a Dakota roof in the form of an open parachute.

Airstrip East Of City Used By U. S. Plane

The Jim Marker-owned Belleville airstrip east of the city this morning had its second visit of the year by an American-owned executive aircraft.

The plane, owned by Stephens-Adamson Company of Aurora, Illinois, brought in three company plant engineers on a visit to their Canadian plant in Belleville.

It was the second visit to the field this year for the American plane, which last week also brought in company officials. Last year the company plane landed at Picton or Trenton, but the Belleville field is found much more convenient.

This morning's 600-mile trip from Aurora was covered in 2 hours and 46 minutes. Besides Pilot Don Beck, the 310 Cessna plane carried R. C. Newkirk, assistant chief engineer; R. Herren, shops superintendent, and Mac Gilberto, electrical engineer, all from the Aurora headquarters plant.

Delegates from 60 to 70 nations in all parts of the world are expected to attend the week - long affair.

The club was born in Chicago in 1905 and became "international when the Rotary Club of Winnipeg was formed five years later. Today there are 370 clubs in Canada with nearly 20,000 members. More than 170 of these clubs are in Ontario and Rotary Club of Toronto is the largest of these with 465 members.

Other major addresses to be given during the convention will include one by Prime Minister Pearson Monday and Carlos P. Romulo, former Philippine ambassador to the United Nations, Wednesday.

BLAST KILLS FOUR

PAISLEY, Scotland (Reuters) Four men were killed and four others injured today when an explosion destroyed a four-storey building at a factory here. One man is missing. Cause of the blast was not known.

Firemen busy pouring water on Bell-Trent Drive-In Restaurant on Trent Road, which was destroyed by fire late Thursday evening with loss of $30,000.

Bell-Trent Drive-In Burns, Loss Estimated at $30,000

A fire of unknown origin caused an estimated $30,000 damage and left a family homeless last night about six miles west of Belleville, on Highway No. 2.

Provincial Police Officer Constable T. Hulme, who was passing in the vicinity of the Bell-Trent Drive-in Restaurant, about 11.30 p.m., noticed the restaurant on fire.

He turned in an alarm to the Belleville fire department. The officer then proceeded to awaken the occupants of a cabin adjoining the restaurant, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lyndle, and their nine-year-old son, Tommy.

He awoke the family and carried Timmy to safety.

However, by the time the fire department was summoned, the blaze had gotten well under way. When the firemen arrived it was almost certain that the building was a total loss.

Upon arriving at the scene, Fire Chief Gerald Vance turned in an emergency call to the Sidney township fire department, who sent a pumper to the scene.

A truck from the RCAF Station at Trenton also assisted.

A second pumper was called from the Belleville department. Because of the lack of water in the area a portable pumper had to be set up in a pond at the rear of the building.

The building was owned by Bruce Culver of 4 Vine Crescent, Belleville. The Lyndle family were unable to save any of their personal possessions.

It is believed the blaze broke out near the centre of the building in the vicinity of the coffee urns and spread quickly through the remainder of the building.

Firemen remained at the scene until after two this morning.

Beatles Minus Ringo Set Off Near Riots

COPENHAGEN (AC) — The Beatles — minus Ringo Starr — flew to Copenhagen Thursday and set off near-riots by thousands of teen-agers in the wildest demonstrations of fan frenzy ever seen in the Danish capital.

Girls shaking and sobbing with delight repeatedly tried to storm the stage at an evening concert by the English singers but were hustled back to their seats by hefty ushers.

Police brought dogs to subdue a crowd of yelling youngsters jamming a square outside the K. B. Hall about two miles from the centre of the city. They also sent motorcycles with sirens screaming along the sidewalks.

Earlier, thousands of teenagers struggled with police on the sidewalk outside the British singers' hotel.

POLICE SUFFER

Police with linked arms were almost submerged under an avalanche of youngsters screaming and chanting:

"We want the Beatles."

The mop-headed Liverpool singers, accompanied by a substitute for their sick drummer Ringo Starr, were under close escort from the moment they stepped off a jet airliner from London into a jungle of shrieking voices and waving arms.

Ringo collapsed during a photographic session in London Wednesday and now is under treatment in a hospital for bronchitis. He is expected to be fit enough to rejoin the group in Hong Kong.

Third Epidemic Wave of Typhoid Hits Aberdeen

ABERDEEN (Reuters)—This typhoid-stricken Scottish port today resided under the impact of a third epidemic wave which the chief health office warned could become a national disaster.

By Thursday night the number of cases mounted to 334—an increase of 33 on the previous night.

There were other cases reported in Aberdeen County, Banffshire, Arbroath, Edinburgh, Dundee, Glasgow Stirling, Inverness and in the English towns of Tring in Hertfordshire and Walthamstow near London.

The Aberdeen medical health officer Dr. Ian MacQueen, said Thursday "I think that if this is not checked in Aberdeen, there is a possibility that it could become a national disaster."

Divorce Action Cleaned up in Supreme Court

SARNIA (CP) — A "bizarre and almost incredible" case ended in Supreme Court Thursday when Mrs. Jean Eleanor Stinson of Watford, about 20 miles east of here, was granted a judgment nisi in a divorce action in which she had been deluded into believing she had a judgment absolute more than a year ago.

It was a case which led to a nine - month prison term for former London, Ont., lawyer Earl H. Slater, who pleaded guilty in Kingston magistrate's court April 28 to uttering a forged judgment absolute. The sentence was consecutive to one of five years imposed on him last year for theft by conversion of trust funds.

Mrs. Stinson consulted Slater, her brother-in-law, in 1961, asking him to institute divorce proceedings against her husband, Reuben Stinson, naming Mrs. Madeline Turner as corespondent.

"The circumstances which followed," said Mr. Justice W. D. Parker in his summation of the case, "are most bizarre and almost incredible."

"The plaintiff consulted a solicitor for a divorce and he, without taking any steps to secure a divorce, misled her into thinking that a divorce had been secured.

"In fact a forged judgment nisi and judgment absolute were produced and are before the exhibits. Subsequently the plaintiff and the co-defendant in a second (alleged) action went through a form of marriage on March 30, 1962, and they have lived together as man and wife ever since."

The co-defendent referred to by Mr. Justice Parker is Harold Newton of Watford, who was named with Mrs. Stinson in a divorce action brought by Reuben Stinson. This action was dismissed Thursday when a judgment nisi was granted Mrs. Stinson in her action.

Construction Pace in May Slightly Below Last Year

Due, possibly to a relatively high construction pace maintained throughout the past winter, employment in the construction fields during May was slightly down from a year ago.

Several new building projects are coming up in the area, however, and it is expected the present "lull" will be only temporary.

At the moment, however, carpenters are readily available with 41 tradesmen in this category currently looking for work with the employment service.

The overall employment picture in the Belleville area shows there were 1,363 persons, 901 male and 462 girls and women, looking for work at the end of May.

This is down 190 or eight percent lower than at the end of May last year.

JOB SEEKERS DOWN

Compared with April the number of job seekers is down 26 percent, with job placements showing a continued increase over 46 per cent.

Claimants are down to 788 or 13 percent below the same time last year. The number of claimants is reduced considerably from the winter period as the result of seasonal benefits ending on May 16.

Of the 1363 persons job hunting as of May 31st, down to 300—103 male and 196 girls and women—were looking for clerical positions. 77 men and 13 women were registered for sales promotions and 126 for service occupations.

In the unskilled categories there were 243 men and 129 women looking for work.

MANY FIND POSITIONS

While close to 500 unskilled workers are without jobs, trainees who took re-training courses under the Canada-Ontario Provincial Program 5 at the Quinte Secondary School, have been largely successful in finding positions.

Employment office officials state that only possibly three or four of the original 20 who took the building maintenance courses are not working. All the welders are working, and about half of those taking commercial courses have been placed by the employment service.

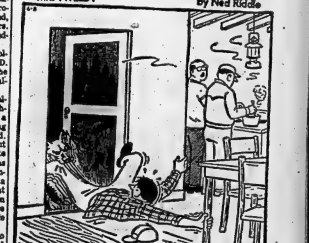
Man Arrested For Assault Upon His Wife

TRENTON—A Trenton man, Richard Scuccato, is in custody in the county jail at Belleville, charged with assault, with the intent to wound or disfigure, following an incident in the family court building on Elgin Street, Wednesday.

The man's wife was taken to Trenton hospital by Rushnell Ambulance, following the incident, suffering from blows to the face and wounds inflicted with a sharp instrument.

Probation officer Dennis Atkins had left for lunch on Wednesday, when a woman entered the family court building and asked Mr. Atkins' secretary if she could see the probation officer. A moment later the woman's husband entered the building and attempted to persuade the woman to return home with him. As the couple were speaking partly in English and partly in Italian, Mr. Atkins' secretary could not make out exactly what was being said. She told police later that the man suddenly started to beat his wife about the face and when she saw blood on the woman's face she put in a call to the police station.



Mr. Atkins said today that the man would be given a psychiatric examination.

A Revolution of the Mind

Tuesday California spoke. What it said will alarm some, amaze others, delight a few and should be ignored by none.

What is so important about a primary election in one of fifty states of the Union, an election in which only some two million people went to the polls, in which the vote was close, which does not necessarily decide who the Republicans will pick for a presidential candidate, with this candidate, whoever he may be, unlikely to win the election against the popular Lyndon Johnson?

The answer is simple. To quote a pre-election summation by James Reston, distinguished political commentator for the New York Times, "the important thing is not what Rockefeller and Goldwater have said in California, but what California says to the nation." And the world!

What California has said, for all to hear, is that in the most populous state of the most powerful nation on earth, a majority of politically-conscious adults of a conservative turn of mind approve the peculiar mixture of anachronistic ideals and unrealistic dreams which Goldwater espouses.

In the words of Reston again, they believe they "can follow the states' right view of the South about the Negro, the habits of the individualistic Western frontiersman about Cuba and Vietnam, the habits of the commercial community about jobs and economic growth and the habits of the insurance companies about the problems of old age."

Translated into the official policies of the world's most powerful state and applied to international affairs, such views could hardly help but produce perilous times.

For instance, for the Western frontiersman's six-shooter, Senator Goldwater would substitute atomic bombs, low-yield ones, it is true, but still as capable of setting off a world-wide conflagration as of defoliating the jungles of South East Asia.

What makes this situation frightening to many is that Goldwater is no hill-billy politician from some Ozark community, but a genuine intellectual, likeable, knowledgeable, energetic and sincere. Many of his supporters, we may be sure, are men of lesser worth, but many of those who support him are of an intellectual capacity equal to their own, able to make their convictions plausible, to give them the appearance of high-minded principles and courage.

That these principles, this courage, would spell disaster in our times is something almost impossible to prove until after the event, but it seems like a fearful probability to many other men of equal intellectual capacity but different habits of mind.

And today there is little that separates Goldwater's principles from becoming the official policy of one of the two great political parties in the U.S., with the only thing barring the elevation of this policy to national status being a party which, when all is said and done, is a curious hodge-podge of white racists, rural poorwhites, union labor and a seasoning of liberals of every shade, from lily-white to deep pink.

How About Law Enforcement Week?

The British disappoint us.

Three radio pirate stations are operating, two on ships outside the three-mile limit but a third in an abandoned military fortress in Kent.

At least the latter is contrary to the law.

But people seem to like the programs and so a parliamentary lobby is believed to have talked the government out of moves to silence these stations, in other words to enforce the law.

It always seemed to us that the way to get rid of bad laws was to enforce them.

We admit that there are so many bad laws that we are often grateful the police do not always enforce them.

But what is pleasant in practice is, we think, still wrong in theory.

We have dozens and dozens of "weeks." Why not a law enforcement week, in which every law on the statute books would be enforced to the letter?

The ideal time to hold such a week would be just before an election.

And we could require members of the appropriate legislative body, responsible for the law infringed, to lay the information.

We bet that would get some action in removing some of these laws from the statute books.

A Burmese pastor, urging his flock to listen carefully to what the visiting American missionary had to say, cautioned them to remember:

Knowledge Of Relationship Is Leadership

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Somebody was asking me about a college professor he had many years ago, who wondered why he could never provoke a discussion period in class after a lecture.

When the talk was over, the professor would slump down in his seat and say, "Are there any intelligent questions?" Then he would shake his head at the apathy of his students until the bell rang for dismissal.

Who would accept a challenge of that kind? It is hard enough to ask any questions from someone who is an expert in his field, without feeling like a fool. And to respond to the demand that it be an "intelligent" question is more than most of us feel up to.

This story ties in with a recent column, in which I remarked that "knowledge of itself" has little to do with being able to communicate it to others on the personal level. The effective teacher, I suggested, is not necessarily the one who is in possession of the most facts on a subject, but the one who can transmit his knowledge and evoke a spirited response.

It is not merely the area of education that suffers from this lack. In business, one of the biggest impediments is the inability to communicate ideas, and to stimulate fruitful debate between different branches and departments of a company.

From what I have heard and read, one of the chief problems of management is keeping the channels of information and understanding open among different branches of the same firm. We have created a splendid corps of highly trained specialists — but the fatal weakness in specialism is that it too often fails to grasp the relationship between its own work and the work of others.

Yet, in business as in education, it is the knowledge of the relationships that constitutes true leadership. A professor who doesn't know anything psychology to involve his students in a discussion period is a bad professor; no matter how deeply he knows his subject. And an executive who can't communicate between departments and to other, is a bad executive, no matter how "efficiently" he runs his own department.

"Intelligent questions," in fact are the ones that least need to be asked. The intelligent questions are made by the crippled children who are inmates of the John Groom Cripplage in London, Eng., and shipped to all parts of the Empire for use on the tag day.

Will Give Up Nothing More

Ottawa Journal

Zoologists at the Philadelphia Zoo have been conducting observations on the heart attacks. They discovered the highest rate of death from heart attack was among males that lived in cages in which the number of males and females was equal. The next highest rate was among males in cages containing twice as many females as males. The only females that got heart attacks were those in cages in which there were twice as many males as females. The death rate from all causes was higher, among males, in the mixed groups than in the sexually segregated groups. Death rate among females seemed to depend on the size of the group they lived in, the bigger the group the faster they died.

The troubles with studies of this kind is that they start off with chickens, or three toed sloths and the next thing we know they are being applied to people. We are already being urged to prolong our lives by giving up fatty foods, by giving up cigarettes, by giving up alcohol. But enough giving up is enough.

Cannot Vary Money Policy

Montreal Gazette

Mr. Louis Rasminsky, the Governor of the Bank of Canada, has, in very careful and moderate words, given his reply to those who have suggested that monetary policy should be conducted from time to time to reflect the differences in regional, or provincial, circumstances.

The argument had been raised that credit policies of the different parts of the country should vary, in accordance with arrangements about regional needs. Mr. Rasminsky makes clear certain things which sound monetary policy is one of them — are not broken up into sections. They are the work of a central government. Only such a government can exercise them in the only way they can be exercised: in a "broad and generalized" way.

It is not possible, in such a matter as monetary policy, to cut a country up into areas. Capital will move to the best advantage.

Suppose some area has a particular need for credit — or for cheap money — and suppose a central bank was able, by some means, to lower interest rates in that area. This would not mean that this area would have more money for investment. Quite the contrary. Money would go — or away from it, to other areas where the interest rate on investment was higher, leaving that area worse off for capital than it was before.

This is not to say that a central bank should not be deeply interested in economic conditions in all regions. But it has to deal with the country as a whole. "Monetary policy is general and pervasive in its effects." says Mr. Rasminsky. It cannot be brought to bear directly on the problems of particular regions or particular industries as it might be.

There is a very real need for regional economic efforts and policies. They do what the broad centralized policies cannot do. But it is also true that the broad centralized policies can do for a country what no local policies can ever do: they can aid the stability of the value of money, and they can help maintain a sound external financial position, a matter of great importance in a country like Canada, exceptionally dependent on foreign trade.

There are some powers that simply cannot, and should not, be regionalized: and the monetary powers of the Bank of Canada it's among them.

Time Trouble On Prairies

Winnipeg Tribune

Elsewhere in Canada an inquiry of the time of day evokes only a civil answer, but on the prairies it may evoke a punch in the nose. Tourists entering Saskatchewan or Alberta should be warned that when they cross these provinces they enter a sort of no-man's-land where the time of day is a religion. In Alberta, by fiat, it is Mountain Standard Time. For any city councillor, town council or whatever to fool around with Daylight Saving Time is to risk fine or jail or both. The time it was passed a decade ago by a farmer-dominated legislature to keep the cities from going on Daylight Saving Time with the rest of the country.

Every year or so the Calgary and Edmonton members of the legislature take a mild run at amending the law. They are howled down. The truth is that Calgary and Edmonton need daylight saving much less than Windsor or Ottawa for it stays daylight there most of the summer.

In Saskatchewan, however, it is not only Daylight Time that is the principle; it is quasi-religious. It is so complicated there that they can hardly agree what the problem is. Regina and Saskatoon are two provinces. Each has its own capital. Each has its own boosters. Each has its own inferiority complex. Each has its own public debt. The time argument is split down the middle. Regina is on Mountain Standard Time. Saskatoon is on Central Standard Time. Between them is what was Mountain Standard Time 12 months a year. On the west the people will take up arms against Central Time and want Mountain Time the year around.

The fast time, in the west, sends children out on the roads in the dark to catch school buses in the winter. It always seems colder waiting for a bus in the dark than in daylight. Between these extremes are communities who go on Standard Time in winter and Daylight in the summer. The most unbelievable mix-ups occur between these areas and the boundaries of all this potential confusion.

As the rest of the country prepares to go on Daylight Saving Time, Saskatchewan prepares for another season of confusion.

The large cities will probably go on Daylight Time but even that is by no means certain. In the cities and large business firms put the decision up to their employees and the majority decides. Inside a big office building to five, these firms usually vote to work from eight to four. For industrial workers this makes good sense. With Western Canada on Daylight Time, Mondays when they go to lunch when the Alberts and British Columbia employees are just coming to work and eastern employees are gone for the day back from lunch.

In such circumstances the whole direct-dialling gambit has failed in vain. To phone is for anybody in one office to somebody in the other office wants to talk to them.

Recovery From a Stroke Is Long-Drawn-Out Process

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is recovering from a stroke of four months ago. It affected his right side. His cane walk a little but his hand is quite useless, painful and useless. Is the swelling normal or can something be done about it? — Mrs. F.

He doesn't seem as good as when he was discharged from the hospital. He goes back twice a week for physical therapy and I am wondering if this is worth the effort. — Mrs. C. B.

When a stroke affects one side, as a rule the leg regains its mobility to function sooner than the hand, so for goodness' sake don't start getting discouraged now. Recovery from a stroke is a long process, and with a severe one, such as his, we can't expect total recovery. But let's look at the positive, not the negative side. What you do want is the greatest amount of recovery.

Four months is too soon to try to foresee how much will be possible. Neither should he be unduly discouraged because "he doesn't seem as good as when he was discharged from the hospital." Even in perfect health we have our ups and downs. In this case, there can be added discouragement because your husband doesn't think he is recovering as fast as he think he should. The pain and helplessness of his hand is a constant depressing him, and this is cumulative.

Yet he may be (and probably is) improving basically.

The swelling tends to disappear with time and with gradual resumption of movement.

Discontinuing physical therapy would be unwise. Following the paralysis of a stroke, he has to "re-learn" to use his muscles. This applies, right now mainly to his walking and to his hand and perhaps part of his arm, he can't do a great deal yet with the re-learning process, but the physical therapy will keep the idle muscles from losing their tone and shrinking.

So he should continue the therapy even though at the moment he has no way of appreciating its benefit.

I urge strongly that he think in terms of more, rather than less therapy. Ask the therapist for two sessions (or even exercises) that you can use at home, so that little something will be done there each day in addition to the intensive treatment twice a week at the hospital.

What the therapist suggests may seem very small and not important, but don't be deceived. Even a little improved every day, can mount into a lot as the days and weeks pass.

Remember this: What you do in the first months after a stroke can be of so much value (even if it seems to make so little at the time) that it will be greater by far than the most highly-skilled treatment a year or two later.

Okinawans Are Restless

Christian Science Monitor

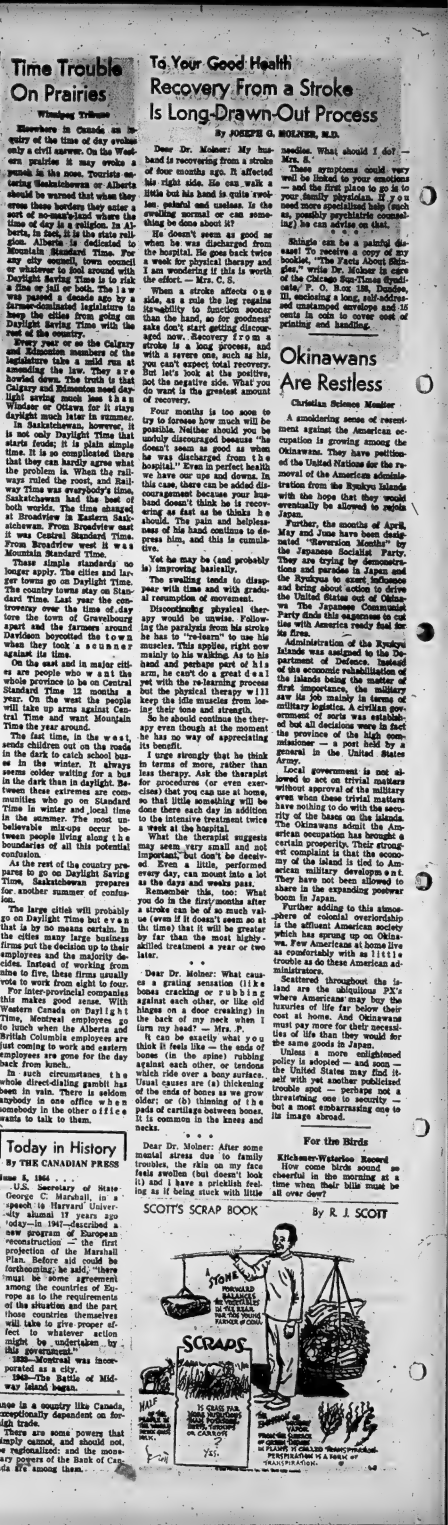
A smoldering sense of resentment against the American occupation is growing among the Okinawans. They have petitioned the United Nations for the removal of the American administration from the Ryukyu Islands with the hope that they would eventually be allowed to rejoin Japan.

Further, the months of April, May and June have been designated "Struggle Months" by the Japanese Socialist Party. They are trying by demonstrations and speeches in Japan and the Ryukyus to exert influence and bring about action to drive the United States out of Okinawa. The Japanese Communist Party has this aggravess to cut ties with America ready and set its force.

Administration of the Ryukyu Islands was assigned to the Department of Defense. Instead of the economic rehabilitation of the islands being the matter of first importance, the military are led to make the study of military logistics. A civilian government of sorts was established, but the military remain the chief the province of the high commissioner — a post held by a general in the United States Army.

Local government is not allowed to act on internal matters without approval of the military even when these trivial matters have nothing to do with the security of the bases on the islands. The Okinawans admit the American occupation has brought certain prosperity. Their strongest complaint is that the economy of the island is tied to American military developments. They have not been allowed a share in the expanding postwar boom in Japan.

Further adding to this atmosphere of colonial overlordship is the affluent American society which has spread over the area. Few Americans at home live as comfortably with as little trouble as do these American administrators.



Scattered throughout the island are the quarters of "Pax" where Americans may buy the luxuries of life far below their cost at home. Okinawans must pay more for their necessities of life than they would for the same goods in Japan.

Unless a more enlightened policy is adopted — and soon — the United States may find itself with yet another publicized trouble spot — perhaps not a threatening one to security — but a most embarrassing one to its image abroad.

Unwed Mothers To Be Studied At University

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A study of unwed mothers that may result in earlier sex education at local schools and give a better understanding of the social forces causing an increase in illegitimate birth rates is being conducted at the University of Western Ontario.

Dr. Wearing said Thursday the project is the first such comprehensive study made in Canada. A group of 50 unmarried pregnant girls, varying in age from 13 to 20, will be asked to answer a lengthy questionnaire while a control group of married mothers in the same age group will also be studied.

Miss Mary Ann McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire, 18 West Moira Street, graduated May 25th from the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing. Mary Ann was a graduate of Nicholson College.

Will Study Family Life At Meeting

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Mme. Georges Vanier said Thursday that the increasing freedom of modern youth and the decline of old traditions had created unbold strains on family life in Canada.

The Governor-General's wife, speaking to a reporter about the Canadian Conference on the Family which begins here Sunday, said that all Canadians must be made aware of the vital importance of family life to the individual and to the nation.

Mme. Vanier said the four-day conference, which will bring together 300 delegates from all parts of Canada to study the problems of family life, had its beginnings about three years ago in a private conversation between her and the Governor-General.

"We began to think of what legacy we might leave behind for Canada when we left Government House and after a lot of thought decided that an inquiry into the various problems of family living might be useful.

"The response was immediate. As soon as the conference was announced, everyone wanted to participate."

AIMS ARE BASIC

The aims of the conference are basic ones—the Governor-General and his wife and others who helped to plan it hope to stimulate Canadians to a deeper awareness and better understanding of the vital importance of family life to the individual and to the nation.

"We also hope that the conference may be followed by something else, perhaps the setting up of a foundation or research centre as a point of contact for all the ideas which will be expressed."

The conference was not intended to provide definite answers to the various problems of the family, Mme. Vanier said, it would be a beginning for further research in the field.

Mme. Vanier said it was an emphasis on the spiritual values needed to hold families together would go hand in hand with the various sociological studies to be presented at the conference.

"There seems to be so little today to uplift the minds of young Canadian families.

"Our leaders are afraid to be called backward — they are afraid to stand up for spiritual ideals because they think young people will reject them."

Granny Seymour 15 Years Older Than Canada

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Granny Seymour, about 15 years older than Canada, celebrates a birthday today.

Most of her friends figure it's her 113th.

It appears to be of little consequence to Granny, born Margaret Boucher to an Indian princess and a Hudson's Bay Company trader at Fort St. James in the then colony of British Columbia.

Whatever age she is, she says, it's "wonderful, just wonderful."

Then she carries on with the sewing—without the use of spectacles—that has occupied her time most days for the last few years.

She has received two telegrams—one from the Queen which says her birthday is a "further milestone in your long life," and one from Prime Minister Pearson which says she has "indeed attained an outstanding age."

Granny has a certificate showing that she was baptized by one Rev. H. McGuigan at Stuart Lake on June 5, 1860. The certificate said she was born "1855-1856."

Trader Boucher must have had quite a life because it is recorded that there were 22 girls in his family. Granny survived them all and all but one of her 13 children. It is said she has 100 relatives throughout the province.

IODE Chapters to Hold Reception for New Citizens

Twenty-two members and two visitors enjoyed a pot-luck supper at the home of Mrs. W. Slade for the last regular meeting of the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. before the summer recess. The program features took the form of a picture and trans-Canada tour beginning with a view of the Red Ensign flying over Victoria Harbor in B.C. and ending with a midnight picture of the supply ship arriving in Cartwright with Labrador. These pictures which portrayed the characteristic features of each province from west to east, had been taken by the members of the Chapter or their families. Mrs. C. Whittemore, the educational secretary, had arranged them, and had shown them at the adopted school on Command wealth Day, May 18th. On this occasion, Mrs. Whittemore presented the I.O.D.E. Reader's Awards cresta to four pupils of the senior grades. At this meeting, authority was given to her to purchase books for prizes to be awarded to the top pupil of each grade at the end of the school year.

The regent, Mrs. R. C. Ellis, extended an invitation from Judge J. C. Anderson to all the members of the Chapter to attend the Citizenship Court in the courthouse on Thursday, June 25th. A reception for those receiving their citizenship papers is held following the Court, and is hosted jointly by the Argyll and St. Julien Chapters.

An announcement was made that the tea and shooting of art at the home of Mrs. S. Evans, originally planned for this month, has had to be postponed until July — date to be announced later. In its place the Chapter voted to have a bake sale on June 12th.

Convenors were appointed to arrange for the tea and auction sale of celebrities' items to be held early in October, Mrs. H. Thompson presented the report of the St. Julien Chapter's spring meeting held at Picton. Illustrated brochure was circulated showing plans for the new I.O.D.E. Children's Centre to be established in a wing of the North York General Hospital.

A letter was read from headquarters urging chapters to assist in the I.O.D.E. Centenary dividends with all local organ-project and to co-operate as in-sitions in their plans for celebrating Canada's Centenary.

Pupils of Esther Hughes Give Recital for Relatives

By EUGENE LANG

The annual recital of the Esther Hughes Ballet School took place last evening in the Belleville Recreation Hall on Pinnacle Street — before an audience of proud parents and relatives of the twenty young dancers, who staged a two-hour program of theory and technique followed by a ball hour of costumed ballet.

Esther Hughes took over the school a year ago from its founder and member of the ensemble explained, that those in attendance saw many intricate and devious posturings that are the building blocks for developing the youthful ballerina and demonstrating the many positive body movements in the various grades from one to four. From the most elementary and basic fundamentals of the very beginner through to the more advanced and difficult requirements of the higher grades each student had opportunity to exhibit her result of practice and constant application from her knowledgeable instruction under the capable guidance of Miss Hughes.

There were a few instances of bogged down, but this was more attributable to the nonpet dancers, naturally because they were present and their little minds were more interested in watching their parents' pleasant eyes of approval than paying attention to their instructress. Those in the medium grades were performing with their best, although most of them' falterings did not detract somewhat, stripped floor at times and concomitant nervous excitement — all these were contributory causes.

PARENTS INFORMED

Mrs. Hughes commentaries added to the program being informed just what was going on in regard to the various steps, positions and body manoeuvres, by the children as each type of technical work and theoretical characterization was put into use. Every parent must have left with the feeling that their young dancing children were being given a sound foundation in the art of the ballet.

Piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. Alfred Mills and Miss Barbara Jones assisted Esther Hughes during the course of the recital.

Those taking part in last evening's program consisted of Barbara Jones and Mary Elizabeth Andrews (holding Grade Three Certificates); Heidi Hendren, Linda Noakes, Patricia Carson, Penelope Wright, Cathy Fox and Krystyna Bezman (holding Grade Three Certificates); Lynne Jewell, Sandra Morton and Marilyn May (holding Grade Two Certificates); Linda McCoy, Angelica Bonk, Loretta Fleming, Dawn Hoag and Barbara Harvie (holding Grade One certificates); Mary Wonnacott, Gail Anne Bonk, Dorothy Mattinson and Dorothy Sager.

Tyro, Sigma-C Groups Hold Joint Banquet

On Monday evening the Tyro and Sigma-C banquet was held in College Hill United Church with the boys and their parents, numbering 84, sat down to a hearty meal.

Mr. Don Vance told something of the importance of the Tyro program and Mr. Carman Sine spoke of the significance of the Sigma-C program in the life of the intermediate boy.

The guests were welcomed by Bill Gordon, president of the Sigma-C and Jim Hughes expressed thanks to the ladies for serving the banquet after which the Sigma-C song was sung. Rev. Roy Vessey spoke briefly of the aims of Christian education and how the Tyro and Sigma-C and the church school help the parents in the hours with the Christian training of the boys.

It was announced that next fall a Tuxis group will be started for boys 15 to 17 and in November the Christian Youth Counsellors convention for the Quinte area will be held in College Hill United Church with Rev. Ken Hamant. A selection of hymns was sung accompanied by Mrs. Lorne Bonisteel at the piano.

The Sigma-C boys entertained the guests with a fashion show assisted by Mrs. D. Watson and Mr. Don Vance with Donald Dandelin as commentator. The boys gave a funny caricature of the Beatles.

Brian Blaisdell expressed thanks to the parents for attending after which Mr. Vessey pronounced Benediction.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

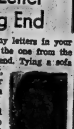
PATRICIA LEWIS

'MAIL CALL'

Question: When introducing people to each other, I often say something about where they live or what they do to help them start off a conversation. This, according to my husband, is unnecessary and he feels that introduc ¶ should be made without any qualifying remarks. What do you have to say about this matter? — Mrs. B. L., Troy, N. Y.

Answer: Usually only names are mentioned when introducing people socially. If two people have something in common they may both raise eyebrows, for instance, or both are avid fishermen — and it's particularly possible to mention it after the introduction is made to get the conversational ball rolling. However, professional affiliations are not given as a matter of course when a lady is introduced. Merely social and has no business overtones.

Question: My husband and I have been having what is correct in the following situation: A widowed friend was in town recently and we invited her to have dinner with us in a restaurant. When we were shown to our table I indicated the w a to take the place at my husband's right. I sat to his left. He then took the seat at my right. Our guest struggled out of hers unassisted, but my husband turned to the waitress and ordered her to cover the back of her chair. I think he should have helped our guest first, but he insists that a man should always assist his wife or date first and anyone else takes second place. What is correct in this situation? — Mrs. R., Newark, N. Y.



Answer: In a business like this, where a man is escorting his wife and a woman guest, I think it only proper that he help the guest first, especially if she happens to be an older woman. As a rule, a man usually takes care of his wife's needs first, but when husband and wife are entertaining a woman friend, I think both should try to defer to her in the little courtesies, since she does not have an escort of her own to play the gallant.

Faked Pregnancy Letter Described as Living End

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've read many letters in your column which seem to be extraordinary, but the one from the woman who faked pregnancy was the living end. Tying a sofa cushion around her middle is one kind of felony, but the fact that she was able to fool him for five months is proof that he, too, must be a loon.

Really, now, Ann, if her husband can't tell chicken feathers from chicken fat he is just too blamed dumb to be a father. Between you and me and your 80 million readers, maybe it is best that there is no baby on the way. — RICHARD B.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR RICHARD — Your statement that "he is too blamed dumb to be a father" is interesting, since this is one achievement which requires no brains whatever. . .

I agree that both these characters sound as if they don't have one working brain cell between 'em which is why I did not recommend adoption.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you settle something? Last night I was out with a gentleman. As we alighted from a taxi he spotted a quarter on the floor of the cab. He didn't think I saw him pick the coin up and slip it into his pocket.

I decided not to let him get away with it and told him straight away that he should have given the quarter to the driver. He became defensive and insisted that the quarter did not belong to the driver — that it had most assuredly dropped out of the pocket of a previous fare.

This man is a lawyer and I wish you could have heard the case he built for himself — "possession is nine points of the law, etc." It was ridiculous.

Will you please size up the situation and tell me how it looks to you? — KATE.

DEAR KATE — The quarter may have been dropped by a previous fare, but one thing is certain, it did not belong to your legal eagle.

Tell the last of The Red Hot Spenders that he wins the Skinflint Award for the month of June — Chesapeake Division.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please don't think I'm a screwball because I'm using this bright orange paper. I want to attract your attention.

My husband and I have been married 25 years. He is well-educated, intelligent, and neat about his person, but he is a packrat. All our married life I have had to plow through tons of magazines, assorted trash, odds and ends from his Navy days.

The yard looks like the city dump. He has parts of old cars, lawn statues that he bought at junk yards, and second hand toys he hopes to repair one day. I have given up trying to raise flowers and shrubs. It's hopeless.

I am ashamed to have friends over because of the way our yard looks. Our children are ashamed too. I have pleaded with my husband but he is deaf on the subject. If I throw anything out there is war.

You seem to have the answers for so many people. Can you help me? — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — No man has the right to turn his home and yard into a junk heap.

Give your husband precisely one week to get rid of the trash and put the things he wants in the basement. After that throw out everything he hasn't set aside and let him declare war if he wants to. It will be worth it.

Medical Students in Need Of Grants Council Told

By JEAN SHARP

HAMILTON (CP)—The need for increased government grants to medical students was stressed Thursday during the final day of the annual meeting of the National Council of Women of Canada.

"We face a dramatic shortage of doctors in the next few years," said Mrs. C. W. Mellish of Vancouver, national council chairman. She said other physically handicapped students are getting left out given to medical students.

The last day of the four-day 71st annual meeting was taken up with annual reports and recommendations.

The council will ask to be included in a delegation which will meet Thursday with the minister of justice to discuss women's federal prisons, particularly the much - publicized construction of a new prison at Cornwall.

Margaret E. MacLellan of Ottawa made the motion, commenting that this ties in with a council brief and a resolution on prison reform passed at this meeting.

For international Co - operation Year, 1965, the Canadian council is backing five suggested plans through the International Council of Women. They want an international cancer research pool established, an end to the space race, with the money used to aid the world's hungry; a cultural summit meeting; an exchange of Russian and Western university students, and the establishment of an East-West agency to correlate aid to underdeveloped countries.

Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver was chosen president. It was announced that the 1965 annual meeting will be held May 31 at Nanaimo, B.C. In 1966 it will be held at Saint John, N.B. June 5.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

A mother and daughter potluck supper for the Girl Guides, Company No. 5, and Brownie Pack No. 6 and Pack No. 13 was held at St. Michael's Academy auditorium recently.

Mrs. Joseph Whalen convened the supper and was assisted by members of the Catholic Women's League. The auditorium was decorated with many colorful bouquets of spring flowers, which were tastefully arranged by Mrs. E. J. Morris.

The head table guests were introduced by the chairman, Mrs. Bernard McAlpine (CWL convener for the Girl Guides and Brownies), and they were as follow: Rev. Father Boyle, District Commissioner Stewart, District Commissioner Brennan, District Commissioner Hunter, Mrs. Foster, Brown Owl Walsh, Brown Owl Donohoe and Tawny Owl Pivowarski, Rev. Fr. R. Andrew, Rev. Sr. M. Rose and Rev. Sr. M. Rosaria, Mrs. J. R. Rashotte (CWL president) and Mrs. G. M. O'Connor (secretary of the local association, Northeast district).

Father Boyle gave an informative talk on the spiritual aspects of Guiding and Mrs. Rashotte spoke briefly, mentioning in particular that the Girl Guide training was originally introduced by one of the league members, Mrs. Ben Burley.

The guest speaker, District Commissioner Stewart was introduced by Mrs. J. Cleary, and was thanked by Mrs. W. J. Ryan. Commissioner Stewart's topic was directed to the mothers and she explained in detail the requirements of all moneys handled by the Guiding movement.

Brown Owl Walsh thanked Mrs. Whalen and her committee on behalf of the Guiders and Brownies.

A singsong was enjoyed by everyone with Sister M. Rosaria playing the piano, after Brown Owls Donohoe and Walsh's packs entertained with an amusing comedy skit.

This year the Belleville Division Girl Guides and Brownies will observe a quiet and sincere "Guides' Own" Service at the BCIVS auditorium, this Sunday.

The non-denominational service will be conducted by Mrs. Major Homewood, Area Commissioner for Hastings. Army Girl Guides, with girls of every faith represented, taking part.

The parade will start at St. Michael's Church parking lot at 3 p.m., marching along Church Street to the music of the Salvation Army band, entering the Collegiate's south entrance. As in previous years the Rangers will act as ushers.

Mrs. Stewart, Division Commissioner, will take the salute from a reviewing stand located on the Collegiate corner of Church St. and Victoria Ave.

In the event of rain the parade is planned to listen for radio reports giving the time at which they can go directly to the B.C.I.

French Canada."

Alderman J. R. Brault of Dorval, Que., said there was no point in the CFMM discussing the question since "the federal government is a democratic government. Let our elected representatives pick a flag of our choice."

CRY IN PROTEST

Alderman E. H. Leger of Edmonton brought cries of protest when he said:

"It would be out of order to discuss this question here if something wasn't going to be taken away—the Red Ensign. Our regiments fought under this flag before Confederation.

"If the choice of a flag is left to the government it is going to be thought that this is an appeasement to a certain lunatic fringe in Quebec who are talking about separatism."

Mayor Arthur Sequin of Pointe Claire, Que., said: "I take serious exception to any remarks made here about the so-called separatist movement in Quebec. We do not come here as so-called separatists. We are one people, one country."

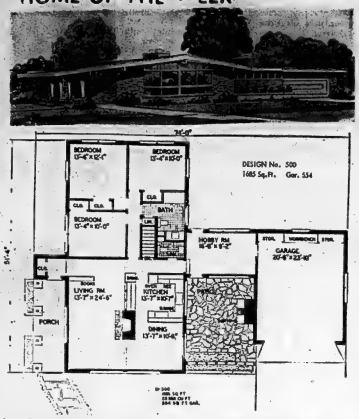
Other delegates applauded.

RAISE OBJECTIONS

Other speakers objected to the flag and the convention discussion on grounds that a plebiscite on flag would allow only 21 per cent of Canadians to impose a design on the others that a "rational vote" could never be obtained because no two people would vote against a particular flag for the same reason; that a plebiscite could divide the nation if one area voted for a certain design while another area voted for another design and that none of the delegates had been instructed by the people who elected them on how they should handle the question.

Just before the final vote Mayor Campbell withdrew his seconding of Mayor Hewitt's resolution but Alderman Leger immediately seconded the resolution again.

Federal Justice Minister Guy Favreau held a press conference at the convention Thursday that municipal governments cannot be recognized as equal partners of provincial and federal governments because, constitutionally, municipalities are creations of the provinces.

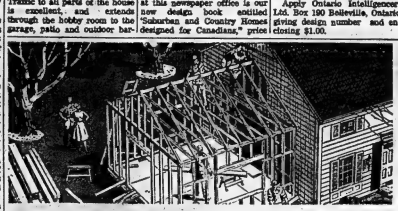


Delegates to the convention have been stressing the idea of recognition of municipalities as the equals of the federal and provincial governments because they say this will bring them a better hearing when they deal with the senior governments.

Mayor Charles A. Vaughan of Halifax was chosen president of the federation for 1964-65 and Windsor, Ont., was chosen the site of the 1965 convention.

BLAMES FEAR

CHICAGO (AP) — A psychiatrist said Thursday that fear underlies the cigarette habit and that some persons are unable to stabilize emotionally if they suddenly stop smoking. Dr. Richard D. Chessick of Chicago said persons with the habit of cigarette smoking are seeking a keyed-up state "to protect them against the deep fear that they will be destroyed, ruined, or exposed if they let their ego defences down."



HOME OF THE WEEK

This modern design is truly a home for entertaining and out-door living. It has a most interesting layout. The living area with its open planning makes this portion an attractive social centre, yet the kitchen is effectively closed off by the open fireplace and the glass wall behind the counter. Traffic to all parts of the house is excellent, and extends through the hobby room to the garage, patio and outdoor barbecue. All rooms are extra large making this a home to be proud of. Construction is brick and stone veneer. 1,685 sq. ft.

Standard blueprints for this design No. 500 cost $15.00 for the first set, and $5.00 for additional sets. They are available in Canada by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 3% sales tax). Now available at this newspaper office is our new design book entitled "Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1.00 tax free. This 1964 edition includes information on cost of building and financing in Canada, heating, insulation, constructional details, etc., plus many outstanding new designs — ranch, one and half storey split level, two storey colonial, and duplex homes. Also included in this book are full details on how to order blueprints.

Ruling

makes the pipeline debate look like child's play," Mr. Douglas added amid more Liberal protests.

He said the question of Parliament's rights in connection with treaties was a crucial one and he hoped the deputy speaker would not accept the Liberals' arguments.

John Turner, parliamentary secretary to Resources Minister Laing, had argued earlier that in British parliamentary tradition this treaty-making and treaty-negotiating functions are prerogatives of the Queen, exercised by the cabinet.

TRADITION EXISTS

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) agreed this tradition existed. But he argued that the government waived its treaty-making power when it decided to consult Parliament on ratification of the Columbia treaty.

The Liberals had promised to consult Parliament but now they were muzzling it.

The procedural wrangle erupted over an amendment proposed by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood). The amendment would have required the government to negotiate with the U.S. to add a second protocol to the 1961 treaty or exchange formal letters.

The addition would clarify Canada's right to divert water from the Columbia basin across the Rocky Mountains into the Prairie provinces for power, irrigation and other uses.

External Affairs Minister Martin has contended that the treaty gives Canada this right, but the NDP argues that the wording of the treaty is unclear on this point.

The debate on the government resolution enters its third day today, following 50 sessions of the Commons external affairs committee on the contentious treaty. The Senate is expected to begin debate on an identical resolution Tuesday.

Once both houses approve the resolution, the cabinet would ratify the treaty and construction on three dams in B.C. would be stepped up by the provincial government. The U.S. government would pay Canada $350,000,000 for downstream power benefits, which would be turned over to B.C.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, June 4, 1964

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker agreed to withdraw implications made in Toronto speech about MPs at the speaker's request.

Prime Minister Pearson agreed to fly the proposed maple leaf flag on Parliament Hill.

The Commons debated a motion seeking publication of flag designs received by the government.

A New Democrat party MP said he opposed abject surrender to B.C.'s Premier Bennett on the Columbia River Treaty.

An NDP bid to alter the treaty was ruled out of order and the speaker's ruling was upheld 147 to 13.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette-L'Assomption - Montcalm) called for a royal commission inquiry into the CBC.

Teen-Age Canada
Good Phone Technique Useful in Business

By JACK HUTTON

A 16-year-old who led his class in marks all this year was sure that he'd found a summer job last week in an advertisement that asked applicants to telephone.

Why shouldn't he be chosen? He was an easy-going personality who quickly made friends. What boss could resist him? It was in the bag.

He had even estimated his summer wages in advance and had them half spent in his mind before picking up the telephone. That was when things started going wrong.

I heard the story from the boy, and the businessman. "I don't know where that fellow learned to use a telephone, but it was a fathom, wherever it was," he exploded.

"He garbled his words so badly that I couldn't make out his name for two minutes. Matter of fact, I had to ask for it two or three times. He broke every telephoning rule in the book."

The advertisement was crafted fly worded to force applicants to telephone because the businessman wanted someone to handle the telephone in his store this summer.

But the situation has more significance than just a summer job. The truth is that a few simple rules of telephone technique are worth money in the bank.

The businessman told me: "If I had my way, I'd make sure that every student spent time learning how to speak intelligently, pleasantly and politely on the telephone before he left school."

I reminded him gently that almost every student in Canada gets this training, in guidance classes if nowhere else. His response was explosive: "Then why don't they use it?"

If you're applying for a job, or if you expect to use a business telephone this summer here are the simple magic rules that will overcome any situation:

1 — Make sure you know what you want to say before telephoning anyone. Nothing annoys a busy businessman as much as a caller who hems and haws for a few minutes before arriving at the point.

2 — Don't be overfamiliar. It's still true that the occasional "Sir" will go a long way in impressing any male adult.

3 — Try to develop a relaxed manner on the telephone. Speak in a normal but distinct voice that can be easily understood, and don't let yourself be flustered by the occasional rude or brusque caller.

4 — Remembering the other person's name is an old trick but a good one. Ask for the other person's name twice if you have to, but use it as you are signing off the conversation. This impresses them every time.

5 — Never chew gum while using the telephone. This may sound obvious, but telephone officials say too many callers sound as if they were in a gum-chewing contest.

6 — If you're answering the telephone for a store or a business, find out how your boss usually answers his calls. The name of the store is the usual form, but never simply say, "Hello." Time is wasted finding who you are.

Good luck. And the great thing is that once you've practised telephone technique several times you never lose it for the rest of your life.

There is a new take on the circuit which started in Winnipeg, according to our correspondents.

An Indian who had been away to college returned to his home reservation and wondered what he could do to prove his worth. One day he noticed a moose head lying behind a bush and it gave him an idea.

The Indian took the head to the front gates of the reservation, put it up on a post and stuck light bulbs behind the eyes. When he pressed a button at night, the lights went on and off.

He was famous overnight. Why? He was the first one in his tribe to wire a head for a reservation.

While we're at it, I can't resist including two other jokes that arrived in the mail last month.

If three flies are buzzing in the kitchen, how do you spot the cowboy fly?

Answer: The one on the range. Or have you heard this one? What's the best way to catch a squirrel? Answer: Run up a tree and act like a nut.

Good Workmanship is our Success

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The momentum that has developed for more and more public improvements has planners looking closely at the long popular belief that any improvement results in a public benefit. The following letter raises just this point for consideration.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our neighborhood is considered one of the rough ones in the city, but our small civic group is active and interested in its improvement.

One thing we think would help is more parks. An abandoned factory is being demolished and, although small, the space could be used for a pleasant little park. Even slum children should be able to see God's trees in bloom occasionally — without a bus trip across the city.

We are realistic, though, and think a better argument to the city would be to show them that a park will increase property values, too. Can you give us some information on this? — C. M.

Answer: I agree and sympathize with both your desire to provide a better environment for your children, and your determination to improve your neighborhood, and increase your property values.

Contrary to the popular belief, however, a small park may do none of these — and may even depress property values. This experience has been that unless a small park — in a "rough neighborhood" — is adequately developed and maintained, it can become a dumping ground for debris and a hangout for unsavory characters.

Well maintained and policed, however, it has a beneficial effect. The value of a park depends entirely upon what is done with it after it is created.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A recent widow, I am selling my house and moving to a small apartment. I plan to take our window drapes, but I'm not my husband's last birthday gift to me before he died, and I'd hate to think of someone else using it.

I've been told I could get in trouble doing this because the heater must be included when the house is sold. Can you help me? — E. D.

Answer: Normally, a furnace is considered an item of real property, and no personal property, and is included in the sale of the house. You can, however, take it with you if you specifically inform potential buyers of your intention, and you stipulate it in the Agreement of Sale.

Although items of sentimental importance are rarely considered in terms of dollars and cents, I feel I should point out that removing the furnace will seriously affect the price you can get for your house.

As this is my first experience with a memento exactly like yours, I should like very much to learn how you make out. Fitting a furnace into the scheme of a small apartment generally suggests a whole new concept in interior decoration.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Perhaps you will think us foolish, but a bargain that looks too good is making us hesitate.

We are lucky newlyweds. Not only are we already planning to buy our own home, we found a place that is exactly like the dream house I had in mind. It is a small house with painted brick and little green gables, a cute little rose arbor, and an honest-to-goodness white picket fence, and huge old shade trees — it's just perfect.

It's price is only $12,000, and the others we have looked at, that we thought about the same, were all over $14,000. Are we being over - cautious, or is something wrong with our dream house? — L. P. Z.

Answer: I would be suspicious too. Buying a home is just like marriage. It should last for a long time, and your home also should have values that endure beyond those seen only in a romantic light.

I suspect that, stripped of its surface glamour, your house has some serious defect. It may be structural, functional, or even some trend related to its location, of which you are not aware.

The only way you can find out is to employ the services of an appraiser. Being a down-to-earth fellow, he will tell you what the house is worth and not over value the allures of paint and gables, and white picket fence.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I think you will agree with me that squirrels belong in the park or the woods, not in a person's home. I have several nests of them in the attic and under the eaves.

I am a kind-hearted person, and don't want to poison them. I have chased them out a dozen times, but they keep coming back. Is there some solution to this problem? — M. A. F.

Answer: Two steps are required — to drive them out and to keep them out.

Burning sulphur candle can drive them out — presents a fire hazard, though — and may also drive you out. A liberal number of moth balls scattered around their nesting places will do the same thing much more safely as squirrels dislike the odor and will avoid it. Squirrels usually gain access to a home from overhanging tree branches. Trimming these branches — a long distance is sometimes necessary — should prevent them from regaining access.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

ness, further discussion was given to a motion by Clifford Smallwood (PC — Battle River) to produce 3,013 flag designs received by the government from 1946 until last May 26.

On top of that, a Commons committee in 1965 received an other 2,600.

The issue comes to a vote next Thursday.

John Stewart, parliamentary secretary to the secretary of state, said more than two-thirds of the 3,013 designs incorporated the maple leaf. Another one included the Union Jack; 350 the fleur-de-lis and 380 the beaver.

He called it convincing evidence of the numbers favoring the government's own proposal of three maple leaves on a white fly with vertical blue bars each 1-10th of the flag width at each end.

Gordon Churchill, a former trade, veterans and defence minister in the Conservative government, accused the government of seeking to hide things a declining to make public the flag designs.

It was a form of dictatorship reminiscent of Mussolini, he said.

Mr. Stewart and others argued that production of the flags would cost some $45,000 and make some patriots entries public property.

Mr. Diefenbaker also resurrected something of the fact that Mr. Pearson last weekend flew the proposed new flag at his official summer cottage at Harrington Lake in the nearby Gatineau Hills of Quebec.

Mr. Brewin, asking for a chance for MPs to toe to get a look at the flag shirt, suggested it be flown on certain flagpoles in front of the Parliament Buildings which are used by Monday flags other than the Canadian Red Ensign.

It is from these flagpoles that flags of the countries of visiting dignitaries are displayed.

Mr. Stewart also asked that a flag showing a single maple leaf be flown, but Mr. Pearson said that while the government has some responsibility to display its own choice, that wouldn't apply to other designs. But he would look into it.

Shock Treatments Sometimes Needed for Total Recovery

DEAR DORIS — I am writing this from the mental hospital. My story goes that I got a new car and the girls started to flirt with me. Then I dated one regularly on my lodge night until one night she offered her body to me.

My wife realized that something was going on. I became so upset I hit and bruised my dear wife of 25 years. I was sorry, and a friend got me to see a doctor.

Now this leach sends me a card in hospital. Please tell me how to get rid of her. I will not take shock treatment as I want to battle this nerve condition myself and am doing fine as my nurse told me to return all mail and candy or things from the leech. — JACK.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JACK — You're doing fine! Then why write to me? It's my guess you'd do better, faster, if you'd accept the doctor's say-so that shock treatments would help. You'll still have a big enough battle to suit anybody.

The right treatment will help you think your way back to that nice wife of yours months sooner. You need fortitude to talk back to The Leech.

DEAR DORIS — How come a person does not like undressing even in front of her parents? She has been like this since she was ten (now 14). When she went in the hospital she would not let anybody undress her. I think she feels ashamed. This causes a lot of trouble for the nurses. — A FRIEND.

• • •

DEAR FRIEND — Teen-agers who are rapidly becoming young ladies, physically, may feel self-conscious about newly acquired curves. If they come from a family where everything to do with sex has been hush-hush this is likely to assume blushingly embarrassing proportions. Most nurses can manage most cases.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — About two weeks ago my best girl friend and I had a fight over a silly little thing. I made up with her a couple of days ago, but she never hangs around with me or hardly talks to me.

Before this silly fight we were the best of friends. Please help me to regain her friendship towards me. — L.L.

DEAR L.L. — You've learned the hard way that breaking a friendship is easier than mending it. The things you said still hurt. If you want your pal back prove it with kind words, patience, loyalty. She won't melt overnight.

• • •

Confidential to ANXIOUS — Being cousins is not an impediment to marriage. However, being just 17 is. I would advise you to wait a while.

• • •

Confidential to DESPISED — It's horrible to feel your teacher does not like you. But do you realize it is as much as her job is worth to fail a pupil simply because she has taken a scunner to her?

Teachers are human, even as you and I. Do you like everybody you know? It takes a deal of growing up to see the good in every single person; and even more to keep calm about the ones who see no good in us. This you must do, if you are to get your year!

Scouting activities

17th AND 8th BELLEVILLE

An excellent camp under the capable leadership of Camp Chief George Gibbons, 17th A Troop, was held at Camp Sagonaska on the weekend of May 29-31. Participating in the event were 60 Scouts from 17th A, 17th B, and 8th Belleville and 1st Thomasburg. This group was joined on Saturday by 3rd Belleville Troop, led by Scouter Jim Hopper for a first rate campfire program.

Many Scouts took the opportunity at camp to pass tests in tracking, fire lighting, camp cooking, and orienteering.

Jim Weberiay and Jerry Campbell of 17th B Troop were invested as tenderfoot Scouts during the closing ceremonies on Sunday afternoon.

Scouts Own Service on Sunday morning was conducted jointly by Rev. T. F. Townsend and Mr. Harry Oconnors, chairman of the Group Committee 17th Belleville. Mr. Townsend was, by a quirk of fate, this camp's gain, but perhaps some other camp's loss.

The service was enjoyed very much, Mr. Townsend said from all go thanks to you.

Judging was done at the patrol level for all round Camping Ability with the following taking honors within their respective troops, 8th Belleville, Hawk Patrol, 17th A Belleville, Beaver Patrol, 17th B Belleville, Falcon Patrol.

Scouters assisting Scouter Gibbons were: Scouters Kirby and Schannerhorn, 8th Belleville; Scouter Gummo, Cozon and Charles 17th A and Scouters Dodge and Maw, 17th B Troop, and Akela Jones, 17th A Pack.

Name Mediator In Wage Dispute With La Presse

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec government Thursday named a special mediator for a labor dispute that shut down La Presse, Canada's largest French-language daily newspaper.

Some 300 composing room employees, members of the International Typographical Union (CLC), left their jobs Wednesday night and 900 other employees observed their picket lines.

The newspaper did not publish Thursday.

Labor Minister Carrier Fortin announced at Quebec that Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of Superior Court had agreed to act as a special mediator on condition that work at the newspaper resume.

Joseph W. Blaquiere, president of the ITU Local 145, said an official of the local had held a discussion with Judge Ouimet and he awaited a report on the matter.

The labor minister said La Presse management had advised him it was ready to negotiate through a mediator.

Mr. Justice Ouimet said late Thursday night that he had held "exploratory" meetings throughout the day. He said he had temporarily suspended the condition that work at the newspaper resume.

The mediator said he would resume talks today.

WILL PUBLISH DAILY

Meanwhile, Le Dimanche-Matin, a weekend newspaper announced it will start Monday to publish daily "as a public service" as long as La Presse does not appear.

It said it would put out two evening editions a day, printing 100,000 copies. No name for the temporary newspaper was disclosed.

La Presse circulation has been 250,000. It is the largest of five Montreal dailies.

Greatly Expanded Recruiting Drive Will Be Put on by Ont. to Get Skilled Workers

LONDON (CP) — Ontario Premier John Robarts said Thursday a greatly expanded recruiting drive will soon begin to persuade skilled laborers and professional people to leave Britain and Europe and to seek their fortunes in Ontario.

"We believe there are several areas in Europe, particularly in Scotland and Ireland, which have large available sources of skilled labor badly needed by our expanding industry in Ontario," Robarts told a press conference.

Stanley Randall, Economics and development minister, told reporters offices will be opened in Glasgow, Scotland, and Belfast, Northern Ireland. In many European countries Canadian recruiting officers will operate out of Canada's federal government offices.

Advertisements will be placed telling of opportunities in Ontario. In some countries, such as Germany, advertisements trying to lure persons out of the country "knowhow" under a licensing agreement.

Robarts and Randall also discussed Ontario's car assembly plant project with Eberhard Hundt, foreign sales director of the Daimler Benz organization. The plan calls for a co-operative assembly project between Germany's automobile manufacturers in Ontario, with a minimum production run of 10,000 units a year.

Earlier Thursday Robarts officially opened the new Ontario House, recently acquired and reconstructed at a cost of $400,000.

Lord Tweedsmuir and the Earl of Bessborough, sons of former governors - general of Canada, and publisher Lord Thomson of Fleet were among guests at the opening ceremony.

Randall and Robarts were to leave today for Italy where they will hold discussions with officials similar to those in Germany.

Immediately after the ceremony Robarts said Ontario's educational system is being developed to provide skilled workers but that so far it couldn't keep pace with the demand. "Meanwhile we can use people from over here," Robarts said, and added that Ontario always probably would need immigrants because of the apparent permanent expansion of the province's economy.

During a two-day visit to Duisseldorf, Germany, Robarts and Randall met with leading West German businessmen, bankers and government officials.

"One came away with the feeling that there's a lot of business to be done there if we go about it properly," Robarts said.

Randall said: "We agreed trade has to be a two-way street." The two men said they made it clear to German leaders that Ontario was interested in buying German goods as well as disposing of Canadian products.

They also said there are a great many opportunities for Ontario and German firms to exchange "knowhow" under a licensing agreement.

Robarts and Randall also discussed Ontario's car assembly plant project with Eberhard Hundt, foreign sales director of the Daimler Benz organization. The plan calls for a co-operative assembly project between Germany's automobile manufacturers in Ontario, with a minimum production run of 10,000 units a year.

Earlier Thursday Robarts officially opened the new Ontario House, recently acquired and reconstructed at a cost of $400,000.

Medical Care Head in Sask. Resigns Post

REGINA (CP) — Donald Tansley, chairman of the Saskatchewan medical care insurance commission, made public Thursday the news that he had resigned from the post, but he gave no reason.

Earlier in the day Clifford Ashfield, special assistant to the minister of industry and information, announced he was resigning as of today because "it has been made obvious to me that I will not be retained."

In a prepared statement, Mr. Tansley said:

"Although I have many regrets in leaving the commission and the Saskatchewan public service I leave with some satisfaction in the conviction that the medical care insurance program is firmly established.

"The new government is publicly committed to continue the plan without significant change."

Paying tribute to doctors who have been co-operating in all aspects of the program he said: "I would be remiss if I did not voice my concern over an accumulation of problems and danger signs which could threaten the future of medicare.

"These problems range from . . . apparent over-utilization by a few patients to apparent over-serving and perhaps overenthusiastic billing by a few doctors.

He added that leaders of the medical profession have yet to accept the plan as a permanent fact in Saskatchewan.

Discreditable Conduct Charge Is Quashed

TORONTO (CP) — A conviction of discreditable conduct against a Peterborough police man was quashed in Ontario Supreme Court Thursday when Mr. Justice E. R. Hartt ruled out of his illegally parking his truck that warranted the conviction under the Police Act.

Peterborough Police Chief W. E. Shrobb tagged the truck owned by Constable Lewis, and when he found it was, charged the policeman with neglect of duty. Constable Lewis was sentenced to lose of five days' leave.

Constable Lewis was tried in what Mr. Justice Hughes called an unusual series of hearings conducted by Chief Shrubb. An appeal was rejected by the Peterborough Police Commission.

Lewis pleaded to charges that Chief Shrubb was "prosecutor, judge and prosecutor, and lacked good faith in proceeding personally against Constable Lewis instead of through the police on the parking charges. Mr. Justice Haines added:

"These things are unfortunate to say the least, but I do not think it is necessary for me to deal with them."

'Million Dollar Holiday' Prize for Belleville Family

It's a million dollar holiday for a North Park Street Belleville family.

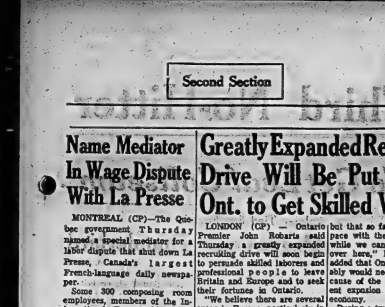
Yesterday Mrs. Gordon Parkhurst, secretary in the principal's office at Belleville Collegiate was presented with Evinrude's "Million Dollar Holiday" prize consisting of a deluxe 16-foot cruiser, 90-horse power Evinrude selectomatic outboard motor, plus a two weeks paid summer resort holiday.

Total value of the Peterborough outboard motor company's prize is $5,000.

Mrs. Parkhurst was the winner over about 60,000 other entrants in the all-Canada free entry contest. The presentation was made by Peter McArthur, Evinrude vice-president.

In addition to the $3,500 cruiser and outboard combination, Mr. and Mrs. Parkhurst and their 10-year-old son Charles, will enjoy an all-expenses paid two weeks vacation at Vismede Hotel on Stoney Lake.

Included will be the services of a fishing guide, water skiing instruction and all the gas and oil their new 90 horsepower Evinrude can burn during the holiday period.



"We are happy that a 'local' person won the prize," stated an Evinrude official when the major prize was presented last night at Bay Marina in Belleville.

"Belleville is almost in Peterborough's back yard, and the cruiser was built in Trenton."

Last year Evinrude's major prize went to an Estevan, Sask., resident who lived at least 50 miles from the nearest water.

Prior to last night's presentation, Mr. and Mrs. Parkhurst were dinner guests of the contest sponsor at a local motel.

Mr. and Mrs. Parkhurst already have a boat and outboard motor at their summer cottage on Crooked Lake in North Hastings, but they nevertheless feel they can put their new prize to good use.

HAPPY HOLIDAY . . . is in store for Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Parkhurst and son, Charles, winners of Evinrude outboard motor and cruiser. Here 10-year-old Charles makes like boat captain as boat is admired by his parents.

Six OSD Students Gain Entrance to Deaf College

Word has been received at the Ontario School for the Deaf here that all six local students who wrote the examinations for entrance to Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C. were successful. Gallaudet College is the world's only college for deaf students. It offers to graduates of Schools for the Deaf around the world an opportunity to advance to degrees in the liberal arts and sciences.

Entrance to Gallaudet is made available to students who are so handicapped by deafness that they cannot benefit from the program of a "hearing" university, have high standing in their academic studies and successfully pass the Gallaudet College entrance examination tests. Six students of O.S.D. Belleville tried these admission tests this spring and all passed successfully.

Miss Norma Wojcik hails from Kitchener. Norma is seventeen years of age. She was born deaf and enrolled at OSD four years ago. Her previous years of schooling were spent in the elementary schools in Kitchener. At O.S.D. she has won proficiency prizes in her academic work and has participated actively in the athletic program.

William Conley is a native of Belleville. He became deaf at the age of four as a result of measles. He has attended the O.S.D. for fourteen years of his life.

Cooper, Larry Gordon, Miss Nanci Ayton and Richard Csabi.

O.S.D. Superintendent J. G. Demeza shows Gallaudet College entrance examination results to supervising teacher Miss C. Maloney and successful candidates, Miss Norma Wojcik, William Conley, Miss Susan

Larry Gordon is a native of Windsor, Ont. Larry was born deaf. He received his early education at Victoria Public School before entering O.S.D. in 1961. Larry has been active in all school activities and has enjoyed his years at O.S.D.

Miss Nanci Ayton is a native of Centralia, Ont. She entered the O.S.D. three years ago. Nanci lost her hearing at the age of eight. She enjoys reading and a full academic program. Nanci hopes to become a labratory technician when she graduates from College.

Richard Csabi was born in Fort Erie, Ont. Richard is twenty years of age. He became deaf at the age of two after an attack of spinal meningitis. He attended St. Mary's School for the Deaf in Buffalo for six years before coming to O.S.D. in 1958. Richard has enjoyed the academic program and has been very active in sports.

All of these students are looking forward to entering Gallaudet College this September.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has thrown the responsibility for approving or rejecting the proposed maple leaf flag design onto individual members of Parliament.

Making up their own minds is what they were elected to Parliament to do, he has told members of the Liberal party—and those of other parties who read into his request to the Liberal National Council meeting this week.

Rejecting suggestions there should be a national referendum to let the voters decide the issue directly, Mr. Pearson based his stand on parliamentary precedent.

A constitutional authority has shown that national referendums and plebiscites are rare in Canadian and British parliamentary history.

They are more usual in republican forms of government, and were used to such an extent in Central Europe at one time that government processes almost came to a standstill while matters of all sorts were referred in repeated referendums to the people.

Mr. Pearson's stand has resulted in some soul-searching among members of Parliament on the ticklish political question of how they should assess their voters' views.

Soul-searching and attention to business are what a great parliamentarian and political philosopher of the so-called golden age of oratory believed should be principal ingredients in the life of an MP.

Edmund Burke said in the 1770s that an MP should "live in the strictest union, the closest correspondence, and the most unreserved communication with his constituents."

"Their wishes ought to have great weight with him: their opinion high respect; their business unremitted attention. It is his duty to sacrifice his repose, his pleasures, his satisfaction, to theirs; and above all, ever, and in all cases, to prefer their interests to his own."

But—and here is where Mr. Pearson is providing the rub for MPs—Burke also held the view that an MP isn't elected simply to vote slavishly on every question as his electors demand. He is elected as a man of judgment on whom the electors should be able to depend. As Burke put it:

"Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it for your opinion."

MPs are being flooded with telegrams and letters on all aspects of the flag issue, and Burke also left a message that might influence today's lawmakers to determine the weight to be given to any particular view.

"Because half a dozen grasshoppers under the hedge frustrate the fine tuned field ring with their importunate chink, whilst thousands of their betters, perched beneath the shadow of a British oak, chew the cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field; and of course they are many in number; or that, after all, they are other than the little shrivelled, meagre, straggling, though loud and troublesome insects of the hour."

Non-Capital Murder Charged Against Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Marion Clunes, 25, of suburbAgincourt was charged with non - capital murder following death of her 27-year-old husband, Robert, early today.

Police said Clunes was stabbed in the living room of his home at about 1 a.m. following an argument over his accumulating debts.

Scarborough police made the sixth violent death in Metropolitan Toronto in the last 11 days.

GOLDEN GATE LEAP

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man leaped to death Thursday from the Golden Gate Bridge, the 262nd known fatal jump from the 37-year-old span. An auto mechanic in the bridge area was licensed to Joseph Kakes, 50, of Livermore, Calif.

Rosy Glow of Ore Discovery North of Timmins Is Still Going Strong in Northland

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — The party has lasted seven weeks and, though it is not in its first wild exuberance, it's still going strong.

The people of this once-troubled Northern Ontario mining community are still wearing the rosy glow sparked to life by the announcement of a big, rich zinc, copper and silver strike a few miles north of here.

And they still are watching the stock market as closely as they did when the announcement by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of five million tons of rich Canadian exchanges surging to the wildest trading ever seen in North America.

But the hectic days of sleeping in jail because no hotel beds were available, and lining up in restaurants to have a place to eat are gone — at least for the moment.

Mining and brokerage officials say, however, the excitement could come back if any of the scores of mining companies that have staked the area following Texas Gulf's exploration strike it rich on their properties.

One immediate effect on the Texas Gulf find has been to spark a boom in real estate, which had been sagging for years as the future of the gold mines, on which Timmins depended for 53 years, got closer to the end of their ore reserves.

A housing shortage has developed, as some of the more than 70 mining companies now operating in the area have brought in geologists and field foremen to direct exploration and diamond drilling programs.

Would-be tenants have been offering to sign three - year leases at 20 per cent above the going rental rates to get living space.

Buying up the real estate market was a provincial government announcement that no new communities would be allowed to form in the area, confining development to existing communities.

Backing up the conviction of almost all of this community's 29,000 people that happy days are here again, bars continue to do a roaring business.

Police report a sharp rise in the number of charges connected with prostitution, bad cheques and drinking.

Meanwhile the two local brokerage offices report that the first flush of speculative fever has died out, although their business still is running about three times as high as a year ago.

The Texas Gulf strike touched off a frenzy that saw more than 28,000,000 shares traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange April 15 and 20—12,000,000 more than ever traded on any North American exchange. The strike was announced Thursday, April 9.

John Angus, manager of the T. A. Richardson and Co. brokerage office, says the amateurs have dropped out of the market, leaving it open for the regular speculators.

He says many of the amateurs got badly burned during the April excitement, and won't venture back into the market—unless some one else finds ore.

Sevan Anderson, manager of the Doherty, Roadhouse and McCuagi Brothers office, says there still is an air of expectancy about the situation and he feels there could be another big market play in two or three months.

John B. Huhn, a partner in the large firm of Bache and Co. of New York, who flew here Wednesday with mine broker and investment counsellors to get a first-hand look at the situation, says it may take only two more finds besides Texas Gulf to set off a market boom that would dwarf the April boom.

CGE Office Workers Reject Contract Offer

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Office workers at the Canadian General Electric plant here rejected Wednesday a company salary offer and voted to strike if necessary to back up wage demands.

Six other locals of the International Union of Electrical Workers (CLC) in Ontario and Quebec may take similar action. Joe Wirtz, a union representative, said Thursday.

Local 399, IUE, represents 600 office workers here.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, a former member of the Peterborough Police Commission, has been appointed chairman of the conciliation board by the Ontario department of labor.

The company was reported to have offered the office workers a similar six-cent-an-hour wage increase such as was recently accepted by plant employees. But the office workers are seeking an eight-per-cent general salary increase, the equivalent of 11 cents an hour.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Once upon a time there were several little boys who took piano lessons and later became so expert they were able to give their more experienced teacher a lesson.

That, in short, sums up the international hockey situation and was the inference drawn from an address given here last week by Fred Szambati, well known TV and radio sports announcer and commentator.

Asked if Canada can produce a national team that could regain her lost world hockey prestige, Fred said: "I cannot see why we cannot if we can get away from some of the peculiar impediments we are working under."

Early Canadian teams to participate in world competition were monarchs of all they surveyed. They won by lop-sided scores and were practically invincible.

Then the European hockey leopard began to change his spots. Teams began to learn by experience. They turned national attention to the sport. In typical continental way they crammed everything they had on development of the game.

The first lesson the European students gave their Canadian teacher, one that was ignored until last year, was the training and development of a national team.

We were satisfied, and with reasonable success, to send regional champions to world tourneys, national champions in a sense, but still representatives of a community and not the nation.

Then came the shock of defeat. And again and again. Canadian hockey fans were alarmed—some to the point where they wanted an NHL team to represent Canada.

"There are no pro teams, by their standards, in Europe," Szambati said. "They are amateurs, even by Olympic standards since most players are employed by the state or teams subsidized by the government."

The European boy's ambition is to play for the national team," Fred said. "Over here," he quipped, "a kid's target is either Maple Leafs or the 'Three Leafs' club."

In Europe all players with ability are funnelled to the national club. This being funnelled to top amateur clubs is a lot of baloney. Being selected for the national team over there is akin to a top junior "A" player going to an NHL club here.

Fred discounted the possibility of Canada sending an NHL club against the world. "Even if it doesn't expand," he says, "the National Hockey League has a pretty nice home-league setup for itself."

Father Bauer's idea of a national club is a good one, he believes. "He is a second hockey man who created a fine impression overseas. A man who went to Sweden to scout the European teams, then flew to Innsbruck to scout the facilities and see what was expected of his club—and this a year before the world tournament—must be able to produce a top national club."

Bauer's ideas are good. But one of the impediments is the financing of a national club.

"Surely," said Szambati, "a country as rich as ours should be realistic enough to sustain athletes taken from their jobs to represent the country. Some fund should be set up to support them. You can't ask people in business to represent the country in world hockey and expect them to pay for the privilege themselves. Why should they?"

Our biggest sports export, Szambati believes, is hockey players and coaches. "We send them overseas—but don't do much about it at home. You can go to almost any hockey centre in Europe and come up with a Canadian. Many well-known players are there in coaching capacities. It is becoming a lucrative pasturefield for older horses and some colts of Canadian hockey."

Narvaez, a Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, boasts a 10-1-1 record. His only defeat was in a six-round with Roland Kelum in 1961. He reversed that decision last year.

Koufax Chalks Up Third No-Hitter

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax has finished practicing.

He finished about halfway through the third no-hitter of his major league career, allowing only one walk in a 5-0 victory over Philadelphia Thursday night and joining Bob Feller as the only triple no-hit hurlers in modern baseball.

Minutes later, in Los Angeles Dodgers' dressing room, the unshaven Koufax revealed that in the first few innings he was just trying to admit his motion.

"I have been studying pictures in magazines of my form and suddenly realized that I had been stepping too far to the left with the right foot across my body," Koufax explained.

"So in the first few innings I concentrated on making an adjustment, stepping more to the right. It felt fine. I had the old pitching rhythm back."

DIDN'T KNOW

No one knew it was missing. Koufax had not been the sensational pitcher he was last year when he won most valuable player honors and the Cy Young Award as the best pitcher in the majors. But everyone presumed he was still shaking off an early season injury.

Against the Phillies, it was difficult to tell when Koufax corrected his mistake. Only four balls were hit to the outfield all night and the closest thing to a hit was Richie Allen's slow grounder in the seventh inning—scooped up by third baseman Jim Gilliam who quickly fired to first for the out.

Allen also was the Phillies' lone baserunner but was thrown out attempting to steal after walking on a 3-2 pitch in the fourth inning.

Feller, the only other pitcher to hurl three no-hitters in post-1900 action, wasn't at all surprised that Koufax had matched him.

"Why, the way this guy's going," said Feller, "he may get three more of them before he's through."

In other National League action, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped San Francisco Giants 4-2, Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis Cardinals. 2 - 1, Cincinnati Reds downed Milwaukee Braves 6-3 and Houston Colts beat New York Mets 7-3.

Koufax, bringing his record to 6-4 with the 98th victory of his career, struck out 12 Phillies, and thus tied another record. It was the 24th time in his career he had struck out 10 or more batters, equalling the mark previously shared by Feller and Rube Waddell.

Koufax got the only runs he needed when Frank Howard hit his 16th homer in the seventh inning off Chris Short following singles by Gilliam and Tommy Davis.

Rookie Steve Blass checked the Giants on five hits while the Pirates struck for four runs in the fourth and put it away.

The Cubs and Cardinals played the season's fastest game in the NL. Ron Santo's two-run homer in the fourth providing Chicago's runs while Charley James homered for St. Louis.

Frank Robinson's second home run of the game, a three-run shot in the ninth, gave the Reds their victory. The Braves pulled off a triple play in the second inning when Leo Cardenas lined to Mike de la Hoz with two men on. The second baseman flipped to shortstop Denis Menke for the second out and the relay to first-nailed No. 3.

Dick Farrell brought his record to 5-1 against the Mets with 3 3-3 innings of not-hit relief work by Don Larsen. The Colts, meanwhile, collecting 12 hits—four each by Bob Lillis and Eddie Kasko—and were aided by four New York errors.

Help Wanted By Senior Baseball Club

Belleville Joyces, their home opener washed out twice this week, will make their first start of the year in Little Britain tonight, against the Oshawa Merchants.

A team spokesman said this morning that the club would be leaving the Fairgrounds here at six o'clock sharp and that a couple more drivers would be more than welcome. The club will be making road trips by car.

The games, a regular Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior affair, will get under way in Little Britain at 8.30 p.m.

Meanwhile, on Sunday, Carnifton will make its second start, visiting Ajax for a two o'clock game.

The Oshawa-at-Belleville game, rained out here on Monday and again on Wednesday, will be re-scheduled at Monday's league meeting at the Recreation Centre here. The meeting has been called to draft a full schedule.

LONDON (Reuters) — Capt. Peter Hastings, 43, one of Queen Elizabeth's racehorse trainers, died at his home at nearby Kingclere Thursday.

Expect Council Approval

Vancouver To Get Leaf Coliseum

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ratepayers were told Thursday night all they have to do to get a $2,500,000 coliseum worth $8,000,000 is give away a $2,000,000 piece of land.

They are expected to vote on the offer by Toronto Maple Leafs within three months.

Stafford Smythe, president of the National Hockey League club in talks with city officials and reporters said:

1. The Vancouver Gardens could be completed within two years from the date the club receives the land—a two-block piece of city property across the street from the city - owned Queen Elizabeth theatre;

2. The club was prepared to build an outdoor, public skating rink as part of the coliseum;

3. Some shares in the project would be sold to the public but Leafs would hold control. Fred Hume, owner of the Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks, would be welcomed as a shareholder;

4. The club wants no tax concessions;

5. Smythe or Leaf vice-president Harold Ballard would operate the Gardens moving here;

6. The club would be interested in leasing and operating the money - losing 2,600 - seat Queen Elizabeth theatre, but this offer was not connected with the coliseum offer;

The Gardens would operate successfully with a WHL club but he believed that there will be a western division of the NHL.

"I don't see any serious problems as far as the offer is concerned," said Mayor Bill Rathie.

City council will discuss the offer Tuesday. Approval is expected.

The city charter requires that ratepayers approve disposal of city property valued at more than $200,000.

Meanwhile, neighboring Burnaby has been told that its bid to steal the Coliseum from Vancouver has not been ignored.

Reeve Alan Emmott has sought to show Leaf officials that his municipality would be a better locality. Smythe said if Vancouver rejects his demand for free land the site proposed by Burnaby will be considered.

Palmer Tied For Fourth

Magee Leads Thunderbird

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — Jerry Magee of Toronto, who has been struggling to make expenses on the tour, outshot the game's greatest players with a six-under-par 66 Thursday for the first-round lead in the $100,000 Thunderbird golf classic.

Jaunty Phil Rodgers and Ken Venturi forged 67s in a day of embarrassment for the Westchester Country Club's par 72. Defending champion Arnold Palmer made one of his familiar charges with a late birdie finish, but had to settle for a 68 and a tie for fourth with a half-dozen fellow pros. Al Balding of Toronto finished the first round with a 69.

Palmer's young rival for world golf honors, Jack Nicklaus, ballooned to a 73 and was well back in the pack of the star-studded field of 125.

More than 40 players bettered the 36-36—72 par of the tight, 6,975-yard layout, soaked by a heavy overnight rain—but whipped at times by winds up to 25 miles an hour.

The winds were milder when Magee, six-foot-two, 200-pound former junior hockey player with a bad right eye, knocked in an eagle on the 12th hole and almost got a second on the 13th.

7 Starters Will Challenge 'Dancer'

Pot Now $154,600

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Northern Dancer puts his bid for thoroughbred greatness — and a triple crown on the line Saturday against seven other three-year-olds.

And it's 3 to 5 that the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner will accomplish the feat by winning the 88th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes before an Aqueduct crowd of some 65,000 and a coast - to - coast television and radio audience.

Only eight horses have put together the treble in the 80 years in which the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont have been run. The last was Citation in 1948. Since then just two colts, Tim Tam and Carry Back, have come up to the 1½ miles of the Belmont with a chance for a sweep. Outsiders ruined both—for Tim Tam in 1958 and Carry Back in 1961.

In addition to Northern Dancer from E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm outside Toronto, the names of Hill Rise, Quadrangle, Roman Brother, Orientalist, Brave Lad, Shook and Determined Man were scheduled to be dropped into the entry box today. John Gaibreath, Orientalist's owner, won last year with Chateaugay.

With eight starters the race will be worth $154,600. The winner will earn the richest Belmont purse of $110,250 with $25,000 for second, $12,500 third and $6 250 fourth. There were originally 146 nominations at $100 each. It costs another $250 to enter and an additional $1,000 to start.

Post time is 4:45 p.m., EDT with television (CBC) scheduled for 4:30-5 p.m.

From second choice to Hill Rise in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, the Dancer has established himself as the single-priced favorite. He won the Derby by a neck over Hill Rise and beat The Doge by a head, now sidelined by an injury, by 2½ lengths in the Preakness. Hill Rise was a close back in third place.

Roman Brother ran fourth in the Derby and a dismal fifth in the Preakness but came back to take last Saturday's Jersey Derby over 1¼ miles. Quadrangle was fifth in the Derby and fourth in the Preakness and then turned in a top effort for runner-up honors behind the five-year-old Olden Times in the Metropolitan Handicap last Saturday. He turned in a flashy workout Thursday, covering six furlongs in 1:13 2-5 after resting off five-eighths of a mile in 59 seconds.

Orientalist, a royalty bred son of Swaps out of O'Mella sired by the English Derby winner, Owen Tudor, never has raced in such high class company. But trainer Jimmy Conway figures the striking black Darby Dan product is due for improving form.

Brave Lad, Shook and Determined Man have shown nothing that would indicate they are capable of breaking into the money.

Bill Hartack and Willie Shoemaker will occupy their familiar seats atop Northern Dancer and Hill Rise respectively. Fernando Alvarez, a Chilean from Panama who won with Roman Brother in the Jersey Derby, is certain to be astride the Harbor View gelding. Manuel Yeats replaces Braulio Baeza on Quadrangle and Baeza pilots Orientalist.

Driving Club Racing Card

Leading just three horses for a complete four-race program, the Quinte Driving and Riding Club stages its second meet of the season at the Belleville Raceway tomorrow night.

To jog the memory the Agricultural Park, trackwise, is now known as the "Belleville Raceway."

Twenty-nine horses will line up behind the starting gate. This, a spokesman said, discounts any rumors that horsemen do not like to race here.

Eight entries will start in the second and third races with seven going in the first and six in the fourth or free-for-all.

The club directors put their plan of announcing post positions on the programs and in newspapers into effect this week. The positions are drawn every Wednesday evening.

A satisfactory crowd braved chilly weather at the opening meet last Saturday, and with warmer air predicted, directors look for a large turnout tomorrow evening.

Post time, first race, is eight o'clock.

Ethier Tosses Two-Hitter

Juniors Blank Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

The hits and runs famine came to an end for Ellis Juniors last night.

Russ Soule's youngsters erupted for nine of each and got another excellent pitching performance from Bob Ethier while blanking Trenton Commercial Printers 9-0 in E. and D. Softball action at the CNRA Park.

The Juniors had been held to three runs and 20 hits in their first four outings but it was a different story last night. The winners could do nothing wrong and the losers nothing right.

Ethier hurled his second two-hit shutout in four tries while his mates wrapped up the game for him with a five-run rally in the third inning. They bagged singletons in the second, fifth, seventh and eighth frames. Ethier struck out eight and walked but one.

Bob Butterfield was tagged with the loss, leaving in favor of Pat Marcle with the score 6-0 in the third. He fanned none and walked two while allowing five of the Juniors' nine hits. Marcle's whiffed three and walked one as the firemen role.

Moon's single, passed balls and Boomhower's fielder's choice scored the first Ellis marker but the game blew wide open in the third. Boomhower's double drove in a pair, Malloy and Moon each plated one with a single, Trenton also had a base hit and Trenton booted the ball around for three errors and a pair of passed balls. A walk also helped the cause as nine Juniors paraded to the plate.

A pair of errors and as many sacrifices notched the seventh run; Moon and Boyle hit doubles for the eighth and Weston tripled, scoring on Malloy's hit for the ninth.

A walk and an error gave Trenton a chance in the first but Ethier got out unmarked, limiting Trenton to LeRoy Wannamaker's fifth-frame double and Will Kennedy's seventh-inning single thereafter. He got fine plays from Boyle, Weston and Gould to help his cause along the way.

Bob Moon paced the Ellis attack with a double and two singles, aided by Pete Weston's triple and singles and a pair of base hits by Stu Malloy. Bob Boyle and Carl Boomhower added doubles.

Dates were announced for this week's two rained out games. Trudeau Motors will play in Trenton tomorrow (Saturday) at 9.00 p.m. and Ellis Juniors will play in Tweed on Sunday, June 14th.

City Hotel, Daubers Win Ball Tilts

Ter-Haar Daubers shaded Black Diamond Cheese 5-4 and City Hotel whipped Belvedere Electric 13-3 in a pair of Commercial Softball League tilts last night.

The Daubers spotted the Cheesemakers a 2-0 first-frame lead but pecked away and earned the win in an extra inning with some fine clutch pitching and fielding.

Benny Nonaca hurled five-hit ball for the victors, striking out two and walking five. Fred Howard gave up six hits for Black Diamond with four strikeouts and as many walks.

The Daubers collected two Ter-Haar safeties with one each for R. Lucas, B. Benson, G. Gilbert and D. Kelly. F. Howard, R. Jones, J. Gibby and P. Chamont had Black Diamond hits.

City Hotel took a 7-0 lead after two frames on the way to victory over Belvedere.

Dave Feeney pitched three-hit ball over the route for the winners, striking out five and walking a pair.

Belvedere started and lost, allowing 10 runs and four of the winners' six hits before giving way to Gannon in the sixth. Hughes walked nine and Gannon three. They had three hits between them.

A brace of doubles by Doug Hull sparked the winners at bat while Doug Morgan also had a two-bagger. Redquest and Malone a single each. Combined with the 12 walks and four errors, that was enough.

Clapper belted a fourth-inning homer for Belvedere with Gannon and Perry notching the other base knocks.

Two of this week's postponed games will be played on Sunday, Black Diamond and Lightfoots play at the Alemite at 2.30 while Ter-Haar and City Hotel clash at Prince Charles at 7.00 pm.

Pollock Would Swap The 'Gump'

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Pollock, new general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said Thursday he is ready to give up goalie Gump Worsley in a "reasonable trade."

"Worsley is a National League netminder and if any team talks a reasonable trade we're ready to listen," he said. "But we are certainly not going to make any deal unless we can get a major league player who will strengthen our team."

Worsley, obtained from New York a year ago for Jacques Plante, played most of last season at Quebec and wound up an American League all-star. Charlie Hodge filled in for Worsley when he was injured in the first month and played so well the Gumper never returned.

Yankees Outlast Twins 9-7

Richardson Hits Perfect Five-For-Five

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bobby Richardson is hitting more and striking out less.

Richardson, who has fanned only twice in 184 times at bat this season, got five hits for the second time this season as New York Yankees outlasted Minnesota Twins 9-7 Thursday.

The perfect performance boosted the second baseman's batting average to .310. Only three games ago Richardson was hitting .282.

Only three other players in the majors have had five hits in a game this season. Richardson was the first to do it, banging out five singles in the first game of a doubleheader against Cleveland May 10.

His 5-for-5 day consisted of four singles and a double. He also scored twice and drove in a run.

Richardson's strike out rate, or near lack of it, is even more phenomenal than his five-hit production. He always has been among the league leaders in fewest strikeouts, but there may not even be a contest this season.

FANNED NONE

For the last three years, Richardson has fanned an average of 23 times in 661 plate appearances, or once every 29 times at bat. If he maintains his present rate for the same number of at bats, he would fan only seven times.

In the only other game played in the American League Thursday, Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 5-1. Rain washed out the Baltimore-Kansas City game.

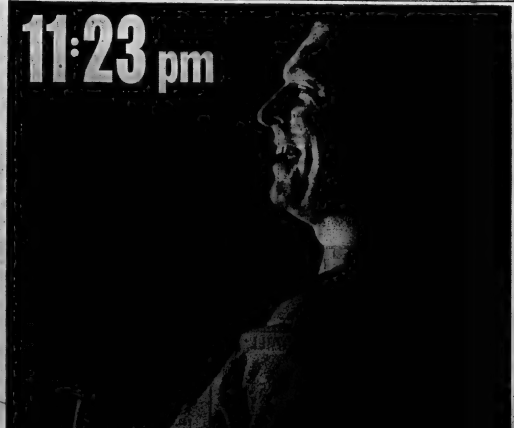
Even with Richardson's hitting, the Yankees needed three-run homers by Joe Pepitone and Roger Maris for their victory. Pepitone connected in the four-run first while Maris' blow gave New York a 9-5 lead in the fourth.

Reliever Pete Mikkelsen won his fourth game against one defeat, pitching his way out of jams in the last three innings.

Ray Herbert and Frank Kreutzer limited the Indians to five hits. Kreutzer didn't give up anything after Herbert had to leave the game in the sixth when his elbow stiffened.

Patterson Under Treatment

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Floyd Patterson, the former heavyweight boxing champion, is suffering from an aching back and visited a chiropractor in Sweden for examination and treatment Thursday.



Dan Florio, Patterson's manager-trainer, confirmed that the 29-year-old American has been bothered by back trouble but said he believed it was caused by over-training. Patterson had difficulty in moving about Thursday and appeared worried.

The New Yorker, who hopes to get another shot at the title he has held twice, is scheduled to meet Eddie Machen of Los Angeles in Stockholm July 5.

ATHLETICS PAY BONUS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Athletics Thursday signed bonus player John Frank Sanders, an 18 - year - old outfielder from Grand Island, Neb. Sanders, who was graduated Wednesday night from Grand Island High School, was a star in football, basketball, and track. He did not compete in high school baseball because his school did not have a team.

Joan Hackett to Display Skills in Hope Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When a television series has a role that demands a flood of tears, one of the first names that pops into a director's mind is Joan Hackett.

Joan, despite her ability to produce big, beautiful and tears on cue, is a happy, ambitious and carefree young woman.

She'll be weeping again tonight, in the NBC Bob Hope Theatre program, Echo of Evil.

"I play a drug addict who becomes what I suppose you call a lady of the evening," Joan said. "It isn't a very big part, but it's pretty good, aside from the tears. And after all the tears I've played, the character—and nice—is in an area in which I need to stretch myself. It is very important for an actress to keep all her skills limber."

Her profitable weeping began after the sudden end of a glorious television romance. She was cast as the fiancee of the youngest lawyer in CBS' Defenders. But either a couple of episodes was decided that a permanent romance would restrict the activities of character Kenneth Reston, so she was written out of the script.

Most interesting weekend program is tonight's 60 - minute CBS documentary with Gen Eisenhower talking during a return to the scene, the D-Day invasion of France on the eve of the 20th anniversary.

Jets Blank Crackers, Leafs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After collecting a grand total of no runs and three hits in their last two International League games, Columbus Jets can be pardoned for wondering what Atlanta Crackers are doing in last place.

Jim Merritt, who used to be a clubhouse boy for Los Angeles Dodgers, threw a one-hitter at the Jets Thursday night as the Crackers came through with a thumping 8-0 victory, good enough to get them within three games of seventh place. Gord Seyfried had limited Columbus to two hits in blanking them 3-0 24 hours earlier.

Split doubleheaders were the order of the day in the league's Canadian section as the first-place Toronto Maple Leafs bounced back to a 2-0 victory over Buffalo after losing the opener to the Bisons 3-2 and the second-place Jacksonville Suns nipped Richmond Virginians 6-5 after being behind 5-0.

Two home and a double by Earl Robinson accounted for four runs in Rochester Red Wings' 6-4 victory over Syracuse, dropping the Chiefs half a game behind Jacksonville.

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Derek Kelsall, 31 - year - old yachtsman, limped back to port in his damaged trimaran Solitaire Thursday and said a whale had put him out of the single - handed transatlantic race.

"I was about 500 miles out when a whale hit me," Kelsall said.

The rudder and steering gear were broken by the impact. Kelsall said he thought he was among the leaders when the accident happened.

Meanwhile, David Lewis, who is helping to set the pace in his catamaran Rehu Moana, radioed that he is riding 30-foot waves in a storm.

He has sailed approximately 1,000 miles and is disputing the lead with Francis Chichester's sloop Gipsy Moth III, Mike Ellison's Hals and Pat — Dutch II, sailed by French naval officer Eric Tabarly.

Five Months of Labor Went Into New Song by Wilson

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On his television special Thursday night, Meredith Willson introduced a new song which may endure as long as his 76 Trombones.

It is one of the simplest songs ever written by the music man, but five months of labor went into its composition.

Six months ago, Willson received a call from Frank Loesser. the two collaborated on Ladies Willson's songs. Loesser told him he should write a marching song.

"And then he told me two words that made me fall on the floor," recalled Willson. The words were:

"Ask not."

With president John F. Kennedy's assassination still fresh in his mind, Willson began.

"I worked and reworked the theme," he said. "No matter what I combined with the words, 'Ask not what your country can do for you,' it didn't sound right.

"After weeks of effort, I decided on the form of a Negro spiritual. Why did I need other words? After all, the title is repeated with every line. 'He's got the Whole World in his Hands.' Then for a closer, the line is sung again, but the closing line was already written for me: 'ask what you can do for your country.'"

When he decided to introduce the song on the television special, he withheld the music from the cast until just before final rehearsal. The music business being what it is, he didn't want to risk pirating of the idea.

At the Belle

Tom Jones Star Records Topper with only 3 Films

Although handsome Albert Finney has appeared in only one previous movie, an estimation made by Time Magazine that he is the most promising British actor since Sir Laurence Olivier seems to be bearing out.

For critic reaction to his second appearance in the title role of Henry Fielding's celebrated novel, "Tom Jones," now showing at the Belle Theatre for an unlimited engagement, has been most enthusiastic.

Some say he's gone so far as to say that the picture will prove Britain's greatest contribution to the gaiety of nation's in years, and that Albert Finney has become a top screen star with it, on his second time out.

For two years he worked nonstop on the London stage, including an appearance in the International hit "Luther" interrupting it only for a performance in "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning", his first and up to "Tom Jones", his only movie.

New Boisterous Role

In the latter he creates an entirely different role, for Tom is a boisterous foundling who grows into a handsome lad with an eye for the ladies. "Tom Jones" he was directed by Tony Richardson whose last films written by John Osborne. This is the same team that created the stage success Luther.

Once out of the Royal Academy Dramatic Arts, Albert Finney caught the eye of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre. His first important role there was in "The Shakespeare's "Henry V". At the age of 21 he starred in the demanding role of Macbeth.

It was in this play he was spotted by Charles Laughton, who brought the auburn-haired youth to London's West End and a six month run in "The Party."

From that moment on, Finney has not had to look back in his career.

Montreal Engineer Probably Has Best Privately-Owned Shakespeare Collection

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal engineer Sidney Fisher is much in demand these days, now that William Shakespeare's birth 400 years ago is being commemorated.

Mr. Fisher talks about the Bard of Avon as if he knew him personally, and a look into his home in Town of Mount Royal home confirms that he practically does.

In one room, shelves stretching from floor to ceiling hold what he believes is the "principal" privately owned Shakespeare collection in the world.

This includes some of the renowned First Folios (the first collected edition of Shakespeare's plays), the books Shakespeare read, books referring to the Bard written during his lifetime or in the century after his death, and works about the literature, life and manners of the time.

Then there are the maps and drawings of Shakespeare's London. These occupy a garage now converted into another library.

Altogether the collection includes about 500 items. Books from the Sidney T. Fisher collection can be seen each summer at Ontario's Stratford Shakespearean Festival. Universities borrow his books. Some are on display at Massey College, University of Toronto, and Mr. Fisher has donated two folios to Canadian universities.

He's also in demand as a lecturer.

MANUSCRIPTS GONE

Mr. Fisher calls the appearance of Shakespeare's First Folios "the greatest event in the history of literature." They are the closest thing to the original manuscripts, none of which is believed to exist today.

Two of Shakespeare's fellow actors, John Hemle and Henry Condell, published the first collection of his plays in 1623. About 800 copies were sold at about £1 each.

The First Folio of 36 plays was reprinted three times, as were the Second Folio in 1632, Third Folio in 1663-64 and Fourth Folio in 1685. All are extremely valuable today.

"It is generally believed that about 800 copies of each were printed and about 100 or so copies of each have survived."

Mr. Fisher says it now is known that the type for the First Folio was partly set from manuscripts in Shakespeare's handwriting.

"Shakespeare suffered more than most of his contemporaries from careless editors and printers. The First Folio contains hundreds of typographical errors, misplaced or omitted lines, wrong page numbers and so on.

Mr. Fisher says Shakespeare was a voracious reader. "I have every book, with one or two exceptions, that he knew," he said, pulling down an ancient copy of The History of the Kings of Denmark, from which the playwright is believed to have taken the plot for Hamlet.

SOURCE OF PLAYS

Also in his collection is Raphael Holinshead's Chronicles of England, Scotland and Ireland, published in 1527. Holinshead was the principal historian of Shakespeare's day, and scholars believe his work was the source of 10 of the Elizabethan playwright's historical plays, including Richard II, Richard III, Macbeth and King Lear.

Mr. Fisher, originally from Edmonton, started the collection after the Second World War "when some of the great libraries in England broke up."

"When I started collecting 15 years ago, I could get all sorts of things. Now a collection like this can never be formed again."

Why Shakespeare? "I've always been interested in Shakespeare." Some of his interest, he admitted, he inherited from his father, R. T. Fisher, who was with the Hudson's Bay Company trader in Edmonton in the 1890s.

"He fought in Indian wars, but was a man of literary tastes." Another brother, Charles Fisher, of Montreal has a well-known Voltaire collection and a collection of Kipling's works.

Now Mr. Fisher is concentrating on his maps—"the city itself, and the buildings." Among other things, he's an expert on the topography of Shakespeare's London.

"I really have everything on that topic."

But these valuable collections are still an "avocation" for Mr. Fisher. He owns an engineering firm, and sees his interest as "not much different from playing golf or any other hobby."

ENGINEER'S LIBRARY — Montreal engineer Sidney Fisher leafs through one of the books in his Shakespeare collection which includes about 500 items connected with the English playwright. The collection is an "avocation" for Mr. Fisher who owns an engineering firm. He believes it is the "principal" such collection in private hands in the world.

Control Centre Now Treating Town Sewage

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's new $200,000 water pollution control centre is now treating town sewage.

The hookups between the modified treatment plant and the town's sewer lines was made for the second time on Wednesday. A previous five-day run, turned up an air leak in the system.

With the air leak repaired, Resident Inspector Harry Bruce, is confident there will be no more abutdowns.

Unofficial tests indicate the treatment process is turning out a very high grade effluent. Commenting on the purity of the effluent, Mr. Bruce said, "it's much better than we hoped for".

With the hookup now completed, workmen will turn to the task of filling in the lagoon, used for the past six months to treat town sewage.

Govt. Ratifies Columbia River Treaty, Protocol

New Democrats Vote Solidly Against

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The legal progress of the Columbia River treaty and protocol has shown that the course of legislation can be as long and turbulent as any river's.

The power project conceived 20 years ago took its final leap over formal House of Commons obstacles Friday by receiving a favorable vote of 106 to 16.

A bloc Progressive Conservative, C. O. Cooper of Rosetown-Biggar, joined in opposition with 13 members of the New Democratic Party who have been firmly against the treaty from the beginning.

There were 57 Liberals supported by 45 Progressive Conservatives, five Creditistes and one Social Creditor in favor of the resolution supporting ratification of the treaty and protocol.

The resolution goes to the Senate Tuesday. It is expected to have an easier time there since the upper chamber has no New Democrats. Even the only step remaining will be the exchange of instruments of ratification between the U.S. and Canada.

CONSIDERS NEA

Monday, the House turns to National Health Act amendments. Debate is at the second reading stage and the government intends to have the bill through detailed committee study before switching to debate on urging amendments replenishing the lending capacity of the Farm Credit Corporation.

In other business Friday, Prime Minister Pearson assured the Opposition that his dual recognition of adoption of a national flag with a maple leaf design and on designation of the Union Jack as symbol of the Commonwealth connection will not be split.

The flag issue, which daily has added fuel to the parliamentary fire, came up again when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker wanted to know why personal views had been written in opposition to the maple leaf flag were getting replies from Mr. Pearson thanking them for their support.

Mr. Pearson said thousands of letters are being received and he would table some of the typical types of answers that were being sent.

Justice Minister Favreau informed the House that his department would ask the Quebec government are collaborating to have a court test made of existing laws covering hate literature. Meanwhile draft legislation is being studied but no way has been found of stopping the dissemination of hate literature while protecting freedom of speech.

Monty Says Ike Muffed Campaign

LONDON (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Britain declared on a D-Day anniversary program Friday night that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of the United States never really understood the strategy of the Normandy campaign and seemed "to get the whole thing muddled up."

Montgomery's use of the anniversary program for renewing criticism of Eisenhower appeared to shock many listeners to the TV program carried by the British Broadcasting Corporation. Many telephoned the BBC to check whether they had heard him right.

After the Montgomery broadcast, some military experts on London newspapers expressed regret over his statement.

They took the view that remarks of a personal nature were not in keeping with a program that was dedicated to demonstrating the teamwork that went into D-Day's success 20 years ago.

TEDDER CRITICAL

After watching the show at home, Lord Tedder, Marshal of the RAF, said: "This outburst is a pitiful example of a man's second childhood." Earlier in the program Tedder had complained mildly that the program inclined to give a predominantly British version of the invasion and added: "We should not forget that it was a team project."

Tedder was deputy supreme commander under Eisenhower at the time of the Normandy invasion.

United Church Agrees Act Needs Revision

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada agrees with Attorney - General Arthur Wishart of Ontario that the Lord's Day Act needs revision.

Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, said in a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Robarts Friday that the church does not want to see individuals hurt because of sabbath laws passed years ago when society was more rigid in its outlook.

Mr. Wishart said Thursday that the time had come to review the act in view of modern business, commercial and social conditions.

The United Church telegram said: "Multitudes of our people will never be in a church sanctuary and we are not going to save them by multiplying the blue laws."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Southern Ontario will be getting seasonably warm weather today but in the north the weather will be considerably cooler. On Sunday the cooler weather will edge further southward producing lower temperatures in the south but it is unlikely that temperatures will be as cool as those expected in the north today.

REMEMBER THE NEWS? — This was the front page of The Ontario Intelligencer on D-Day, June 6th, 20 years ago — the day the tide turned in World War II.

Honor D-Day Fallen

OMAHA BEACH, France (CP)—Old soldiers joined in homage today to their fallen war-time comrades on the 20th anniversary of the mightiest invasion in history.

They gathered on the silent Normandy beaches where on this day two decades ago began the final assault on the Nazi empire.

Americans, British, French, Canadian, Belgian and Norwegian official delegations took part in simple ceremonies at key points along the invasion area.

On a fateful day 20 years ago, the Allies launched against these shores the biggest seaborne invasion in world history to open a breach in Adolf Hitler's vaunted west wall" and open the road to Berlin.

Some 156,700 American, Canadian, British and French soldiers landed on these beaches that day, at a cost of more than 10,000 casualties—some 6,000 Americans and about 4,300 Canadians and British.

The commemoration ceremonies started here Friday with veterans of Operation Overlord, the code name for the invasion, taking part in tributes to those who died that day.

"I had almost forgotten," an old Norman woman said Friday night, as Allied troops marched along the beaches, fireworks exploded in the sky and warships gathered offshore. "Now it all

Those Lost Russian Astronauts Died 30 Years Ago, in Balloon

MOSCOW (AP) — Pavel Fedosenko would no doubt have been proud, if puzzled.

Proud to have been called an astronaut who died searching the far distances of outer space.

Said Pavel got only 72,178 feet above ground. And he went up in a balloon—not a space ship.

A story in a stamp collectors' weekly in Sidney, Ohio, that the Russians have issued a commemorative stamp for three astronauts lost in orbit —one of them Fedosenko—got smiles from Russians Friday.

True enough, a stamp was issued. And, true, it commemorated three high flyers.

But they weren't astronauts at all. They were balloonists. And they died 30 years ago.

Pavel Fedosenko was leader of the crew of the balloon—Osoviakhim 1—who took off Jan. 30, 1934, to make scientific explorations in the atmosphere. The other two were named Vasenko and Yastakin. They were called stratonauts.

While Russia's own Soviet Encyclopedia tells—they were overtaken by catastrophe. The three died and their ashes now lie in the Kremlin wall, beside those of other Soviet heroes.

The stamp collectors' weekly, Linn' Stamp News, in a story by its London correspondent, said the commemorative stamp "sneaked out without further promotion" and that a memorial had been erected to the men's honor in "a place called Seramk."

Landings Made From Le Havre to Cherbourg Say Germans

Bells Pealed Here 20 Years Ago

By HARRY HOLMAN.

Work-a-day Belleville woke to the clash of church bells that Tuesday morning.

Three men on their way to work asked a hotel employee what all the excitement was about.

Obviously they hadn't heard the early morning newscasts.

So he told them.

It was June sixth, 1944.

In Belleville, it was about 7 a.m. In Normandy it was about noon and one of history's greatest and most terrible events was about six hours old.

That night Bellevillians had the facts of it before them in The Ontario Intelligencer, not all the facts — just those censorship would approve for publication. Still it was enough to fill the 14 pages of that night's edition.

And it is to that edition that one must turn to discover how Belleville, as one Ontario town, reacted to history in the making 20 years ago.

One group of men hesitated outside a war plant, asked if it was a public holiday since the long-awaited invasion was now underway. They were told no — and went inside to work.

Reporters seeking local color were disappointed at the city's reaction, so much so one was moved to comment.

"Perhaps the war of nerves directed against the enemy in radio and newspaper reports of the invasion during past few months has something to do with it. Perhaps it was the feeling built up by weeks of anticipation, of hazarding guess as to when D-Day would

Bilingualism Will Divide Nation Is View in Ultra-British Victoria

VICTORIA (CP)—Victorian Friday night provided the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism with what co-chairman André Laurendeau described as one of the liveliest informal hearings of its current tour.

The public meeting heard suggestions that English be declared Canada's only official language and that bilingualism is bound "to drive us apart."

Much of the comment during the day-long informal sessions attended by invited community leaders and the evening public session centred around how Quebec should be treated by English-Canada and French instruction in British Columbia schools.

Mr. Laurendeau said he was pleased by the depth of thinking.

Eric Charman, Progressive Conservative candidate for Victoria in the last federal election, said the BNA Act had tried to bring about the marriage of two cultures. It was evident today that the marriage was having its troubles and it was futile "to suggest there was no problem."

One man in the audience of 300 came out for "one language for Canada — whether it's French or English."

An elderly man with a broad British accent demanded the commissioners tell the meeting "what exactly the French in Quebec want that they have not got under the British North America act."

When Commission Secretary Neil Morrison said the commissioners were here to listen to views, not give them, he was interrupted by shouts of: "What is it you want?" "Don't elaborate it," and "The commission must have a view."

Professing he didn't know what all the fuss is about," one man said Quebec "has been pandered to by both political parties to get its 75 seats in the legislature."

One of the leaders of 10 discussion groups which met earlier Friday said his group had decided French Canada wants "the same treatment for French-Canadian minorities in the rest of Canada as is given English minorities in Quebec."

But a woman in the audience had a different reply. "There's a simple answer to what Quebec wants," she said. "To control Canada—let's face it."

Canucks Roam Beaches

By BEN WARD

DOUVRES LA DELIVRANCE (CP)—It's D-Day plus 20 years and about 200 Canadians are roaming France's Normandy beaches recalling the historic invasion that cracked Hitler's Fortress Europe.

In 1944 nearly 9,000 Canadians split the beaches in the first allied assault wave and another 7,000 poured in later that day.

Canada's official party is headed by Veterans Minister Rober Teiller and includes Lt.-Gen Guy Simonds, who led a Canadian division in the battle of Northwest Europe.

Other Canadians have arrived in regimental and Royal Canadien Legion tour groups or on private holiday trips.

Formal ceremonies began Friday afternoon at the little village of Douvres la Delivrance where a 1,200 - grave British cemetery is located. Although most of the graves are British, a scattering of them represent other Allied nations, including Canada. There also are 82 German soldiers buried there.

The chief of Mountfortescue in County Louth was arrested by traffic officer Pat Duff, a friend of the court.

"I was motorcycling toward Collan when I saw a car with a trailer 4 ft. travelling very slowly ahead of me. I could not see anyone behind the steering wheel of the car. When I came level with it I saw that the driver's seat was in the front passenger seat, and steering the car from this position. Sitting in the driver's seat was a sheep dog

"Duff told me," Devin continued, "that he was not driving at all—that the dog was driving. I thought Duff was joking but he kept insisting that the dog was driving."

The court heard other charges against Duff — no

Irishman Lost His Licence So Let His Dog Drive His Car

COLLAN, Irish Republic (AP)—An Irish farmer who let his dog sit behind the wheel of his car after he had lost his driver's licence was hauled into court Friday as a road menace.

Peter Duff of Mountfortescue in County Louth was arrested by traffic officer Pat Devin, a friend of the court.

"I was motorcycling toward Collan when I saw a car with a trailer 4 ft. travelling very slowly ahead of me. I could not see anyone behind the steering wheel of the car. When I came level with it I saw that the driver's seat was in the front passenger seat, and steering the car from this position. Sitting in the driver's seat was a sheep dog

"Duff told me," Devin continued, "that he was not driving at all—that the dog was driving. I thought Duff was joking but he kept insisting that the dog was driving."

The court heard other charges against Duff — no driver's licence, no insurance, driving a defective vehicle, driving dangerously, and driving while under the influence of drink.

District Judge Henry McCourt called Duff's physician, Dr. William Irwin, as a witness. The doctor testified that Duff also told him his dog was a driver who "not only steered but operated the car as well as with its paws."

Duff was indignant that anybody questioned his story and insisted that the father of his present dog also had been a motorist.

Duff told the court he felt his driver's licence should be revoked unfairly and that he'd taken a vow never to drive "as long as water runs, the grass grows and the holly is green." So he put his dog in the driver's seat.

Judge McCourt dismissed the drunk driving charges and suspended judgment for six months on the other charges to give Duff "an opportunity of consulting with doctors."

Lawyer Is Jailed For Theft

TORONTO (CP) — Samuel Resnick, 42-year-old disbarred lawyer, was sentenced to eight years imprisonment Friday for whom he pleaded guilty to 28 of 31 charges of theft involving $239,665.

Magistrate George Gardhouse imposed sentence on Resnick, who voluntarily returned to Canada after fleeing to Israel.

Charles Dubin, defence counsel told the court that the snowballing of Resnick's debts finally caught up with him when he left Canada.

He said Resnick, who has since sent $33,000 to the Ontario Woodsworth Memorial Foundation as part payment for a $125,000 cheque he was said to have forged, is penniless and has been disbarred for life from practising as a lawyer.

Crown counsel Arthur Klein said Resnick's thefts from clients' trust accounts undermines confidence in the legal profession.

He asked for a sentence to "show deterrent effect on him and take notice who is thinking of using somebody else's money."

HOUSE INVOLVED

The theft involved private clients and a controversy over the sale of Woodsworth House, former headquarters of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Earlier Friday, a supreme court hearing was told by another lawyer that Resnick had "utterly denied" a claim that $125,000 deposited in his trust account contained a forged signature.

R. Lawrence Stone, counsel for Lloyd Gordon and Mont Blanc Holding Company, purchasers of Woodsworth House, testified that Resnick denied when he learned of the forgery allegation seven months ago after the $150,000 deal was closed.

The deal was closed Nov. 5, 1962, when he handed Resnick the cheque payable to the Ontario Woodsworth Foundation.

Resnick fled to Israel after the Woodsworth deal.

A civil action by the foundation, the former owner of the house, is seeking to recover $133,000 from the sale plus $5,000 interest. The Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia, which honored the cheque, are also being sued.

Report Turkey Planned To Send Troops To Isle

NATO General Makes Hurried Trip to Ankara

NICOSIA (AP)—Reports that a Turkish invasion of Cyprus was imminent have put Greek and Cypriot armed forces on an emergency alert, but an immediate showdown was reported to have been avoided by the intervention of President Johnson.

"The Cyprus crisis has been pushed into a grave phase by the Greek-Cypriot administrators," a Turkish cabinet spokesman said.

A leading Turkish informant said however that Turkey had given up the idea of landing on Cyprus "for the time being."

Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, supreme commander of allied forces in Europe, flew to Ankara unexpectedly Friday. He met with Gen. Cevdet Sunay, Turkey's chief of staff, and with Premier Ismet Inonu.

The Turkish source said U.S. Ambassador Raymond Hare gave Inonu a note from President Johnson inviting Inonu to the United States, and explaining that the President was unable to leave the country.

EXAMINE IDEA

Both Johnson and Lemnitzer examined the possibilities of a Turkish landing on the island. The Turkish source said, adding that they told Turkey it could complicate the Middle East situation.

In Washington, the White House refused comment on any Johnson intervention in an invasion but said he did suggest to Inonu the possibility of visiting Washington if convenient but this matter is still under discussion."

Nicosia was filled with rumors that Turkey had six ships cruising off the north coast of Cyprus.

Cypriot sources also said the U.S. 6th Fleet was concentrating somewhere near the area, as it often does.

The sources said 30,000 national guardsmen had been called into action to defend all coastal areas.

Troops were concentrated on the northern coast, especially in the Kamouras area west of Morphu Bay. That section is fortified by Greek Cypriots while the Turkish-Cypriots had been importing arms from Istanbul.

NOTHING UNUSUAL

Turkish-Cypriots showed no unusual activity, despite reports that any Turkish invasion would be combined with an attack by Turkish - Cypriots on strategic points northward from the capital city.

Russia Plans No Moon Trip This Decade

GENEVA (AP)—One of Russia's leading space scientists said Friday the Soviet Union has no set plan for landing a man on the moon "within the present decade."

Professor Anatoly A. Blagonravov, chief Soviet delegate to a United Nations committee on the peaceful uses of outer space, told reporters that while the Soviet Union is going ahead with a manned landing program he could not say when it might be achieved.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy director of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Agency, stressed that the American goal to land a man on the moon by 1970 is based on the expectation that no unforeseen difficulties are met before the time date. "We could be wrong," he said.

Half of Strawberry Crop Ruined by 2 Nights' Frost

Temperatures dropping below the freezing mark last night and Thursday night had ruined up to 50 per cent of the strawberry crop in the areas north of the city.

Those hardest hit in Ameliasburg area by unseasonal frosts are up to $4,000, when frost nipped his strawberry plants last night, while north of the Stirling area up to 50 per cent of the strawberries were ruined by frost on Thursday night.

Last night Jack Frost struck again with the temperatures dropping to 30 degrees and lower in the area north of the city.

One Moira district resident said farmers took precaution wherever possible and covered tender plants with blankets, coats and most anything else available in an effort to ward off the white killer.

Last night even the upper reaches of young potatoes were nipped by the frost.

Douglas Denies Any Merger Is in Making

OTTAWA (CP) — T. C Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Friday there will be "no merger or other deals" between New Democrats and the Liberal party.

He added in a statement: "Any changes in party policy or basic strategy will be determined by representative policy convention, and by no one else."

He was commenting on a Canadian Press report from Ottawa Thursday quoting informed political sources as saying the Liberals have made some changes in their party structure in line with requirements laid down in top - level talks with the NDP for possible merger of the parties.

The CP report also said the long-term move toward merger has not been discussed at the top since last February but that there has been a tendency by some persons in both parties to accent similarities of policy publicly and privately.

Mr. Douglas declared the report as "no more than a warmed - over version of the same absurd story that appeared in the Toronto Star last December."

He added: "I repeat, no mergers are being or will be contemplated so long as I am leader and, therefore, no working relationships, no informal deals have been worked out between the New Democrats and the Liberals."

Some People Are Extremists Says Minister

WINNIPEG (CP) — Stat. Secretary Lamontagne said Friday that persons who talk of acquiring separate states in Canada and who are impatient with negotiation and compromise are dangerous extremists.

He did not refer by name to Quebec Resources Minister René Lévesque, but referred by several statements attributed recently to Mr. Levesque.

"The Liberal federal minister told the Manitoba Centennial Corporation.

"Now is the time for reasonable men to talk of separate states, secession and so on. Now is not the time for men to announce they are impatient with negotiation and compromise.

"Now is not the time to denounce the concept of co-operative federalism—before it has been tested."

Mr. Lamontagne also criticized businessmen who promote "Buy Ontario" and "Buy Quebec" publicity campaigns "for narrow economic gain."

Argue Quebec Free to Seek BNA Act Change

By JULES LAGUE

QUEBEC (CP)—Two professors of international law said Friday Quebec should have no scruples about proposing an entirely new Canadian constitution or demanding the right to conclude international agreements in fields recognized as being in its jurisdiction by the British North America Act.

Jacques-Yvan Morin of the University of Montreal and Andre Patry of Laval University in Quebec City were questioned for 3½ hours at the first session of the legislature committee set up to define the objectives of French Canada and constitutional revisions needed to realize them.

Prof. Morin said the committee should not feel itself imprisoned by the present constitutional "corset" and should feel itself free to propose an entirely new Canadian constitution rather than attempt to "get out of the present impasse" one step at a time.

Prof. Patry said the provinces should be able to carry out, without restrictions, responsibilities recognized as theirs by the BNA Act, including international agreements in such fields as education.

NO PRESSURE DETAILS

He said there are no precise details on this in the BNA Act and Supreme Court and Privy Council decisions, while confirming the conclusion of international accords in the general government, reserved their application to provincial governments in the domains under their jurisdiction.

But the provinces could modify any such agreements for its own purposes, he added.

Mr. Morin said centralization of powers in Ottawa may be attractive to the other provinces but not to Quebec for cultural and historical reasons.

Damage to McNevin's 1964 automobile was estimated by police at $1,800 and $100 to Rosien's car.

Mayor, Dept. Discuss 2nd Town Bridge

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald returned to Trenton Thursday night, following a four day visit to Toronto during which he met with Ontario Department of Highway officials to discuss a second bridge for the town. The DHO pledged last year to regard the bridge and its approaches in Trenton as secondary classification between Highways 401 and 33, and as such, to pay a 75 per cent subsidy towards construction costs.

Meanwhile, a further pledge of upwards of $800,000 was wrested from the Federal Department of Transport—which means, in effect, that the bridge would cost the town a round zero.

There's one stipulation, however. Before the federal department hands over the $300,000, the town must undertake to take on the maintenance and repair of the swing portion of the old bridge.

The mayor has had Ontario Department of Highways engineers down to examine the bridge. They say it will cost about $80,000 to put the swing portion in A-1 shape.

The Department of Transport has had department engineers down to examine the bridge and also, the mayor said, provincial department engineers' estimates.

But the federal department engineers' report has not been forthcoming.

Mayor MacDonald told The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday that he was "getting fed up" with the waiting and would make a trip to Ottawa next week to consult with the Minister of Transport, the Hon. John Pickersgill on the matter —unless word from the department is received at the town office in the meantime.

24 Children Enjoy Visit To Toronto

TRENTON — On Monday, 24 children from the district school for the retarded, accompanied by school staff members, Mary Waters, two teachers from the school, Mrs. Emily Beaton and Mrs. Pat Morgan, and ten senior helpers, travelled to Toronto on a Rathbun chartered bus to visit the zoo and the Ontario model farm. Cy Sloat, a member of the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for the Retarded, went along to help Mr. Wauters with the boys.

The children ate lunch outside the zoo and ate their box lunches, and then toured the zoo. They were "enchanted" with the animals ... and particularly fond of the elephants, and monkeys. Some of the children fed the elephants peanuts from their lunch bags ... others, a little more timid, threw the peanuts at the elephants. The monkeys seemed to be ever so glad to see so many fine looking boys and girls at their front doors, and put on a special show.

At the Centre Island farm, the children saw more goats, sheep, ponies and rabbits and enjoyed sitting at picnic tables and eating the lunch their teachers bought for them from a refreshment stand.

The trip to and from the island was made aboard the island ferry, and this was a great thrill for the children. They waved gaily to other boats in the harbor.

At the island, it was hard to get them off the playground swings and round-a-bouts to make the trip back to the bus in the ferry.

At 6.15 p.m., the return trip home began, and believe it or not, not one child went to sleep during the two and a half hour trip.

PROPOSES JAIL

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democrat proposal in the Commons Friday that directors of companies that are repeatedly convicted of breaking the Combines Investigation Act should be packed off to jail. David Orlikow (Winnipeg North) said the private member's Bill would mean that the courts would deal with the wealthy executives in the same manner it deals with poor people who steal food from a supermarket. His bill was talked out in the hour available for debate.

Hospital Auxiliary Entertained

TRENTON — On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Harold Keeler entertained in honor of some seventy members of the Volunteer Services staff of the Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital.

The occasion was a tea which was held at Mrs. Keefer's home on Sutcliffe Blvd. Mrs. H. Bearse, Auxiliary president assisted the hostess in receiving the guests all of whom gave many hours of service to the hospital in capacities to our hospital.

Mayor W. Spear and Mrs. J. S. Duncan were the guests of the spacious living room and Mrs. N. Campey, Mrs. Sprouls Currie and Mrs. Ken McLaren looked after the guests in the dining room.

The tea table which was artistically decorated in a pink and green motif was presided over by Mrs. Murray Dixon, honorary vice-president of the auxiliary and by Mrs. J. G. Graham, wife of the chairman of the Board of Directors of the hospital.

It is surprising to some to find that over one hundred public spirited citizens of Trenton — and this includes many from our Air Station — give hours of regular weekly service to their efforts to bring added comfort and cheer to the patients in the hospital. Of these guests Miss Hazel Nash made splendid managers of gratitude and appreciation on behalf of the Administration and Board of Directors. Mrs. Keefer, who is directress of Volunteer Services for the Auxiliary expressed her appreciation for the services of these volunteers who make this fine work possible.

Small Attendance

TRENTON — Four people showed up at a public meeting in the town here Thursday night to hear objections to proposed revisions in the town's official plan.

Major changes in the plan proposed include the changing of portions of some town streets from residential to Commercial; some land from Industrial to Residential; correct errors in zoning regulations and the established plan and the changing of some zoning boundaries.

The proposed changes will now be sent to the Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, the Hon. J. W. Spooner, and, if approved by the minister, an application for re-zoning will be sent to the Ontario Municipal Board.

RCAF, Guards Conduct Joint Exercises

Exercises to test Canada's ability to defend herself in Germany and will continue until June 17.

Conducted jointly by the Canadian Guards and the RCAF, they involve the movement of about 900 troops from Camp Linton, Ont., to Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick.

The first exercise, dubbed "Qui Vive 4", is designed to simulate action in the event of a United Nations request for Canadian peace-keeping troops. It calls for the standby First Battalion of the Canadian Guards with its weapons and equipment to be flown over the 1,500 mile distance by Hercules and Yukon aircraft of the RCAF Air Transport Command.

Conducted in two stages, the first stage takes the troops in Yukon aircraft more than 900 miles from Trenton to Goose Bay, Labrador, which represents an overseas test. The second stage involves transport of the troops from Goose Bay to Fredericton, N.B., a distance of 450 miles in Hercules aircraft. Moves from Camp Picton to Trenton and from Fredericton to Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick.

Exercise directed by the Commander of the Canadian Guards, Brig. Gen. R. W. Moore, D.S.O., and the general officer commanding Eastern Command. After completion of the six exercises, the First Battalion of the Canadian Guards will stay in Camp Gagetown to participate in the annual summer concentration.

THE THREAT OF SMALLPOX IS STILL WITH US.

It is almost impossible to get smallpox if vaccinated against it. But, unfortunately immunity only lasts for about five years after vaccination. After that, if exposed to a smallpox carrier, this dread disease can be acquired.

Has every member of your family been immunized against smallpox within the past five years? If not, phone your physician for an appointment as soon as possible. The cost of smallpox vaccine is so low that everyone should be vaccinated every five years.

Your Doctor can phone us when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people count on us with their prescriptions. May we dispense yours?

Schoolmaster Has Beatle Hairdos Cut

CARLISLE, England (AP) — John Boak, a schoolmaster who called in a barber to clip the Beatle hairdos of a score of shaggy - headed schoolboys, is due for either a reprimand or a medal.

Deputy Mayor Jim Smith urged the medal. But six governors of the school where it happened failed to say after a meeting Friday night just what they will recommend.

Boak ordered the boys to line up Thursday before a barber who gave them conventional haircuts.

Smith said the schoolmaster didn't go far enough.

"I would have shaved them," Smith declared.

But John Walker, a school governor, said: "My hair nearly stood on end when I heard about this arbitrary action."

The governors said they would submit a report to the next meeting of the Carlisle Education Committee.

Boak, deputy headmaster at Harraby Secondary School, considers long hair anti-social. A month ago he told the boys: "Get your hair cut or we'll cut it for you."

Think Girl, 2 Assaulted, Charge Youth

A 2½-year-old girl, left in charge of a teenage male babysitter last night, is believed to have been the victim of a criminal assault.

Police questioned the babysitter after he was picked up at his home early this morning.

Later this morning police charged the youth with indecent assault. No names were released.

Officers said the mother left her baby with the sitter and returned home several hours later to find the child alone—and crying.

She became alarmed when it appeared the baby had been injured and called police.

The child was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital for treatment.

About four a.m. detectives, convinced they were investigating a case of molestation, went to the baby sitter's and took him to headquarters for questioning.

He was still being interviewed this morning.

Wide Field of Opportunity Opened for Deaf Students

By GLADYS WARD

Hundreds of parents and interested friends visited the Ontario School for the Deaf on Friday afternoon and evening to observe the pupils at work in their classrooms and vocational shops.

With the opening of the new vocational building the program of training has expanded to provide new opportunities in a wide variety of trades and skills. The building itself is bright, spacious and equipped with the most modern tools and machines. Indian and Eskimo art add to the modern aspect of the halls with semi-abstract paintings.

In the cabinet making room a picnic table had been completed by a first year student, and a cribbage table by a third year student. A chest of drawers with a fine professional look was the work of a pupil in his fifth year. Kitchen cabinets with a basin set in were on display and a bed with a bedside table. The furniture had been finished by boys in the spray finishing shop. The students drew the plans for the articles they wanted to make and when the plans are approved the parents pay for the material and the finished article belongs to the pupil.

In the printing shop the boys were busy with a linotype machine printing the monthly paper "The Canadian," a bright four-page edition with pictures and stories of the school's activities.

Boys were learning to upholster furniture, were studying drafting and blueprinting, horticulture, plumbing, janitorial services, wood working and other crafts.

STRIP A CAR

In the auto shop a car had been stripped so the students could see the construction. They were taught to assemble a car with its different parts. Some were busy pumping out dents in the fender, sanding and later painting them in the paint shop.

Drafting is an optional subject which demands accuracy, pline, a critical eye, patience, and ability to visualize. Each pupil is taken to the end of Grade X, and if he wishes to go on, he may specialize in the class of drafting which will help him most, as a machinist, woodworker or sheet metal worker. Also an excellent training for silk screen designers, printing compositors, and cabinet trades.

There are 530 students in residence at the school, and with their housemothers and teachers they gather in the spacious dining room three times a day for excellent meals. They sit 12 to a table, with a house-parent or teacher at each. The decor is done in gold and turquoise with drapes, chairs and dishes in these colors.

Off the dining room is the modern kitchen where the meals are prepared, keeping a large staff busy.

In the library and visual aid room a projector is operated by the senior students. Movies are shown twice a week in the assembly room.

A class of 11 year old severely deaf students was in progress. Each student wore a hearing aid and the teacher wore an amplifier. They demonstrated the sounds of breath and voice.

BEAUTY CULTURE

A good grooming course is given to senior students. This is a compulsory subject for all senior girls, and is a four-year course. The girls shampoo, set and style hair for each other, and also give manicures. The attractive beauty parlor is decorated in pink, grey and aqua, has four basins for shampoos, six driers, and a wall of mirrors and finishing chairs. This has proved to be one of the most popular classes.

In the dressmaking room, the girls had prepared their clothes for the fashion show which they presented on the stage of the assembly room. Seventy-four girls took part in the show.

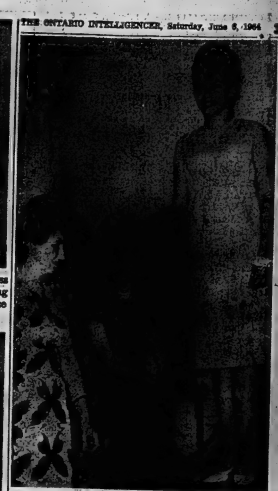
The beginners start with a simple A-line dress which is popular this year. They learn to make shorts, pyjamas and nightgowns. In their second year they also learned how to line garments, and make sportswear. The advanced students made tailored clothes, suits with skirts and jackets lined, covered buttons, and coats. The girls all make their own graduation dresses in white with different styles, all most attractive.

In the commercial class the students were learning to use electric and standard typewriters, to use Gestetners, adding machines, and other types of business machines. They are taught how to set up business letters, and are able to follow copy.

ENJOY RECREATION

Students enjoy summer and winter sports, music, dancing, and all recreation available to private schools. They are well-supervised and cared for, and every need, physical, emotional and intellectual is the concern of the staff.

In a school of such large dimensions it would take more than an afternoon to thoroughly assess all the facets of the learning process the students go through, but it was apparent that even though handicapped a wide field of opportunities was being opened for these young people.



Guides were most obliging in explaining the work of each classroom, and the Superintendent, Mr. J. D. Demers, assistant Superintendent, Mr. C. B. Locklin; and principal of the boys' vocational school Mr. Hodgson were present to assist the visitors.

SETTING TYPE in printing class during OSD open house yesterday is linotype operator Rusty Clarke. Rusty is one of three type-setters in Mr. Norm Horford's printing shop.

Quinte Pupils To Exhibit Art

Art students at Quinte Secondary School are holding an art exhibition later this month with selected work of the various art classes to be on display at the Corby Public Library. Art students from Grade 9 through Grade 12 are taking part in the exhibition being staged under school art director, Mrs. Elizabeth Dewar. Dates for the display are June 8th to 23rd.

Family Life Conference Opens Sunday

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The largest collection of sociological studies on family life ever assembled in Canada forms the background material for the Canadian conference on the family which opens here Sunday.

The four - day conference, sponsored by Governor-General Vanier and Mme. Vanier, will bring together 350 people from across Canada to focus national attention on the problems of the family in modern society.

Nearly 40 briefs submitted by voluntary and professional welfare groups, university professors and individuals in the welfare field will be under study at round - table discussions throughout the conference.

Main source material for the meeting is a 180-page report by Professor Frederick Elkin, associate professor of sociology at the University of Montreal, on the family in Canada.

Professor Elkin's report, published earlier this year in paperback form, is a 70,000-word summary of existing information available on family life in Canada.

Professor Elkin found that there was a desperate shortage of scientific research material on the family. He suggested that there should be a national clearing house for family studies so that the many scattered studies and projects could be brought together and co-ordinated.

He also urged that a Canadian research advisory centre on the family be established to assist in forming out more new information.

National Indian Council Fires Its Princess, Kahn-Tineta Horn

By IRA DILYDDALE

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Indian Council has fired its Indian princess, a 22-year-old beauty from Caughnawaga, Que.

The council lifted the title bestowed a year ago on Kahn-Tineta Horn and at the same time fired her as chairman of the world's fair subcommittee of the council.

Council Chief W. I. C. Wuttunee of Calgary declined to give a reason for the move taken at a council meeting today to discuss the proposed Indian claims bill. But Miss Horn has been under fire in some quarters for being outspoken.

The Thunderbird, a monthly Indian magazine published in English by Duke Redbird of Toronto, says in an editorial in its May issue Miss Horn is a talented, intelligent and outspoken woman.

Mr. Redbird, 26, says in the editorial, however, that "as long as Miss Horn refuses to realize that her own views are not necessarily the voice of her people she will find a reluctant but determined opponent in this editor. . . ."

DIDN'T ATTEND

Miss Horn did not attend the conference. Mr. Wuttunee said she was being informed of the councillors' move.

The chief said the princess title will be vacant until the fourth annual meeting of the NIC in Garden River, Ontario, July 29-31 when a new princess will be chosen.

The world's fair sub-committee planning for the 1967 fair in Montreal, is also to be vacant until the Garden River meeting. It comes under an over-all centennial committee.

families on the island were ordered restricted to British bases at Nicosia, Limassol and Larnaca. An explanation was that there had been an increase in searches of British servicemen travelling on Cyprus roads.

The restriction was placed to avoid possible incidents between British servicemen and Greek-Cypriots.

Editorials From French – Canadian Newspapers

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Presse—Two events a few days apart this week sharply illustrate the folly and the wisdom of men in the field of international relations.

On the one hand, Barry Goldwater, strong candidate for the presidency of the United States, distressed us with delicious and murderous suggestions. To end the war in Viet Nam, the Arizona senator finds nothing better than to preach use of "small" atomic weapons.

Apparently this honorable personage has not enough sense to suggest a program of action which could in a few weeks lead towards peaceful conflict.

The second event, which evokes thoughts of human wisdom applied to relations between nations, is the meeting of Pandit Nehru. Admittedly the prime minister of India is also deeply injured in conflicts. The Kashmir quarrel and Chinese aggression showed that Ghandi's successor did not apply the principles of non-violence to international quarrels.

Nevertheless, Nehru will remain in the memory of men as the great adversary of Barry Goldwater, that is a statesman conscious of the world's problems. Politically, during the coldest part of the Cold War, Nehru refused to side with one or the other of the two blocs which claim to divide the world.

This neutrality earned him criticism from both camps in the time of Foster Dulles and of Stalinism. However, he lived long enough to see his policy triumph with the East-West d'etente and to hear his most bitter critics say implicitly that he was right.

It is almost sacrilege to link the names of Goldwater and Nehru. It must be done however if it will help to define better two opposing attitudes between which the world must choose.

With Goldwater, we inevitably choose the pugnacity of forces; with Nehru peace and reason have a chance to triumph, thanks to salutary defiance of warlike actions which rarely, once started, have brought men anything but injustice and misery.—Gerard Pelletier. (May 28)

LE DEVOIR

Ottawa Le Droit—Canada's difficulty is the matter of taxes resides in its length of territory and its needs in regard to the geographic weakness of its taxpayers. How to get out of this dilemma?

One thing is certain, direct taxes must be reduced. One solution could be to increase indirect taxes, which now are added to the others. Indirect taxes on goods and services, in any case, appear less unjust than direct taxes because they direct people to the measure they use goods and services. Thus a free choice is offered to the consumer in the use or rejection of certain products. Both and indirect taxes together form a double and detestable taxation.

Many parliamentary committees are being formed as time goes by. There is a special committee to study how to diminish direct taxes, for the good of the people as well as business and industry!

Two many taxes harm the economic expansion of a country. The present situation, as it concerns personal income taxes as well as business taxes, is that the taxpayer has a tendency to limit his earnings so he will not be working at a pure loss. We have arrived at this point and one wonders whether we are becoming the certain well known proverbial fishes the people produce less, knowing very well that the state will claim all for survival—Maurice Hoot. (May 28)

LA TRIBUNE

Sherbrooke La Tribune—If he was not the first, René Levesque was one of the first to use the expression "associated state" to define the status he feels can be the only one to suit the province of Quebec in present conditions.

As expected, the formula has been picked up and is becoming a slogan.

No more than the ministers of natural resources) have what is qualified. (May 28)

LE DEVOIR

Montreal (Le Devoir)—We did not have a flag and now we are going to have two. The need for a flag and an anthem. This is a ridiculous situation.

We are thus affirming and re-establishing a vestige of colonialism which is unacceptable to an independent country. The Union Jack, because it was the imperial flag, was Canada's national flag, a vestige of colonialism that an independent Canada should have retained.

The Red Ensign, which settled nothing because it was also a British flag borrowed from the Imperial navy, has never been the object of a solemn proclamation and its use was only consecrated through an order-in-council. If it didn't get any further, it was because French Canada would not accept this foreign flag.

It is said that the present problem has been the most violent psychological shock English Canada has undergone since the Second World War. Could the liberal government neglect this aspect of the problem before the assaults of the separatist group which has been disposed to exploit this dilemma in depth for electoral ends? The premiers one to understand Mr. Pearson's awkward situation but does not justify the fact it promise he dreamed up to get out of it. By this absurd solution, Canada is officially adopting two competing flags, one of which is a foreign flag which takes us back to the colonial era — Paul Sauriol. (May 28)

Dangerous Generalization

Dr. R. F. Briggs, a Kingston psychiatrist who is a staff member of the child and adolescent psychiatric clinic at Kingston General Hospital, addressed the members of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children here. He criticised doctors who advise parents to send their retarded children to institutions.

Surely each case has to be judged individually. It would appear to us to be self-evident that generalizations are dangerous.

Dr. Briggs is an expert and if he believes that it is in the best interests of the retarded child that he remain at home we would not dream of contradicting him.

But the retarded child is not the only individual entitled to have his interests considered. The parents, their rights to happiness and their ability to function as useful citizens ought to be of some concern.

Of even greater concern are the needs of other children in the family. If Dr. Briggs does not know of cases where a normal child has suffered because of parents' concentration on the needs of a retarded child, we do. So, we feel sure, do many medical doctors. This, we suspect, is why so many advise parents to place severely retarded children in institutions.

The way in which the needs of retarded children are neglected, in many instances, in the past was shameful. But it would be even more shameful to permit the pendulum to swing the other way, blighting the prospects of the bright and useful in order to improve the lot of the dull and afflicted.

While the final decision in each case must be made by the parents, they are so emotionally involved that they need advice. The best place to seek it, it seems to us, is from their family doctor, who is likely to know much more about the special needs of that particular family than is any specialist in the needs of just one member of the group.

The Right Decision

Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker deserves applause—and the gratitude of the whole nation—for his forthright renunciation of any idea of making the flag question an election issue.

Speaking to the Scarborough Progressive Conservative Association, he said that "a general election on this question will separate the country for years and generations to come."

We think he is right. Believing this, we find it somewhat difficult to understand why he would advocate a plebiscite on the flag. It seems to us, as we have pointed out before, that such a vote would also divide the nation, although we freely admit not so deeply nor for such a lengthy period as would result if it were made an issue in a general election.

For the main point, though, Mr. Diefenbaker's instinct is sound and sure. It might well be that he could win an election on the flag issue. Those parts of the country where opposition to the proposed new flag would cost him votes, rather than winning him support, are precisely those areas in which he is unlikely to win many seats in any event. In English-speaking Canada, where are located many of the marginal seats which would decide the overall outcome of an election, his endorsation of the Red Ensign might well win him additional seats.

Mr. Diefenbaker, though, is refusing to gamble on such an outcome, because he is convinced that, whatever might be the results for his party, the results for the nation would be disastrous.

Fair Exchange?

President Donald Joss of the Black Diamond Cheese Co. has raised the United Nations flag over his company's plant.

Flags ought to have some rights. It is possible to patent a gadget to pluck eyebrows, or black shoes or peel potatoes, but anybody can expropriate a flag without the rightful owner having any redress.

If there were any justice, UN Secretary U Thant ought to be entitled to come to Belleville and take over the Black Diamond Co., lock, stock and barrel.

The UN flag flies over it, does it not? Therefore, it ought to belong to the UN.

Might be the turning point, for the fortunes of the UN. We know of nothing more likely to make friends and produce tranquil contentment than a chunk of Black Diamond cheddar. If it were available around the world under the UN label, UN prestige would soar.

Sometimes one pays most for the things one gets for nothing.—Albert Einstein.

Ottawa Offbeat
Red Kelly Inspires Students, Temple Earns Parents' Praise

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Seventeen buses — those big superhighway cruisers — were perked the other day on Parliament Hill.

They were in from Quebec's Granby, Sherbrooke and Three Rivers and Ontario's Pembroke, Pieton, Belleville and Peterborough, with just about 1,000 collegiate students, set to sight-see their Capital and their Parliament.

They're in every day now, a dozen or more busloads at a time, from all over Eastern and Central Ontario and Southern and Western Quebec.

The student invasion, forerunner of the summer's mass occupation of 750,000 American tourists is on — and nobody's more aware of it than the Hill.

For they must play host to the visiting firemen, be they busloads of collegiate youth from Toronto, Ontario, or planeloads of businessmen, conventioneers or even a visiting Indian man and wife from Vernon or Vancouver. B. C.

Quite a job really, this sightseeing swarm.

How does an MP brace himself for the impact of a high school student body?

Well in advance, if he knows the score.

Two weeks before the arrival, he's got everything taped.

(Like Edmonton's Liberal MP for Hastings South, had it taped when 91 Collegiate students rolled in on him from Belleville.)

He's got time blocs reserved for the students at the Mint, the National Gallery, RCMP headquarters, the National Museum and Other Places You'll See In The Capital.

He's got this timetable synchronized with the teacher or parent escorts of the students.

He's got the day's itinerary handed us they will be in the Centre Block at the right moment to see Mr. Speaker lead the House through the marble halls to the Commons, and then file to seats reserved in the Speaker's gallery to watch the Opening Question Period, still the Capital's greatest show, a day-to-day circus livelier even than the Changing of the Guard.

And finally, most important of all, he's got "Mr. Leonard "Red" Kelly, Liberal MP for York West, former nobody's Hockey Hero from the NHL Maple Leaf champions, all set to give them a speech.

Now this is not just any old speech. It's probably the best and most convincing thesis any young and receptive student minds are to hear, understand and appreciate in all their collegiate years.

Consider because there he is, the big, handsome, friendly, outgoing Redhead, a tremendous athlete, and, it turns out, an honor student himself.

Red's talking of the importance of being what he calls a "good, solid, well-balanced Canadian" with what he figures is one of the world's best chances to achieve life's success and personal fulfilment.

It is not good enough to be a good athlete, not good enough both to be a top star in the NHL. Nor is it good enough to be just a good student or even a bright and shining intellectual star in the professional scholar league.

It is only good enough to learn and live, to play and study, striving always for a better fuller life in an ever greater Canada.

Key to successful participation, to the living of a good and useful life — to themselves and their country alike — Red Kelly tells them, is the development of what he calls a good, strong healthy mind in a good, strong, healthy body.

You'd think it would all sound kind of corny, even square, to the sophisticates of the dunderhead beatle set.

But would you believe it — they buy it, the whole package — and they give Mr. Leonard "Red" Kelly the kind of hand that previously he must surely have thought was reserved for him when he scored for the Maple Leafs.

They are not so sophisticated, either, that they don't mob him for autographs.

Watch them respond to Red Kelly's kind of speech and you'll try thinking, and perhaps you might have second thoughts about teenagers and their sometimes strange ways.

Red was an honor student in his senior matriculation year at St. Michael's College with Robert Temple, one of the bright young men among the Liberal freshmen being groomed by the party's brass for future Cabinet rank.

It used to be that an MP would try to line up the prime minister or the opposition leader for such pitches to students on these tours.

And both John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson, with their enormous pull by young people, can do a good and most satisfactory job.

But nothing nearly as good as Red Kelly.

For discovering him as a speaker who can talk convincingly to youth, the Liberals in particular and perhaps parents in general owe Robert Temple a debt of gratitude.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 6th, 1944

Allied Powers of the West have struck, the invasion of Western Europe has begun. The first phase, the armed camp of Britain, the citadel of the West, where preparation of armaments and plans for invasion have long been in progress, Allied paratroop landings were made inland in France early today and troop landings on the French coast to form a beachhead. D-Day has come.

John Sit will go down in history as the date of the greatest combined landings in history for the greatest of stakes, the assurance of the freedom of the world and of democracy. Early reports tell of the successes of the landings, and the messages of the allied leaders breathe the very spirit of confidence while the people of the free nations go forward to their greatest undertaking.

Eleven thousand planes supported the attack. Allied planes preceded the landings with a heavy bombardment and that which reached its pinnacle in the landings of troops hit the beaches. The absence of German aerial opposition was remarked by early returning fliers and correspondents. The Germans are known to have withdrawn fighters and bombers available for the western front, but it was supposed that they would throw all of them in an all-out first - day battle.

The seaborne troops led by General Montgomery, surged across the Channel from England, while the parachutists and additional thousands of smaller craft. They were preceded by massed flights of parachute and glider forces who landed inland and behind the lines. German radio asserted the landings were made from Cherbourg to Le Havre — a distance of roughly 100 miles long — and latest said additional landings were being made "west of Cherbourg" indicating that the Allies intended to seize Normandy Peninsula with its ports and airdromes as the first base of their campaign to destroy the power of Nazi Germany.

The most common causes are:

1 — Arthritis in the joint.

2 — Gout. (Not everybody with gout has this jaw pain, though.)

3 — Faulty bite. Because of that is, the teeth don't meet properly, and this puts continued strain on the joint.

4 — Some injury such as dislocation of the jaw, which is excruciating for the patient, or causes the pain even after the original damage has been corrected.

RETAINING WALL along the riverbank by the Upper Bridge is being rebuilt by a city public works crew. Workmen in the picture are drilling into the rock bed of the river and erecting steel reinforcing rods. A line of sandbags keeps the area dry. Bottom eight feet of the wall will be concrete, to be poured next week; the rest will be stonework.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

RIVERSIDE RETAINING WALL

City public works employees, under supervisor Gordon McIntosh, began Wednesday to replace the retaining wall along the river at the upper bridge. A fifty-foot section of the wall collapsed about a month ago.

Ten men are working on the job now, preparing foundations. Concrete will be poured Thursday, Macintosh hopes, for the bottom eight feet of the wall. When the concrete is set, about four men will spend a few weeks building the top section of stone.

On the Front St. side of the bridge, J. L. Farrell has ripped out the back walls of buildings belonging to the W. F. Moore monument firm and is preparing foundations at the base of the retaining wall. Plans are to pour a concrete reinforcement for the wall and to continue with concrete block for a new back on the buildings.

BELLEVILLE PUBLIC WORKS

The city engineer's department has advertised for bids for about $75,000 worth of sewer work, to be finished before the end of the summer. Eight or ten-inch sanitary sewers are to be laid on Victoria Ave., near Strathcona; Strathcona, including an outlet to Bollins Drive; Jackson Ave. and Highview Crescent, including an outlet to Fisher St.; Sidney St., Adrian St. and Lemoine St., south from Tracey St.; Union St. east from Yeomans St.; College St. from Faber to North Front, and Bridge St. east from Parrott Drive. City workmen finished sidewalk repairs on West Moira St., Wednesday and are now working on sidewalks in the Hillside area. Repairs and construction of sidewalks are planned for later along Holloway St. and Octavia St.

WILSON'S TUNE-UP SERVICE

The roof is going on now, at the addition to Wilson's Tune-Up Service station on Coleman St., concrete block work on the 10,000-square-foot shop section is finished, and general contractor W. Danford and Son will be ready to pour concrete as soon as the roof is finished, Arthur A. Sills is the roofing contractor.

There's no rush on the shop for the time being, and Danford is handling it betwe.n other jobs. Mr. Wilson plans to move his work into the new shop when it's finished and rent the adjoining present shop. Later he will double his capacity, using both shops. Main reason for the addition being built now, he says, is that he likes in an apartment above his shop, and he needed more space in the apartment. The apartment is being doubled along with the shop. The present shop will be open for rental to anyone except Wilson's competitors.

SIDNEY ST. WATER MAIN

Working at West Bridge and Sidney Sts. now, Lightfoot Construction men find it slow going digging the Sidney St. water main across the intersection. Reason is that many sewer and water lines, and telephone cables, have already been put through the same area. Norm Lightfoot described the underground work there as "a maze" and his men doing most of the work by hand. Two backhoes on the site spend most of their time standing idle. The crew has spent a couple of days already cutting across the intersection. Lightfoot expects to be there several days more. Once across though, he says the final stretch down Sidney St. to Dundas will be pushed through quickly. Lightfoot doesn't like the delay, but he's not overly worried about it. He says he is still more than two weeks ahead of schedule.

SUN VALLEY MOTEL

The swimming pool was built last week, at the Sun Valley Motel, North Front St. at Highway 401. A Stouffville firm, S. G. Betz Pools, made the kidney-shaped pool of gunnite, (a sprayed concrete coating) over a steel framework. Pidduttti-Fabri of Belleville is making a patio of concrete, checkerboarded with cedar strips, around the pool now and it should be open to hotel guests only — in about a week. A rock garden is planned for the area to one side of the patio, with grass on the other side, and there will be dining tables around the pool. Also planned for opening week a Sauna, (Finnish steam bath) room near the pool is being readied for operation. The redwood-finished room was built as an integral part of the motel, but has not yet been opened.

Also new at the motel, mercury-vapor floodlighting along the north wall went into operation last night for the first time.

FOXBORO BYPASS

H. J. McFarland Construction Co. plans to start Monday on the finish coat of Highway 14 from Foxboro, just south of Foxboro, and on the Foxboro bypass. LOIS KELLEHER

Quinte Student Awarded Trip To Alberta

A two weeks all-expense paid trip to Alberta, during August, is the award received by Lois Kelleher, grade XI student at Quinte Secondary school, chosen to take part in a pilot project of the Youth Travel Program sponsored by the Centennial Commission.

Miss Kelleher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kelleher, 63 Gordon Street, was chosen for the trip from a slate of 35 students representing all three high schools in the city.

Quinte school principal Leslie F. Reid said that scholastic standing and school activities were considered in the choice of the student to represent Belleville schools on the trip.

Miss Kelleher is interested in public speaking, and was the winner of an inter-school oratory competition, her topic being "Canada, Land of Opportunity". She is a frequent contributor to her school paper, Quintatller, is editor of the school year book, Quintessence, and is President of the school band.

Her life ambition is either to be a nurse or an English teacher.

Details of the trip to Alberta and to the Peace River district will be announced later.

Campaign by Pigmy-Like Rebels in Kivu Province Has Become Major Problem

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)— provincial government of Simon Malago.

A six-week-old terrorist campaign by pygmy-like rebes in the farmlands of central Kivu province has become a major problem for the Congo central government in the last few days.

Since they launched their campaign April 15, the rebels' major success has been the capture of the small port town of Uvira on Lake Tanganyika, the route for all trade flowing between central Kivu and East Africa.

Last week the rebels began a march north to the provincial capital of Bukavu and, after heavy fighting, it appeared that town of 80,000 would be attacked Monday.

But the attack did not come and the Congolese army began rushing a reinforcement battalion to Bukavu to help the six companies stationed there.

A state of emergency was declared in the province and a former president of the Congolese Senate was dispatched to Bukavu as commissaire general extradionaire."

The rebels come from the Wafulero tribe, a people of pygmy descent, a little over five feet tall.

Well - informed sources place the rebel strength at "several thousands" and say it is growing. Although poorly equipped at the start of their campaign with bows and arrows and home-made rifles, reports of confirmed reports said the rebels have acquired light weapons and mortars from slain or fleeing Congo National Army troops.

Many informed observers in Leopoldville regard the revolt as purely tribal and local in nature. The official rebel position supports this. They claim their intention is to overthrow the

Although a Wafulero himself, Malago gained control of the province through the support of the Bashi tribe of the Ngwesbu region and is disliked by the Wafulero.

But central government officials in Leopoldville charge the revolt is part of an over-all attempt by the National Liberation Committee of extremist Congolese politicians who have formed an opposition base in Brazzaville, the capital of the former French Congo.

The central government says it has proof rebel leader Gaston Soumialot has been in touch with NLC leaders.

The revolt has also taken on cold-war overtones. Soumialot has been known to have visited some Communist bloc countries and has been seen in contact many times with officials of the Communist Chinese embassy in Usumbura, across the border from Uvira.

2. Told them what's planned, so they'll know whether or not to eat before starting out?

3. Checked to make sure the rooms are well ventilated, to prevent discomfort from heat and too much smoke?
